It is but natural, therefore, that a Company with such great resources in plant, skill and experience should be chosen for the production of various munitions of war. Several types of shell, aircraft wings and parts, and equipment for military transports are being turned out with the skill and efficiency which have made the name Massey-Harris famed throughout the years for products of highest quality.

Massey-Harris is proud of its part in providing the implements so essential in modern farming under war conditions and in building munitions and equipment so vital to the success of our fighting forces.

40% OBTAIN CAR LICENSES EXEMPTIONS SET

EDMONTON.—About forty per cent of Alberta's motor car owners were eligible to obtain rationed gasoline April first, when the new gas regulations were first put into effect. Rations are obtainable only by coupon books, who must have auto licenses to obtain ration books. The figure is not considered unusual, according to licensing officials. Last year only 10 per cent of the motorists had taken out 12 examinations will commence Wednesday, June 24 and will end Tuesday, June 30. Grade XII examinations will commence Tuesday, June 23 and end June 30.

CONSIDER DEBT LEGISLATION

Charging that the latest disallowance of Alberta debt legislation by the federal government was hush-hushed, Premier Aberhart declared this week that if the peoples' mandate (or debtor teller vote to be continually flouted at the instigation of minority groups the province might be forced to take matter of this drastic course. The first is to declare a blanket moratorium on all debts for the duration of the war, at the end of which the situation can be reviewed in the light of the circumstances then existing. The second is to declare that "a debt is not a debt," that of cancelling the principal of all debts contracted before a certain date.

"The government has the whole matter under consideration," said the Premier.

SAVE THE WOOLIES

Clothes of pure wool are going to be hard to replace after the war. Experts of the W.P. and T. Board advise ... conservives to fight the enemy the moths, by observing in time the following rules of warfare:

1. In packing away your winter woollens, see that all articles are CLEAN and free from moths and larvae before being packed.

2. Seal all the packages and boxes with gummed tape. Moths dislike newsprint, cedar, moth balls etc. These discourage them but do not kill them. Cedar-lined boxes and bags are no use at all if they have chinks that can admit moths. Best way is: Keep the enemy out.

Warm dark clothes-closets are at all times favored by moths. Clothes hung in such closets should be given a regular inspection and shaking from time to time throughout the year.

Keeping Meat Cheap

To keep down the prices of meat and other protein products, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has issued an order regulating wholesale prices for beef, veal and pork and their products. No retailer now need pay more for grades of meat to packing houses and meat wholesalers than he paid to the same wholesalers for similar grades of meat during the "basic period" from 15-Oct. 11 last, irrespective of prices paid by other retailers

VERMILION HOOPSTERS DEFEATED BY LLOYDMINSTER

On Wednesday night at the Arena Rink the Vermilion men's basketball team again suffered defeat at the hands of a much improved Lloydminster team. Although the locals proved no match for the fine teamwork, smart passing plays and accurate shooting of the visitors, they enjoyed having a chance to play against such a classy aggregation.

Day with 22 points to his credit sparked the border town team to the 46-25 win.

Line-ups were as follows:

Lloydminster—Day, Dilling, Miller, Juvelin, Bamford.

Vermilion—Hole, Moenler, Cooper, Johnson, Wiebe, Williams, Killen.

Referee: Harper.

High and Public School Break Even

The high school and public school girls' basketball teams have broken even in their last two encounters, each winning one. The final game was particularly keenly contested, with the public school coming from behind in the last quarter to take the game by a narrow margin.

The high school girls are fortunate in having Mrs. Hole to take over Mrs. Cory's coaching duties. The enthusiasm and ability that Mrs. Hole displays should soon mould the girls into a really fine team.

BOWTELL BULLETIN

Aubrey McGinnis was rushed to the hospital last Thursday night suffering from an attack of appendicitis. He underwent an operation on Saturday morning and is now reported to be progressing favorably.

Miss A. Coutts of town spent the Easter week end visiting her cousin Isabel Sherwood.

A tea and handkerchief shower is to be held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Walker in honor of Mrs. Harrison who expects to leave shortly for a trip down east.

Mr. Demal was noticed home from the regiment.

Don't forget to do your bit, folks, and cut down on the gas. Use your legs a little more—walking is wonderful exercise.

Harold Knutson is helping at McClelan's this week as Mr. McClellan is away. Miss Maybelle is spending a few days with Miss M. Sample, in Vermilion.

Jack Morrison was kept busy on Saturday pulling trucks out of the mud holes with his tractor.

The tickets are going fast on the quilt. At the time of writing we believe that Mrs. Hepp has sold the most. The draw will be made in the near future.

Dick Payne was busy Friday morning moving a granary he had bought. He got stuck and Harry Perkins had to go to the rescue.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Brady, who are moving onto the farm near the Dowtell school, are now getting settled and we bid them welcome to our district. They come from Island Hill.

The children enjoyed an Easter party given by Miss Taylor on the last day of school.

The rink boards, pump jack and scraper have been stored away until next winter.

"FLOWERS TO PLANT"

It has been said that if you can grow chrysanthemums you can have no difficulty with Peonies, and that is perfectly true. All they need is deeply dug, well prepared soil, liberally enriched with well-rotted manure from the cow barn. They must not be planted too deep, or the crowns will rot and die. The little pips of the new growth should be only just below the surface. They prefer a fairly moist location, but will not thrive in a low, insufficiently drained location. A mulch of manure to the fall is helpful.

Iris are just as easy to grow as Peonies and should not give any trouble. The variety usually grown in this country is Iris Germanica and they are found in a large assortment of color combinations. Any good garden soil will be quite satisfactory and given a reasonable amount of moisture they multiply very rapidly. There is one point that must be remembered, and that is they must not be planted too deeply. In a healthy clump of iris it will be noted that the rhizomes are quite close to the surface, in fact they are often right on the surface.

This week I have planted seeds of Pansy and annual Carnations. These should make fine plants quite early in the season and if well hardened off can be put in the garden any time from the end of April to the beginning of May, as any light frost will not hurt them. The Pansies will be spring seems to be making time. It will take a week of good warm days to open up the lands.

The Commercial Grads of Edmonton had the first of a two-game series at Wetaskiwin on Friday night.

Curling continues and a doubleheader for the Blair cup was played on Good Friday against Islay. The cup was lost in the afternoon game and won back in the evening.

British Parachute Troops Training for Combat with the German Army

Britain is now building up a powerful parachute army, equipped with the most modern weapons. These bearers of a new familiar badge—Air Force Wings surmounted by a small parachute — are volunteers from almost every regiment in the British army. They must above all know how to fall, and rolling exercises figure prominently in the training. They are armed with Bren guns and Tommy guns . . . A British parachutist firing a Tommy gun.

Many Adventures

Sub-Lieutenant Of The French Navy Graduates From Air School

A former sub-lieutenant in the French Navy was among graduates at No. 3 Air Observers' School of the Royal Canadian Air Force at Regina. The Frenchman, whose name he not being used, was aboard the French destroyer Terrible when it was sunk at Dunkerque. he was picked up by a cattle boat which struck a mine and sank. Picked up a second time, he was landed at Le Havre but was captured by the Germans.

Later he escaped from his prison

The Alternative

Being questioned whether he was in a position to keep a wife, fiancée, confidently replied in the affirmative. "There's hardly a morrish," he said, "but a' leave some o' ma parrich, in fact, it a' dinna get a wife soon a' mean get another pig."

Are Always Thorough

Britain Makes No Exceptions When Law Is Broken

The British people, states the Huron Expositor, Seaforth have often been accused, by their American brothers and cousins of being slow, but no one yet has ever accused them of not being thorough.

And that goes as well in the matter of fines for infractions of war restrictions.

Woodlands Chemists, Ltd., of London, was fined forty thousand pounds, which runs close to two hundred thousand dollars in our money, for exceeding its cosmetics sales quota under Britain's wartime rationing laws, and was given three months to pay the fine

By the time the company succeeds in paying that fine they will be looking back upon their profits and dividends as vanishing cream, a highly prized cosmetic in women's lives, but something which the company will be very chary of disposing of in future.

Putting It Into Figures

The American Petroleum Institute estimates that each tanker sunk means that 100,000 automobiles are deprived of their principal source of fuel. Figured that each tanker carried 48,000 000 gallons of fuel, the Institute said this was about equal to the consumption of 100,000 passenger cars at 650 gallons each or of 23,000 domestic oil burners at 1,-500 gallons each.

JUMPER-FROCK FOR WAR

By Anne Adams

Your new war work demands a practical, washable uniform that will stand hard wear. You need more than one, as it must be inexpensive Pattern 4926 was adapted by Anne Adams from the women s defense uniform designed by the Department of Agriculture and can be made economically at home. The button-front jumper apron slips on quickly over its own contrast blouse or over your dress. The pockets are set in the skirt seams to keep from tearing and the shoulder straps are cut in one with the centre panel for the same reason. Make the blouse long or short-sleeved wear the collar open or closed. Let the Sewing Instructor help you finish quickly!

Pattern 4926 is available in junior sizes 11, 13, 15 and 17, misses' and women s sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16, jumper, takes 3 yards 39 inch fabric; blouse 1¼ yards contrast.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly Size, Name Address and Style Number and send orders to the Anne Adams Pattern Dept. Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave E. Winnipeg, Man.

Famous Sign Falls Victim To War Effort

For the past six years this spectacular sign has thrilled the Broadway crowds. To see the Great White Way, and the Wrigley sign in particular because it was the largest, was one thing that thrilled the visitors to New York from all over the world. It was planned to discontinue this beautiful sign strictly as an economic measure. The sign was 75 feet high and 192 feet long. It contained 25,000 lamps and consumed as much electric current as would be needed to illuminate a town of 10,000 population. From an economic standpoint and in an effort to help win the war, the officials of the company decided it was the right thing to do. What the country needs today are ships, tanks, airplanes, and guns, and to produce these weapons of war takes lots of power.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

APRIL 13

THE MISSION OF THE SEVENTY

Golden text: The harvest indeed is plenteous, but the laborers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he send forth laborers into his harvest. Luke 10:2.

Lesson: Luke 10:1-20.

Devotional reading: Psalm 67.

Explanations and Comments

The Seventy Sent on a Mission. Luke 10:1-3. As Jesus had sent out the Twelve (Luke 9:1-6), so now he sent out seventy others. The first reads, Now after these things (the incidents recorded in Luke 8:46-62), the Lord "appointed seventy others; but the appointment was for a special service, not as in the case of The Twelve, for permanent work. Jesus sent them out in companies of two for mutual help and companionship (The twelve also were thus sent, Mark 6.7) and bade them go into the cities which he himself was planning to visit after their preliminary work.

"We have all admired the wondrous wisdom of that shrewd, sagacious plan. There is no evidence that Jesus relied much upon conferences, congresses, and the like. As a permanent factor in character-building he trusted to the influence of a companion rather than to the inspiration of a crowd. He was a great believer in those walks, side by side, along the winding Galilean highways.

The Counsels given to the Seventy, Luke 10:4-11. On entering a house, they were to utter the Hebrew word "salaam," or friendly greeting of "Peace be to this house." A prayer that the household might be blessed in every respect. "And if a son of peace (a beautiful phrase for one disclined to peace) be there," Jesus added, "your peace shall rest upon him."

In the home which welcomes you, remain, freely enjoying its hospitality, for the sustaining of my messengers is not a charity but a debt, and the laborer is worthy of his hire.

The Mission of the Seventy Crowned with Success, Luke 10:17-20. The Seventy returned with joy, and reported that even the demons had been subject to them in the name of Jesus. It is a figure of speech (verses 18 and 19). Jesus declared that in their success he saw a prophecy of the ultimate overthrow of his Kingdom over the whole world.

SO YOU'RE GOING TO DO A PLAY?

The purpose of doing a play is to communicate to an audience the dramatic vision of the playwright. To do this it is necessary to visualize some of the characteristics of the play in order to determine how the actor or actress should play the role. Or re-create the part in the pattern set out in the script by the author. I am going to suggest three ways of approaching this problem:

Analyzing The Part

1. What did the author intend that I should contribute to the whole play? Let us make a survey of the whole play first. Is it tragedy, or comedy or farce? Or is it fantasy or is it a pageant, or is it something impressionistic a fragment of someone's imagination. Is it a play for entertainment? Or does it stir up your emotions? Have you go home solving the problem and wondering what you would do if you were in that same situation?

Find The Purpose Of Your Part

2. If you have one or two leading roles in the show this should not be hard, watch your part in the play pattern. If you have a minor role, it may take a little more drawing. But each part is important, small or large, and if one little cog is missing the mesh will not run smoothly; neither will the play run smoothly if every part is not there and co-operating.

Stage Business

3. The actions the audience see—are found in brackets throughout the script. And are usually given by way of a fine index to many characteristics and help you with your blocking.

At the end of any play, the audience may not be familiar with the technical terms but they know whether it was a convincing performance. If the director has succeeded in the cast to go down into the audience at the end of the play to receive the congratulations of the special friends; the cast knows whether they did a good show and where they fell down. If they don't receive too many nice remarks they will endeavor to do better next time. But if they succeed with a group of admiring friends, they soon loose their balance and go home feeling that all the mistakes in the play were someone else's fault. FATIGUE IN WORKERS

Since war was declared, with the attendant necessity to step up production in factories, the work of industrial physiologists has been doubled and tripled. What makes a man produce so much work in one day, only half his output the next day, then double his production another day? Is it the length of time he works, the colour of the factory walls, or what he had for breakfast that influences his work output?

Some light is thrown on the subject by Dr. A. C. Ivy, well-known physiologist of Northwestern University, who spoke recently at the Congress on Industrial Health, convening in Chicago.

"Recently it was clearly demonstrated," said Dr. Ivy, "that the output of a group of workers in a shoe factory, who ate the ordinary three meals a day, was materially increased by providing a forenoon and afternoon lunch of a glass of milk and a piece of cake. The lunches prevented the usual falling off in production in the latter half of the morning and afternoon. It was concluded that the decrease was to outgoes rather due to the work performed, but to the operators' need of food."

Hunger. Dr. Ivy indicated that a glass of milk and a piece of cake was not the complete answer. [illegible] was first tried, output was increased up for a while, but later production resumed pretty much its original speed. It did, however, give the workers additional valuable minerals and probably indirectly kept the health of the workers at a higher level

"The problem of what creates fatigue in workers cannot be solved by any group," says Dr. Ivy. "The physiologist and director of personnel have much to contribute. The physician can contribute by giving advice regarding the health and nutrition of the worker. Wise eating may be the answer."

CHAPTER XVI.

Tamar was shaking so that the bushes moved. She hastily stepped back, keeping within seeing distance of the two men in the car. Her heart pounded madly as the one called Nick started to get out.

"Don't get jumpy, Nick. This kind of job takes some real cool iron nerves. And as I said before, it has to be timed absolutely to that nothing will happen." Tamar lost the next few words as the major stepped on his starter. Well, I guess the place will do, but I wanted to see for my own eyes. We'll work the rest out in the office.

Tamar watched them leave with widening eyes. Something was about to take place that included she knew not what kind of crime. Nor did she know the time or the nature of the plot. The only thing she knew for certain was that this old picnic spot had suddenly became a potential scene for some black deed.

She waited until she was sure that the car had turned back on the main highway, and then she mounted Madcap and rode slowly along the trail. She could take no chances on them two men seeing her.

Tamar turned Madcap toward home. She heard a car behind her and started nervously, but as it passed she saw that the driver was Ransome Todd. She wondered what he was doing away from his office at the bank time of the day. He waved a friendly arm in greeting and stopped, pulling off the highway onto the shoulder of the road.

"Having a ride?" he asked, as though he had not just talked with Dr. Furrow and had come out purposely to find her.

As Tamar pulled up beside him, he saw that her face was white and her eyes deeply disturbed. He wanted to lift her bodily out of Madcap's saddle and drive away with her and never give her up.

"If I drive slowly, can we walk Madcap back to Shadwell behind the car?"

"Thanks, Ranny." Her voice was deep with something indefinable. "Oh, I do want to talk with some one, Ran." She looked anxiously down the road. "Did you meet Major Towne and some one past now in his big car?"

"Yes. They sped by me, breaking every one of Georgia's speed laws. I noticed especially because I heard Sheriff Mack say that he intended clamping down again. There's been a lot of that since the Cricket Pill's opened up."

Ran got out and tied Madcap to the back of the car. "I'll drive slowly enough so that it won't hurt her feet." He got in beside Tamar and they rolled back on the paving. He looked at her questioningly.

Tamar said: "I hardly know how to begin. You've been right all along, Ranny. You never have trusted Major Towne, and now I have reason to believe that your judgment is correct."

Ransome said sharply, "Go ahead Tam. What have you found out?"

"I went to our old picnic grounds, Ted Mackey's place on the banks of Chance, and went for a swim."

After she had cried her heart out about her mother, Ransome thought to himself. He could see the telltale marks on her eyelids, even though the cool waters of the Chance to had almost obliterated them.

"Yes?"

"And while I was drying out in the breeze, I heard a car coming along the trail. I dashed for my clothes and dressed quickly, for fear of being discovered. The car belonged to Major Towne and one of his office assistants. They sat there and talked about that being a good place for whatever they were contemplating."

"What do you mean?"

"That's what I don't know. It sounds so silly. Major Towne said that they'd have to be sure of it because they couldn't afford to take any chances. The other man said [illegible] Patten had told him that no one ever came there, and that he had found some 'really tough birds' to do the job. Oh, Ranny, what could it be?"

"That's what we'll have to find out. When is this to take place?"

"They didn't say exactly. One said the moon would be here in about two weeks."

"If I so much as catch you out-side the house and well-travelled bridle paths around Shadwell, I'm going to give you the spanking of your life!" Ransome said grimly. "Tamar Randolph, I hope this will teach you a thing or three! What if they'd found you there this morning, after they'd discussed all of their intentions?"

Two large crystal drops rolled down Tamar's cheeks. Her silence was appalling, and Ran looked at her in time to see her wipe the tears away. Then she slumped in the left his office to find her and try to offer her comfort after the blow she had just received about her mother's condition, and here he had callously made her cry.

He put the horse in the barn, and Ransome stopped the car, unlying Madcap, led her to a gate and helped her mount. Then he gave her a friendly little slap and turned her loose.

"We're going to take the afternoon off," Ran said to Tamar, when he got back into the car "I'm going to kidnap you for the day."

"I really do want to go back and see Mother, Ranny." The red lips trembled and Ransome wanted to kiss them

"Didn't you sent word by Phoebe that you were going to Selby's for the afternoon?"

"How did you know?" Mother would wonder why she had changed her plans, and that would certainly need some explanation.

"I called. I ran into Uncle Doc just after you were there, honey." Ran slipped his strong hand over her [illegible]

His comforting singers touched Tamar like no words could possibly have done. She suddenly knew why she was away from the office. That was like Ranny. He had left his work to find her so that he could help loosen the shack of the doctor's words.

Ransome passed briefly at the entrance of the brown columns at the lane. "Shall we go up to the house or do we take off the next few hours?"

Tamar's little fingers curled up over his long brown hand. "It will be better to stay away for a while longer, then I won't have to explain.

Gardening

No Need To Rush

It will not hurt to plant sweet peas, spinach, lettuce or radish just as soon as the ground is warm. Before planting, mark off rows of plant, however, there is no advantage whatever in sowing it while soil is wet. The growth in any case until the soil really turns slaker.

Gardeners are advised to divide their rows of seeds into groups of three parts, sowing a third as soon as weather permits, a third a little later, and the balance at the w tail-end of the planting season. In this way they will not all mature at first batch there will be more plants ready for the table. Succession is lengthened by the last part of the garden sown

Hot Beds

A hot bed for starting garden seeds early and vigorously prepared in March. It consists of a bed of fresh horse manure, built up to a depth of about 18 inches deep. On this layer or layers of manure soil is placed and after the bed has heated up and the rank fumes have passed, a matter of three or four days the seed is sown in rows a few inches apart. The soil is then covered to a rough boarding along the side and with old glass sashes or frames. Then about 10 to 18 inches above the bed is hinged to the boards and is placed. If only a few plants are wanted, these may be started in boxes and put in flat boxes indoors and placed in sunny windows.

As a general rule, shrubs, trees and flowers should have half an inch room between as their mature height This means at least two feet apart for [illegible] three and a half feet for the ordinary spires, and twenty-five to thirty feet for the general run of Canadian hardwood trees.

At this time of the year seeds are sown [illegible] but the space may be taken up with annual flowers, in the case of a perennial bed, [illegible] with temporary quick-growing shrubbery and trees with the others.

Icebergs are formed of fresh water, since they are formed on land as glaciers, and break off as icebergs when they reach the sea. 2456

Making War Gauges

Many Machine Shops in Canada Now Busy On Production.

Approximately 85 Canadian machine shops are manufacturing the 25,000 types of gauges required in Canada for production of munitions used in modern mechanized warfare, the munitions and supply department announced.

"Expanded from a group of five shops in 1939, this essential industry is expected this year to double the number of basic items being produced," the department said.

Used in manufacturing or interchecking parts of mechanisms, ordnance or ammunition, gauges are made of bronze, aluminum and steel. Two types of gauges are made, one for the manufacturer and the other for government inspectors

Since the start of the war, the department said, orders have been placed for 150,000 gauges representing an expenditure of more than $4,-500,000.

Materials Scarce

Road Work In Canada Will Be Curtailed This Year

Building and repairing of roads in Canada will be curtailed this year because of shortage of asphalt, petroleum spirits and tar, and sometimes used to reinforce concrete highways. New construction will be restricted to roads regarded as vital defence arteries or for links between existing roads and new military plants or war camps.

Bull Seals Face Danger In Pacific During Fall Trip

Happily unaware that the American continent is now engaged in a life and death struggle with Japan, the Alaskan seal herd has run the gauntlet of enemy waters and arrived in safety at their spring quarters off the coast of California.

Alaskan seals are creatures of habit. They bask off the Alaskan shore for five months, and then punctually every May they head north for the island of Pribolof Alaska Here the young seals are born, and learn sufficient prowess in the art of swimming to undertake the return journey. The young three-year-old males disport themselves separately in bachelor freedom, and a due proportion are killed for the sake of their skins—to make fur coats for ladies or a hat for Mr Churchill.

The seal industry was, until recently, a joint arrangement between the United States, Canada and Japan, the valuable herd had, by careful conservation, grown to over 3¼ million seals. Japan is now an enemy and her 15 per cent. share is denied her. With sinister emphasis she says that the situation will not prevent her from killing on sight any seal who happens to get within her range

Here lies the danger for next season. In the middle of September the herd leaves the comparative safety of the Alaskan coast and heads south via Japanese waters. In the vast expanse of the Pacific it fans out, each individual or family going off on its own concerns until January when they all foregather on the islands off California.

The di rsion of human traffic from a anger zone is a task calling merely for "No Road" signs, a broadcast to motorists, or a handful of police on motorcycles. But can the Alaskan seal herd be warned next October to take the return journey down the American and Canadian coast instead of their habitual route by way of Japanese waters? Here is a nice problem for the scientist, the zoologist and th- fur administrator to solve

Seeding Wheat Early

Early seeding of wheat is not so urgent as it was formerly, and swiftly ripening sorts were adopted. A date Noted Pinnacler Puzzled His Lawyer has been found best at Swift Current Experimental Station. The recommendation is that oats and barley be seeded first as they are most benefit from the early moisture

Calculated In Minutes

Contracts awarded and commitments made by the department of munitions and supply last year totalled $2,000,000,000 or the equivalent of a $4 009 contract every minute of the day.

University Professor Has Scheme For Bombing Volcanoes

A university professor has an original scheme for ending the war with Japan—start a few volcanoes erupting

Dr. Harold C. Whitnall professor of geology at Colgate University, asserts that aerial bombs could burst the plugs in the "throats" of volcanoes.

The pent-up pressure of gases in the bowels of the volcano, he says, would send lava tumbling down on Japanese cities and might produce earthquakes and tidal waves.

WILDBERRY WINKS

DEATH AND FUNERAL OF MRS OTELLEN HOUD

The people of this countryside were shocked to hear of the sudden passing of Otellia Rund, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Rund of Wildberry, the death took place on Tuesday evening March 31. While the deceased had been troubled with incurable ill for some since childhood no one thought death to be near. Her passing will leave a vacant spot in the community and people will miss her cheery smile and friendly ways. Otellia came to the community as a small child and grew up here. She was married some time ago passing her father and mother, one sister Mrs. Newman, and four brothers, Peter in the Island Canoe, Ernest, Arnold and John at home.

The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon from the First United church in Vermilion where a large congregation gathered to show their respect to the deceased and sympathy to the sorrowing family. The Rev. L. Sieber gave a very comforting sermon and two favorite hymns of the deceased were sung, "Abide With Me" and "Nearer My God To Thee".

Pall-bearers were Aubrey Rendell, Thos. Wilson, Arthur Beckman, Fred Beckman, Chris Thompson and Dan Ford.

A large number of ladies attended the club meeting at the home of Mrs. Garnett. A considerable amount of finished work was distributed. One visitor, Mrs. Albert Smith, was also present. After the regular business of the meeting the president, Mrs. John Wilson, told the gathering that the club was about to lose one of its very good members in the person of Mrs. Gilbolme and on behalf of the club she presented her with a small gift. Mrs. Gilbolme thanked the women here for their good wishes and said the club every success in the good work that they were doing. A tasty lunch was served by Mrs. Garnett. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Osterberg on May 6th.

Farewell Party for Mr. and Mrs. Gilbolme and Family

On Wednesday evening a jolly crowd gathered at the school to bid farewell to our very good neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbolme and family, who have now left for Cherhill, Alta. Whist was played with the honors being Robt. Ibbbes as a lady, first, and Margaret Gilbolme second; for the gents first went to Wm. Garnett and 2, Victor Howard. Fred Haines was M.C. and an impromptu program was held after the cards which caused a great deal of merriment, as no one knew who was to be called on or for what—debates, songs, recitations, etc. followed in quick order. Mr. George Dibbes gave a toast to the departing family and Mr. Haines presented them with a beautiful set of silverware as a token of remembrance and esteem from their many friends here. The residents thanked everyone and Mrs. Gilbolme voiced the thought that while they might find better conditions elsewhere, they would never find better friends, but when one has a big family one has to move where conditions are better to make a living for them. Lunch was served and dancing was enjoyed for a few hours with Albert Smith and John Wilson donating the music. At the close of the evening all joined hands and "For They are Jolly Good Fellows" was sung with real feeling and every one was wished the Gilbolme family in their new home at Cherhill.

Easter holidays made a break for teachers and pupils alike. Miss Sutherland and Miss Reader went to their respective homes at Calgary and Bon Accord and Miss Evelyn Howard came to her home here.

Vernon, Ardis, Gloria and Irene Morand of Triangle visited their grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Adam Smith of Wildmere on Good Friday.

Retired artists: The council meeting being postponed to Monday due to the funeral: The Gilbolme family leaving on Saturday; The Smith Bros. attending the Hamers sale; Geo. Seaforth heading homeward early Monday; a box of cookies left at the club meeting and no one knowing who owned them or from whence they came.

The writer, in answer to numerous requests for more reminiscences of early days, will have another story of pioneers in next week's Standard.

WARNING TO PARENTS

Late last fall and again this week a case there have been started at the Agricultural society grounds; evidently the fires were started by children. Children are forbidden to play in the grounds and action will be taken in future; there is no desire to have fires lested for trespassing but such will be necessary if the practice continues.

BOARD OF TRADE FAVORS 'YES' VOTE

At the regular weekly meeting of the board of trade on Monday a resolution was passed to the effect that the board take a definite stand in favor of the "Yes" vote in the forthcoming plebiscite. The resolution also asked that this stand be publicized as much as possible.

The Ways and Means committee were appointed to attend a meeting on the purpose of getting the vote out on April 27th.

Mr. Albert Ripley, representing interests at Indian Head, Sask., was present at the meeting and on being introduced stated that he was here gathering information about the oil field. There was the distinct possibility that the parties he represented would drill oil wells here this summer.

The matter of salvage came up and note was taken of the meeting on Wednesday this week for a Salvage Corps organization.

Mr. D. A. Andrew, district agricultural agent, a short talk on the hog situation due to a changed weight schedule and also on the conservation of coarse grain.

Note was also taken that Jas. D. Adam and George Garland were representing the board of trade while in Edmonton on matters in connection with the possible use of the college buildings would be taken up.

Eighteen members were present at the luncheon and it is hoped that number will attend on Monday next, April 20.

POPULAR YOUNG COUPLE ARE WED AT PRETTY CHURCH CEREMONY

Speake — Dunsmore

At First United church, Vermilion, on Wednesday, April 8th, at three o'clock, a pretty wedding was solemnized when Eleanor, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dunsmore, was married to Vernon, youngest son of Mrs. Speake and the late Mr. A. E. Speake of Cutknife, Sask.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in a princess style dress of white sheer crepe. Her veil being held by a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of seasonal flowers, and wore a single strand of pearls.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Gwen Dunsmore, who wore a becoming floor length dress of rose sheer, with rose hat and matching corsage. The groom was attended by Mr. Wm. Milne of Vermilion, and the ushers were the bride's brothers, Messrs. Robert and Mack Dunsmore.

Rev. L. G. Sieber performed the ceremony at the altar which was tastefully decorated with spring flowers.

Mrs. A. M. West played the wedding march and during the signing of the register Mrs. Ted Foley sang very beautifully "I Love You Truly".

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where Mr. Milne proposed a toast to the bride, which was fittingly responded to by the groom.

Mrs. Wm. Philips, sister of the bride, poured tea. Miss Jessie Keenan and Mrs. Gordon Magee assisted in serving. The happy couple left for a honeymoon to Edmonton and other points. For travelling the bride wore a smart blue suit with accessories to match.

Out of town guests included the groom's mother and aunt, Mrs. Speake of Cutknife and Mrs. McCaffrey of Winnipeg, his sister Mrs. Cyril Gee and two nieces Elaine and Eleanor Gee of Lloydminster, and Mrs. Gordon Magee of Medicine Hat.

Mr and Mrs. Speake will make their home in Vermilion.

DISASTROUS FIRE ON RICHARD GOOD FARM

Barn, Livestock, and Seed Grain Destroyed

A disastrous fire occurred at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Good of the Chatsworth district on about 2:30 last Thursday morning when discovered it had already destroyed a large barn 6 head of horses, milk cows, 3 calves, a team of horses and several sets of harness, tools etc. It had spread to an adjoining granary and these destroyed with a considerable quantity of seed grain was lost. The loss is estimated at from $1600 to $1700 and no insurance was carried on the buildings. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a cumpkin loss to know how such a thing could have happened. There was no means in or near the barn the building didn't have a mow and there was no sign of heating in the loop in the granary. In addition there are no smokers on the farm and there hadn't been a lantern in the barn on months or month.

The loss is a serious one to the family and the many friends and neighbors sympathize greatly with them in their misfortune.

2755 PEOPLE VISIT ARMY TRAIN IN VERMILION

Townspeople Entertain Soldiers

Taking advantage of fine weather a total of 2755 persons visited the Army Train at Vermilion during its two-hour stop Saturday. The train stayed here overnight and during the evening the role of hosts was reversed, the people of Vermilion entertaining the train crew members at the display train right royally. Early Sunday morning the train left for Vegreville.

The exhibition of Canadian-made war materials brought home the realization that one Canadian boy were getting the best possible equipment, was most imposing and impressive and elicited enthusiastic comments from the hundreds of sightseers who steadily streamed through the train from 2:3 to 1:30 in the afternoon.

Lt. Col. J. E. McKenna, M.C. who was in charge of the train met officials from Vermilion and the local reception committee when the train entered the C. N. R. station at 2:05 and he was extended welcome by Mayor Morrison K.C., and S. C. Heckbert, President Vermilion Command, Canadian Legion.

In company with Lt. Col. McKenna was Lieut. R. H. Wilson of Calgary, public relations officer of M.D. 12 who joined the train at Vermilion for the tour of Alberta.

Almost thirty members of the official welcoming party made a section of the train. This party consisted of the Mayor and councillors of the town, reeve and councillors of the rural municipality, members of the fire brigade, the native army personnel in uniform, members of the Canadian Legion, members of the Vermilion Chamber of Commerce, members of the town health women and men's members of the press etc.

The electric train was ordered to the attention of the visitors and the machine the product of Canadian workmanship by student apprentices of the army trades school, embodies a photo-electric cell principle display apparatus such as can picture images

VERMILION PLANS A CREDIT UNION; LOCAL COMMITTEE ELECTED

Meeting Held on Tuesday

When C. B. Dehne, Supervisor of Credit Unions visited Vermilion on Tuesday afternoon, and addressed a public meeting in the Memorial hall it was decided that plans should be developed for establishing a credit union in this town.

A credit union can be described as an organization of people banded together under the law for the purpose of encouraging the practice of thrift among its members and making available to those same funds required for provident or productive purposes at reasonable rates of interest declared the speaker who is well and intimately associated with credit unions in Alberta.

Mr. Dehne's address was followed by questions as well as comments by the local men present and the following committee was appointed to investigate the possibilities of organizing a credit union in this district: Messrs. Wm. Mayhew, Jas. Keenan, Geo. Newton, Fred Hilderbrand, Ed. Wilson and Fred Trotter. The members of this committee would welcome the co-operation and support of all interested. They will be calling at the meetings at later date.

The meeting was held in the Memorial hall and was the largest one that has been held in the district for one man present had to be content with standing room only.

$76,000.00 FIRE LOSS AT KITSCOTY TUESDAY NIGHT

Vermilion Brigade Prevents Spread of Flames

Kitscoty suffered a $76,000 loss late Tuesday night when fire razed the Alberta Pool elevators and annex, and the local grain elevator despite the good work of the Vermilion fire brigade which responded to a call for help and the arrival of Vermilion's big pumper, which drew its supply of water from a nearby slough, effectively checked the spread of flames to the nearly elevators and the C. N. R. station. The west bound passenger was delayed two hours while several feet of debris and grain was removed from the track.

GROWING TENSION WITH FALSE LEADERS

Golden text: He that is not with me is against me: and he that gathereth not with me scatterth. Luke 11:23.

Lesson. Luke 11:14-54; 13:31-35

Devotional reading: Psalm 26:1-7.

Explanations and Comments

A Pharisee's Criticism and Jesus' Denunciations in Answer, Luke 11:37-44. Luke records three invitations to dine which Jesus accepted from Pharisees. One time when Jesus had been talking to a multitude gathered about him (verse 29) a Pharisee besought him to dine with him, and Jesus complied. At once his host found an opportunity for criticism his Guest failed to bathe himself, or wash his hands in accordance with prescribed customs. Jesus answered the criticism with a sharp reproof of the way of life of Pharisees in general, accusing them of cleansing the outside of the cup and of the platter —a figurative expression for their conduct in its outward appearance— while their inward part, their real nature, was full of extortion and wickedness.

"Ye foolish ones, did not he that made the outside make the inside also" Did not the Creator who made our bodies make our souls also? And should we not give care to both?"

Jesus next reproved the Pharisees for their pride and vanity, their desire for the chief seats in the synagogues (the semi-circular bench around the ark and facing the congregation) and the salutations of the people in the market places, and for their hypocrisy. They were like concealed tombs over which men walk without knowing it. Contact with sepulchres was regarded as defiling, and annually on the 15th day of Adar they had been covered with lime-wash so that no one might touch them unaware and be made ceremonially unclean. Like unwashed tombs, the Pharisees defiled those who came in contact with them.

Criticism of The Scribes, Luke 11:45-52. The scribes were the expounders of the law which the Pharisees so scrupulously observed, and one of them said to Jesus that in his words were a reproach upon them likewise. "Woe unto you lawyers also!" cried Jesus, "for ye load men with burdens grievous to be borne" —by adding to the written law many minute and troublesome laws which they declared more important than the law itself. Mt. 15:21 —"and ye yourselves touch not the burdens with one of your fingers." The last statement is a proverbial saying for "will not take the smallest trouble to keep their own rules."

A Wise Precaution

Key Minister Whom Making Trip Should Not Travel Together

The Toronto Star says: Those who travel on government business often travel dangerously. Hon. Norman Rogers died in a plane crash when minister of defence. Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of munitions, had a narrow escape from death when the Western Prince was torpedoed. His financial adviser Gordon Scott of Montreal, lost his life. Dr. Banting went to his death in a Newfoundland crash. Hon J. L. Ralston, defence minister, recently experienced a forced landing in Northern Ontario. It is to be noted that he and Air Minister Power were travelling on separate planes at the time. That is a wise precaution. Key ministers should not travel together in planes or on ships.

Frock Slims Down Your Waist

BY ANNE ADAMS

Never before has there been such flattery for the figure as you get in Anne Adams Patterns! Take Pattern 4772, for instance—those of you whose waist is NOT your middle will find the extra inches disappear when you don this frock. The effect is achieved by a lowered waist seam pointed above the centre skirt panel —the slashes just above the waist complete the girdle effect. Four jewel buttons march up to the tiny revers which are so pert! (You may make them of contrast.) The waistband continues in back for a sleek look— the skirt is evenly flared all around. Follow the Sewing Instructor while you work, to get every detail right —choose three-quarter sleeves if you like, and do select a gay print like this!

Pattern 4772 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3¼ yards 39 inch fabric.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly Size, Name Address and Style Number and send orders to the Anne Adams Pattern Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave. E. Winnipeg, Man.

REG'LAR FELLERS—A Noble Cause

By GENE BYRNES

SO YOU'RE GOING TO DO A PLAY!

Growth of the play from rehearsal to rehearsal is most important to both director and cast. What do you do with actors when they go stale? Well, frankly, I don't know, as I never had that experience. Now I can hear you scoff, but I really mean it. Of course, I have been fortunate to have always or nearly always been able to choose a royalty play. That means a great deal. Usually the lines are so well written that they carry the play without a great deal more, if you haven't an experienced cast. Take the "First Dress Suit," a delightful play for a young man of 18 years, who can carry a good solo part. In this play the family order a dress suit for the young man on the occasion of his sister's wedding, and when the bridegroom's suit does not come, it is suggested that he borrow the kid brother's. But the kid brother has made other plans and carries them through. We like a play we can get our teeth into," is an oft repeated expression in my group, hence we do more comedy than tragedy because it is harder to do. Why? you ask. Well, comedy must be played in a racy, breezy manner and FAST. No stops between lines for cues. With tragedy, you can take your time and gradually built to the climax and the pauses often add atmosphere. Not so with comedy, unless they are filled with business. The play must never stop or sag for one split second in comedy. Then so many of the plays printed, especially those non-royalty are filled with wise cracks, 50 laughs a minute, well, after the first three or four rehearsals the cast no longer enjoy those jokes. And unless the cast enjoy the play, they can't do a convincing performance, hence the audience can feel that lack of conviction in action and speech.

How To Get Real Benefit

To get the real benefit out of a play it should be repeated at least three or four times in public, so that the definite feeling as far as audience reaction is concerned, is felt. The cast should know that the audience will always laugh on This line or that line if they get it over. The cast learn to criticize their own work. They know at the end of the performance whether they were as good as usual and you will hear them in the dressing room criticizing themselves. That is when growth is taking place.

I think most casts go stale because the play isn't interesting enough to hold them. As soon as you discover all there is to know about anything or anybody, you often loose interest or your interest wanders. Try me with a play. Get a good one, take time to do it well, and watch the characters to grow as the rehearsals progress, and you something new to be discovered and executed, and so it goes.

A play is an experiment in theatre. Be sure it is a satisfying one to all concerned, the director, the cast and those behind the scenes. Effective style in a production is necessary, but not cones through any conscious effort to be different or original. Audiences are quick to recognize tricks and then grunge values. Give a simple, sincere convincing performance, which is the outcome of the growth of the characterizations and you have a satisfying performance, satisfying to everyone concerned.—Mary Ellen Burgess, 326, Regina, Sask.

Soon Grow Obsolete

Newer And More Powerful War Weapons Being Constantly Produced

Weapons now in use will be obsolete to some extent in 1942 and 1944, because of the production of more powerful instruments of war, Dean C. J. Mackenzie, acting president of the National Research Council, said in an address to the Canadian Club at Montreal.

Dr. MacKenzie said that continual progress in the development of tanks, guns, planes and other weapons of war was what would limit the factors in total warfare

The demand for equipment after the fall of France had been so urgent, he said, that no time could be devoted to the development of newer types of weapons.

Early models of the bayonet—about 1640—were in use if it's made to step on the old boarding."

"I'd hate to see you fall in the water with that good-looking suit, Ran. Let me go first—it can't hurt this riding habit."

He is on one side, saying firmly: "If any one's going to have to hang on the line and dry out, let me be the martyr." He stepped gingerly up to the old deck, testing the flooring with his shoot. "It's pretty rotten, Tam. Shall we risk it?"

"Of course not, if you t'ink it shouldn't be walked on." She came closer to him, and catching hold of the old door, swung it open. It creaked on its rusted hinges and slammed against the outer wall.

"Look!" She pointed down at the dust over the sill. "Some one's been here. Look at the tracks. Boot tracks, Ranny."

"Right-o Sherlock. Well, if they can, I can. Here goes!" He stood with his full weight on the broken floor boards

"Lots of track, Tam, as though so...e one came here frequently. And they must be recent, too, because it rained last week."

Before he could prevent her, she had leaped upon the old deck, too, and walked across to peer into the dimness of the chamber which had held grain for grinding. She tugged at his sleeves. "Isn't that a cot, Ranny? And a table? Some one's been living here, I'll bet."

Their voices were accustomed to the darkness now, and they carefully skirted the holes in the floor and went inside.

"Some one has been staying here." Ranny held up a tin can. "And my guess is that they're still staying here. Look, there's food in this can. Here's evidence of a meal just eaten —maybe this morning."

He picked up something else. "I don't like to be a prying Peter, but isn't that the Cricket Hill stationery?"

"Ranny!" Tamar gave a startled cry. She reached for the long envelope. "Of course it is! Let me see!"

She hurried to the doorway so the light was better.

The headings were from the office of the Cricket Hill, and the signature at the bottom was that of the major.

She read the message aloud. "Please find enclosed letter regarding shipment of bats. Details soon coming out. Pleasing cache in old mill on White Creek."

Ranny took out pencil and paper and copied the letter word for word "Sherry?" Tam urged. "We'd better get out of here."

They sprang down from the deck and ran for Ranny's car. If only we weren't discovered," she said breathlessly. "I'm afraid that our car trucks will be noticed. Thank goodness you cleaned up the luncheon papers."

They were out of the old road in a few minutes and on to the better highway leading to the paving

"Why would they choose a place like that for any?" Tamar asked. "And what is the cache for, Ranny?"

"Your guess is as good as mine. But we both know—and don't need to guess."

"I never heard of anything so preposterous in all this modern age Why, it's like old days of King Arthur and pirates. What are we going to do?" Her eyes were enormous under her hand-me-down shook.

"That's the very worst of it." Ran said meditatively. "We've some suspicions, but nothing very definite to tie them to. You have to have some concrete evidence in a thing like this that you can't just go and arrest a man for suspecting him to be considering committing a crime."

"Lock, Ranny. There's the major's car!

"You're nervous. That probably wasn't the car. The bet there are four cars right here in this neighborhood just like his."

"I couldn't really tell. Ran, I'm scared."

Todd gave a short laugh. "This is funny. Why a little thing, I said that in the stone age a man could go out and fight for the girl he loved. I guess he can even in this age!"

She missed the implication of his words, entirely, and said: "But what can you do?"

"That remains to be seen. The first thing I'm going to do is to deliver you safely to the dowy at Tamar Lane, and if I have to guard you, leave you bound hand and foot, you're not to leave the place unless accompanied by me or your father."

"You mean I can't even go out in the car in broad daylight? Now, listen here, Ranneuse Todd, you're just a little high-handed! I have an unassigned task to accomplish for Britain. And I'm certainly going to keep it."

"Going over to the enemy's camp, huh? Very well, keep your engagement After all, a man of Sande's standing and popularity should be trusted."

"I don't like your inflection on the word 'should'; I admire Christopher very much." Tamar's cheeks flamed.

"I trust it is only admiration that prompts you to come to his defense. He has a lot to be grateful for, Tamar, and I'm sure he's very grateful to you for your devotion. But we're both suffering from tension for the pests to germinate and start to grow."

Don't Rush Planting

Many more flowers and vegetables are lost through rushing the season a too late and too early planting. There are different kinds of soil. There are different times in which things that are to be set out or sown or planted that naturally reproduce themselves in Canada.

In this category will be annuals, garden peas, pumpkin, lettuce, radishes, spinach, parsley, and many of the flowers commonly included in a botanical garden. Some of these and some more will start in mid-April and May. In the north part of Canada can be sown just as soon as the soil can be worked. But there are a great many of these which are tender plants that will not survive the frosts of mid-May and June. Actually they will not make any growth until the soil is warm usually in mid-May or later. Much time may be gained by rushing them in too soon

Flower Jungles

One can do wonders with flowers either just after or just before they will follow what is suggested here, skillfully with grass, shrubs, shrubbery and flowers. Some of this combining is more or less a matter of taste. But there are a little principles that can be followed to make effective combinations. It is not to scale will help considerably. Health League of Canada presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

INDUSTRIAL MEDICINE

"All the resources of industrial medicine must be concentrated on the problem of personal illness if industry's loss of production time is to be reduced," declared Dr. C. D. Selby, in an article appearing in the current issue of Health Magazine, organ of the Health League of Canada.

Dr. Selby speaks with authority. Medical consultant to General Motors Corporation of Detroit, he is a member of the Council on Industrial Health of the American Medical Association, vice-chairman of the Committee on Tank Cases of the American Standards Association, and chairman on Industrial Health and Medicine of the Health and Medical Committee, a federal defence agency.

"In your country and mine," he "we hope soon to take the offensive against a common enemy. Every hour counts. We must exert every effort to curtail the loss of valuable production time caused by illness and accidents."

Drawing upon his experience of over 20 years in the field of industrial medicine, Dr. Selby pointed out that the picture has been greatly changed by compensation laws, the safety movement, and the introduction of industrial hygiene methods and studies in sickness absenteeism. "Whereas accidents were common in industry 30 years ago, today they are relatively unusual causes of disability. Greatest source of loss time among industrial workers today are not the occupational diseases and accidents—but sickness not related to occupation and injuries received at home, in traffic and in the pursuit of recreation."

Dr. Selby continued: "In one form or another, personal sickness will disable one worker out of ten—and the average amount of time lost in each case will be 40 days."

Not even the British navy has enough ships to be everywhere at the same time, to be victorious everywhere at the same time. The seas of the world are wide.

Average annual wage rate for male farm help in 1941 was $353 compared with $378 in 1940, the Dominion bureau of statistics reported.

CHAPTER XVII.

Tamar rose quickly. Was Ranny going to try to make love to her? It had been such a perfect hour, this one that had just passed.

Ranny rose, too, and slipping his hand through her arm walked beside her to the old mill.

"Mind if I go ahead with my ideas on the subject? I just remarked that in the stone age a man could go out and do battle with his rival and run away with the girl of his choice. He didn't have to stand by with gentlemanly inhibitions and see somebody else try to win her."

Tamar gave him a swift glance Ranneuse's bare blond head was utterly handsome. He features strong and clear-cut, his dark eyes shining through blond lashes.

"Pick up the sudden, Ranny." Tamar said mockingly.

With one swoop Ranneuse picked her up in his hard arms and strode toward the stone bench somebody had built years ago. "None of that, Tamar." He held her close to him and she could hear the pounding of his heart.

She closed her eyes and wondered where her tempestuousness had flown. She should have railed against him, and sid out of his arms and in the old stronghold behind the paving she was suddenly inedibly weary, and Ranny's arms made a haven of peace and security for her.

As he sat down on the bench she looked up at him and murmured: "Sir, you forget yourself. Please put me down."

"Dream!" said Ranneuse. He opened his arms and she slid out.

You couldn't make love to a girl like that. He was helpfully angry, and moreover he felt slighted. Why should she always make him feel as though they were still in their teens, acting out some romance that she had concocted out of her imagination?

Ranny stared moodily at the mill wheel. He couldn't make love to Tamar now or any other time as long as she thought of him as she did. Let a man like Christopher Sande come into Tahlahneka and half the girls in town were trying to marry him.

Tamar sprang to her feet and ran to him suddenly, taking him by surprise. "Get up, lazy bones. Time to explore the old cabin before we go home."

Ranneuse studied her eager face. her blue eyes with excitement.

She wanted to explore—while he wanted more than anything in the world to draw her to him in his arms. Reluctantly he turned from the bench. Well, anything to please the Queen! And he found himself re thinking of her in that way, for she was really his queen, his idea of heaven on earth.

To think of her at night was to dream of her the whole night through; her little hand flew across the shortband and for the relation that Miss Edie carefully took; her piquant face with its frame of black curls was the last thing every morning magazine page. She was always with him in reality—in flesh and blood—they must go and explore a cabin!

Ranny's tall figure moved beside her small one. "Wait—let's look in the old mill while we're here so close. I'll go first, as you say, and if it looks

"I'd hate to see you fall in the water with that good-looking suit, Ran. Let me go first—it can't hurt this riding habit."

He is on one side, saying firmly: "If any one's going to have to hang on the line and dry out, let me be the martyr." He stepped gingerly up to the old deck, testing the flooring with his shoot. "It's pretty rotten, Tam. Shall we risk it?"

"Of course not, if you t'ink it shouldn't be walked on." She came closer to him, and catching hold of

GOOD FOOD GUARDS THE NATION'S HEALTH

And ALL-BRAN Does a Double Job

Now . . . at a time when good food . . . good health . . . is more important than ever, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN fills a dual role. As a delicious breakfast food, it helps supply the proper nourishment to thousands of Canadians . . . helps keep them free of the common type of constipation caused by lack of proper "bulk" in the diet. Eat ALL-BRAN as a cereal or in tasty muffins every day . . . drink plenty of water . . . and discover this "better way" to keep regular without using harsh cathartics that only offer temporary relief. ALL-BRAN gets at the cause . . . and corrects it. But remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like a purgative. It takes time.

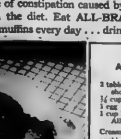
ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in London, Canada, and sold in 2 conveniently sized packages at all grocers' . . . in individual serving packages at restaurants. Eat it every day as a cereal or in muffins, and drink plenty of water.

ALL-BRAN MUFFINS

2 tablespoons shortening
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup Kellogg's All-Bran
¼ cup milk
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
2½ teaspoons baking powder

Cream shortening and sugar thoroughly; add egg and beat until creamy. Add All-Bran and milk; let stand until the mixture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderate oven (400° F.) about 30 minutes.

Yield:—6 large muffins (3" in diameter) or 12 small (2½" in diameter).



Kellogg's ALL-BRAN...Keeps You Regular NATURALLY

Gardening

Big Vegetable Garden

A proud big vegetable garden is both patriotic and commonsense in wartime, provided he is willing to devote all his spare time to it one person can handle a quarter acre of vegetables and grow enough and more than enough vegetables to keep a family the year through. Find a quarter of an acre is a big garden.

As a matter of fact, all experienced gardeners advocate a small, well cultivated plot in preference to one larger and receiving less care. The smaller plot, too, in the end will produce the best and the most vegetables. If the original digging is followed promptly and regularly with from two to four thorough cultivations, about a week to ten days apart the weeds will get discouraged. To make sure these are kept down they are killed and get just temporarily put off from existing, it is well to have muffle-it time to have cultivation for the pests to germinate and start to grow.

Don't Rush Planting

Many more flowers and vegetables are lost through rushing the season a too late and too early planting. There are different kinds of soil. There are different times in which things that are to be set out or sown or planted that naturally reproduce themselves in Canada.

In this category will be annuals, garden peas, pumpkin, lettuce, radishes, spinach, parsley, and many of the flowers commonly included in a botanical garden. Some of these and some more will start in mid-April and May. In the north part of Canada can be sown just as soon as the soil can be worked. But there are a great many of these which are tender plants that will not survive the frosts of mid-May and June. Actually they will not make any growth until the soil is warm usually in mid-May or later. Much time may be gained by rushing them in too soon

One can do wonders with flowers either just after or just before they will follow what is suggested here, skillfully with grass, shrubs, shrubbery and flowers. Some of this combining is more or less a matter of taste. But there are a little principles that can be followed to make effective combinations. It is not to scale will help considerably. Flowers and shrubs should not be so crowded that they will not properly develop. Actually they will do better if they have room enough to grow. Overcrowding is dangerous from the standpoint of disease.

Little flowers should not be overgrown by tall things. The former need the sunlight. Tall flowers are also common in gardens. Hardy annuals are best for the purpose. Examples of this are weeds and grasses, being of large

Cheese For Britain

Quota Of 112,000,000 Pounds Will Be Filled This Year

Have you been doing without cheese because you wanted to do your share for Great Britain? If so, you will be glad to hear that Great Britain's cheese quota of 112,000,000 pounds will be filled by the end of the fiscal year, March 31, 1942.

According to the Department of Agriculture, it is quite all right to buy the cheese you see in the stores You may not be able to get the exact kind of cheese you want, or as much as you want, but you are not on the honor system of rationing as is necessary with sugar and bacon.

In 1941 some 9 000,000 pounds of cheese had to be withdrawn from the domestic market to ensure filling British contracts Owing to unfavorable pasture conditions in the main producing provinces the year the increase in milk for cheese production was small and it has remained necessary to limit the amount of cheese in the home market.

Last year Canadians eat 40 000 000 pounds of cheese a year From a nutritional standpoint that is not enough a mere 3½ pounds per person per year The Canadian cheese industry is a working overtime if Britain as Canadians must postpone their wish when they increase cheese consumption for their own benefit.

What's war is over housewives can do double duty by using more cheese in their own homes and by helping to stabilize the industry that is now working for Britain

Mixtures of Napoleon's forbidden by the Nazis in all stores leaving in Netherlands schools Very Nederland Dutch newspaper published in London reported.

Look Out! A Sick Liver is Dangerous

Do you have persistent headaches and backaches? Are you tortured by rheumatic pains in muscles and joints? A faulty liver is clogging your whole system. Serious ill, health may result.

Your liver is the largest organ in your body and most important to your health. It pumps energy to muscles, tissues and glands. If unhealthy, your body lacks the energy and business enthusiasm—comfort can disappear. Ignore your liver pour and bile is dumped into your bowels, and slow proper nourishment to reach your blood. When your liver doesn't properly prepare digestion and non-inherent may cause poisoned matter to be absorbed into the circulation in your nervous system. Your whole body suffers. Sometimes you have headaches and backaches and your disposition is spoiled. You feel like a new person. 25c, 50c.

Stagette Notes

The weekly meeting of the Stagette club was held on Tuesday night, April 14th.

The girls are absorbed in plans for future entertainment to raise further funds for charitable and war work. We hope to attend you a pleasant evening at an early date. Watch for our advance notices.

The annual convention of Stagette clubs is being held on the 24th and 25th of May at the Macdonald hotel in Edmonton. It is the intention of the convention, for each club to furnish a half hour's entertainment on the first evening. The Vermilion club is expected considering a presentation of a short one-act play as their contribution to this end. The evening was spent in the reading and rehearsing of a short one-act comedy.

Informal chatter reigned as our hostesses, Misses Ida Jannell, Ella Jones and Toni Sinclayne, served coffee.

ALL TOGETHER ON THE PLEBISCITE

On Monday April 27th, less than two weeks from now, Canadians from coast to coast are going to vote on the plebiscite to free the government from its commitments in respect to military service in Canada and abroad. Organizations are being set up across the Dominion to ensure that, so far as is humanly possible, every voter in Canada will be put to the polls on April 27 to cast a ballot. Mayor Morrison has called a public meeting for people of Vermilion and district which will be held in the Memorial hall on Monday evening April 20 at which a local organization will be set up. It is to be hoped which vitally concerns every resident of Canada and it is our duty as Canadians to work for a large "Yes" majority.

ISLAND HILL

Looking over last week's Standard our attention was drawn to an advertisement which invited farmers to visit the nearest Hearle elevator to examine a chart showing the vitamins in different kinds of vegetables. If there is one thing we like it is a good garden, so we made a beeline to town to see the chart. We were received by the man in charge with open arms. But man proposes and chart disposes. As we were about to examine the chart something struck us from behind and clinched up our back until it reached our shoulders and got a grip of our right ear. We believe in the proverb — those who flirt and run away shall live to fight another day. We promptly hotfoot and did not succeed in throwing off the new famous cat until we got clear of town. But chart or no chart, perhaps we should say eat or no eat — we will have a Victory garden.

Corporal and Mrs. Birmingham, Eileen and Maureen were here for a few days holidays and were the guests of Mrs. Richardson. On Sunday we had the pleasure of a visit from them and on Monday they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. Playne. Jim Rowland is home on furlough from his regiment.

Don't forget the dance at the hall this Friday.

"Gib" Stephens is also home on leave from his regiment.

We thank the lady who resides along the river for sending the writer cigars on Sunday. It is not a bad world to live in after all. The lady is a considered reader of this column

Chas. Mix has taken delivery of a truck and Geo. Gield of a new car. Saw the latter on Saturday and it is a beauty.

BOWTELL BULLETIN

A very enjoyable time was spent when some thirteen members of the Busy Bees gathered at the home of Mrs. Korinek. It was pleasing to have Mrs. McFarland with us as a visitor. Following the business session Marion and Edie entertained on the piano and a dainty lunch was served by Mrs. Walsh and Mrs. Fenton. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Scott's and lunch will be served by Mrs. Kobluk and Mrs. Harrison.

A dance is to be held in the school on April 24th and the draw for the quilt and cushion is to made then. Harry Perkins will be M.C. and door keepers will be Alex Morrison and Tom Sherwood.

An enjoyable afternoon was tendered by Mrs. Walker when fourteen ladies gathered to give a handkerchief shower for Mrs. Harrison as she is leaving soon for Ontario. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess after which Mrs. Chittick presented the gifts on a tray to Mrs. Harrison, asking her to sample a new cake. She was very delighted and expressed her thanks in a befitting manner. The party was a surprise gathering.

Mrs. Fry and family visited the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. Tebbel during the Easter week.

A party was held at the school in honor of Mrs. Harrison on Friday, April 10th. Cards were played and dancing enjoyed. There were over seventy people present including the R.A.F. men from North Battleford who were visiting at the Jenkins' home. other visitors from outside the district were Mr. and Mrs. H. Elliot, Mr. Sample, Mrs. White, George Shoemaker of Grande Prairie. Following the cards and lunch Harry Perkins made the presentation of two fine suitcases to Mrs Harrison with these words. "The community has gathered together in your honor to present you with a small token of our friendship and esteem and to extend our best wishes for a pleasant journey and a safe return." Follow ing this the crowd sang "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow". Mrs. Harrison thanked everyone for the jolly party kindly extended and the lovely and useful presents.

Winners at cards in order of merit were Miss U. Jenkins, Mrs. Perkins, Mrs. E. Morrison, Mrs. Isabelle Knutson Gents, Tom Fenton, Oscar Anderson, Fred Scott, cons., Dick Payne. Dancing was indulged in to 2.30 to music kindly supplied by Fred Warren Phyllis and Denise

RED CROSS NEWS

The following is taken from the Border Telegraph printed in Galashiels, Scotland and received here by a citizen of Vermilion:

"Thank God for the Red Cross" — Prisoners of War.

Relatives who worry over the infrequency of letters from prisoners of war may find the following extract consolation. It is from a letter written by a prisoner in Stalag XVIII D, dated 20th September and received by next of kin in East Scotland:

"I had a Canadian Red Cross parcel, very nice too. I feel remarkable well, which is solely due to the Red Cross, a marvelous organization. I have plenty of clothing, so I also received a parcel with boots. What I could be with to is a uniform and cigarettes, so I wil be warmer this winter; no more frost here."

Another letter reads:

"No doubt you will be wondering why there is such a gap between my last letter and this one, but the reason is that for the last two months I have been working on a farm, and the writing arrangements have just been impossible, practically, through being on this farm I am feeling as fit as a fiddle and you need have no fear over the burden when I come back— I'll polish it off in one day. We've been receiving parcels of food and clothing from the Red Cross and they're pretty marvelous affairs too."

Another wrote: "Thank God for the Red Cross."

POPULAR CHAPEL

Men from every Allied nation are among the regular congregation of the chapel for servicemen which is attached to a Y.M.C.A. Centre in the heart of London.

Here Canadian Padfly Pragers service is held there every evening and to no moment that there is rarely room for all who wish to attend the Service.

RESERVE ARMY TRAINING MAY BE COMPULSORY

WINNIPEG, April 4.—Defence Minister Ralston, en route to Ottawa after a tour of Pacific coast defences, issued a warning here to men who fail to enlist voluntarily in the reserve army.

At a press interview last night Col. Ralston urged enlistment of every able bodied man in the reserve forces and said

"Unless their enlistment is voluntary, they will soon find themselves in the position of joining the army by command instead of choice."

SUGAR FOR PRESERVES

To aid thrifty housewives who do up their own fruit preserves and make jams and jellies, the W. P. and T. Board announces that housewives may obtain for canning and preserving fruit, one-half pound of sugar for each pound weight of fruit Per jams and jellies, two pounds with three-quarters of a pound of sugar for each pound of fruit This is in addition to sugar already allowed for house use. It does not apply to manufacturers and no additional sugar may be purchased for curing or preserving meats.

WOODVALE

At time of writing it feels quite again as if Spring is in the air. So far, the hope most farmers expressed, of having a real spring sugaball, has not been realized, although it has been cold enough. However, most farmers will be on the land the end of the week.

The sudden death at little Elwin Cox on April 9th came as a great shock to everyone in the district and to the many friends of Stanley Cox, his mother and father, brothers and sists. Apparently Elwin got his arm caught in the belt of the power unit and was rushed to the Islay hospital The shock and loss of blood brought on pneumonia and his death took place on Thursday.

The week before we our many friends of Ottelia Rasel and her fam ily in the vicinity of Lac La Biche last respects to her. She will always be remembered as a girl who was always the soul of friendliness and cheerfulness despite the difficulties she encounte ed in her short life.

All the young girls attending high school near home from Woodvale came home for the Easter holidays, also Therese Gautier from Vegreville and Bernice Gautier from Dewberry, stayed with her father. Roger was not home very much during that time as he has been collecting some cream — somebody of cows, finding quite a lot lying around yet. LOYAL CITIZENS DO NOT HOARD!

Hoarders are people who buy and store away goods beyond their immediate needs.

They want to be in an unfair position over their neighbors.

Hoarders are traitors to their country and their fellow citizens, because by creating excessive and unnecessary demands for goods, they slow down the war effort.

There is no excuse for "panic buying" and hoarding. Everyone will have enough, if no one tries to get more than a fair share.

Hoarding must stop! Every unnecessary purchase makes it more difficult for Canada to do a full war job.

THERE'S A LAW AGAINST HOARDING

It is against the law to buy more than current needs.

Violation of the law is punishable by fines up to $5,000, and imprisonment for as long as two years.

AVOID ALL UNNECESSARY BUYING — AVOID WASTE
MAKE EVERYTHING LAST THE LONGEST TIME POSSIBLE

In cases where it is advisable for you to buy in advance of your immediate requirements—such as your next season's coal supply—you will be encouraged to do so by direct statement from responsible officials.

SCOUT TOURNIQUET AGAIN SAVES A LIFE

The value of Boy Scout training is first aid was once more demonstrated recently when a young Kitchener woman on the way to church was caught between a post and one of two rollicking taxis. A leg was almost severed, and it was a Rover Scout who first reached her and applied the tourniquet which prevented speedy bleeding to death.

CHATSWORTH CHATTER

School re-opened on the 13th after the Easter holidays. During the vacation the school received a spring cleaning by the Telford girls.

Miss Methven spent the holidays at her home in Edmonton.

Roads are drying up rapidly and there will soon be little sign of snow left. Spring work will likey be under way in a week or so.

Sunday's high wind blew dust high and did a great deal in drying up the roads.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs E. East of Indian Lake on the death of her father last week.

Howard Ferguson has obtained work at Vancouver, B.C.

Ivold Hughes is home from Edmonton for spring work.

Michael Farkach, who has been in hospital for some time, is improving.

Jean Telford had a birthday party on April 7th at which a number of her young friends spent an enjoyable event.

A number of folks from this district were in Vermilion Saturday to see the Army train.

We wish Mrs. Ferguson who is a patient in the Vermilion hospital, a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Telford is holding a clearing off auction sale on Thursday of this week. She is planning to rent her farm.

Jean Telford is working at the Cabaret in town.

The Ottawa Athletic club are holding a dance at the Ottawa school on Friday, April 17. This will likely be the last dance until after seeding.

Thank you, Dowtell scribe, for your kind letter received last Friday.

Mrs. Solberg, Freddie and Shirley, who have been at E. Thompson's, are leaving today, (13th) for Edmonton, where Mr. Solberg has been in hospital. He now feels able to travel on so they plan to leave immediately on their way to B.C. We all wish them the best of luck, health and prosperity wherever they may be located in the future.

WITH THE OLD TIMERS

An Interesting Incident of the Early Days

Written by Mrs. J.C. Wallington
Wildmere Correspondent

In answer to numerous requests for more reminiscences of the early days the following little story might be of interest and probably will recall to many old timers here similar experiences of their own.

This past week has marked the 31th anniversary of the writer's arrival in Alberta, for it was on April 7th that she along with her parents and family left old Ontario to make a new home in the west.

Vermilion was reached on April 11 —it wasn't much of a town then — and we can still remember lots of snowbanks and rivers of water running everywhere from the spring break-up. Mr. Bob Beckett who now resides at the coast, was the man we hired to drive us south to our uncle's homestead, in what is now the Wildmere district. The trip was made with team and democrat. We took what belongings and provisions we could, piled high in the democrat which, with five passengers and the driver, made quite a load. We children sat flat in the back of the rig.

All went fine until the coulee was reached but as there were no bridges then and the water was deep enough so that the horses had to swim, the water came right into the democrat box. I can still remember that Mr. Beckette' dog got very tired in making the crossing and we stopped to let him into the democrat. In jumping in the dog walked all over my brother, wet and all as he was.

On we came, and not knowing the exact location of our destination, Mr. Beckett stopped and inquired at a bachelor's house. The bachelor turned out to be the late Blair McGregor. I should add that before leaving Ontario we had sent word to our uncle Mr. Johnston telling him that we were coming, but the post office was far away and he didn't get his mail very often, consequently he wasn't on hand to meet us. However, we finally arrived at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and found a log shack full of hay and no one around. We took the hay out and found a small stove under it and it didn't take us long before we had a snack ready for we were really hungry travellers by this time. Our uncle came home a day or two later and was really surprised to find us there as he still hadn't received our letter.

A little later on George Cruthers, John Cruthers and family, John Graham and family arrived also at the little shack making stateyers people in that small log building without a floor. These men had filed on their homesteads the year before, coming via Hardisty to do so. George Cruthers still resides on his original homestead.

Those were the good old days — there were many hardships to face, neighbors were few and far between, but there was a friendliness and helpfulness to one another that is only means of travel. There was no anxiety over international relations, no races and creeds pressed to be brothers, and even with the small share of good things we had in those days we seemed to be happy and contented. We often wonder if the world will ever be as peaceful again as in that era.

In the Garden

A Column sponsored by the Vermilion Horticultural Society

PLANTING A TREE

Successful tree planting requires a little care. In his bulletin "Planting Deciduous Trees and Shrubs", F. D. Hargrave, Assistant Superintendent, Horticultural Station, Brooks, gives some useful suggestions.

In the first place the hole should be large enough to admit the roots without bending and if the hole is six inches larger so much the better. The sides of the hole should slope out rather than in and the hole should be deep enough to allow the tree to be planted about two inches deeper than it stood in the nursery.

When the hole is dug, return a little good soil and build up a flat cone in the centre to support the roots. Spread the roots naturally and put in the soil working it well around the roots. Pack the soil firmly and leave the top soil loose. Do not put manure unless well rotted, in contact with the roots; good garden loam is better.

If the soil is dry at planting time fill the hole with water and allow it to seep away before the tree is planted. When the tree is planted and before the loose top soil is put into the hole water it well. A good soaking once a week is adequate watering.

A copy of this bulletin may be obtained from the Dept. of Agriculture.

REGULAR MEETING OF ETHELWYN H.D. COUNCIL

The regular meeting of the council of M.D. Ethelwyn was held in the Mun. office on Sat. April 4, 1942 the following present: Chas Kinsbella, R.J. Hagen, C. E. Thompson, T. Swab and F. Gray.

Minutes of previous meeting read and approved.

Mr. S. C. Beckett appointed as auditor for 1942.

The Sec'y was appointed assessor

The N.E. 22-53-6-4 was leased to John Maguire on a crop share basis coo-third share of crop delivered to elevator at Clandonald for the M.D. free of charge.

The estimates for the current year were approved by council and the By-law authorizing the levying of a tax for municipal purposes for 10 mills was passed.

The council made application to the Prov. Government for a road grant of $2000 to assist in road construction.

Mrs. Mary Behrzus, Derwent, was recommended for an Old Age Pension.

Letters were received from Old Age Pension Dept. advising that Mrs. Mary Penna, Northern Valley was not eligible for a Mother's Allowance under the Act. From Bureau of Relief and Public Welfare Dept. advising that Mr. and Mrs. Wm. O'Dwyer were being returned from Ontario and requesting the council for their decision in this matter. The Bureau of Relief was advised that the council would not accept any responsibility for the care of this family on their return. From Mr. J. D. Adam advising the council that complaints had been received from Mr. B. Caslon re his inadequacy of the relief supplied. Mr. Adam was advised that council considered that relief already granted this family should be sufficient for their needs.

Meeting adjourned.

The who, what, when, where and why of world affairs—and the thrilling part that Canadians are playing in them—continues to come in factual broadcasts through the CBC's outstanding Guest of Honor speaker series, Sundays at 7 p.m., from CJCA.

Prominent personalities such as Australia's Premier Curtin, Britain's U. S. representative Lord Beaver-brook and ace correspondent Quentin Reynolds are contributing to this series.

The very names of these men stir up the calibre of the broadcasts — and the factual live coverage will continue CJCA each Sunday evening at 7:00.

From near and far comes enthusiastic comment on the colorful open house broadcast of CJCA's new Sunday evening dramatic series "In His Steps".

Not only laymen, but churchmen, who have lauded these inspirational and entertaining half-hours that feature the triumph of right over wrong and illustrate how Christian principles can get their practical application in everyday life.

Rents Come Under Price Ceiling

This is the time of year when people plan domestic moving from one rented house to another. All rentals now come under the price ceilings policy of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Landlords or tenants who are uncertain of their rights and duties in rental matters should consult the Regional Officer, George J. Dryan, at the Board's offices, Wilkinson Bldg., Edmonton.

Because potatoes in storage at this time of year undergo sprouting, rotting and shrinkage, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board is permitting a maximum increase of five cents a bushel per month, for each of the months of April, May and June, over the basic price at which potatoes were sold between Sept. 15th and Oct. 11th last.

Total War For Canada

Total War" is a phrase which we hear often these days. For many months now it has been a reality to the people of England and more recently Australians have come to know the full force of its meaning. Because we in Canada have been far removed from the scene of the conflict our war effort to date has been more or less immediate, has not been what could be described total. In proportion to our population, the numbers of men who have joined the armed services have been large and the production of munitions and the materials of war has gone forward at a pace far be yond initial schedules.

Mr. Churchill has stated our war effort as magnificent," and Lt.-General A. G. L. McNaughton recently has stated in England after his recent visit to Canada said of us "There has been a wonderful speed-up in everything. I have seen the spirit of those in training the devotion of the men and women in the factories working with determination and confidence. There is no doubt our forces here are constantly in the minds of those at home and we shall back for nothing that is required to equip us for battle against the enemy. We shall have all the reinforcements needed and the people of Canada, in mind, body and soul are fully determined to see that strength to its successful conclusion. So I come back to the Canadian Forces, and we go forward with every confidence in the fine support which we shall have."

Mobilization Plan

Nevertheless, Canadians everywhere have welcomed recent measures taken by the government to further increase the Dominion's contribution toward the great struggle for freed m in which the United Nations are now engaged. The man-power mobilization plan together with the proposed expansion of air training will go a long way to make Canada's war effort all-out and to put our war industries and our army, navy and air force on a footing comparable with those of England and Australia. If the manpower mobilization plan is carried out to the limits of its powers there will be few men between the ages of seventeen and forty-five who will not be affected for it provides that all men in that age category be in the armed forces or in some essential industry.

Agriculture will be affected in that no one engaged in farm work will be allowed to change his occupation except to join up for active service or to take seasonal employment in other primary industry. In industrial centres it is expected that factory workers will be absorbed more and more into war industries or into the armed services as the "luxury" industries will gradually discontinue producing due to shortage of materials or consumer restrictions. Women too are to be encouraged to take over in greater numbers duties which will release men for active service.

Selective Service

A system of selective service will be used in mobilizing manpower, and allocating men to that field of service for which they are best suited. It is hoped to operate the plan as much as possible on a voluntary basis, but when compulsion is needed, prevision is made for it to be applied. It is estimated that to bring our war effort up to the desired strength, there is need in the next few months for 100,000 more workers for munition plants, 15,000 men for the navy 90 to 100 000 for the army overseas, and 70 to 80,000 for the air force. Our army is to be expanded by two new divisions, the seventh and eighth and these will be used as a "mobile reserve" for defence of our East and West coasts. In the last war Canada had only five divisions and the fifth was partially disbanded. In this war there are six, with the immediate prospect of two more. In addition we have our navy and air force, the latter to be greatly augmented since it was announced recently that the costs of the R.C.A.F for the coming year are to be $120,000,000 greater than was originally planned. Thus Canada is facing the increasing threats of enemy attack with a mobilization of men and resources which should cause confidence and pride.

Losses Are Small | What We Are Saving

Very Few Ferried Planes Fail To Arrive in Britain

John G McConnell, of Montreal public relation officer of the Atlantic Ferry command of the Royal Air Force has disclosed that the organization has a 100 per cent record in the delivery of Catalinas and Liberators to Britain and has lost only "to the eighth shade of one per cent" of the Hudsons flown.

Mr McConnell said United States pilots still outnumber Canadians in the ferry service but that Commonwealth Air Training Plan graduates are now taking planes to Britain and the proportion of Dominion men in the service will increase as more and more of these crews are used.

So far there has been no proof of enemy attempts to interfere with the service the Montreal r added

A Chinese Vegetable

Celtuce Grows Readily And Has Many Culinary Uses

For hundreds of years the Chinese have been growing a vegetable which tastes like a combination of celery and lettuce. Lately, inquiring Occidental food experts discovered that this product was rich in at least four vitamins—A, B, C, and G. It was not surprising, therefore, that a well-known American firm of plant-raisers and seed-distributors should have commenced, this season, the promotion of the plant called "celtuce," on this side of the Pacific. The vegetable is said to have several advantages. For instance, besides being nutritious, it grows readily and has many culinary uses.

One suspects that "celtuce" is not quite the "food of the gods" that the catalogues will make it out to be, but it should find ready sale among the people of a currently vitamin-conscious continent.

The reference to vitamins brings to mind the most recent advice of specialists in this line, who now recommend the eating of such commonplace but heretofore despised delicacies as dandelions, stinging-nettles, burdocks, wild mustard and so forth. Then, of course there is grass, for, after all, grass is the crop already observed, King Nebuchadnezzar, who went in for a diet of that stuff, may not have been so crazy after all. By the same token, many of the ancient herbal remedies and "old" remedies—sassafras, pennyroyal, wise women" and other cures for human ills are now being found to have merit. This, of course, is merely a re-discovery of things the ancients knew but which subsequently became discarded as quackery. Science, it seems, sometimes progresses in circles Brantford Expositor.

Produced By The Troops

Wherever They Are Soldiers Try To Uphold Their Regiments

The numerous B.E.F.'s of the present war are even more journalistic than those of the last one, though they have so far produced nothing quite in the same street as the famous "Wipers Times," says a London correspondent in the London Journal. In the London Press Club is displayed a copy of "The Midnight Sun," a weekly paper produced by British troops in Iceland, and edited by Captain Singleton Gates, a member of the club. The special interest of this particular issue is that, owing to a printers' strike, it had to be hand-printed and was brought out under great difficulty. An Icelandic firm runs another newspaper for the troops, "The Daily Post," and the American troops have their own weekly, "The White Falcon." At first they ran two, one for the army and another for the marines, but their C-in-C decided one was enough, and they amalgamated. Besides these there are other weekly and monthly journals produced by the military units in Ireland. Even during their brief sojourn at Spitsbergen the Canadians printed their own journal. British men in these actually ran a paper under fire for four days. There were also the "Tobruk Times" and journals specially produced during the campaigning in Eritrea and Abyssinia.

Shortage Of Jute

Farmers Are Urged To Save All Bags And Sacks

From now on farmers would be well advised to take particular care of sacks and bags they may have on hand. The spread of the war in the Orient has seriously affected the possibility of getting supplies of jute, the raw material from which the best bags and sacks are made. In fact it is going to be very difficult to get supplies of jute in any quantities. Jute comes principally from India and is used in various classes of textiles from fine fabrics to coarse bagging, in cordage, binding twine and to meet a variety of needs on the farm.

If you have a number of bags or sacks on hand, the most important measure to preserve them is to keep them dry. Damp rots burlap quickly. Take the bags you have, and odd pieces of burlap, shake them out and spread out in a dry place where you are sure rats and mice cannot get at them. Any kind of cotton or duck bag or sack should also be preserved You can mend any holes with the odd pieces of material you have, providing of course such pieces are in good condition. What supplies of burlap and canvas material are on hand are required for the fighting forces—so it is advisable to take care of any bags or sacks, as you may not be able to get any more, and it looks as if you won't for a long time.

Two Ships Carrying Oats For Bermuda's Horses Were Lost

Bermuda's horses, upon which the colony depends largely for transportation, are threatened with famine.

N. H. P. Veasey, chairman of the Colonial Food Board, said loss of two ships bearing cargoes of oats to Bermuda had created a serious situation. Some liveries are feeding their horses rolled oats.

Mr. Veasey said he telephoned New York requesting two carloads of oats, regardless of the country of origin—an unprecedented step for Bermuda, which in the past has bought all its feed exclusively from Canada.

Entire Undercarriage Of Trailer Stolen While Owner Slept Inside

An enterprising thief at Hamilton, Ont., stole the entire undercarriage—wheels, tires and axles—off a trailer while it was standing on the sleeping owner inside.

A sheepish trailer-occupant who reported the theft to Hamilton police, said he noticed the trailer rocking a bit, but slept on only to discover on awakening in the morning that his trailer had been jacked up carefully and stripped of its underpinnings.

New Price Policy For Scrap Metal Set For The West

Ottawa.—Large supplies of scrap iron and steel in the more remote areas of the western provinces are expected to be made available for war purposes under a new price policy ordered by Bert Controller Kilbourn.

Other orders set the maximum price to be paid for scrap in the maritime provinces and in British Columbia. With the demand for scrap increasing to meet war needs prices throughout Canada have been placed under strict control. Previous orders regulated prices in Ontario and Quebec.

Shortage of labor, brought on by the past hindered dealers from buying scrap in the Peace River district and other western areas distant from cities where foundries, the consumers of scrap, are located. Under the new order a "cellar" price to be paid to the dealer has been established, the price received by the individual selling to the dealer will be slightly below this price to allow for handling and loading costs

In British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba dealers will receive a minimum of $3 a ton for cast iron and in Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba $7 a ton for steel. Loading and handling charges average about $1.50 a ton, making the price individuals will receive about $8.50 for cast iron and $5.50 for steel.

These prices will apply throughout the provinces specified in the order, regardless of the cost of freight to move the scrap to the ultimate consuming plant.

The prices quoted in the orders apply to No. 1 cast iron and differentials for lower grades vary from $2 to $3 below these prices. In the west a ton of scrap is 2,000 pounds and in the maritimes. 2,240 pounds.

The department of munitions and supply announced that to assist in speeding the flow of vital war materials from the United States to Canadian manufacturers working on war orders, regional offices of the priorities officer will be established in the main industrial centres of Canada.

Two such offices have already been opened, one in Vancouver, the other in Toronto. Another will soon be opened in Halifax.

The statement quoted R. C. Berkinshaw, chairman of the wartime industries control board and Canadian priorities officer, as saying:

"The change-over to the new system and the addition of the new regulations issued at Washington have put an enormous strain on our staff In one week as many as 1,500 applications for United States priority ratings were handled. Hundreds of applications are being held up because they are incorrectly completed."

RAID EFFECTIVE

Bombing War Factories In France Won Victory For R.A.F.

London—The air ministry news service said that the raids by British and Canadian bombers on the Renault and Schneider motor works in France were the equivalent to destruction in battle of the entire equipment of five armored and mechanized divisions

"In effect one of the major tank battles of the war has been won by the R.A.F in about six hours at a cost of four bombers and 25 men, the service added. It declared that it was of immediate and paramount importance to the Allied armies on both the Russian and Libyan fronts

The two factories were producing 70 motor trucks daily as well as many tanks and other vehicles for the Germans This production was stopped the service said much of it for at least a year, some for the duration of the war, because irreplaceable machine tools were destroyed

TRIBUTE FROM RUSSIA

Kuibyshev, Russia. The English-language newspaper Moscow News passed British for the recent French R.A.F. bombings of occupied France and Germany declaring that "what Goebbels and his ilk fail to realize is that the more revenge a Britisher suffers the tougher he gets, so the Fascists will learn to their sorrow."

NO CEILING ON REAL ESTATE

Ottawa The wartime prices and trade board said that "freezing" of real estate sales or the placing of a ceiling on real estate prices was neither in contemplation nor under advisement by the board

RESTRICT TELEPHONES

Order Of Priority Will Be Effective In Future

Ottawa.—The telephone in the average Canadian home appears reasonably secure although telephone companies, by an order of the wartime prices and trade board, were instructed to provide service according to a strict order of priority.

Telephone representatives who have been in consultation with the prices board said it seems probable many persons now enjoying a private telephone line may have to split that line with some other telephone user.

The householder of today who has one telephone instrument in his house may be asked to give up one as shortages of equipment develop.

And where companies run into difficulty in supplying customers with highly priority ratings such as the armed services, munitions plants and essential civilian services, the procedure always certain that John Citizen may lose his telephone service altogether in order that they may be served.

Explains Details Of The Selective Service Program

Ottawa. — The government's national selective service program will be administered by regional officials but will be applied in a democratic Canadian way with the rights of the individual protected as far as possible, Elliott M. Little, national selective service director, said in an address over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

In his first public address since his appointment Mr. Little announced that the manpower program in this sentence:

The whole purpose of selective service is to give each Canadian the job he or she can do best in this war."

Clarifying the regulations on restricted industries and restricted occupations, which apply to able-bodied persons between the ages of 17 and 45, Mr. Little took bookkeeping as an example.

Bookkeeping was a restricted job whether it was in a munition plant or a confectionery shop.

"This does not mean that if you are a male bookkeeper between 17 and 45 and physically fit, you must quit your work. It means that if you are between 17 and 45 and physically fit you can't take such a job if one is open unless you have a permit."

In issuing work permits for restricted occupation the selective service officers, if present local managers of the unemployment insurance commission, would use great care before issuing a permit to single men in the age groups subject to draft call, 21 to 30 years, but would allow more leniency to married men with dependents, Mr Little said.

The permits would be only issued on the basis and might be revoked at any time. The restrictions on employment applied only to

Many peacetime concerns might eventually be wholly or partially closed through materiel shortages and the service said it was made by planning to anticipate these conditions and provide for the transfer of employees to other work.

Dealing with regulations applying to farmers, Mr Little said that some farm implements and war plants after the program was announced to get back on farms in the mistaken hope they would be exempt from military service

Farmers who were on the farms March 23 and were essential to agriculture could not accept other employment without permission and were eligible for indefinite postponement of compulsory military training, he said

Students between the ages of 17 and 21 would be allowed to take summer employment in non-essential industries except where they were required for war work Mr Little said. Young men attending universities and technical schools who had special training would be expected to turn it that type of work

AIR CADET INSTRUCTION

Calgary. A camp for the purpose of training teachers for instruction in air cadet work will be held at No. 3 service flying training school at Calgary, it was announced by Wg. Lt. W. M Bowman, command cadet officer for No. 4 training command, when he spoke at the annual convention of the Alberta Teachers' Alliance.

PRAISES WAR EFFORT

Mayor La Guardia Of New York Has Good Word To Say Of Canada

New York.—Mayor La Guardia, arriving by air from Montreal where he presided over a meeting of the joint permanent defence board, praised the Canadian war effort in a press interview at La Guardia airport.

He said many people outside Canada failed to realize that while the total population of Canada is but little more than that of the metropolitan New York area, "their war production and effort is that of a country of 100,000,000 people."

"The Canadians are doing a swell job in both production and manpower devoted toward winning the war," the mayor said. "When you realize how few people there are in Canada and how many industries—agriculture, mining, manufacturing, fishing and maritime activities—you will see that it is not an easy task for them to combine their various civilian activities and at the same time provide for an abundance of war materials. It is only fair that the very excellent job they are doing will what they have on hand should be acknowledged."

The mayor said the board's next meeting would be April 27 in New York. He declined to describe what occurred at the Montreal meeting except to say that "we had a crowded calendar."

NEW STAMPS

Canadian Issue In Preparation Will Be Available During July

Ottawa.—Canada will soon have an entirely new set of postage stamps illustrating her part in the war, Postmaster-General Mulock has made known to the Canadian Press that the issue is in preparation.

The new stamps are expected to be available sometime in July but post office officials meantime ask that philatelists refrain from sending in requests for them.

London—German troops are being concentrated along the Belgian coast apparently as a precaution against any British landing attempts, the New Chronicle said Some of the thousand of new troops were sent there in an the northern French region of Cambrai which has been a great centre for troops invalided back from the Russian front, the newspaper said

PASSENGER BUSES

Will Be Khaki Colored, With Grey Roofs, In Future

Victoria -All new passenger buses in Canada in future will be khaki colored, with grey roofs, Harold Husband, Vancouver Island regional transit controller, has been advised by the federal transit controller in Ottawa. When buses now in use need new paint they will be done in dark khaki and grey

The names of the owner companies will be allowed to be displayed on the buses as briefly and as inconspicuously as possible

Defence Steps Taken To Guard British Columbia

Ottawa Organization of guerilla units among men of the outdoors along the British Columbia coast will be available for the defence of Canada one of the best-armed and most skilful civilian forces in the world government officials said

Defence Minister Ralston announced at a press conference that the guerilla units now are organized and a total of 150 might eventually be established along the west coast

Mines and resources officials said their experience in recent years has been that Canadian hunters and trappers in remote areas everywhere are equipping themselves with the best rifles and ammunition they can get.

The has meant that the average Canadian woodsman has a rifle just as efficient as that of a soldier, and carried by a man who knows intimately the area in which he will fight if an invasion attempt is made.

The determination to obtain the best weapon possible has been in evidence not only among white hunters and trappers but among the Indians and even the Eskimos in distant outposts of the north, officials said

Trading companies have encouraged hunters and trappers to obtain good equipment so as to ensure the utmost efficiency in their operations and the best possible return

Col Baldwin said his department would assist the "militia rangers" with ammunition "as far as possible," but this would represent something of a problem in view of the variety of calibres used by men in outlying areas

Officials recalled that the Ross rifle provided for the Canadian army at the start of the first Great War was a poor one in the hunters and it could use the ordinary 303 army rifle cartridge

Canadian woodsmen who joined the army in the last war demonstrated their value as snipers thousands of times officials said

Not only had the w the hunter's instinctive eye and skill in taking heavy bush shots but his patience was also displayed them in what until the war were considered long shots in hitting the target

The woodsman must men who have fought, as well and men who should find it necessary to do so with any approximation of success, let a member in their midst

Not only do the men of Britain's possessions put their mid-winter training to practical use in the pursuit of game but they also have to protect their homes

The sabre of Lieut J passes officer killed by U.S [illegible] is the present of General Douglas MacArthur head of the United Nations forces in Australia to President Roosevelt. The sabre delivered to the president by Prince H Bayre, U.S high commissioner to the Philippines

Reserve Army Pay To Continue On Existing Basis

Ottawa - Pay for the Canadian reserve army, now being enlarged and revitalized, will continue on the existing basis at rates slightly below those of the active army national defence department spokesmen said

Basic pay for privates in the reserve is $1.20 a day against $1.30 a day for privates in the active army Pay for higher ranks show a corresponding deviation from that allowed the men of the active forces

As set there has been no suggestion that Canada follow the example of Australia which according to a recent press dispatch is paying militia corresponding to the reserve in Canada on the same pay basis as the full-time forces.

Officers and men in the reserve army are entitled to travelling and subsist at public expense when in training camps and to transportation to and from their

A training day at camp for pay purposes is 24 hours but if not short training at local centres of the units the men are paid on the that a training afternoon or evening parade lasting in the aggregate described as a day and afternoon or full training lasting five hours or more is equal to a whole day

Church parades small arms training periods of inspections if they last two hours or more are counted as half-days

No dependents allowances are payable on behalf of men in the reserve army but they are entitled to pensions if killed or injured in the discharge of their military duties

EMBASSY PROPOSAL

Canada May Raise The Status Of Post At Washington

Ottawa Reports were heard in Ottawa that the Canadian legation in Washington might soon be raised to the status of an embassy under an ambassador who would be a member of the cabinet

Officials declined to comment on the report an embassy will be established in Washington but it is known such a change has been talked about in high government circles.

Canada's growing importance in international affairs as a major producer of most of the materials essential to prosecute of the war and as a participant in utah-war councils in Washington are factors which have provided the necessary impetus

The report is strengthened, also, by the fa t that most if not all of the western hemisphere countries represented in Washington have ambassadors there

If such a change were made presumably it would involve retirement of Hon Leighton McCarthy Canadian minister to the United States since February 1941 to make way for appointment of a cabinet minister as ambassador

Even if the embassy proposal is not carried out it is reported an exchange of cabinet minister will be sent to Washington to represent Canada

New Zealand has sent a high-ranking former minister Hon Wilfred Nash as minister to Washington and Australia was similarly represented Temporarily Australia now is represented at Washington by Hon. Herbert Evatt minister of external affairs

The first ambassador Lord Halifax is a high-ranking member of the British cabinet

The change from minister to ambassador would make little difference in the work of the Canadian representative in Washington and the exchange would not of public interest. It is an ambassador as direct representative of the king would have greater prestige

Creation of a Canadian embassy at Washington would be a step in doubt by the United States to its majority Ottawa to the United States with J Pierrepont Moffatt, the present minister as first ambassador

PRESS CENSORSHIP

Editor Thinks Canada's Probably Most Sensible In The World

Halifax. More rigid press censorship for Canada in the near future was forecast by Ronald McEachren of Montreal assistant editor of the Financial Post in an address before a service clubs luncheon

LINE ELEVATORS APPOINT LAMONT VICE-PRESIDENT

Announcement of the appointment of Cecil Lamont as vice-president of The North West Line Elevators Association was made today by V. W. Brock, general manager of the Line Elevators Association comprising the ten companies operating the point of special advisor to the war committee of the Dominion cabinet.

The North-West Line Elevators Association is comprised of the owners and operators of 3400 country grain elevator and coal yards located throughout Western Canada and terminal elevators at the head of the Great Lakes and on the Pacific coast, with a total storage capacity of 365,000,000 bushels of grain.

Mr. Brock has been following a policy from prewar days of having the vice-president of the Association, Mr. Lamont in October last took over the duties of L. W. Brock, who also held the post of general counsel for the Line Elevators Association during the period of the war, but who has been on leave of absence from the organization occupying the post of special advisor to the war committee of the Dominion cabinet.

Mr. Lamont, prior to his appointment as vice-president of the Association, was general manager of Ogilvie Flour Mills Company Limited, with headquarters at Montreal, and was for many years prominently identified with the milling industry throughout Canada.

GANTON-WATSON RED CROSS NOTES

The Ganton-Watson Red Cross auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. E. Gilliland, Woodvale, on April 9th when there was a good attendance. A nice parcel of finished work was turned in and more scrap woollens were received. These are now being shipped to a Winnipeg firm for making into blankets for overseas. The members are also making blocks for another quilt. A weiner roast is being planned for Saturday May 23rd on the Van Waeyenbarg farm so please keep that date open and look for further particulars later. All members who can see are invited to attend the meeting in the Memorial hall, Vermilion, on Saturday, April 18 at 2 p.m. Walter Proctor of Hindville, who was home for a holiday after working twelve months on munitions enjoyed a visit with the men, while the ladies discussed their business.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. J. Haas of Tolland on May 6th.

WILDMERE WINKS

Andy Carlson is the first to do work on the land in our part. He started over a week ago. Next week if it stays dry and warm we will see lots busy.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Jensen and George, Mrs. Walter and Earnest were Edmonton visitors last week, going by car.

This is a bit late but we send congrats to Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Harkness of Beaverlodge on the birth of a son on April 4th.

We extend the very best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Baldwyn for a long and happily married life.

Mrs. Clifford Crothers has been helping the writer home clean this spring.

A splendid crowd was at the U.F.A. social evening and dance at the Mannville school on Friday. It was a very good program got up in a short time and it caused lots of laughs. A dance followed, supplied by Jack Veitch and sons. It was nice to dance to his music once again, as years ago when the writer first went to dances Jack used to play for them.

J. C. Walkington was M.C.

Lots of districts may have an income in some ways, but we bet not in gardens, as Mrs. A. Redman has corn with the silk showing on it. If you do not believe it—go to her place and see for yourself.

Little Myrna Carlson left home on Saturday morning and when bedtime arrived an anxious time until found at Mrs. Casterberg's over a mile and a half from home. She was lost for three hours.

There was certainly a big crowd out to see the Army train on Saturday in Vermilion. Some think it would mean to the army it gave them an insight into their training, food, beds and clothing, and others that they were through too quickly though to get a good look. Some thought it time, others, a waste of money.

Noticed several boys in Howard going back to her school; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Redman at the writer's home on Tuesday; Bathe family at the latter home; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Murray, Mr. and Mrs. R. Prissell and Eddie, Howard Prissell and the Wallington's all the Fowler home on Sunday; Mrs. St. Gibson, Basewood, returned home Saturday from a two months visit at the coast; Mrs. Edel Madell and family staying at the Gibson home for a few days; Gordon Larson around to the

C. G. I. T. NOTES

"Camp" is a magic word to any good C.G.I.T.er. Even though you had to sleep in a soggy bedroll for a week you still had a "wonderful time". How would you like to visit a camp in Alvins?

You would sleep in a sort of wigwam made of saplings roofed with grass and leaves. Each girl brings her own supply of food, cooking utensils and a pot or pound to carry water from the spring. Four or five girls have a campfire over which to prepare their meals.

Picture a camp of over a hundred Africa girls. Their day begins at six with lighting of fires and fetching of water from the spring. Breakfast is followed by morning worship and Bible study in groups. Then the girls scatter for "chores" such as gathering firewood, tidying beds and so on. Games follow, and by this time lunch, which has been previously set on to cook is ready. This is probably consist of boiled sweet potatoes.

Noon meal and resting time over the girls set off for a twenty minute walk to the river. They cannot camp nearer a river on account of the cold and dampness at night. Most African rivers are not good for bathing, for if they are large enough they are likely to have crocodiles and hippos. These girls are so fortunate as to have an ideal spot for swimming and washing their clothes. The clothes are washed by pounding them up and down on the rocks. After their swim the girls set off for camp in single file, gracefully balancing their water pots on their heads.

Evening recreations close the day just as in our camps. "As the smoke of our fire rises heavenward, so our thoughts rise to Thee, O God." Taps is sung. So ends our day in an African Girl in Training Camp, and it would seem that Camp is Camp wherever you find it

Fight for Freedom - with Scrap

Donations of Metals, Rubber, Rags and Paper Urgently Required

Here is your chance to do wartime service. A Salvage depot has been opened in the C.N.R. freight sheds and donations of scrap iron of all metals of any kind, rubber of any kind such as tires etc., paper, magazines, rags are urgently requested.

For complete information see advertisement on page 4. Cut the ad out and keep it.

The Salvage Corps cannot pay for scrap. By selling our load lots some financial returns are obtained and this money will be used to defray small expenses and the balance given to charities and war organizations. Financial returns are not the aim — it is turning waste material to some use.

Salvage is a huge and vital job in which every man, woman and child must donate some time absolutely free. We must have this material in order to win the war. Your part is to gather together your scrap metal, rubber, paper, and deliver it to the Salvage depot in Vermilion.

DON'T FAIL to read the advertisement on Page 4.

TENDERS COURTS TO OPEN NEXT WEEK END

Preliminary Work Done

All preliminary work has been finished towards putting the three fine shale courts of the Vermilion tennis club into playing condition and they will be open for play next week end, providing the present fine spring weather lasts. It is impossible to obtain a firm surface on the courts until the frost has completely left the ground. This annual event is still going on and can be gauged by the pushing up of the steel staples which hold down the tapes.

It will be good news to members to learn that the secretary has already received inquiries from a number of newcomers in town residing in the immediate vicinity, for membership. Indications are that the membership will be well up to normal again this year, with a number of new members from town for the last two years.

The annual meeting of the club will be held early in May. Sidney Millward is the president and Ashley Cooper, the secretary.

Office of the Lieutenant-Governor,
Legislative Assembly Building,
Edmonton, Alberta
Thursday, April 16th, 1942.

THE PLEBISCITE

On Monday, April 27th, 1942, the Canadian Democracy is asked to go all out, to the limit of its effort in the war. The decision upon which your opinion is solicited is: Are you in favour of releasing the government from any obligation arising out of any past commitments restricting the methods of raising men for military service?

A pledge not to conscript men for overseas service, was given by the leaders of the two major political parties at the last federal election. It was given again by the government on the day on which parliament declared war in 1939, and again when the war measures act was passed by the House of Commons. Therefore, that the government should be perfectly free to act in these critical times, the people of Canada are asked to vote YES, to release the government from its pledge not to conscript men for overseas service.

The imminence of war draws daily closer, and closer to our shores. The enemy is spreading wider and wider, his sphere of conquest on sea, in the air, and on land. The marshalled might of tyranny threatens with tumultuous force, our security and freedom. In face of this crisis, parliament is asking the people of Canada to rally to the polls to vote YES, thereby placing the full responsibility of the disposition of men in the Active Army upon the Government of Canada.

Vote Yes . . . that the last barrier to immediate action may be removed.

Vote Yes . . . that the full responsibility may rest squarely upon the government and parliament to decide the issue of conscription for overseas service.

Vote Yes . . . that the voice of a free people may be heard with unmistakable resolution in every capital of the United Nations, and her duty to humanity depend on the response of the people to this vital question. Vote Yes, on Monday, April 27th.

JOHN CAMPBELL BOWEN,
Lieutenant-Governor.

19th ALBERTA DRAGOONS DISBAND

The 19th Alberta Dragoons of which Vermilion's "C" squadron is a unit, has been disbanded. Accordingly the squadron here will turn in their equipment and no long r function as a part of the regiment. THREE PLEBISCITE POLLS IN VERMILION

For the convenience of voters on the plebiscite on Monday next there are three polling places in Vermilion. These are Vermilion centre at the town hall; Vermilion East at the Imperial Block; Vermilion South at J. McN. Donnelly's residence.

To save spoiling of ballots, it is suggested that every voter should exercise care with respect to the following

1. Mark an X in the square opposite the word YES or the word NO.
2. Do not let the cross touch the borders of the black space.
3. Do not put anything else on the ballot or your vote will not be counted.

If your name is not on the voters' list you may vote at other polling stations on the list in your poll to vouch for you and you can then vote.

Vote by making a cross, thus X.

Are you in favour of releasing the government from any obligation arising out of any past commitments restricting the methods of raising men for military service?

The meeting was called in connection with the operations of the fire department.

Considerable discussion took place re the sending of two fire engines to assist in the fire at Kitscoty. The chief pointed out that since the departure of R. H. Robinson was also discussed.

The following motions carried:

Stewart—Bushell: That notice of this meeting be waived.

Spencer—Porter: That in future the fire department equipment not be allowed to leave town without the consent of the committee in charge of the Department.

Meeting adjourned.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Golden text: Whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciples. Luke 14 27.

Lesson Luke 13 22-35.

Devotional reading: Psalm 63 1-7.

Explanations and Comments

A Parable Warning Against False Hopes. Luke 13:22-35. Jesus continued on his way to Jerusalem preaching in the cities and villages through which he passed. On one of the days, some one, evidently sure of his own salvation simply because he was a Jew asked him this question, "Are there few that are saved?" Instead of the expected answer that Israel and Israel only, would be saved, Jesus taught him the much needed lesson. "What is the answer of divine wisdom." Is it some glaring agency of fire and brimstone for billions of years? No—it is a refusal to answer. It is a strong warning to the questioner. It is the pointing to a straight gate and a narrow way whereby alone we can enter the Kingdom of God

Strive (literally agonize, strain every nerve) to enter in by the narrow door—Jesus then had a certain small door, and a pathway before the door, in no way crowded, for only a few travel that way, since it seems to lead through a pathless, rugged, and rough land That is the way that leadeth to true discipleship (Olshausen, a disciple of Socrates).

The Lament over Jerusalem, Luke 13 34, 35 Jesus was deeply moved by the thought of Jerusalem and the people and wicked as they were, guilty as they were of killing the prophets and stoning God's messengers, he could not but be had longed to help them even as a hen protects her brood from unexpected peril. Henry Ward Beecher, speaking of his experience with broods of chickens, says the mother hen gave her whole self to them and their instinct was to run under her and when there to lift themselves close up to her breast and their warmth from her. I have watched them as they did this again and again. How often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not! What an idea of the intimate and clear relationship between the soul and the Lord Jesus Christ is conveyed in that figure!

SO YOU'RE GOING TO DO A PLAY!

By this time you are beginning to get some pep and rhythm in your play. The scripts have been discarded several weeks ago, and the actors are using the stage just like the room in the house they are portraying. They are no longer conscious of the artificiality of it all, and are really getting definite effects. It is well at this point to glance at the time set for your performance If it is a one act play, it should take usually from 25 to 40 minutes. Often the time is stated in the catalogue from which you ordered the play. Take out your watch, start the cast through the play and DON'T interrupt them until the last line is said and the curtain is pulled closed. If it is hard, I know to keep quiet when you see them struggling for this line or that improvement, but you will then have some idea of how much you need to speed up your play, and the cast will have some idea of the unity and pace of the play.

Speed Of Play

And remember the speed of the play is not the speed with which you say the lines but the speed with which the cues are picked up. Listen to everyday conversations and you will notice that one person is impatiently waiting for the other person to stop talking so they can get started with their small word. Well, the stage is merely to present a small slice of life for your enjoyment. So govern yourself accordingly.

Business

Sometimes the business that act on the audience seem could be changed to be more effective Sometimes there is a scene at the end of the play or at some of the scenes of the play which run possibly three minutes and not a word is said it is ALL action I am thinking of "Ladies In Retirement," that new play straight from Broadway, produced in Regina late in March by The Little Theatre.

Five Main Factors Of The Business Of Farming

Approximately 5 000 annual account records were made available for analysis through the recent Ontario Dairy Farm Management survey, and a study of them has revealed business principles which, when applied, point the way to successful farm operation. For a farmer to secure good financial returns, it was learned that certain achievement relative to five farm business factors is necessary. These factors are —(1) efficiency in the use of land; (2) efficient use of live stock; (3) efficient use of labour; (4) efficient use of capital; and (5) size of farm or farm business.

The canal observer may be prompted to suggest that it results no entirely new idea, says H. R. Hare, Economics Specialist, Dominion Department of Agriculture, who has been closely identified with the survey. "This may be partly true, he says, but it has long been recognized that products of the soil directly, and of live stock indirectly, provide the greater part of farm revenue. The efficient use of labour and capital has, however, not yet received due consideration. It is imperative that farmers secure good crops and maintain good live stock as fundamental revenue sources but it is equally imperative that labour and capital employed in crops and live stock production be employed wisely. Labour and capital are becoming more dominant factors in production on the farming pushes further into the commercial scale. Size of farm or farm business is also becoming a more live question.

If the operator can attain certain standards relative to each of the five factors, a study of the survey showed that a high degree of financial success may be brought about. Standards vary with locality and type of farming

This thing called farm business is in the issue of being put under the microscope to determine what business science lies within it, and it has been learned that measures may be applied to it.

Health LEAGUE of CANADA presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

PREVENTING DIPHTHERIA

Health authorities through Canada have united in co-operation with the Health League of Canada in a nation-wide effort to attract attention to the importance of immunizing children against diphtheria.

Diphtheria, uncontrolled, according to the Health League of Canada, is the greatest cause of death among children between the ages of two and five years. Science has developed a preventive in the form of Toxoid. The process of preventing diphtheria is a matter of science not attempted by any danger, nor any great inconvenience. Three inoculation of diphtheria Toxoid is all that is necessary. These inoculations are given at three week intervals, and a re-inforcing dose—after an interval of four or five years. If Toxoid were universally used, diphtheria would disappear from Canada.

Citing the fact that despite the existence of a specific preventive there have been 3742 cases of diphtheria and 862 deaths in the last three years of record, the Health League of Canada calls attention to the increased seriousness of the problem and asks the co-operation of every citizen to spread the message to parents that Toxoid is the only sure way of safeguarding the lives of Canada's children against the ravages of diphtheria.

ANNE TEDLOCK BROOKS

CHAPTER XVIII.

Ransome stared grimly across the terrace. "You know it's what we think. A shipment of the gold bars will be sent out two weeks from now and the express truck will be held up."

Tamar's hand covered her trembling lips. Then she said: "Oh, no, Ranny! Why that's ridiculous! I never heard of anything so absurd."

"Indeed? And what did you think all of the preparations were for? Think they were going to have a pink tea at the Cricket Hill and that this is one of their games to surprise the guests? No, no, Tam. The criminal means business or I'm a very poor judge."

"Sh! Here's comes Aristotle. Guess he'd better run on. Ran. Wouldn't you like to come up and see Mother a minute?"

"Thanks, of course I would."

Laughing gayly on some trivial subject, they went into the wide hall and up the stairs. Phoebe poked her head through the rear swinging door just as Ransome caught Tamar's hand and a broad smile lit her face.

"The goose do most beauteous couple in de country! An' de most in love-est man!" Phoebe flapped back to the kitchen. "Jes, make up a little gingah nice and a drap of dat Ol' Southe'n Comfo't!" She started chipping ice for the glasses.

Tamar left Ransome in the hall window seat under a corner, while she went into Marie' room to see if she were awake and ready to receive a caller.

Her mother greeted the thrust-in head. "Back darling? Come on in and see me. I thought I heard a man's voice just now. Was that——"

Tamar crossed over swiftly and kissed the pale cheek. "Yes, Mumsie. We've played hookey! Come on in, Ransome, and get your sentence for kidnapping."

Ransome loshed boyishly gay as he entered the invalid's room. "Hello, Mumsy!" He kissed the same cheek that Tamar had just kissed.

And for a moment the hot tears blinded Tamar's eyes until she was frightened that they would be discovered, Ranny had always loved her mother and respected and admired her father Missing his own mother, it seemed that he had transferred his affection to hers.

"Ransome, you wicked man! No penalty could be too severe. What ransom did you demand?"

"Mums, that's a terrible pun!" Ransome said in a critical tone, which changed into laughter. "Oh, I really feel awfully, leaving you for so long. Has Dad been here?"

"Oh, yes, dear. He spent me" of the morning and ate lunch h..re at her table. He was in very good spirits. Major Towne has called a meeting of the board for tomorrow night. I think they're to make arrangements for the first shipment of the bars."

Tamar's face whitened. Ransome's fingers crept unnoticed across the white spread and pressed hers. Without volition, Tamar's fingers curled up over them, tense and straining.

Ransome quickly changed the subject "It was a lovely picnic, Mavis. I took Tamar over to the old mill on Whiffle Creek You know the spot."

Maris could not tell him that she knew the spot all too well That was the place where Knox Randolph had proposed to her And it had been on a picnic, too!

"The old mill? Is it still in good repair?"

"I think the old mill is in need of repair! It's almost a thing of the past. Think how few are left standing in this country. Why, they ought to have museums built around them."

Tamar tried to enter into the spirit of his conversation. She sat on the edge of the big bed, her hands over her mother's

Maris Randolph felt the feverish heat of them against her cool fingers and knew that Tamar was upset over something. It seemed to her that the forced gayety of her daughter's manner seemed to be hiding something. Had Randolph proposed to Tamar? There was nothing she had rather hear

She had worried a little about Christopher Rande, though. He was not the man for Tamar, she felt. He lacked charm the charm that Ransome Todd had, or even, she admitted to herself, that Richard Sheridan possessed. Even though Dick were just a little inclined to look as though he needed more exercise.

The rapt expression that she had caught upon Tamar's face several times while Christopher was staying at Shadwell had given her warning that Tamar might have fallen in love with the young engineer. She and Knox had spoken of it and her husband had laughingly waved aside the idea.

Maris watched the two youngsters before her with a catch in her heart. They would always be youngsters to her—they would never seem grown up adults with the capacity for loving and mating.

Ransome stood up and held out his hand. "I really should be going. I'm afraid that father will cast me out for being gone so long. Miss Elsie is probably still sitting on the edge of her chair with pad and pencil in hand because I'd just started a letter when——" he broke off. He had started to say when he saw Tamar run down the stairs from the Elsmere.

"Miss Elsie is certainly a faithful soul," Tamar helped him out. She reminded her always of a frightened rabbit, just ready to scuttle for cover, under the blueberry vines on Cricket Hill.

"Don't come down," Ransome said as Tamar made a motion to follow him.

"Wait a minute, Mistuh Ranny," Phoebe's voice came from the stairs. "Ah's bringin' you something to wet yo' whistle."

Ranny laughed. "Light of my life, Phoebe! Good girl! I hope it's not poison!"

"Yo' sho! Not too potent foh a gen'man lak you, Mistuh Ranny. Jes' a lil drap, in some gingah ale."

"Ugh!" grimaced Tamar.

"That's all right fo' you, Honey. But Mistuh Ranny lakes his gingah ale wahmed up a bit wif a lil whiskey." Phoebe set the clinking glasses down and poured the liquid over the ice.

"Mmm!"

"Thanks, not now, Tamar." She would wait until before dinner and have just a little one with Knox, who liked it better. He was used to sly slowly while he talked to her.

Ransome handed his glass back and said, "Guess I will, Phoebe, if you can spare me, Miss Randolph."

"Very well, Mr. Todd," Tamar rose obediently.

"Thanks for the drink, Phoebe. And I'll see you soon again, Mumsy."

The two women, the faithful colored servant and the invalid, overheard their voices still banteringly gay, on the stairs.

There came a slam of the door and turned guiltily. "What's matter wif dem t'ee youngsuns?" Phoebe de-frighted that they would be discovered, Ranny had always loved her mother and respected and admired her father Missing his own mother, it seemed that he had transferred his affection to hers.

"Ransome, you wicked man! No penalty could be too severe. What ransom did you demand?"

British Rule in India

Tribune Paid To Britain For Manner In Which Country Has Been Governed

Elsmere

Sir:—At a time when so many conventional writers are repeating the conventionalities on British rule in India it is refreshing to read an informed opinion by an authority of international reputation: "Any one who has had a chance to see part of this enormous empire, and particularly the most exquisite gem in its crown India, cannot help admiring the genius and prudent manner, the consistency and strength, with which an Asiatic country of $65,000 000 inhabitants has been governed by England for 175 years. Colonial history can present no other case of a European nation's solving such a gigantic civilizing problem in so brilliant a manner."

Probably many readers will recall this passage, which occurs on page 282 of "Changing Kai-shek," by Sven Hedin Charles Honour, East Concord N Y. —Letter in New York Times

Headache For Axis

United States Speeding Up Production Of Planes And Tanks

The speaker of the house of representatives, Sam Rayburn, said the United States now is making more than 3,300 planes a month and that already has a worldwide fighting front six times as many soldiers as Gen Pershing had with the A.E.F. after 10 months of the First Great War.

"We and our Allies can and will have two and a half times as many planes as all our enemies put together," he said

Without divulging military secrets I can say that one factory alone is turning out each day an entire train-load of tanks."

Every element of the country's war production effort "right now is either up to or ahead of the program that has been outlined

Gardening

Try Something New

In vegetables, as in flowers scientists have been giving us many improvements. Their work has been carried out in two directions: first, the introduction of vegetables unfamiliar to most Canadians, and second, and probably more important, the improvement in those varieties that have been grown in this country for years.

Of the vegetables new to most Canadians there are several worth a trial in any garden. Many experienced gardeners make it a habit to try at least one new kind each year Full descriptions will be found in any Canadian seed catalogue.

In regular vegetables there has been improvement in almost all, with the object of getting more flavour sometimes and a longer season.

Spread Out Sowings

Experienced gardeners spread their sowing over two or three weeks The first sowing of peas, beans, etc in the garden on a Saturday afternoon was not a good one Many things planted too soon and the entire garden going in at once resulted in the feast of fresh garden peas, corn, carrots, beans, etc lasting only a few weeks. A properly planned garden with successive sowings spring to early summer should provide a constant supply of the freshest garden vegetables from early July until well after killing frost.

Easily Grown Flowers

There are gardens that fit almost any situation For those people who have feather in the garden for flowers there are plenty of annual flowers that thrive easily A little digging of the ground in the spring is all that is required and many things as alyssum, sweet mignonette, portulaca and calfornia poppies will do well. These are the flowers that almost need to be direct sowed out of doors, but prefer not to transplant. Just start them where they will grow and let them alone.

For the center of the garden, back, large 6-inch annuals, such as nasturtium, poppy and phlox will make a good show. Asters and zinnias are also excellent. Sweet peas, of course, must be grown in every garden, for a few of these climbing annuals or vines will perfume the whole garden

CARRYING OUT ORDERS

A restaurant customer in Washington remonstrated with the waitress about sugar. "I've told you a dozen times," the waitress explained, "that the Australian dingo, or native dog, does not have any fur. I really mournfully in the night

Sergeant—Oh, don't worry. You'll soon get over that!

Frank- Mamma, please tell me how father got to know you.

Mamma—One day I fell into the river, and your father jumped in and saved me

Frank Well, that's funny; he won't let me learn how to swim.

Wife What did you ever do that benefitted any fellow-man."

Hubby—I married you, didn't I?

Plumber—I've come to fix that old tub in the kitchen

Youngster—Mamma, here's the doctor to see the cook."

TOLLAND

It is nice to see the birds back again and to enjoy lovely spring weather. Everyone is getting busy on spring work and the recent snow storm in present moisture conditions considerably.

Congratulations are extended to Mr and Mrs. Harry Sweeney on the birth on a daughter in the Vermilion hospital. It is quite interesting to note that the baby girl arrived on her great grandmother's 60th birthday, April 19th.

Wm Whitton had the misfortune to have his car badly damaged while delivering mail.

A certain well known young soldier was home on his week end leave and started out Sunday morning to call on one of his neighbors. On the way he rode his horse into a slough to let the animal drink but the horse stepped and fell. The soldier had to return home and dry his uniform in order to go back to Camrose in the afternoon.

A bad chimney fire started at the Webber home on Friday last which caused some damage to the wall and might have been very serious. It happened to be mail day and there was plenty of help in donning the blaze.

INTERESTING MEETINGS BEING PLANNED BY BOARD OF TRADE

The regular board of trade meeting was held on Monday when W. F. Pitts was voted as chairman and 11 members attended.

A committee of Jas. D. Adam and Geo E. Garland reported on interviews with various military officials regarding the use of the college. About all that can be said in this regard is that it is still being considered for this and that. It is now favored as a training school for the Women's Army but it will be several months before instructors are available for this branch of activity as these are just now being trained themselves in the east.

Numerous other routine matters were disposed of. It is planned to have two guest speakers at meetings shortly. The gentlemen it is hoped will soon are Walter R. Campbell, regional representative of the Wartime Prices and Trades Board, and C. D. Dempsey supervisor of Credit Unions. Ample notice will be given of the date when they will be here.

RED CROSS NEWS

A general meeting of the Vermilion Red Cross Society (Ladies' Auxiliary) was held in the Memorial hall on Saturday April 18th at 3 p.m. The meeting was held in the afternoon in order to accommodate some of the country members but owing to the condition of the roads very few were able to get in.

A letter from Calgary acknowledging receipt of donation for dunnage bag was received stating that these were being made up and ready for shipment.

The date of the Red Cross appeal has been set for May 11th, the queen for Alberta being $275,000.

The local branch of the Red Cross is planning on holding a rummage sale some time this spring as soon as the roads are opened sufficiently to insure a good attendance.

Many thanks to the following for their donations: Magazine air. The Ladies Curling club $25, a quilt from Carleton-Harbor aux., material donated by Mrs Al. Jones.

A further shipment was made to the Edmonton office of the Red Cross on Tuesday, April 21. This was made up of 3 cartons consisting of the following articles.

1 baby's layette made up of 18 diapers 1 ladies gown 3 baby gowns, 1 shawl 2 jackets, 1 bonnet 2 boxcoat, 1 washcloth

Civilian comforts: 28 sheets, 5 crib quilts, 6 quilts, 16 diapers, 7 rompers, 8 sleepers, 5 panties, 6 jumper shirts, 7 boys pyjamas, 1 windbreaker 4 bonnets, 4 baby jackets, 2 bonnets

Soldiers Comforts: 21 wash cloths, 1 ladies nightgown 4 hospital pyjamas, 6 turtle neck sweaters 2 men's scarves, 2 ladies scarves 6 pr mitts 3 pr hose toothings, 6 ankle sox, 2 men's gloves, 3 ladies sweaters, 1 boys knitted suit 2 sweaters 1 sweater scarf

Salvage Corps Drive!

Citizens of Vermilion and district have organized themselves into a SALVAGE CORPS and with the co-operation of all other organizations asks your help in this worthy cause.

EVERY MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD IN VERMILION AND DISTRICT IS A WORKER!

The following materials should be gathered up according to the instructions below and delivered or sent to the C.N.R. Freight Sheds, which is now Vermilion's SALVAGE DEPOT. W. J. Mayhew is in charge here and the doors are open from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, and from 1:30 to 5:00 P.M.

REMEMBER — EVERY LITTLE BIT HELPS!

MATERIAL TO BE SALVAGED

HERE IS HOW YOU CAN HELP

1. RUBBER—
All sorts of rubber is urgently required. This includes old car tires, bike tires and tubes, also rubber footwear free from cloth tops, rubber boots, old hot water bottles and any discarded rubber articles around the premises. Smaller pieces should be packed in bags or cartons.

2. METAL SCRAP—
This includes all discarded farm implements which should be taken to pieces as much as possible; all garden and other tools, railings, chains, pots, pans, etc. Rust does not matter. Aluminum pots, pans, picture frames, etc. Silver paper, tin foils, tooth paste containers, brass rods or light bulbs are all useful. Metals of all kinds. Metals will give the country aeroplanes, tanks, guns and shells. One ton of waste metal makes 150 shell cases for 18-pounder guns.

3. RAGS, OLD CLOTHING, SWEATERS, WOOL SOX, etc.—
These provide rugs, blankets and great coats. Clean woollen waste, when graded, is very valuable. Wiping rags are in great demand for munitions production. Do you know we were compelled to import rags to the value of $3,500,000 last year? If possible, put your rags and old clothes in three separate bags or sacks: (1) containing woollens; (2) containing white cottons; (3) containing colored cottons, silks or other materials. Housewives! Don't be content with putting out the waste for the week. Clean out that attic, cellar, kitchen. Get into those cupboards. Give all useful material that you do not require.

4. BONES—
These are best kept in a lidded tin, but a box or a bag may have to do. Cooked bones or even bones the dog has gnawed are still useful. They are turned into glue for aeroplanes and glycerine for explosives. If every householder save two ounces a week, the country would salvage over 10,000,000 pounds of bones a year for war purposes.

5. PAPER—
Including newspapers, magazines, letters, cardboard, cartons. Paper should be clean and dry, tied into a parcel with the smaller pieces in side. Cartons should be flattened. Only cellophane, grease proof, tarred and carbon papers are not wanted. Magazines, if kept neat and clean, are distributed as reading material to military camps, hospitals and ships. Newspapers and magazines should be tied in separate bundles of about 25 to 50 pounds. Paper and cardboard cartons provide good containers for the troops' ride cases, cases for shells, fine old envelopes will make a cartridge well.

6. GLASS—
White, amber, and green glass has a salvage value but window glass is not wanted.

FARMERS — HOUSEWIVES — SCHOOL CHILDREN — MEN!

—no mean each and every one of you! Don't leave it to the other fellow, but do it yourself and see that your neighbor does his or her share also. Don't say "my little bit won't help." That is how Hitler would like you to feel. Your salvage material is actually wartime treasure, and your effort is worth while. You would not throw away a gun, a bullet, a bomber part or a soldier's blanket, yet those are just the things your waste material provides.

The organization is still in its initial stages and will improve as it goes along. There is a lot to learn and all suggestions or a constructive nature will be gladly received by the committee, which at present is composed of Dr. W. H. Scott, Ashley H. Cooper, Jake Wener, Reg Spencer and Dave Ardies.

All other organizations in the town and district are invited to appoint representatives to act with the general committee. The co-operation of all rural organizations, Red Cross Auxiliaries, ladies' clubs, school Boards, U.F.A. locals is especially desired.

CHATSWORTH CHATTER

The snowstorm of last Tuesday night and Wednesday morning made roads quite muddy again but supplied a little more moisture. However, the mud is almost full frozen again now and work on the land will soon get under way, provided we experience no more snowstorms. We had a dust storm and high wind on Friday, despite local mud conditions. This dust had likely come from quite a distance. We had a light shower of rain Friday night which settled the dust somewhat.

Geese and ducks have been going over in huge flocks this past week. Robins, meadow larks, flickers, blue birds and bluebirds are all back.

A crew spent all this past winter in the pit pasture at E. Thompson's. There were a few 3s below mornings when it neither hooked nor smoked very happy it didn't take long for it to join others of its kind when they arrived back two weeks ago.

Mrs. Telford did not have a very large crowd at the sale due to bad roads and rather cold weather. However, everything sold quite well.

Mrs. East is on the sick list and we all hope she will soon be better.

Mrs. Jos Farkash is also sick with a throat ailment.

Madeline Klaschinsky has just recovered from an attack of mumps.

Miss Nan Cameron of Indian Lake, is home for the week end. She spent last week practise teaching at Poplar Heights.

Miss Dolly Mazzo who has been working at the Islay hospital, spent the week end at home.

The number of school children has been somewhat reduced recently since Solberza and the Shypyka family have gone. May Telford plans to continue school here until the end of the term. Ray Hutchinson and Charlie Farkash are home for spring work. Thus the number of nineteen children is reduced by six.

Crocuses are out in full bloom so spring must really be here at last.

CANADIAN WOMEN SHOULD VOTE "YES"

OTTAWA.—Mrs. Elaine Hardy, the president of the National Council of Women, today issued a statement urging Canadian women to vote on the April 27 plebiscite to release the Government from its no-conscription pledge. Mrs. Hardy's statement follows:

Whether we approve or not of the action of the Dominion Government the plebiscite now has been taken out of party politics, with the leaders of all parties asking its support in the vote on April 27.

With the recognition of this, we believe that an affirmative vote on the plebiscite will strengthen our war effort. No loyal Canadian can refuse to face his responsibility in the light of the seriousness of the present situation.

The last war gave Canadian women the franchise. It behooves each one of us now to exercise our prerogative, thereby standing strongly behind every effort to increase Canada's position and strengthen the cause of the United Nations.

FASHION FOR MEN

"Why not all of us go collegiate and wear out all the odd coats and pants that we have collected", said Bill Somali Gordon, Chairman of the War Time Prices and Trade Board, in discussing with reporters in Winnipeg the savings in material that are made by eliminating cuffs from men's pants and "slash pockets" from jackets. "Haven't most men been wearing these for years past about what you'd guess as fashion this is, "when old clothes become fashionable".

TURKEY HILL TID-BITS

Mr. and Mrs. Gobeen entertained a host of friends at a party held in the school recently. Nine tables of whist were played with first prizes being won by Mrs. Noonan and Jimmy Logan. Consolations were won by Enid Jones and Charlie Farkas. A delicious lunch was served by the hostess after which dancing was enjoyed by all. Our card parties of the past winter have been a great success as well as being a help to our small community. A collection has been taken each time which has now grown into quite a nice amount. The money will very shortly be put to use we believe it will do the most good.

Jim Powell returned from the east last week. We are glad to welcome him again.

Tom Innis has be e securing the countryside for a white now nearly ready for use. It stepped away from the home place last week.

We are sorry to report that Bo Gordon cut his hand quite badly with a sawing wood for Coburn's. We understand he was somewhat fortunate not second best as a shooting accident during the Easter holidays. We understand he was accidentally shot himself through the foot, although painful and inconvenient it is believed to be not too serious.

Helen, Annie and Beth Noonan are now at home having left their jobs in town. Also Mr. Noonan has returned to the farm after having spent the winter in Vermilion. This somewhat swells the population of Turkey Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. McLeod and family were visitors back in their home district during Easter. They report things their new home in Edson very much.

We are sorry to see Jim Powell walking with a cane these days. While in the east he had the misfortune to have a horse fall on him pinning his ankle to the ground. We understand he has been walking to day (Monday) for the first time.

Vermilion has organized a regular Salvage Corps now and has dumped the old freight sheds as a place to leave all your waste materials. They will take all metals except tin cans and no piece of iron, steel, cast, brass, copper, lead is too small or too large. All old rubber such as tires, tubes, rubber boots, rubber shoe soles, leaky water bottles etc. especially welcome. Rags, old clothes, magazines, newspapers, if clean and packed are also handled. Clean bottles or every kind are marketable. The idea behind the campaign is to turn waste into money and special arrangements have now been made for the marketing of all articles of waste. Every man, woman and child can help by saving all the above mentioned material and by delivering it to the salvage depot in Vermilion Remember every little bit helps. It is the intention as the salvage corps to remain in operation for the duration of the war.

BOWTELL BULLETIN

We wish to extend our heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Evans who was recently bereaved by the death of her mother at Stony Plain.

The writer and family enjoyed a pop at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rapp on Sunday.

Dan' forest the date this Friday folks, April 24th. The draw will also be made there for the quilt and the cushion.

We had the pleasure of having Mrs. L. Osmess from Vermilion as our practise teacher this week.

Bill Walker was noticed purchasing a grinding machine at Hinman's sale last week.

The Knutson family are enjoying using a car which they purchased recently.

We forgot to thank Charlie Innis for calling the square dances Friday evening.

LET US GET THE VOTE OUT

It may be taken for granted that the majority of Western Farmers intend to vote "yes" in the Plebiscite on April 27th. They are determined to make the National War Effort fully effective; they realize that voting is a National duty.

But the response of the West will be fully satisfactory only if every possible vote is polled. Get your own vote in and see that every qualified member of your Household also votes. Remind your friends of the vote and help neighbors get to the polls. Join in your Community Organization to get out the vote.

Then the voice of the West will be strongly heard as part of the National voice.

UNITED GRAIN GROWERS Ltd

NEW HIGH PRICE FOR FLAX APPLIES ONLY TO NEW CROP

Old Crop Flax Still on Farms

Producers of flaxseed who still have old crop flax over and above 1942 seed requirements should be advised that the new and higher price of $2.25 per bushel that becomes effective on Aug. 1, 1942 applies only to "flaxseed grown in 1942". This is made very clear and definite in Order in Council P.C. 1800. The Canadian Wheat Board will be the only buyer of flaxseed in the new crop year and has no power to buy any flaxseed except that of the 1942 crop.

There is no object in holding such flaxseed for a higher price after July 31, 1942, and producers should sell their extra stocks for seed to their neighbors or to a dealer authorized by the Board or deliver to a country elevator.

Every farmer who assists in the distribution of flaxseed by selling extra flaxseed to his neighbors is definitely assisting the Government in an important war objective. Every bushel of flaxseed grown in 1942 will be needed and the co-operation of farmers to this end is requested.

SEEDTIME and HARVEST

Emergency Changes in Price Rates of Hog Grades

Like Easter bonnets fashions in hogs change and the public is a little more weight and fat than the law says is the best. The Dominion Government has now announced that new prices will be paid for B-1 bacon hogs. Lighter weights in the same grade necessary does not represent a radical change in the minds of Canadian Bacon Board officials. They have been urging heavier weights in order to make more bacon than the 400,000,000 lb British bacon contract will be fulfilled or exceeded. The change should be regarded as a temporary measure rather than a permanent measure. The object is to get more pounds of bacon from the hogs marketed. Farmers are asked not to market a hog until it has reached the top quality boom hogs. The remaining grades decrease progressively in general quality.

	lbs.	lbs.	lbs.
"A"	160-170	170-185
"B"	150-175	139-154	176-185
"C"	138-175	130-154	176-185
"D"	138-170	130-154	170-185
"E"	Includes — unfinished, oily, rejected, condemned, physically injured, stags or ridlings.

Page 36 of the Producers Grading Guide published by The North-West Line Elevators Association, describes and indicates the weight ranges for the hog grades. It should not have a copy of this booklet which, besides giving the official grade descriptions for all prairie-farm products, your local line elevator buyer will gladly secure one for you. — Contributed by T. A. M. A. SERVICES WIN NEW MEMBERS

Value of the work of the Alberta Motor Association has been shown in the steady membership gains at branches in Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge.

Up to the end of February, according to S. W. Cameron, Calgary, the secretary of the A.M.A., all branches reflected membership gains, both associate and regular.

One of the strong appeals for membership in the A.M.A. is found in the free personal automobile accident insurance. The principal sum is $1,500 and this increases $150 in value annually for five years.

This free policy also pays $10a for expenses of putting members in care of relatives and prizes $15 each week for 20 weeks for disabling injuries incurred in an automobile accident, whether sliod or wheel. Associate members also may take advantage of the free insurance policy.

Last year the A.M.A. had a record membership total in excess of 3,000. Despite wartime conditions, officials feel that the growing popularity of the A.M.A. services will ensure a still larger membership this year and branches already are away to a rolling start.

HON. H. MITCHELL UNDER THE GUNS

"In view of the critical situation confronting the free nations of the world today and the paramount necessity of an all-out effort to maintain our way of life, there cannot and must not be any but a decisive "YES" vote on the plebiscite on April 27. This nation has a rendezvous with destiny; let us keep it, united, determined and unafraid. All we cherish as worthwhile is in the balance. Weakness, half-heartedness, selfishness, none of these will do; we must be strong, wholehearted and unselfish. Let us remember that our young boys today risk all for us. They go down to the sea in ships, and fly high in the air. They watch and fight and die. They stand guard along the coasts of our embattled motherland and along our own Atlantic and Pacific coasts. So when the vote is counted on April 27 let it be the salute to the world of a united Canada, let it be the pledge of our people to our own boys—we are with you, carry on."

—Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labor.

CANADA

OFFICE OF THE CHIEF PLEBISCITE OFFICER

PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT

EVERY CANADIAN CITIZEN IS HEREBY ADVISED:

(1) THAT a Proclamation of the Governor in Council dated the 9th day of March, 1942, ordered a plebiscite to be taken in every electoral district in Canada on the question set out in the ballot papers to be used thereat in the following words and form:

Vote by making a cross, thus X, after the word 'Yes' or after the word 'No'.

Are you in favour of releasing the government from any obligation arising out of any past commitments restricting the methods of raising men for military service?

YES

NO

(2) THAT the date fixed as polling day for the said plebiscite is Monday, the 27th day of April, 1942.

(3) THAT polls will be open in each polling division from 8 o'clock a.m. until 8 o'clock p.m. (daylight saving time).

(4) THAT new lists of voters have been specially prepared for the said plebiscite.

(5) THAT the said lists are what may be termed "open lists" which means that, in either urban or rural polling divisions, any qualified voter whose name has been omitted from same may vote on polling day in his polling division upon taking the required oath and upon being vouched for on oath by a voter whose name appears on the list of voters for such polling division

(6) THAT National Registration Certificates are required to be produced by qualified urban voters whose names have been omitted from the lists of voters, and by those voters only, before being allowed to vote.

(7) THAT advance polls will be opened in the same localities and on the same conditions as at the last General Election.

(8) THAT, as a general rule, every person who has ordinarily resided in Canada during the last twelve months is entitled to vote at the said plebiscite if he is twenty-one years of age and a British subject.

(9) THAT voters will be entitled to vote in the polling division in which they were ordinarily residing on the 30th day of March last.

(10) THAT urban voters have been advised of the location of their polling stations on the notices left at their dwelling places by the enumerators

(11) THAT rural voters have been notified in the Notice to Voters posted up in the post offices, and should have been verbally advised by the rural enumerators of the location of their polling stations.

(12) THAT, generally, polling stations for the said plebiscite will be established at or near the same premises as at the last General Election.

(13) THAT arrangements are being made to collect the results of the plebiscite on the evening of polling day as is done at a General Election

(14) THAT every Canadian on active service or in training in any of His Majesty's forces or corps, within or without Canada, is entitled to vote at the plebiscite in advance of polling day by virtue of a special procedure provided

Dated at Ottawa this 2nd day of April, 1942

JULES CASTONGUAY
Chief Plebiscite Officer.

FULL STRENGTH

The Importance Of National Unity

Stressing the need for national unity in this time of war, Premier Mackenzie King of Canada in a speech last week declared that the Japanese attack on Burma constitutes an attack on the Far East and the entire world. The Japanese intention of enemy forces in that part of the world.

"The Far East is not a place to which we can go," the Premier said. "The Far East has not been much their distances through the map, where words and figures only make possible for natives who are willing to be neighbors. Nor has the Far East been much their distances observed. The Japanese attack has timed their attack perfectly with regard to other considerations, but what is more significant they made full use of the best and greatest of their resources. These weaknesses become issues of risk, danger and even of fear and are tantamount to fifth column activity. Burma found they can weaken a country as much as enemy bombers. And even assist the bombers. Doubtless the country was like a gift of ammunition to the conquerors of Singapore.

"But this is not the time for the British to be asked to broadcast as to their speaker on Burma National Day. He was given complete freedom. He was asked only to be sure he was not urged by reports from unofficial sources that his speech had given interests a new idea of the British attitude towards Burma.

But Too Late

It was a mark of a new spirit but it was too late. The Japanese came first . . . All this was Burma's experience. Burma this product of Burma first and last. It should be of no use that any threat of division or dishonesty in our people are no longer irrelevant personal matters, but fatal flaws in the national effort for total victory.

"The twenty-six countries that are now known as the United Nations have joined to combat the Axis forces the enemy has made use of every subterfuge to create dissension. Misrepresentation and propaganda methods have been used to drive a wedge between the United States and the British Commonwealth. Here it is for us we should be on our guard against any talk that may tend to weaken the war effort. Idle gossip and the spread of false rumors is but playing into the hands of the enemy. Any suggestion of defeatism is worthy only of a Quisling and should be branded as such. The United Nations are determined to carry this war through to a successful conclusion. They have but one single purpose, and that is to go forward in perfect unison in a worthy cause, and to continue the good fight until the last vestige of barbarism is vanquished. If we permit ourselves to be diverted from this task by any form of internal dissension motivated by the enemy, it will only serve to delay the final hour of victory.

Greatest Propagandist

Hitler said he would dictate peace terms to Britain in Buckingham Palace on August 5 1940. He and he would take Moscow within three weeks of June 22 1941 and predicted the utter defeat of Russia. He is the greatest propagandist of all times. Nazi agents are disseminating their lies all over North and South America. Many of them are mowing their seeds of discord and suspicion right here in Canada. These are the people who throw out the suggestion that saving of gasoline is not necessary. That saving of sugar is not necessary. That War Saving Certificates are no good and that you'd never get your money back. We have all met the dupes who pass the information along in some of which we never realize that they are playing into the hands of the enemy. Only by concentrating on the single purpose in hand that of defeating every effort to defeat the enemy may we expect to emerge triumphant in our fight to rid the world of this monstrous and evil thing that darkens the sky and casts its sinister shadow over a war torn world.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

Well, when Col. Ralston got back to Ottawa recently and announced the formation of groups of "Rangers" on the Pacific Coast he rather changed the complexion of this column. Or, perhaps it would be more truthful to say that he set this column just a thinking-box working in a new and circumscribed channel.

The Individual Citizen's Army today isn't all civilians in khaki. It consists of or should consist of us.

A year ago last Christmas His Majesty King George said "We are now in the front line." At that time I'm afraid most of us thought of that statement as being applied to the citizens of Great Britain. Somehow I emphatically too we laid the flattering unction to our souls that the King also included our little purchase of War Savings Certificates and Victory Bonds as our front line contribution.

Today there are many branches of the Individual Citizen's Army in which all of us may serve in one way or another. Men, women and children, old soldiers, young soldiers, men who are exempt from military service.

The Home Guard is for exempts from military service. Not one of us, or can be exempt. So, for the present, I'm not going to write about the phrase to mean, "exempt from legal compulsion to serve."

No, I'm going to write about the injunction that "the last shall be first," let's look at the opportunities for service offering themselves to old soldiers, young soldiers and the legally exempt. For then the Reserve Army will be the first to mobilize. Mobilize in two ways—as a soldier preparing himself for home defence if that should become necessary, and two as a civilian continuing his ordinary trade.

No need to go into detail about this—it has all been in the daily papers recently—but there is no doubt that once the new set-up gets well under way the men who jump up the opportunity of spending 45 evenings, 10 week-ends and 15 days (in camp) learning the ways of a modern army will have an interesting and useful spare time occupation that will stand them in good stead if it has to be called on at full time job.

"Sam" Browne, usually known in print as Major-General B. W. Browne, D.S.O., M.C. has been named commander of the Reserve Army and he has had a long acquaintance with the problems of the militia. In peace time that is a heart-breaking job—it will be simpler now that authority has been given to equip the Reserve Army with modern guns, weapons, equipment and training facilities.

You know the classes who are eligible? Let's repeat them Men between 25 and 30, men 30 to 40 and 19 who will thus be able to fit themselves for active service before they reach service age and men who are not subject to conscription by reason of their occupations or for other legitimate reasons.

Because the army gets too long let's look briefly at the expansion of the Individual Citizen's Army This army-gang now in which almost all from saying another pair of shoes if half-soles will do is the equivalent of a clip of machine-gun bullets It is an a we all belong to and in which we can all fight

It is an army that trains us all to do all we can for the defence of our country or for attack on the Axis

It is an army in which the physical training necessitated by doffing an elastic girdle will result in a stronger race of women who will be ready for any tasks war may impose as well as the conservation of rubber for war purposes

Not very romantic? War hasn't been romantic since the days of knights in armour and if we know the true it probably wasn't very romantic then.

Spring Poetry

This Is A Sample Taken By Russians From Nazi Soldiers

The Moscow radio said the papers taken from killed or captured German troops showed that they had burst into a spring poetry offensive, and gave the following example:

When in future, at our ease,
We can say just what we please;
When Gestapo men on bail
Once again are back in jail;
When the jury trying Hitler
Has retired and he feels littler,
Then in Berlin peace will reign
And we'll smile and sing again.

Gardening Emphasis

Should Make Gardens Work For National Health This Year

No fancy gardens this year! Canadians are urged to put gardening emphasis on maximum nutrition, and conservation of seed, garden tools and time—a good vegetable garden is advised sharing tools, dividing pockets of seed and exchanging produce

Family tastes must be considered. The following vegetables, all rich in vitamin content, will serve as a guide as to what to plant: Tomatoes, lettuce, turnip greens chard, cabbage, kale, endive, and carrots, potatoes, rutabaga, peas, parsnips.

Rich in vitamin C, tomatoes are also a good source of vitamin A, and thiamin of the B group, canned as well as fresh. Cabbage, cooked or in cole slaw, is also a healthy winter dish as a sauerkraut. Peas, dried green can be stored for winter use, and beans when mature are a staple article of diet as well as being good while green Space seeds carefully when planting and so save seeds and later when thinn't don't work the ground too soon. Starting too early will spoil the soil. When a piece of earth will crumble apart in your fingers the soil is dry enough to cultivate.

Mountie To Be Pilot

Will Fly Canadian And U.S. Policemen's Gift To R.C.A.F.

"The Canadian Policeman," a trim cannon-firing Spitfire, was presented to a Canadian fighter squadron commanded by Sqdn.-Ldr. C. N. R. Campbell, D.F.C., of the Royal Air Force, on behalf of the policemen of Canada and United States.

The fighter, which will be flown by a former "Mountie," PO. Gordon Hoben of Ottawa, a veteran of 15 trips over enemy territory as a bomber pilot, was turned over by Sir Philip Game, superintendent of the London Metropolitan police and accepted for the R.C.A.F. by Air Vice-Marshal Harold Edwards, who recalled the R.C.M.P.'s reputation of getting its man.

"In this case I hope the pilot gets all his men when the time comes to go into action," he added.

A special silver plague has been fixed on the fuselage. Under a replica of the Canadian coat of arms is this inscription: "This Spitfire was purchased under the sponsorship of the Ontario Police Association of Windsor, Ont., with donations from police departments in all parts of the United States and Canada. A complete list is on file with Sir Philip Game, commissioner of Scotland Yard."

This quotation was at the end of the inscription: "Fear not, but trust in providence wherever you may be," to which were added the words, "Good luck."

EFFICIENT SERVICE

"Without a hitch or loss of life, and all part of its quiet, efficient way of doing things, the British Navy has carried most of the Australians back to their homeland, where they can help to defend it from aggression. The grey sleek ships of the "Silent Service" are still performing their epics and some day these will again make grand reading.

One of the oldest forms of food is cheese, which has been made and eaten as early as 1400 B.C.

Czechs Have Ways Of Keeping Many Things From Nazis

The Czechoslovakia Bulletin says: German newspapers in Prague complain that any rumor spread by enemies of the Reich is believed by the Czech population with astonishing credulity. When it was reported that the Nazi authorities were going to confiscate bed-sheets for German soldiers in the field, the Czechs began cutting their bed-sheets into pieces and making them into underwear, unwilling to contribute anything to the success of Germany.

NEW NAZI CODE

The Nazis have drawn up a "code of criminal justice" to be applied to Poles and Jews in the occupied east, ern territories of Poland. In addition, death penalty for acts of "violence against Germans"

Greater Weight Of British Bombs Over Germany

New York.—A far greater weight of British bombs on German and Nazi-controlled industry than ever before was forecast by Air Commodore H. M. Thornton, air attache to the British embassy in Washington.

Speaking to the American Society of Newspaper Editors the R.A.F. officer gave instances of why Britain is succeeding in a bombing policy in which the Nazis failed.

Air Commodore Thornton said the British air ministry believed the enemy air forces are not as strong as a year ago.

German production and crew training have failed to keep pace with wastage which has been greater in Russia than was anticipated, he said.

Italian production has not been able to replace losses in the Italian air force, which has consequently diminished in size and quality," he said. "As for the Japanese, if our estimates are correct, their wastage is greater than their productive power. Thus, taking all in all, we have every reason to believe that the combined Axis air power is contracting."

On the other side of the picture he noted that the R.A.F. "has achieved parity with the Luftwaffe and is steadily growing;" the Russian aircraft industry "has been transplanted in the East and is producing," and above all else, the air forces of this country are growing and will continue to grow at a rate which can only mean combined over-all superiority in due course."

Discussing air bombing of cities, Thornton said:

"The Germans have recently said that they have come to the conclusion that bombing cities was not worth while, and that they no longer conduct this type of warfare. In the same statement they hinted that the British held the same opinion. Now, either the Germans give a credit for remarkably short memories . . . or perhaps it is simply that they are afraid. We have not forgotten the ferocious attacks on Warsaw, Rotterdam, London, Coventry, Plymouth, Belgrade and many other cities.

"Now that the German air force is employed on a wide front in Russia, the Mediterranean, North Africa and western Europe, it would quite obviously suit the Germans if both sides agreed to stop bombing industrial cities, factories, railways and other communications upon which war production vitally depends; and it is for that very reason that we not only have not the slightest intention to cease this method of warfare, but are straining every nerve to increase our effort in that direction. To destroy or disorganize the German communications supply is surely one of the best means of bringing the war to a speedy conclusion. . . .

PEACE FEELERS

Germany Fears An Allied Landing On The Continent

London.—Stockholm despatches in the London morning newspapers said that Hitler again is sending out peace feelers to Britain.

These feelers are being rebuffed as thoroughly as those made last spring before the German attack on Russia, the papers added.

The peace bid was prompted, The Daily Mail reported, by German fears of an Allied landing on the continent and by misgivings for the success of the eastern front spring offensive unless the German rear is protected.

A Cologne banker who is a close friend of Franz von Papen, the German ambassador to Turkey, was sent to Stockholm to get in touch with British envoys, The Mail despatch said, adding that "he at last has given up the mission as useless."

It appears that his main purpose was an old one—to persuade Britain that a newly-inspiring Hitler is only too anxious to make peace with her so that he can deal with the "common enemy" European bolshevism.

He also let it be known that the Germans were concerned at the scope of the Japanese success and feared that if they were not checked world domination might be wrested from German hands by despite a Asiatic people."

Toronto.—Labor rationing is a definite wartime possibility, Hyacinth M. Little, director of national selective services, said in an address at the Canada Press luncheon to which members of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association were invited, and "above all else, the air forces of this country are growing and will continue to grow at a rate which can only mean combined over-all superiority in due course."

THE PLEBISCITE

People Are Urged To Give An Affirmative Vote On April 27

The parliament of Canada has decided to ask the Canadian people the question whether they are in favor of releasing the government from any obligation arising out of any past commitments restricting the methods of raising men for military service. This question will be submitted to the vote of the Canadian people on April 27. It is highly desirable that every person entitled to vote on this question should cast his or her vote on that date.

The government is urging the people to vote in the affirmative, and thus give to the government, subject to its responsibility to parliament, a free hand in the conduct of the war. The leaders of the three other recognized political parties in the House of Commons have announced that they will ask the people to vote in the affirmative. This removes the issue from all party considerations.

WILL USE WHEAT

As Substitute For Molasses In Manufacture Of Industrial Alcohol

Ottawa.—J. D. Lorimer, chemicals controller in the munitions and supply department, announced that Canadian distillers of industrial alcohol have agreed to use wheat as the base for their product, a move aimed at relieving the current molasses shortage.

It was estimated officially between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 bushels of wheat will be needed annually to meet the distillers' needs.

"The substitution has been made necessary because the principal sources of molasses—the Philippines, Hawaii, Cuba, and the West Indies—now are largely closed to both Canada and the United States because of the dislocation of import facilities," said Mr. Lorimer.

"The effect, the changeover, however, it will be necessary to employ a new method in the initial step of the process only"

Industrial alcohol is widely used in the manufacture of explosives and by many other essential and war industries.

Expect Hitler's Next Move Will Be For Oil Fields

New York Most observers expect Germany's next major move in Russia to be a renewal of the drive toward the oil of the Caucasus which had barely taken form before winter and the resurgent Russians fell upon them in the first great reverse of the Hitler military machine

Tied in with Japanese stabs toward India, such a German drive, with its threat of junction with the Japanese would turn the Middle East into a prime theatre of war, where the course of the whole conflict might well be decided. The Germans had a foot in the gate to the Caucasus before the Russians drove them out of Rostov at the outset of their counteroffensive late last November

The steady retreat of the Germans from Rostov to Taganrog did not dissolve the threat in the Caucasus

The Russians, still in naval command of the Black Sea, holding the Crimean base of Sevastopol in the face of fierce siege and with a foothold known on the Kerch peninsula of the Crimea, will remain a thorn in the flank of the drive toward the Caucasus unless the Germans can meanwhile clean up the Crimea

As for Russia's offensive prospects one of the other of the salients which her winter fighters carved into the German central front perhaps the one bound Smolensk west of Moscow are the other principal one which is said to have trapped a German army at Staraya Russa northeast of Smolensk might be nearer to a counter drive into Poland or the Baltic states

Leningrad is one of the great questions in the battle of Russia Under siege since last August the city at the head of the Gulf of Finland is cut off from the sea by Kronstadt naval base is a potential springboard for still other counteroffensives action against the Germans and at the same time a tempting lure for a great German diversion attempt

Russia has made it difficult to appraise her military position. Russian offensive action

MAKING TROUBLE

Street Fighting Against The Germans At St. Nazaire

London.—Bretons at St. Nazaire took up sporadic street fighting against the Germans with British firearms after the spectacular British raid on the German-held French port March 28. The Daily Mail said

The Bretons managed to get hold of guns and ammunition after the raid, began shooting immediately and have engaged in desultory frays ever since the raid The Mail story dated Madrid, continued

The Mail's informants said a large number of hostages had been shot one report put the number as high as 500—and that since the raid all provisions and concentration camps in the area have been filled to capacity.

After the St Nazaire raid it was recalled, the Germans threw a cordon around the area and street fighting between the attacking commando troops and Nazis went on for a long time after the main body of the British forces had withdrawn

The main objective of the raid was to wreck the important harbor installations at St Nazaire a big submarine base including largest lock on the continental Atlantic coast A former United States destroyer was blown up by ramming at the gate to the lock, wrecking it

Conference Is Held On Wartime Farm Problems

Ottawa—Agricultural officials assembled for the closing sessions of a two-day conference on wartime farming problems, with discussion of supply problems in relation to priorities one of the main items on the agenda.

Also on the agenda was a discussion of farm machinery quotas for 1943

The conference attended by agricultural authorities from many parts of Canada was called by the agricultural supplies board chiefly to consider ways and means of increasing sheep production, to meet expanded wartime demands

It was indicated at the conference session today that provincial cooperation will be sought in a Dominion-wide campaign to increase the number of Canadian sheep by two or three million by 1943.

Figures on the Dominion dairy herd's requirements presented by F. Sanford of the dairy products board were presented Estimated requirements for 1942 of butter cheese and milk showed an increase over 1941 of 18% over 1941 converted to the basis equivalent to requirements of 1941 as an increase of more than 50 million pounds was needed over 1941 requirements milk equivalent of 1942 requirements totalled more than 3,000,000,000 pounds

The figures also showed Canada in the 12 months ended last March 31 1942 with a total of 2,000,000 more than 13,000,000 pounds of cheese The agriculture department's estimate for 1943 March 31 of 14 months called for a total of 112,000,000 pounds

Production of cheese in 1941 amounted to 1,227,000 pounds Almost as large an amount was imported Cheese in its manufacture is closely related to manufacture of surplus frames among other things It is used in making glue, plastics paint and for various other purposes

The conference was told in a statement prepared by W. A. Brown, of the agriculture department a special products board that contracts had been completed or were under negotiation for export of 1,500,000 cases of eggs in the calendar year 1942.

Since July 1 shipments to Britain have been in the form of dried eggs instead of shell eggs Six egg drying units have been in operation at Saskatoon Winnipeg Belmont, Ont. Trenton Ont Gananoque Ont and Ottawa Two others are under construction one at Winnipeg and the other at Toronto

A talk on Canadian egg marketing, a picture showing how Canada was carrying out her contract to supply eggs to Britain was presented by E. W. Purcell secretary-manager of the farm board It showed that in the first 26 weeks of the 1941-42 basic agreement period ending April 4 approximately 326,000,000 pounds of frozen and been purchased out of a contract total of 600 00 000 pounds

RUSH SHIP BUILDING

British Columbia Program Means 25 Per Cent Increase

Vancouver British Columbia shipyards are expected to turn out five large vessels in the same time it formerly took them to build four when they swing into the full time goal, it was learnt privately here by the shipyard unions

Austin Taylor vice-president of Wartime Merchant Shipping Limited said that the new agreement means that in future we will be turning out five ships in the time that we needed to build four vessels under the old setup

With the full backing of labor we expect about a 25 per cent increase in production Mr Taylor said "And I am sure we are going to get it

All most coast shipyards are expected to swing into full time production immediately

Under the plan which was drawn up by Labor Minister Mitchell and approved by all shipyard unions but one the shipyard employees will work six days and six off one in a cycle, no production schedule The men will work three shifts of varying periods during a 24-hour day and there will be no layoff over the week-ends as has been the case up to the present.

CUMMINGS FLASHES

It looked as if entered wagon days were back again and we were in quite a number of accidents and some of us had narrow escapes from the south Vermilion. The road to Vermilion was quite treacherous. Mr. Ed. Flak and family on Sunday, April 19th, but a great many settlers were coming in. I thought that it was about the last place the Creator had made and that it was still untinished. I had a job waiting for me when I got there. Lots of breakfast food and lunch and dinner were provided by the ladies. Really it was a pleasure to be there and see them. The girls at the sale table too, did very well in fact, they had to hold it, they will be real sales ladies when they grow up.

Mrs. Isert or Dewberry is visiting her mother Mrs. Hunt.

The W.M.S. study group met Thursday April 16 at the home of Mrs. H. White. Only seven members were in attendance. A very interesting book on China is being studied. We are really learning some things about China. The next meeting will be held at the Manse on the third Thursday in May.

We are hearing the school festival to be held in Kitscoty on May 8 being discussed these days.

Mrs. Baxter is visiting Mrs. Waite.

Noticed these days: Gordon McFadyen driving a spanking team of shetland ponies on a very fine buggy and cart.

Remarks recently overheard: There the hockey season is over, maybe we will be able to get Mr. Ed. Flak and Molly when we should. The idea, putting hockey in preference to Methodist.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Mooney were guests at a farewell party given in their honor by the members and friends of the United church, Islay, on Thursday April 16 in the Community hall. A large number of guests were present and enjoyed lovely supper into the games, contests and community singing. A lunch was served after which Mr Waterfield Jr., on behalf of the community, with a few well chosen words, presented Mr. Mooney with a fountain pen and Mrs. Mooney with a hand bag. Mr. and Mrs. Mooney replied very suitably after which an opportunity was given for anyone who wished to speak. Several old timers took advantage of the occasion and told some stories of the early days. Mr. Harry Gordon, Mr. James Allen, Mr. Jas. Casey, Mr. Charley Mooney and Mr. W. Hewbuck were among those taking part. Mr. Whitney, Mr. Jas. Casey, is an old timer, serving in a field north of North Battleford in 1905, and he could tell of sad and rousing times.

In reminiscing after the speeches, a bride of those early days Mrs. Bothwell recalled the great kindness received at the Mooney home, in the shack with a sod roof that so many speakers told of. A party was held there, when she arrived 24 years ago and she drove to it in a wagon drawn by an ox team. Dan Gilchrist was there with a bundle of music, consequently being the only organist of a pianist she was kept busy most of the evening. A real friendship bore, one which has lasted between the families through all these years.

Much of the success of the gathering was due to the untiring work of the ladies who prepared and so ample the lunches and promoted the games, all in their usual good taste. A happy gathering was then brought to a close with the singing of Auld Lang Syne with the honor guests in the centre of the ring. Mr. Mooney settled in the Islay district in 1906 where he has lived ever since. He has taken an interest in church and civic affairs all that time. His friends join in wishing for himself and Mrs. Mooney many years of happy retirement.

Charlie Mooney was home for the farewell party from Prince Albert Incidentally, Charlie was the first child born in the district in the fall of 1906.

ISLAY

Ladies, and gentlemen too, of Islay and district, the children of the Jr. R. I. Cross who held a tea and sale of home cooking wish to thank you for your generous patronage. The nice sum of $28 was realized. A very lovely chenille bedspread donated to them by Mr. Waterfield to be raffled by them and the draw will be made on Friday night at the Sr. Red Cross dance party. A number of the ladies of the tea committee on the splendid way the little girls attended to the tea tables. All were on very good behaviour. Really it was a pleasure to be there and see them. The girls at the sale table too, did very well in fact, they had to hold it, they will be real sales ladies when they grow up.

Mrs. Isert or Dewberry is visiting her mother Mrs. Hunt.

The W.M.S. study group met Thursday April 16 at the home of Mrs. H. White. Only seven members were in attendance. A very interesting book on China is being studied. We are really learning some things about China. The next meeting will be held at the Manse on the third Thursday in May.

We are hearing the school festival to be held in Kitscoty on May 8 being discussed these days.

Mrs. Baxter is visiting Mrs. Waite.

Noticed these days: Gordon McFadyen driving a spanking team of shetland ponies on a very fine buggy and cart.

Remarks recently overheard: There the hockey season is over, maybe we will be able to get Mr. Ed. Flak and Molly when we should. The idea, putting hockey in preference to Methodist.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Mooney were guests at a farewell party given in their honor by the members and friends of the United church, Islay, on Thursday April 16 in the Community hall. A large number of guests were present and enjoyed lovely supper into the games, contests and community singing. A lunch was served after which Mr Waterfield Jr., on behalf of the community, with a few well chosen words, presented Mr. Mooney with a fountain pen and Mrs. Mooney with a hand bag. Mr. and Mrs. Mooney replied very suitably after which an opportunity was given for anyone who wished to speak. Several old timers took advantage of the occasion and told some stories of the early days. Mr. Harry Gordon, Mr. James Allen, Mr. Jas. Casey, Mr. Charley Mooney and Mr. W. Hewbuck were among those taking part. Mr. Whitney, Mr. Jas. Casey, is an old timer, serving in a field north of North Battleford in 1905, and he could tell of sad and rousing times.

In reminiscing after the speeches, a bride of those early days Mrs. Bothwell recalled the great kindness received at the Mooney home, in the shack with a sod roof that so many speakers told of. A party was held there, when she arrived 24 years ago

MR. & MRS. GUS THORDSON CELEBRATE SILVER WEDDING

A very enjoyable afternoon was spent at the Allandale home of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Thordson on April 8, celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary.

Lieut. (Mr. Lundblad) their eldest daughter who has been teaching in the Peace River, and small daughter Elaine were able to be present. Also Theodore who has been attending the Technical school in Calgary, making the Thordson family complete.

Relatives present were: Mr. and Mrs. I. Nelson and family; Mr. and Mrs. I. Nelson, Yvonne and family; Mr. and Mrs. J. Nelson and family; Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Magstead and family, Mr. and Mrs. Orley Omness and family. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. M. Lee and family, Mr. W. Brown and Mr. Albert Armstrong.

Mr. and Mrs. Thordson were congratulated by all on their 25 years of married life and wished many more years of happiness. Mr. and Mrs. O. Omness all sang "For they are Jolly Good Fellows."

The table was beautifully set with the new dishes and silverware and a five-tier wedding cake. At the bride's request, Mr. and Mrs. Omness and family were seated with the Thordson family at the first table. After Mrs. Omness gave the blessing a delicious B.C. salmon was enjoyed for dinner.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in taking snapshots and in conversing with one another.

VERMILION TO CO-OPERATE IN DOMINION-WIDE RUBBER SALVAGE

Shortage of Rubber Is Grave Problem

"The rubber shortage is so serious that our ability to fight an all-out war is imperilled—the greatest problem confronting the United Nations." This statement was made by A. H. Williamson, controller of supplies of Canada.

As a result of this shortage a Dominion-wide rubber salvage campaign is being launched all across Canada on May 1 and by this means it is hoped to have every bit of waste rubber turned in by May 30th.

Every bit of scrap rubber around your farm, your home, your garage, your place of business, should be delivered to the Vermilion Salvage depot at the C.N.R. freight sheds. If you are in the country and don't come to town until Saturday night, leave your rubber salvage at one of the service stations or garages, they are prepared in this rubber salvage and will in turn deliver it to the Vermilion Salvage depot.

The need for haste in this rubber collection is vital and this is one way everyone can help—make it a point to gather your rubber salvage together, rubber soles and heels, bike tires, anything that contains rubber—and rush it to the salvage depot. Make your rubber donation today.

BOWLADROME MAKES GENEROUS DONATION TO LOCAL RED CROSS

Proceeds of Next Wednesday's Play will be Given

George Grashy, manager of Vermilion's new Bowladrome announces that this week that he will donate the entire proceeds of next Wednesday's business to the local branch of the Red Cross. Another feature of Wednesday's play will be present and during the course of the afternoon ten will be served.

Per your next printing order phone 44.

PLAN CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS FOR RED CROSS

W. P. Pilkie In Charge

W. P. Pilkie has been asked to take charge of a campaign to raise funds for the Red Cross in the Vermilion district. He has consented to do the providing every person in the area turns in and helps him, which after all, is only fair.

A general organization meeting to plan the canvass for funds will very shortly be called and a large attendance is urgently requested.

The Red Cross needs our support as never before, in order that its great humanitarian work may extend with the growing needs of war. Canada has to raise nine million dollars in order to help the Red Cross meets its colossal task. Prisoners of war, bomb victims, men in hospital, members of Canada's armed forces overseas and at home—all testify to the imminence and needed service performed by the Red Cross.

Do all you can to put over the local campaign for funds.

APPLICATIONS MUST BE MADE BY MAY 30th

Under Wheat Acreage Reduction Act

Applications under the wheat acreage reduction act for 1942 must be made by May 30th. Farmers who have no change in their land since last year do not need to make an application in 1942. Vermilion Valley council have now received full instructions regarding the working of the act and are co-operating fully with the Dominion Department of Agriculture in getting aside the work. Saturday, for carrying out this business. No time will be given on any other day.

The act as set forth for 1942 is practically the same as that used in 1941.

ANNUAL MEETING TENNIS CLUB, TUESDAY, MAY 5th

In the Town Hall

The annual meeting of the Vermilion Tennis club will be held in the town hall at 8 o'clock on Tuesday evening next, May 5th. The president of the club, Mr. Ernest Hall, Mrs. Ward and Ashley Cooper is the secretary. Officers for the ensuing year will be elected and plans discussed.

The court will be open and in playing condition by the next week-end, both on Saturday afternoon May 2nd.

Purchases Residence

Mr. and Mrs. Rod Meltzer have recently purchased the S. Hyzyk house on Vermilion street. They have occupied the house since coming to Vermilion about two years ago. A large basement size 26 feet by 26 feet is now being excavated under the residence.

Rug Raffle Raises $111.40

The lucky ticket on the rug donated by Mrs. Loyal Amos and raffled under the auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion was drawn at the Columbia theatre on F iday, Ap il 17th, the winner being Miss P Kuhl 1726 of Islay hospital.

The net proceeds on this enterprise, $111.40, will go to the Auxiliary funds. The committee would like to take this opportunity of thanking all who so kindly helped to make it such a grand success.

CANADIAN NATIONAL OFFICIALS IN VERMILION

Three officials of this division of the Canadian National spent last Monday in town on company business. They were R. M. Brown, assistant superintendent, E. E. Johnson, division freight agent and W. C. Cranston, superintendent C.N.R. express. All the men are from Edmonton.

During their stay here they made a tour of the oil field and narrowly missed the blowing in of Flobell No. 1 which occurred barely an hour after the visitors had been at the well.

The Happy Hour group of St. Saviour's church will hold a sale of home cooking on Saturday afternoon May 16th from 2 to 6 p.m. in the Northern Hardware store. Your patronage is invited. 2-1

Big Flow At Flobell

Oil Rises 800 Feet in the Well

Oil rose 800 feet in the new Flobell well when the cement was drilled out early this week and all indications point to a better than average producer for the field. Bailing and cleaning will be carried on and pumping equipment installed within a few days.

This well was completed early in the year, being drilled for Vermilion Consolidated Oils by the S.W.S. Drilling Company. It is 1819 feet deep. Production operations are being supervised by T. J. Hanlon, manager of field operations for Vermilion Consolidated.

New 48 Star Drilling Machine

To put the Flobell on production the Vermilion Consolidated are using their new 48 Star Drilling machine which they have moved into the field. This gives the company two machines of this kind.

Vermilion Con. No. 2 Flowing Over 80 Barrels Per Day

Vermilion Con. No. 2, which gained fame under its former name of Hansen No. 3, is now flowing steadily at an average of 80 barrels per day, but at times produces as high as 150. This adds a new and valuable producer to the field.

Vermilion Con. No. 2 (Hansen 3) was drilled in and cut and although the work is not yet completed, the well is flowing and gives promise of another big boost in the daily production of the Field.

CRESTED WHEAT GRASS DISTRIBUTION MAY 2nd

The Crested Wheat Grass seed ordered by the M. D. of Vermilion Valley has arrived and all seed will be distributed Saturday afternoon, May 2nd. All farmers participating in the scheme have been notified by letter.

DOUG BOWMAN NOW SERGEANT PILOT

Is Awarded Wings

Douglas A. Bowmanone, son of Mr. Bowmanone, has been awarded his wings and is now a Sergeant Pilot in the R.C.A.F. Doug is the second man in the Bowmanone family to achieve his wings, following after the example of brother Geoff who is now in the navy.

Doug is a graduate in Accounts of the University of Alberta and before joining the R.C.A.F. in the Saskatoon department where he was granted commission. Later he gave up his commission and started in as a flying cadet in which he won his wings and is now has gained his wings.

The 19th Alberta Dragoons are in camp in the town and are now in their final parade on Monday evening this week after which they officially disbanded.

The parade consisted of route marches and all equipment etc., which a social evening was spent in the mess and was attended by the officers and the evening was finally wound up by several games of bowling.

Derrick Erected for New Well

Vermilion Consolidated have the derrick erected for another new well which will be known as O'Sullivan No 1. It is located on the north-east corner of Lsd. 3 of Sec. 6-51-5. This brings it north of the railway and will test out a new section of the field.

Discovery Well Serviced

It is interesting to note that after two years of continuous pumping the Old Discovery well, now Vermilion Con. No. 2, has been serviced for the first time. The job consisted of pulling and servicing the pump

Primrose Pump

Primrose Pete No. 1 has had the packer pulled out and standard pumping equipment run. Production has now been resumed very satisfactorily.

Drilling Notes

Cutting at Midfield Pete is being carried out at 1600 feet by Driller Wil Hansen. Location and it is to the south and west of the present producers this well is being watched with great interest. A good producer here will encourage the proven area of the field.

The Jasper Drillers, down about 1700 feet on a new well on the famous Hansen farm, are hold up at present repairing drilling equipment.

B.W.K. Drillers have practically completed Acme No. 2 and are awaiting casing to finish of the job.

Local Leaguers to Schedule

The Vermilion Consolidated Conditioning plant is loading fuel oil as per schedule. The daily production is 40 odd. Numerous visitors who display great interest in the processing of the oil.

Producing Wells

A log of the producers show the following to be either producing steadily, or closed in as on production: Vermilion Con. No. 1, 4, 9; Flobell No. 1, Acme 2 and 1, Richardson 1, Primrose Pete 2, Consolidated Vermilion No. 2.

CURTAILING DELIVERIES

In Toronto last week, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board took away for an indefinite period, license plates from the trucks of a large retail grocery firm that ignored the Order of the Board curtailing truck deliveries to one a day.

By an additional Order, the Board now prohibits the delivery of goods where the cost is under one dollar. Exceptions are made only for fresh meat and fish, milk, newspapers, bread and milk routes; and cases where customers are confined to their home by sickness or infirmity. The restrictions, which are welcomed by most merchants and are being accepted in good spirit by customers, are made necessary by the increased need for more gasoline and rubber for carrying on mechanized warfare against the totalitarian enemy powers.

CONSERVE GASOLINE

If you're one of the many who for some good reason, cannot join the Forces, but wish to do something to aid the War effort, here's how to do it.

Mr. W. S. Campbell, the Regional Representative in Alberta for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, says, "Don't make unnecessary purchases of goods. Shipping is scarce and space all needed. Don't use a drop o' gasoline unnecessarily. Don't buy things horribly dear to keep the nation supplied with gasoline. The Army, the Navy and Air Force need all they can get. Above all, don't hoard! It's not only illegal, it's mean and unpatriotic.

NEW ALBERTA ROAD PROJECTS ANNOUNCED

Survey of road projects for this season is being made by officials of the department of public works, according to information received by the Alberta Motor Association.

Announcement has been made that two works will be undertaken in southern Alberta, one being the rebuilding of the highway from Lethbridge to Taber, over a new route, and the other construction of a new highway section of the Trans-Canada highway, between Dunmore and Bowmanton. Re-gravelling also is to be carried out on the highway between Medicine Hat and Brooks.

On the Jasper highway east of Edmonton, a new 20-mile stretch will be constructed, between Lloydminster and Vermilion, linking up work that was done last year on the east and west sides.

A.M.A. officials have been advised that the province plans to do a lot of work this year on the Peace River highway, from providing a link for Alberta with the U.S. highway in Alaska from Fort St. John.

Officials of the A.M.A. are keeping a watchful eye on the government's road program, this organization having maintained that the province should make much larger grants in funds in justice to the motoring public and in view o the millions of dollars in revenues which motorists provide each year.

HORNING CALVES

Treatment of newly born calves to prevent the growth of horns is a simple, inexpensive operation. It is much easier to prevent the growth of the horns than to remove them at a later date, and the young calf suffers no ill effects, whereas older stock may receive a set back when the horns are removed.

The treatment consists of applying caustic soda, or caustic potash to the horn buttons before the calf is five days old. Either one of these substances properly applied prevents the growth of horns.

Caustic soda or caustic potash may be obtained at drug stores in stick form or as a horn paste. Both the stick and the paste should be handled with the greatest care.

Caustic sticks should be wrapped in paper with one end free. The skin over the horn buttons should be moistened with warm water and then thoroughly dried. Cut the hair from the horn buttons and moisten

CAMPBELL LAKE

Mary McCambridge returned from Edmonton on Saturday having been with her sister in the city since Easter.

Friends of Pat Dynes will be sorry to hear that he has been in the hospital suffering from blood poisoning in his arm and hand.

Burt Mead was home over the week end having completed his first year at the University. He left on Monday to go to camp at Harrow near Calgary.

Congratulations to Pte. and Mrs. Elmer Robertson on the birth of a baby daughter.

Mrs. Pat McCambridge Jr. and children left two weeks ago to join Pat in Calgary.

Miss Bristow spent the week end at her home in Islay.

The residents turned out en masse to cast their votes on Monday in spite of the bad roads and dull weather.

Farm operations are underway at last though no seeding has been done yet in this district, but we have seen some done in districts to the south of us.

GENEROUS DONATION TO RED SHIELD FROM ALLANDALE

The Vermilion branch of the Red Shield wish to thank the Allandale Auxiliary for their generous donation of $15.75; also for 3 pieces of print and five dress and pants sets to be finished. On behalf of the Allandale girls we wish to thank especially Mrs. Pratt who donated wool for quilt blocks. We are also grateful to the people of the district for their support at the whist drives and to Frank Debord who acted as M.C. for same. The Allandale Auxiliary has disbanded for the summer. We have enjoyed their splendid co-operation during the past winter and hope to welcome them again when the busy season is over.

The local branch shipped a large quantity of woolens to be made into blankets on Wednesday.

WILDMERE WINKS

Ice went out of the lake on Friday, April 24th. Only two weeks has it come out earlier in the twenty years the writer has been living on this farm. That was two years ago when it went on the 15th. Usually it is around the first week of May.

Many farmers are working on the land now, some are seeding wheat, others killing the weeds.

Contrats to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sweeney of Thorncliffe on the birth of a baby girl on April 21st.

Mr. D. Van Patten of near Waiden, Sask., spent last week visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson.

Mr. Everett Isley, Triangle, spent the week end from Camrose at his home here. He returned Sunday.

In receipt news from the Gibbons family at Cherhill, they are gradually getting settled in their new home. They like the country very well.

How many listened to LAC Norman Wilson speak over the radio from the Beaver Club in England? We can't think of the vast expanse of water and land over which his voice came it is really wonderful. And it's a great treat for those back home to hear their boy's voice again.

Billie Smith is the owner of a new Chevrolet sedan. He brought it home last Tuesday.

Mrs. Russell Crothers was a week end visitor at the Jack Lowe home here. Russell is now stationed somewhere in Saskatchewan at a training centre. His wife is visiting her mother, Mrs. Nash, in town.

Keep this in mind folks—there is to be church in our school on Sunday next, Mr. Norman Pike is the student this summer. Come out and encourage him in his chosen work.

Notice! Word arrived from Cliff Martin working again at Geo. Wilson's; Lindy Paddon working for J. Williamson; J. Kennedy on new mound looking for his mouse; Burns' Creamery truck accompanied by the manager out collecting patronage for the ceremony; Mrs. A. Smith, BSS, Mrs.

the end of the caustic stick and rub it gently on the horn buttons. Repeat the operation two or three times allowing the caustic to dry before the second application. When using the paste follow directions on the container.

The greatest care should be taken to prevent the caustic coming in contact with the surrounding skin or getting into the eyes. Severe burns may be caused to the tender skin of the young calf. Vaseline or lard rubbed into the hair surrounding the horn button will prevent the burning. When using the caustic stick do not have it too moist, and if rain is falling, keep the calves inside as the caustic can not wash off and run down on the face of the calf or into its eyes.

STUBBLE BURNING CAUSES DESTRUCTION OF WATERFOWL NESTS

Researches by Ducks Unlimited (Canada) show that destruction of waterfowl nests by stubble burning in spring averages one nest to three acres in grain duck breeding areas, being nothing of the loss of nests of meadowlarks, Prairie Chicken, Hungarian Partridge and other ground nesting birds.

This great destruction can be avoided if stubble burning is done before April 15th, as few birds have started to nest by that date.

Early burning will prevent birds from nesting in stubble fields and this save the nests from destruction by farm operations.

A country wide effort through Ducks Unlimited's more than 2,000 Ken-Men, the Western weekly newspapers and Western radio stations is underway during the next ten days to eliminate this great loss to wildlife.

All friends of prildlife are asked to co-operate.

More birds mean fewer insects and LESS crop loss—thus contributing also to the National War Effort.

Men and wildlife CAN thrive together.

Heavy Expense To Keep Price Ceiling In Place

Ottawa.—Government subsidies to keep the price ceiling in place and protect the consumer from higher prices for essential commodities have amounted to $2,128,901 in five months, Finance Minister Ilsley told the House of Commons.

There is no reason to believe they will ever reach the "fantastic" totals of several hundred million dollars once suggested in some quarters," the minister said

In the war appropriation resolution he had included an item of $50,000,000 to cover subsidies but attempts to estimate the ultimate annual total "are likely to be unprofitable" because the deciding circumstances could not be foreseen.

Mr. Ilsley's statement was made in reply to repeated questions regarding subsidy payments. He gave his decision that, for the present, at least, he will not release the names of the organizations receiving the subsidies.

The statement was made during consideration in committee of Mr. Ilsleys war appropriation bill for $1,000,000,000.

Its conclusion, the committee resumed discussion on the army division of the defence estimates for the current year.

Leaders of the opposition parties agreed discussion of the price-ceiling subsidies would give all private members had an opportunity to study the minister's statement, but there was brief comment by Joseph Harris (Con., Toronto-Danforth). He agreed that the price ceiling was necessary but said it was dangerous business to "lean on the government."

Mr Harris said he saw the possibility of ceiling prices paralyzing and harassing Canada's economy through certain people taking production off the market because they stood to "lose a few shekels." He mentioned the recent shortage of beef.

John Diefenbaker, New Democracy leader, said his group supported the minister in his efforts to maintain prices at a proper level, and "believe he has done a fine job."

But his "one gentle criticism" was that too little attention was paid the production element, which in some cases was not receiving enough to pay costs let alone a living for the producer. The beef cattle and the dilly calf beef situation and might bring the same troubles in regard to other commodities, he said.

Mr. Ilsley said subsidies paid by the commodity prices stabilization corporation, operated in connection with the wartime prices and trade board already have assisted in sheltering the Canadian consumer from the effect of spreading war and greater cost in obtaining imported essentials.

The subsidies are paid by the corporation after approval by the board which is in charge of the price-ceiling regulations

The minister tabled a detailed list showing the payments to producers, outlay to April 21 was $1,387,630 for payments to encourage milk production.

RANGER UNITS

New Force Composed Of Military Ranchers And Lumber Workers

Cranbrook, B.C. — Pacific coast ranger units composed of miners, ranchers, lumber workers and backwoodsmen have been set up at Tahk, 40 miles south of here, and Kingcagle, 10 miles farther south on the International border

Included among the men who turned out for the first meeting at Tahk were former officers of the Royal Flying Corps, the Swedish navy, fourteen members of the Canadian army and navy, a First World War veteran of the French army and a former private of the Royal Scots.

W. R. Baskerville was chosen at the meeting to be recommended to the Pacific command as officer in charge of the unit.

Patents for the invention are pending at Ottawa and Washington, Pride said adding that he hoped production of the extinguisher would begin immediately.

REIGN OF TERROR

Conditions On Island Of Madagascar Under Vichy Rule

London.—Madagascar, the strategic French island lying athwart the Allies' vital Cape route to the Indian ocean ports and the Middle East, was reported to be undergoing a reign of terror in the enforcement of new Vichy orders to imprison Free French sympathizers.

A despatch to the Daily Express from Tananarive reported orders from Pierre Laval, Vichy's new "chief of government," led to terroristats practices in the island.

The Express's correspondent said since the Japanese had broken into the Indian ocean hundreds of Free Frenchmen had been arrested by Vichy police under Gestapo orders and they were trying to round up the rest. Officials expressing antipathy to Japan or Germany are immediately dismissed, the correspondent said, declaring the governor-general's secretary was among those thrown in jail.

Declaring the great island is a prize for the first comer to take, the correspondent said: "Madagascar is not being defended against Japanese infiltration and it can not be defended against Japanese invasion."

A Reuters despatch from Port Louis on British Mauritius, east of Madagascar in the Indian ocean, reported anti-British broadcasts were coming from the French island daily. Governor-General Armand Annet, 53-year-old Parisian who formerly ruled Dahomey on the west side of Africa, was reported to be arresting Free Frenchmen

A New Plan For Problem Of India Is Still Possible

London.—Sir Stafford Cripps expressed belief that there still is some possibility a new plan for settling India's problems could be decided upon before the end of the war but said any such proposal "would have to come from India."

Summing up the results of his recent conversations at New Delhi and the present outlook, Sir Stafford told a press conference "it is an encouraging picture not as encouraging as it might have been, but certainly more encouraging than it would have been if nothing whatever had been done."

He disclosed that before leaving New Delhi he discussed with Indian leaders the possibility that they devise a new plan for participation in the present government as an alternative to the post-war dominion proposals which they rejected

He stressed again, however, that changes in the Indian constitution requiring "months or years" would be necessary to make possible the form of national government the All-India Congress party leaders sought.

He said Louis Johnson was "of the greatest assistance" in the negotiations but emphasized that the United States envoy acted purely as an unofficial intermediary for Sir Stafford in attempting a solution of the Indian problem

Mr. Johnson "never in any sense acted in an official capacity at all," Sir Stafford said. "It was purely personal and of great value."

He added that there was no suggestion of an alternative to the difference between Britain and India by Chiang Kai-shek

The Chinese leader, Sir Stafford said, went to India "at the invitation of the British government, and did not interfere in any way."

The foreign minister hailed Pierre Laval, the new chief of government in Vichy, as a "good Frenchman."

Nazis Said To Be Sending Reinforcements Into France

London.—A division of German parachute troops has been sent to occupied France to reinforce the garrison, the Daily Express military correspondent Morely Richards said in adding there were uncon-firmed reports that Field Marshal Gerd von Runstedt's forces in France and the Low Countries would be reinforced with from 10 to 15 divisions.

Von Runstedt's strength thus would be raised to about 1,000,000 men, Richards said

Pointing out that these might be "mere inspired rumors," Richards said nevertheless was definite that units of airborne troops have turned up—occupied France and that their main object of troop movements was toward access Germany."

DENIED TO AXIS

Latin America Now Supplying Raw Materials To United Nations

Rio De Janeiro Latin America a rich storehouse of raw materials, today is pouring a stream of strategic minerals and agricultural products into the arsenals of the United Nations

The Axis, which once drew heavily upon these resources, now is cut off, while the United States and its allies, by control of the sea and wartime trade agreements, enjoy a monopoly of all the rubber, tin, manganese, mica chrome, tungsten, copper, diamonds and lead that these countries can produce.

Item for item, many of these products match the supplies lost in Malaya, the Netherlands East Indies, the Philippines and other areas held by the Axis. In a long war they may well supply the extra sinews needed to win.

European Food Situation Said To Be Serious

Washington The United States agriculture department in a summary of recent cables on Europe's food developments told of increasingly difficulties confronting Germans and Nazi occupied countries in harvesting and supplying their people with food and forage crops.

Unoccupied France is said to be facing six breadless weeks before the fresh wheat harvest because of diversion of grain to the black market and illegal use of wheat for feeding livestock said guilty counterfeit ration cards and failure of farmers to deliver the quantities expected.

The department said reports coming out of Germany indicate that current measures are being taken against violators of food-rationing regulations.

Recent restrictions upon the milling of wheat and rye indicate the department said that German grain stocks have declined to a level where economies must be effected in order to maintain a good ration and if announced that breadwheat men engaged in agriculture as of March 23 last would not be called up I "could be shown they are essential agricultural workers

Granting Leave For Farm Work To Be Restricted

Ottawa.—No wholesale leaves can be granted soldiers for seeding or other farm operations, Defence Minister Ralston told the House of Commons

He was replying to questions from G H Castleden (C.C.F., Yorkton) during consideration of the war appropriation bill in committee

Col Ralston said he was responsible for the training and operation of the army and time was going fast Some people said the army was not moving fast enough

Individual cases of hardship may be taken up with regional war services boards and the district officers commanding are required to take the recommendations of these boards in granting leave to farmers. He believed certain cases are being attended to

Col Ralston said I feel my responsibilities as minister of national defence will not permit me to give any wholesale release of men who have been trained after being trained for the services, only men fit to be placed in the fighting operations

To release men from training centres at various stages in their training would disorganized training and mean that full time could not be made of trained units.

There are a few units such as depots from which men cannot be granted leave. These have been listed and sent to district commanding officers and leaves from them are being granted

The minister said between 41,000 and 42,000 men had enlisted in the army, navy and air force in January, February and March of this year and about 7,000 so far this month

Replying to Hon. Chas. Hazlitt (Peterborough) said Prime Minister Mackenz e King indicated last March that soldiers would be permitted to return to the land.

Col Ralston said Mr King had said nothing about giving furl leave to return against a poor crop It was announced that before farmers were engaged in agriculture as of March 23 last would not be called up I "could be shown they are essential agricultural workers

British Ambassador And Roosevelt Discuss War In Pacific

Representatives of the two largest powers of the [illegible] United Nations Viscount Halifax and President Roosevelt, chat briefly in the White House before the [illegible] [illegible] Canada has been named as a member of the war council and was represented by Hon. Mackenzie King at the initial sessions

"THE HOARDER"

PUBLIC ENEMY NO. 1

People who buy more of anything than they currently need, and merchants who encourage them to do so, are sabotaging the war effort and are therefore public enemies.

Loyal citizens do not hoard. They buy only for their immediate needs. They cheerfully adjust their standard of living, realizing that their country's needs must come first. They do not try to gain unfair advantages over their neighbours.

Are you a hoarder or a loyal citizen? Are you hampering Canada's war effort by unnecessary buying? Or are you co-operating to the best of your ability to save Canada from such horrors as Hong Kong?

If Canadians do their duty, there will be no more hoarding. Everyone will get a fair share of the goods available. More food can be sent to Great Britain. More raw materials — more manpower — will be available for making guns, tanks, planes and other armaments to back up our armed forces.

In cases where it is advisable for you to buy in advance of your requirements—such as your next season's coal supply you will be encouraged to do so by direct statement from responsible officials.

AID FOR FLYERS

The town of Hanna, Alberta, has a kindly thought for training pilots who may have lost their bearing in adverse weather.

The town council has caused the name Hanna to be painted on the roof of their curling rink in letters four and one half feet in height.

Advice as to the size of their sign was sought by the councillors from headquarters in No. 4 Training Command R.C.A.F. Calgary and from many means of recognition should be available to pilots under training whilst flying under normal good weather conditions when the altitude of the aircraft was generally in excess of 1,000 feet. Therefore the size of the sign as chosen by Hanna would meet the requirements. It was suggested the best location was the roof of any conspicuous building.

Air Force officers expressed the hope that other towns would follow the precedent established by Hanna.

Space Donated by The BREWING INDUSTRY OF ALBERTA

For the benefit of listeners at large, here is a factual summary of the various radio items used to explain the origination or particular broadcasts.

Recorded Program — Made up of records not available to the public, generally 16 inch discs, capable of containing a 15-minute presentation on each side, played at 33 and one third revolutions per minute.

Rebroadcast — A transcription of a previously heard program presented again for listeners convenience.

Delayed Broadcast — A transcription of a program already heard once for listeners in another time zone.

Charming Canadian - born Jean Hickman, singing star of the favorite "Album of Familiar Music" program, (CJCA Sundays at 7.30 p.m.) spent her broadcast days in many remote spots of the world. Daughter of a roving mining engineer, she lived in an unpronounceably-spelled town in India at the age of six.

In response to numerous requests, CJCA's popular "Sunday Evening at Judd Fairley's" will in future be heard at 7 p.m., a more convenient hour for those CJCA fans who practise the early-to-bed habit on the eve before washday.

Already this pleasing half-hour of friendly philosophy and well known songs has gathered an extensive following. Written, produced and recorded right here in northern Alberta it is as much a credit to local talent as it is highly enjoyable. The band some general concerts at the Judd Fairley broadcast will still be available. Listen for good entertainment as well as details about how to get the phone, this Sunday at 7:00 p.m.

Sparkling entertainment that has a universal appeal marks the "Hendrix-Dipden" program each Tuesday and Thursday evening at 9.30 from CJCA Each — sensational specialties gifted Dorothy White, Freddie Ed and the Dipden quartet in a fast moving quarter hour of music and fun

A sample of this talented program of contrasts leads off with the rollicking "It's a Long Long Time to Love" followed by the sombre "Lassie, on the Old Top Rail" and chaser reels, Bert's Serenade". Peppy "Kitty O' Cumberland" and "The Clay Widow" season the presentation with a rustic touch.

Canadian talent, Canadian authors, Canadian producers and Canadian stations come into their own each Friday evening at 7:30. At that time, CJCA joins the national network today the "Canadian Theatre of the Air", entertaining dramatic series. Sometimes light and amusing, other times thrilling and emotional, this noteworthy presentation is a fine example of the rising calibre of Canadian productions.

A Government Bill introduced in Commons is designed to settle 25,000 war veterans on land at an estimated cost of $80,000,000. Of this amount about $21,000,000 will be outright grants to ensure each settler an equity in his holdings.

40 Miles Per Hour Limit Ordered May 1

OTTAWA.—Starting Friday, May 1 than two weeks from this Saturday—the maximum speed limit anywhere in Canada will be 40 miles an hour under a new dominion order-in-council which provides stiff penalties for its fractions

The order, passed Friday, and to be signed Saturday by Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff, deputy to the governor-general, applies in all provinces which have not their own statutes limiting motoring speed to the 40-mile peak.

Curtailment Move

It was passed as a step in the government's campaign to curtail non-essential use of gasoline and rubber during the war.

The order will not affect the speed limit in cities and towns, nor will it affect any regulations which provide speeds of less than 40 miles an hour throughout the provinces or in designated areas.

Truck speed limits of under 40 miles an hour also will not be affected.

Federal, provincial and municipal officials and employees are exempted from the regulations, but the order provides that members of the armed forces of any of the United Nations, fire brigades, ambulances, race drivers, and air raid protection units will not be convicted of an offence if they establish that their duties required a speed in excess of 40 miles an hour.

Penalties Provided

The order provides that any person who violates any provision of the regulations shall be liable for the first offence to a fine of not more than $10, and not more than $50, or to imprisonment for not more than 10 days, or to both such fine and such imprisonment and for a second offence to a fine of not less than $25 and not more than $100, or to imprisonment for not more than 15 days or to both such fine and such imprisonment, and for any subsequent offence to a fine of not less than $50 and not more than $200, or to imprisonment for not more than 30 days, or to both such fine and such imprisonment.

In addition to these penalties, any person convicted of an offence under the regulations may be prohibited from driving a motor vehicle "any where in Canada" for a period not exceeding six months.

The recommendation of Munitions Minister Howe to the governor-in-council said "much gasoline and rubber will be conserved if motor vehicles are driven at a rate of speed not exceeding 40 miles an hour."

ISLAND BILL

Finis has been written to the career of the famous Vermilion cat — we have the word of Pal McCambridge for it as he personally witnessed its disappearance. It seems it paid a call at the hall when the last dance was in progress. Pat made a grab for it but it bolted around the outside of the building with Pat in hot pursuit. It was a sizable boy (the cat was mean, not Pat) and soon reached the roof. The last seen of the cat was when it flew off the roof and disappeared into thin air. This convinces Pat of what he has always maintained, that it was not a cat at all but a Good Fairy. So ends the career of the cat, which, while on earth, caused some fun and some talk, too. Goodbye Cat —Goodbye Roy—Goodbye Pat.

The boys' hockey club held their final meeting at the hall Saturday when prizes were distributed to the best players during the last season. The winners were: Bob Butler, P. McDaniel, Murtagh McKinnon, Bill Deegan, Geo. Martin, Gerald Jenkins, M. Devine and Dan Acheson. P. McCambridge acted as chairman and handed over the trophies. On the other hand, the young lads proceeded home all smiles and as frisky as young lambs.

Bert Harmon, Campbell Lake, paid this writer a visit Thursday — Harmon is one of the things Bert told us: The war, he said, would be over Friday, December 25th. Merry Xmas, Bert!

This week of the weeks voted Yes by an overwhelming majority Monday. Poplar Heights polling booth which in addition to Poplar Heights S.D. covers a portion of Island Hill S.D. and the Campbell Lake S.D. voted Yes year nearly unit, only five voted No, 97 per cent voted. Reg Sullitt was in charge at Poplar Heights assisted by P. McDaniel.

U. C. G. APPOINTMENT

J. E. BROWNLEE, K.C.

1st Vice-President and General Counsel

Appointment of J. E. Brownlee, K.C., LL.D., of Edmonton, Alberta, as First Vice-President and General Counsel of United Grain Growers Ltd., was announced here by the President of the Company, R.S. Law. The appointment was made at a meeting of the Board of Directors of United Grain Growers Limited, held at Vancouver, in connection with an inspection of the Company's terminal elevator at Vancouver. Mr. Brownlee succeeds on the Board of Directors of the company, and as First Vice-President Mr. D. G. McKenzie at Winnipeg. He has only resigned on his appointment as Chairman of the Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada. Mr. Brownlee's connection with the company is of long standing. He became legal advisor in Alberta to the Grain Growers Company in 1910. He assisted in bringing about the amalgamation in 1917 of the Grain Growers Grain Company and the Alberta Farmers' Co-operative Elevator Co. Ltd., to form United Grain Growers Limited. He acted as general Counsel for the amalgamated Company until 1921 when he entered the Alberta Government and when he left political life in 1935, he again became General Counsel for the Company. He acted, in addition, a solicitor for the United Farmers of Alberta, and for various other farm organizations in the province. Mr. Brownlee will make his headquarters at the Calgary office of United Grain Growers Limited.

COAL PRODUCTION INCREASED

MONCTON. — An increase in coal production at Canadian mines for the first part of 1942 is reported by the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways, the January production of 1,897,264 tons being well above the five year average for Jan. of 1,537,479 tons. The National Railways carry much of the coal mined in Canada.

To speed more for active service, a number of marching and arms orders have been dropped from the Army Training Manual.

General McNaughton at War Plant

DYNAMIC commander of the Canadian Army, Lieutenant-General A. G. L. McNaughton shows intense interest in the production of "tools of war" in the great Ford of Canada plant at Windsor. In a typical attitude with his general's cap tucked under his arm, the soldier-scientist quizzes F. Mittmann, machine shop superintendent, about the operation of one of the thousands of machines in the plant. Canada's military leader dispensed with ceremony, rumbled in and out among the machines, and fired dozens of penetrating questions at the men who keep the war industry humming. He won the workers regard by his democratic attitude and genuine interest and they was his genius for their speed and craftsmanship in the volume production of military vehicles for his army.

Operating revenues of Canadian railways for 1941 amounted to $625,- 232,774, the second largest revenue earned in any year and only 1.6 per cent below peak year of 1928.

Except by permit from Controller of Supplies, Department of Munitions and supply, no more domestic metal clad refrigerators of any kind will be made in Canada after April 30.

CLEAN OUT AND CLEAN UP ON HITLER

YOUR SCRAP RUBBER
is now a vital war material

Enemy action in the Far East has caused such an acute shortage of rubber that our whole war effort is in serious danger. Canada and her Allies must have rubber, quickly, for the armed forces, for factories, for ships. The Japanese control our source of crude rubber imports—the only other quickly available supply is old scrap rubber, which can be reclaimed. Every citizen in Canada must do his part in collecting all the scrap rubber in the country and turning it over to the Government for war purposes. Here is how to do it.

THIS IS AN URGENT APPEAL FOR YOUR HELP

Question: Is the rubber situation really serious?

Answer: The shortage of rubber is so grave that any citizen hoarding rubber or using it unnecessarily is committing an act of disloyalty. It is now illegal to destroy any rubber articles.

Question: What sort of rubber is reclaimed rubber?

Answer: Old rubber is processed so that the rubber content is reclaimed. This reclaimed rubber is used in the manufacture of essential articles for our war effort, thus replacing crude rubber.

Question: How much scrap rubber is needed?

Answer: Fifty Million Pounds. This is a large quantity, but it MUST be found. Every old piece of rubber in Canada, no matter how small, is needed, QUICKLY.

Question: Should I turn in any usable rubber articles as well as those not used?

Answer: Absolutely not! By no means discard anything that is still useful and that might have to be replaced. On the other hand, rubber tires used as boot bumpers, swings, etc., should be turned in for war uses.

Question: What kind of scrap rubber is needed?

Answer: Every all-rubber or part-rubber article must be salvaged. Here are a few of the articles you must turn in:

Old Tires of every kind	Rubbers
Old Inner Tubes	Overshoes
Rubber Boots, Rain Coats, Aprons, Pants, Gloves, Tubing, Matting, Toys
Sport Shoes (crepe soles are especially good)
Garden Hose Hot Water Bottles Shot Towels
Bathing Caps and many other articles

Question: What happens to the scrap rubber collected?

Answer: The scrap is sorted, baled and assembled into carload lots and is then purchased by the Government at fixed prices throughout Canada. The Government pays the necessary transportation charges on these carload lots, and is responsible for their delivery. You may be sure that every pound will be used directly or indirectly in the war effort.

Question: How do I go about saving Scrap Rubber?

Answer: Start hunting for it TODAY. Clean out your cellars, attics, garages and sheds right away. You will find many forgotten articles that you expect. Start them all on their way to the battlefront.

HOW DO I TURN IN MY SCRAP RUBBER?

1. Give it to the children for their school collection.
2. Give it to your local National Salvage Committee.
3. Leave it with any Service Station or Tire Dealer who displays the sign: "Voluntary Scrap Rubber Receiving Depot."
4. Sell it to a junk collector.

When you gather up your scrap rubber and dispose of it by one of these methods, it will be used by the Government for Canada's War Effort. Do it NOW!

AIR FORCE BROADCAST NEW PROGRAM FROM EDMONTON

The Royal Canadian Air Force in co-operation with Radio Station CFRN is bringing to residents of Northern Alberta something new and different in the way of spring programs.

This new series entitled "Sing Along with the Royal Canadian Air Force", commences at 7.30 p.m on April 27th and emanates from No. 1 Initial Training School of the R.C.A.F. in Edmonton.

The program is being broadcast with the kind permission of Air Commodore H. E. Edwards, M.C., Officer Commanding, No. 4 Training Command, and Wing Commander J. A. Hutchison, Commanding Officer No. 1 I.T.S. Arrangements are in the hands of Flight Lieutenant G. J. Bluechin, President of the Band Committee.

Featured on the program will be one of the finest swing bands in Western Canada—made up of civilian artists as Tubby Mumford, Johnny Van Dusen, Ted Taylor, Chris Dewhurst, Dave McConachie, Dave Insley and Bill Timerlake—and under the leadership of Sergeant Band Master Eddie Kirkwood. The swing band is composed of musicians taken from the Air Force.

CHATSWORTH CHATTER

We received more moisture over the week end with showers on Saturday and Sunday. The majority of the farmers have started on the land and some tractors are busy well into the night (or should we say morning?)

On Friday, April 24 a barn building bee was held at R. Goode's. Those helping were Messrs. R. Twaying, B. Cheshelstom, V. McKee, J.R., J.K. and E. Thompson, J. Panter, R. Letts, A. Tovell, R. Branham and M. Smith. There were 13 in all including Mr. Goode and Harry and a good day's work was accomplished. The work was continued on Saturday despite showery weather, by Jim Thompson, E. Thompson, B. Twyning and M. Smith.

That same night the Ottawa Athletic club held a benefit dance for Mr. and Mrs. Goode and Harry in the Ottawa school. A large crowd turned out and the sum of $31 approximately was realized. Mr. and Mrs. Goode and Harry wish to express their deepest appreciation to all those who subscribed so generously to the benefit fund and to those who gave of their time at the building bee. Also many thanks to J. Panter and R. Branham and to the Ottawa district club.

Mrs R. Branham is on the sick list and we hope she will soon be feeling better.

JASPER NATIONAL PARK WILD LIFE PLENTIFUL

JASPER.—Wild life is plentiful and healthy in Jasper National Park, the game conservation area in the Rocky Mountains on the main line of the Canadian National Railways. Government officials checked the animal population during the open season and reported a noticeable increase in all specimens, particularly the elk family. It was further reported that the Rocky Mountain sheep, Rocky Mountain goat and deer are numerous, that caribou herds are thriving in the northern part of the park and that beaver are increasing in all sections. Bird life and waterfowl are also said to be rich, one and many of the rarer kind have been observed within the park. Hunting is prohibited within the park area and wild life has found gratuitous sanctuary within its 4,200 sq. miles.

The Press And The War

It would be quite impossible for one to over-estimate the work which is being carried on by the newspapers of Canada in the furtherance of our war effort. The public naturally relies on our newspapers for information from day to day and week to week on the progress of the war. The fact that in this country we have a sane press, not generally given to coloring the news is a matter that must give us cause for congratulation. It means that we can unfailingly give full credence to the statements about the war which appear in our newspapers. It is a free press in nowise controlled or regimented. In the Axis-dominated countries there is no longer any such thing as a free press with the result that the newspaper as but the mouthpiece of the various dictators. One of the advantages of our democracy is that our newspapers are free to reflect the opinions of the people on any matter pertaining to the welfare of the country. During this critical period of our history newspapers have an added responsibility as there is need for a stabilizing influence in directing public opinion. That the press of this country has full knowledge of this trust and is ably fulfilling this duty, is self-evident.

* * * *

A Responsible Task

One of the tasks that has fallen to the press has been to stress the Allied war aim and it did such yeoman service that many have existed from time to time. The press has also held a powerful influence in maintaining civilian morale with regard to Africa. Through the medium of the press the public is kept well informed in respect to the details of the government's various war regulations. Newspapers gladly lend their columns for this purpose and handle the war time orders in a way made familiar with the different ways they are imposed. It particularly few people appear to realize the high respect in which they are held upon the newspapers during wartime. Few other lines of endeavor offer the same opportunity for maintaining the public morale during the stress of war. In addition the publisher must be ever on the guard to avoid giving out any information that might be of benefit to the enemy. He must weigh and sift all the material that enters into the composition of his paper. An item of news that would be of no interest to readers might also contain information that would prove valuable to the enemy.

* * * *

The Weekly Press

No small credit is due to the weekly newspaper for its valuable contribution to the war effort. In addition to working under the most difficult conditions it has carried on its duties part in building high the torch of freedom. In the Motherland as in the larger part of the population lives on the land it is to the small town and village weekly that we look for the maintenance of the morale. It is the weekly newspaper that is the principal medium for the distribution of information both local and provincial. The government in endeavoring to further the war effort has regarded this fact and has frequently expressed its appreciation for the invaluable assistance rendered in the matter of dissemination of information that is vital to the public interest. As a general rule the weekly newspaper has always been able to keep up with limited equipment and a comparatively small staff. Working under many handicaps it nevertheless continues to carry on bearing its full share of responsibility during the present crisis. Many have already enlisted in the armed forces although the government has designated the newspaper business as one of the essential services. It is on record that the entire staff of three newspapers in one weekly newspaper office has enlisted but the publisher has decided to continue the business and the paper will appear as usual.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army,

By Alan Maurice Irwin

Not very much has been said yet about the Pacific Rangers, whose existence on the British Columbia coast was mentioned recently after a ministerial inspection of the coast defence was carried out.

One reason is that not very much is yet known outside of B.C.

But this much is certain. The organization of guerrilla bands composed of hunters, trappers, loggers and other dead shots whose familiarity with the country coupled with their prowess at woodcraft and hunting makes them formidable adversaries in a forward move.

Many of these bands have been in existence for some time now. They were formed by men themselves as every man is armed with his own rifle a friend he has had for years and a weapon he knows he can rely on.

They are not military formations and consist mainly of old-timers, some of them old soldiers who have not a few tricks they learned in the last war. They know every nook and cranny of the ground they are prepared to defend.

In Montreal for the past two years, on a somewhat similar basis of the Individual Citizen's Army has been in existence. This is known as the Montreal Corps of Home Defence Committee. Its functions differ from those of the Rangers to the extent that most of them additionally have an accent the possibility of sabotage.

This outfit, in addition to supplying the outer ring of communications, also supplies cars and gasoline. Its training is based on modifications of Canadian army recommendations and training, training hand books of the German Panzer Divisions. Tom Winbrush got a useful little booklet on the methods of war and a liberal sprinkling of imagination.

The men mostly retund middle-aged citizens who have had most of their rotundity since they started training — uniform themselves in khaki overalls and tin hats, black berets and armlets. They have become expert in rapid mobilization street fighting, industrial plant defence and open order skirmishing around the outskirts of Montreal).

Air Raid Precautions work, under various names in different parts of the Dominion, is another branch of the Individual Citizen's Army that provides scope for willing war-workers. And many a private soldier serves in that army when home belonging to any unit of any kind.

The man or woman who is unable to join the Individual Citizen's Army to serve regularly in any of the many war organizations still has an opportunity to be of value. Between the ages of 21 and 60 they are eligible to offer their blood to Blood Donor Clinics of the Canadian Red Cross Society. These clinics operate in a number of cities right across the country. They are staffed by volunteers.

As a matter of fact the man or woman who cleans out the attic, removes inflammables from the cellar, and generally takes every precaution against fire, is a good private soldier in the Individual Citizen's Army!

If and when the day comes that incendiary bombs shower down on Canadian municipalities the home holder who can handle his own fires is doing a good job by leaving the fire-fighters clear to handle worse blazes elsewhere.

Not much like soldiers? Well, I'm not so sure. If you were to work out the actual percentage of his time a soldier spends in fighting you would find that other, ordinary prosaic duties take up more of his time than they do of yours.

Eating takes up a fair amount of that time, for the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps sees to it that

For the last four months this excellent series, "The Individual Citizen's Army", has been written for you by Alan Maurice Irwin, Canadian soldier and an excellent story teller. It has given our readers a clear understanding of many fighting things and we wish the series could be continued. Alan Irwin has, however, been "taken over" by the War Time Prices and Trade Board. Perhaps he'll find time to write further for us we hope so—meanwhile this is the last article in the series named, "The Individual Citizen's Army."—Editor.

Trained Men

Committee Find That Britain Is Still Wasting Skilled Soldiers

Britain is still wasting her skilled men who have been conscripted into active service, according to the Committee on Skilled Men in the Services. The committee was set up some months ago in London under Sir William Beveridge for the purpose of finding if engineers and other technicians were being used to maximum capacity

The navy and the air force, according to their findings attempt to use their trained men but the army completely fails to use men according to their skill

More than 400 skilled workers now in services were interviewed. Only half of them were using the knowledge that the years of civilian training had given them The fewest mistakes however came from the navy

In the air force it was discovered that men were used for flying duties regardless of their technical qualifications. The R A F felt that a man capable of flying was more useful in the air than doing the work of a skilled craftsman

However the army has already released 50 000 men for industry and arrangements are being made to make better use of 40 000 more now in khaki

Do Not Waste Steam

British Factories Store It For Use After A Raid

Many thousands of tons of fuel have been saved in Britain's war factories by storing steam in accumulators during air raids Although factories do not shut down merely on getting the "alert", they have to do so when red spotters signal that the raiders are overhead.

But instead of the boilers blowing off their steam into the air when work stops, the steam is generated into the accumulators and stored, to be used to start up the plant again when the raiders have passed.

More than a thousand of these accumulators have now been installed in iron and steel works sugar refineries, breweries, dairies, dyeworks and laundries All act on the same principle the storage of energy during off-peakload periods and the calling into action of this steam when production requires it.

To Save Rubber

Scrap Rubber Hunt Is Now On Throughout Canada

Supplies Controller Williamson called on each business concern in Canada to appoint an "aggressive, responsible person" who will organize a scrap rubber hunt.

"While Canada's armed forces and war industries are crying for more and more rubber, hundreds of thousands of pounds are going to waste in the factories and offices of this country," Mr. Williamson said in a statement.

"The scrap rubber which finds its way into the hands of the national salvage committee of the junk collector will be used in the war effort. The government is buying the scrap rubber and is undertaking to see that it is channeled into essential war uses."

New Impetus To Cadets In Britain To Train For Army Arms

Boys of 14 may in future stand shoulder to shoulder with their fathers—even their grandfathers in the defence of Britain.

This opportunity has arisen from the linking up of Britain's National Cadet Association with the Home Guard. The Cadet Association was organized in 1931 to correlate the activities of secondary school cadet corps, but its scope has been widened to include corps formed by such organizations as boys' clubs.

Boys of every section of the community now have the opportunity to become cadets, and a new impetus has been given them by the decision to affiliate their units to the local Home Guards.

MAY 3

SUNDAY: THE DAY OF ACCLAIM

Golden text: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord. Mark 11 9.

Lesson: Mark 11:1-11; Luke 19: 41-44.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 40:1-11.

Explanations and Comments

Preparing for the Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem, Mark 11:1-6. As Jesus and his disciples came near the villages of Bethphage and Bethany on the Mount of Olives he sent two of them go to the village opposite and there they would find a colt tied in the street, one that had never been ridden, which they were to bring back with them. In case anyone objected they had only to say that the Lord had need of him That may have been the password which Jesus had agreed upon with the owners It also happened in just that way—the colt was found.

The triumphal entry was deliberately planned. It was Jesus' last appeal to the people to accept Him as the kind of King he was, though not the kind of King they wanted a spiritual, not an earthly ruler

By choosing an ass (Mt. 21:2, 5) to ride upon, Jesus plainly showed the people that he was not to be thought of as a military leader for the throne (Zech. 9:9; Ps. 118:26. Jesus neither encouraged nor restrained the excitement.

Mark does not tell us what happened in Jerusalem. From the other Gospels we learn how all the excitement ended, how the crowd who without the walls had acclaimed Jesus as king, within the walls said half-heartedly, "This is the prophet, Jesus of Nazareth."

Weeping Over Jerusalem, Luke 19: 41-44 Where the road from Jericho bends round the southern shoulder of Olivet, the city of Jerusalem suddenly comes into full view. It is a beautiful sight. Jesus reached this point and gazed upon its massive walls and towers, its great temple, as recently rebuilt by Herod, and in its glory of marble and gold, his prophetic soul realized that the city greatness and glory were departing, and he was moved to tears. How great to him was the contrast between the ideal and the real! Soon, "the city of God in the mountain of his holiness, the joy of the whole earth" had become a city of formalists, of hypocrites who oppressed the poor and rejected righteousness.

Health

LEAGUE of CANADA presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

VITAMIN "B" CONTENT OF BREAD

The diet of Canadians leaves room for improvement. How to get Canadians to increase their daily ration of Vitamin B is the problem worrying Dr. L. H. Newman, Dominion Chemist. In the current issue of Health, official publication of the Health League of Canada, Dr. Newman gives details of how he and his associates have been working on this problem at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, Ontario.

"Since the wheat kernel is naturally rich in the Vitamin B complex," writes Dr Newman, "and since the products of white flour constitute the most commonly used food of the people, nutritionists conclude that the simplest and probably the most economical and effective means of increasing our daily intake of these vitamins is through the medium of bread."

Dr. Newman explains that it is thiamin or Vitamin B1 which is particularly lacking in our ordinary diet, especially if white bread is used. Whole wheat bread contains approximately as much Vitamin B1 as does whole wheat flour—around 650 international units per pound. But white bread, which is commonly used has no more than from 50 to 90 international units per pound.

According to Dr. Newman, the B content of white bread may be increased in any of three main ways:

(a) The use of high potency yeast.

(b) The addition of synthetic B1 or thiamin

(c) The use of flour in which more of the B1 has been retained by a process of milling.

Dr Newman states that in Great Britain the Food Ministry has decreed that a specified amount of Vitamin B1 must be added to every sack of flour used for white bread And in the United States, not only this important "nerve tonic", but other nutritive elements are recommended to be added to the flour

Canadian nutritionist authorities however, are not in favor of the addition of synthetics. Dr. Newman explains, as that the problem in the department is working on is that of having Canadian milled so that more of the B1 content of the wheat berry is retained in the flour.

Bones of the bolts used in the mechanism of the bridge in the flow of water at Boulder dam are so large that a man cannot hit one of them

Stephen Graham advocated the use of unsifted flour for breadmaking, thus giving his name to graham bread

FAREWELL PARTY FOR RAMSAY YOUNG PEOPLE

Thirty friends and relatives were present at a very enjoyable party which took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herricks on Saturday evening, in honor of two of Ramsay's young people who were leaving for eastern Canada. Dorothy Romanick left to take a position in Toronto and Pte. Jim Herricks of the R.C.O.C. was on draft to the Trade school at Ilsley Ham.

Much fun was had by old and young alike in games and dancing. After lunch everyone took part in a sing-song which lasted until time to leave for the trains. All the young people expressed their farewells to Jim boarded the westbound and later, Dorothy the eastbound.

VERMILION RED CROSS NOTES

Here are listed just a few of the services rendered by the Red Cross:

1. If your relative were a prisoner of war in enemy territory guaranteed by Geneva Convention he would probably be receiving a parcel of foodstuffs from the Red Cross.

2. If your soldier son were sick he would probably find the Canadian Red Cross had equipped or co-operates in maintaining hospitals where required recent home he happened to be in. A representative of the Red Cross will call on him and distribute cigarettes and other comforts.

3. If you have relatives in Britain who are refugees from an Axis-held country, you will find they are receiving clothes and necessities from the Canadian Red Cross.

4. If you have relatives in Britain who have been bombed out of home and home you will find that the Canadian Red Cross has helped to alleviate their suffering.

6. If your son or daughter is on active service overseas in a unit such as the Maple Leaf Club in London will provide them with residence and recreational facilities while they are in town.

7. If your son or daughter on active service overseas is in hospital or convalescent home extra diet and comforts not procurable in Britain are supplied them through the Canadian Red Cross.

FARMERS URGED TO SAVE SACKS AND BAGS

From now on farmers would be well advised to take particular care of sacks and bags they may have on hand. The spread of the war in the Orient has seriously affected the possibility of getting supplies of jute, the raw material from which the best bags and sacks are made. In fact it is going to be very difficult to get supplies or jute in any quantities. Jute comes principally from India and is used in various classes of textiles from fine fabrics to coarse bagging, in cordage, binding twine and to meet a variety of needs on the farm.

If you have a number of bags or sacks on hand, the first important measure to preserve them is to keep them dry. Damp rots burlap quickly. Take the bags you have, and fold pieces of burlap, shake them out and spread out in a dry place where you are sure rain and mice cannot get at them. Any kind of cotton or duck bag or sack should also be preserved. You can mend any holes with the odd pieces of material you have, providing of course such pieces are in good condition. What supplies of burlap and canvas material are on hand are required for the fighting forces — so it is advisable to take care of any bags or sacks, as you may not be able to get any more—and it looks as if you won't for a long time.

Unlike the seeds of cultivated plants, weed seeds are capable of life late in the soil for many years; material has been known to remain alive for over 50 years. Nearly all weed seeds have the faculty of resisting adverse conditions and of producing seed prolifically.

WOODVALE

A wet Sunday, maybe a dismal day for town people, but one that farmers as a whole can appreciate after the dry fall and winter, a good soaker fall and a day's rain in two weeks do a lot of good. One simply can watch the grass grow and after the wind and dust everything looks so clean and fresh.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Finney on the birth of a baby daughter. What with grandparents in the Tofield district and eight young uncles there are grandparents in the Woodvale district and four aunts, the baby might be lucky to live in Thorsday or it would be thoroughly spoiled! We know for sure that some of the uncles will be even more keen than usual to stay with their sister!

Thirteen Potter spent a weeks holiday at home and Verna managed to come home the week end to be with her father whom she had not seen since November. After that she found it hard to settle down in the dorm at Ellaney, apparently and developed the notion to be home again for an other two weeks.

Margaret Berry, who spent the same week end at the Van Wagenlogo home also got mumps later in Wetaskiwin and left for her home near Marwayne. The rest of the dormitory girls are keeping their fingers crossed.

A few friends came over to help Florent Van Wagenlogen celebrate his 21st birthday. What was it again Keith that Confucius said? We would like to remember it.

Roads were rather rough and very slippery after the snowfall but care got through most of the time even if one had to stop once in awhile to dislocate the accumulated mud or get a team to be pulled out of a mudhole.

Ruby Rankin had an appendix operation in the Vermilion hospital. A very successful one as she came home on saturday. Hazel Rankin also is back on the farm for the summer after staying the winter in town with the Castle family. Margaret Sweeney has gone to Vermilion in her place.

Miss Green and Emilie Young have both bought themselves a new bike. The former only hors to go to her home in Asturndale.

Roger de Breville went to Edmonton and spent four days there.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard have left the farm in Woodvale and are living 7 miles N.W. of Vermilion on a farm of their cousin's.

The telephone was out of order for awhile and West Isley very kindly fixed it when he found there was a break near his place. The Gentler Bros. also erected five poles that had blown down south of their place.

The Woodvale people south of the school cast their votes on the plebiscite in Gentzler school and the others at Union school, so almost everyone had to go quite a few miles to do their civic duty, or should we say privileges. In voting on the "Conscription" question and a... ...ns freely is getting to be something to appreciate and treasure these days.

In view of the demand for rearmany poultrymen have retained older hens in laying flocks which otherwise have been sent to market

BIG BUILDING PROGRAM IN PROSPECT FOR VERMILION

Permits Issued Total $9,362.00; Three New Buildings, Four Additions

Building permits totalling $9,362 were granted by the town office during the past week, starting what promises to be a record breaking year in the building industry for the town. There were seven permits issued, three being for new structures and four for additions.

New Bungalow in West End to Cost $4,500

The largest permit was for a new stucco bungalow which will be built on lots 2 and 4, block 19, facing on Main street in the west end of town for J. L. Dowdell. The house will cost $4500 and work has already started on the excavation for a full basement. Dimensions of the building will be 60 feet by 28 feet. C. F. Lipsey is the contractor and the Crown Lumber is supplying the material. It will be heated by town steam heat.

New Machine Shop

J.-P. Jones has taken out a permit to erect a 24 by 40 stucco finish machine shop on Main street, having purchased lot 13 block 9 for his business site. This is next door east of the Pinelloy garage building. Estimated cost is $1,000.

New Residence

Frank Davies of the hospital staff is having a small house built on lot 3 block 4 west end. It will be of frame, size 22 by 26 feet. The location is facing Main street on lot 13, block 2. This brings a total of four residences.

Addition to Lumber Shed

The Crown Lumber Company have practically completed the addition to their lumber shed. This is 24 feet long and 58 feet wide, costing $600.

Another permit issued was to the Crown Lumber which company is carrying out extensive renovations costing $1700 in the house recently purchased by them from Mr. R. Onness. The house will be fully modernized, basement excavated, stuccoed, etc., and when completed will be occupied by the local manager of the Crown Lumber Company. This house is the third door west of the tennis courts on First Street North.

Steve Pus is adding three rooms to his house on Railway avenue at a cost of $450, and has the work well under way, while Nick Kiseshinsky valued $412 adding a lean-to, to his house on lot 4, block 14.

Making Duplex

A permit issued earlier was that to Norman Grey who is having his large residence in the east end of town converted into a duplex dwelling. This work is also well under way and when completed will take care of an extra family in the town.

VERMILION PASTOR GOING TO SOUTH AMERICA

Rev. and Mrs. H. C. Miller have accepted appointment under the Christian and Missionary Alliance to minister to Spanish speaking people in southern South America. This will mean two weeks of study in the fundamental principles of written language. This is with the view of translating portions of the Bible into some native language which is not yet unwritten.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller are very happy in the appointment. Spanish is the accepted language of 20 nations but work is anticipated amongst one of the several Indian tribes which have a language of their own. This is an opportunity to carry the Gospel to those in the trapics of the upper Amazon who as yet have not heard that a Saviour had died for them.

Wild-spread clean-up operations were in progress on Monday. The town had several extra men and teams at work gathering up debris which had previously been raked together and piled by the sanitary citizens of the town. Other marks of Arbor Day were the doors of the banks and vendors remaining closed. The next clean-up should be on the many burn dreds of pounds of waste metal lying around at various spots in the town. This should all be gathered up and taken to the Salvage depot.

AIR FORCE LONDONERS HERE SATURDAY, MAY 16

Will Give Floor Show at Dance in the Elks Hall

Something unusual in the way of entertainment is slated for Saturday next week, May 16th, when the Air Force Londoners will visit Vermilion and give a floor show at the dance in the Elks hall. The British boys come from the air training school at North Battleford. Dancing starts at 9.30 and the floor show at 10.15. Admission is only 25c to the whole affair and prospects are for the local branch of the Red Cross. 3-4

DEWBERRY GIRLS SALVAGE RUBBER

Red Cross Is Active

A successful play and dance was held in Dewberry hall on April 24th. The play was sponsored by the Marwayne Young People's club. Dewberry Red Cross received half the proceeds of the play. The full proceeds of the dance were turned over to the Red Cross, thanks to Scotty Macdonald's orchestra. They played steady for three hours free of charge. The net proceeds of the play and the dance amounted to $13.60 (Dewberry's share).

The hog given by Mr. Chas. Kinshella for raffle was won by Mr. Dalton Harrold of Dewberry. We are indebted to Mr. Kinshella for this generous donation, 972 worth of tickets were sold.

The salvage drive for rubber got under way during the Easter holidays when some of the 13-year-olds, namely Billie Ismail, Betty Armstrong, Mary Kinshella, Jean Stephens Lind, Beard and Dorothy Leavitt borrowed Mr Parker's team and wagon and drove around the neighborhood gathering all the rubber available. The girls started out about 1 p.m. one day with Gilda Van Natt at the reins. They arrive back in town a bit sunsed with mud and water from digging out old tires, and very tired but happy in their success for they had 37 old tires besides rubber boots, old batteries, etc.

REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD SUPPORT THE RED CROSS DRIVE FOR FUNDS

Campaign Starts May 11th. Committee Headed by W. P. Pike

(concluded from last week)

1. If your son were a prisoner of war in enemy territory guaranteed by Geneva Red Cross would probably be receiving a parcel of foodstuffs from the Red Cross.

2. If your soldier son were sick he would probably find the Canadian Red Cross had equipped or co-operates in maintaining hospitals where required recent home he happened to be in. A representative of the Red Cross will call on him and distribute cigarettes and other comforts.

3. If you have relatives in Britain who are refugees from an Axis-held country, you will find they are receiving clothes and necessities from the Canadian Red Cross.

4. If you have relatives in Britain who have been bombed out of home and home you will find that the Canadian Red Cross has helped to alleviate their suffering.

6. If your son or daughter is on active service overseas in a unit such as the Maple Leaf Club in London will provide them with residence and recreational facilities while they are in town.

7. If your son or daughter on active service overseas is in hospital or convalescent home extra diet and comforts not procurable in Britain are supplied them through the Canadian Red Cross.

Oculist Has Succeeded in Developing Artificial Eye That Moves

An artificial eye that moves in conjunction with the real one, something doctors have been seeking for years, has been developed by a New Orleans oculist who reports its successful use in dozens of cases.

The eye is made of lucite, a commercial plastic which can be fitted to the muscles to permit motion

Dr Theodore J Dimitry, director of the department of opthalmology at Louisiana State University Medical College at New Orleans, has announced development of the moving eye after 25 years of attention to the problem.

He has not yet made his discovery available for commercial manufacture but has employed it in his private practice and in treatment of charity patients at the L.S.U. clinics.

No Vacation This Year

German Children Must Work in Factories And On Farms

German high school boys and girls will spend their summer vacations this year working in munitions factories under a plan mobilizing all German labor resources, according to Berlin despatches to the Basel National Zeitung at Berne, Switzerland.

Younger students are being mobilized for farm work, and schools in some sections will be closed immediately so they may go into field camps, the despatches declared.

Within a few weeks, it was said, there will be scarcely a German man or woman not engaged in some manner of war work.

The biggest gaps in the labor front, however, will be filled by increasing use of war prisoners and civilians imported from conquered lands, the advices reported.

SO YOU'RE GOING TO DO A PLAY!

I promised you a list of plays to read during the summer, both one and three actors. Here they are, and don't think they are difficult to secure. Next week, I'll give you details for that too Here are the plays:

Three Act Plays

"The Little Foxes", a story of a woman who distrusted all the other members of her family who was ruthless, avaricious, and tyrannical. But retribution came in the end through her daughter. It's a thrilling play.

"The Male Animal," the story of a college professor who was a little out of the usual run and how things did get stormy, but later turned out alright.

"Elizabeth Finner" a story of a triangle which ended in tradegym but every line grips at your heart.

"The Taney Method," the story of a woman who made up her mind that she didn't want to marry her fiance after all, but was good friends with his family.

Life With Father," a comedy the story of a man whose father still insisted on ruling the home It is a real riot.

Arsenic and Old Lace" now being made into a movie is the story of two older maiden ladies who rent out rooms and what happens to the roomers after they drink some elderberry wine. Good mystery

"Ladies in Retirement" now made into a picture, the story of what lengths a woman will go to protect her sisters Good mystery story.

The Lost Colony," written by Paul Green when the people in Roanoke Colony wished to celebrate the 350th anniversary of the coming of Raleigh's followers years ago.

There are many others If you are interested write to the various publishers and ask for copies of their catalogues, and to have your name placed on the mailing list for regular bulletins.

One Act Plays

From Sunset," French the other day. I received a bundle of plays either non-royalty or on a royalty holiday I am here giving you a list and copy of copies

"Mrs. O'Leary's Cow", comedy, five women, two men, budget play, but seven copies at 50c each to produce play.

"A Ghostly Evening", comedy, five women 3 men, budget play, rollicking play

"The Phantom Gentlemen", melodrama three women two men, budget play

"The Ghost Named Henry", three women three men, Scotch comedy, budget play.

"Curse You Jack Dalton" four women three men budget, old fashioned melodrama

She Was Only A Farmer's Daughter", five women three men, old fashioned melodrama, budget.

"Up In Arms Rufus", one woman, four men, budget, mystery comedy.

"Sister Sue", four women, four men, comedy of youth, budget, good for young people

Plays on royalty holiday until July 1, 1943 One copy for each member of the cast must be purchased in order right to produce from the publisher.

"Frederick", three women five men, good for young people. A sixteen-year-old boy wants to be an actor His parents object. It all works out.

"Where the Buffalo Roam", three women three men The story of an English woman who comes to visit relatives on the prairies

"Little Darling", two men, four women. A younger sister keeps her sister's dates arranged and to suit her own ideas Good for young people

There are many others which will be found on the pages of the catalogues I mentioned the above having read them. I think younger people would enjoy working them out

Growth Of Crops

Legume Inoculation And Supply Of Nitrogen

For many centuries it has been recognized that plants belonging to the legume family—beans, peas, clovers, vetches, alfalfa and others—differ in a striking way from other cultivated plants in the effect of their growth of crops on the state of fertility of the soil. Whereas all nonlegumes are dependent upon the supply of nitrogen in the soil, the legumes are able to draw on the unlimited quantity of this element in the air.

In order to make use of the nitrogen in the air, legumes require the co-operation of bacteria, and that without the proper bacteria they are forced, like non-legumes, to depend upon the nitrogen in the soil. These useful nitrogen gathering bacteria, if present in the soil enter the roots of the legumes, where they grow and multiply, stimulating the root to grow a small knot or tubercle, commonly called a nodule, at the point at which they enter.

Just how this inoculation with its beneficial effects is effected is fully explained in the War Time Production Series Pamphlet No. 32 "Legume Inoculation," which may be obtained free by writing to the Production and Extension Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Explanations and Comments

The Traders Cast Out of the Temple. Matthew 21:12-14. The top of Mount Moriah, south of the hills of Jerusalem, had been levelled and then enlarged by building up arches from the Valley of the Kedron and filling in This whole enclosure, nearly a thousand feet square, is called the Temple. Terrace upon terrace rose the various courts, from the Court of the Gentiles, then the Court of the Women, near the Court of Israelites, then least of all the Court of the Priests Within the latter, in the northeastern part of the entire area, rose the sanctuary, or temple proper itself. When the temple was being built, Herod was the reverence for the House of God that the leaders of Israel were ready in the quarry so that they could be put together without the sound of a hammer. But now in the first court, the Court of the Gentiles, there were sellers of doves for sacrifice and money-changers who, as Jesus and Mark's gospel tells us, had made the house a den of robbers instead of a house of prayer. Isaiah 56:7.

Money-changers were a necessity, but they were not necessary while in the temple courts. The temple poll-tax of a half-shekel was paid at the Passover feast, and there were also contributions to be made for the various vows and free offerings, for which had to be paid in Jewish money. "We can picture to ourselves the scene," writes Dr. Edersheim "The weighing of the coins, the objections for loss of weight, the arguing, disputing, bargaining—and we can realize the terrible truthfulness of our Lord's charge that they had made the Father's house a place of thieves' resort."

In righteous wrath Jesus drove out the traders and overthrew the tables of the money-changers. That was a marvelous power which caused so many to retire before the moral force of One! The "meek and lowly, mild and mild," was also, when occasion called for such, "a commanding one." In King Lear, when the Earl of Kent desires to attack himself for the exiled king he gives as his reason, "You have had in your face that I yours' fain call master-authority." This master-authority was in the face of Christ, and all yielded to it without a protest.

WATCH YOUR DIET

Are you a Dagwood Bumstead, grabbing a cup of coffee for breakfast and dashing madly out the door?

What did you have for breakfast this morning? Orange juice and coffee? Maybe just toast and coffee. Perhaps nothing at all? That's a bad habit, according to the Health League of Canada.

Between dinner and breakfast is the longest gap in time that comes between any meals and when you get up in the morning your stomach is nearly empty. Therefore, it is pointed out, you have no food to call on as a source of energy all morning, and your work and all your activities will suffer.

The Health League advises a fruit or fruit juice first for breakfast. Next, you should have either cereal with milk or cream or some cooked dish of eggs or meat, like sausage or bacon with or without pancakes. Toasted whole wheat bread is better than ordinary white bread, because it has more Vitamin B.

One of the most important food elements in the diet of adults and children both, says the experts, is milk. Plenty of it should be available for cereals or cocoa or just to be plain, along with the above-suggested food.

As Ransome turned into the lane, he saw the group of figures out by the old stone slave quarters. Huddled together were the Shadwell servants and he could hear their muted weeping.

As he took the stairs rapidly, Ransome knew that it was over. Dr. Forrester came slowly from Maria Randolph's room. His shoulders sagged and his head was bent. He was thinking that with all of the knowledge of medical men and the science of this modern age, he had been impossible to keep Maria here.

He heard Ransome's quick step and came forward to lay his hand on the young man's arm. It had been years since he had seen Ransome Todd cry. The boy had stoically gone through childhood accidents without whimpering. Together they went downstairs to the living room and seated themselves together for a moment.

CHAPTER XX.

As Ransome turned into the lane, he saw the group of figures out by the old stone slave quarters. Huddled together were the Shadwell servants and he could hear their muted weeping.

As he took the stairs rapidly, Ransome knew that it was over. Dr. Forrester came slowly from Maria Randolph's room. His shoulders sagged and his head was bent. He was thinking that with all of the knowledge of medical men and the science of this modern age, he had been impossible to keep Maria here.

He heard Ransome's quick step and came forward to lay his hand on the young man's arm. It had been years since he had seen Ransome Todd cry. The boy had stoically gone through childhood accidents without whimpering. Together they went downstairs to the living room and seated themselves together for a moment.

"It is better this way, Ransome. Only Maria and I know how she suffered at times.

In the days that followed, Tamar was like a wraith. Ransome knew that she had not allowed herself the solace of tears in the presence of her father. The house was different, with its group of neighbors and the friends of long years coming in and out which had to be paid in Jewish money. "We can picture to ourselves the scene," writes Dr. Edersheim "The weighing of the coins, the objections for loss of weight, the arguing, disputing, bargaining—and we can realize the terrible truthfulness of our Lord's charge that they had made the Father's house a place of thieves' resort.

Shadwell will never be the same again, people told one another. For even from her invalid's room, Maria Randolph had been loved and recognized by Tahlahneka. Even Shadwell's poorest days, she had done little services for the others.

Sitting in her chair and looking toward the Cheetaw Maria had knitted and stitched layettes for babies, made warm shawls for elderly women who needed them and given from their own small stores to poverty-stricken families.

She had sent flowers from their garden to the sick and to the churches; and she had listened to many stories of broken families, giving comfort and help when it seemed as though it were impossible to comfort and help.

And now Tahlahneka was paying its tribute to Maria Randolph The people came in streams to the house. Tamar heard them going in and out, the drive was never empty those two days.

Tamar made herself move about, trying to do the necessary things for her father's sake. She must keep up for him.

After the great house was silent and empty, Tamar realized that many little things which her mother had said to her, had been said in preparation of this time which she knew would come. In spite of all of Maria's feelings Tamar's body ached with grief

Her eyes burned with the tenseness of all the unshed tears held in abeyance. Unchecked, she knew they must wash out all of her determination to be of comfort to her father. She wanted to throw herself in his arms and become the hurt child once more that he could soothe. Phoebe watched the reaction of Tamar's and said: "I tain' nat'chel. No one can hol' up lak dat."

Phoebe often sat now before the logs in the ancient fireplace in the end of the kitchen. It had been years since a fire had burned there, but she must have something to remind her of the old days. The new order could not change that. Phoebe could see that the magnolias in the yard bowed their heads to a strong wind. Spring was coming on apace, together. She shivered. Perhaps if she had a cup of warm tea with her father, it would l-: good for both of them.

She ran downstairs and stopped suddenly on the threshold of the kitchen. It was bright with firelight from the logs

Phoebe lifted a smiling face. "Come in, Mist'. Don't the logs look fine, a-snappin' away?"

"Yes, Phoebe." Tamar came in slowly, her head still drooping as having so hard to keep her own grief under cover.

"I believe I'll make a little tea and have it ready when Dad comes down." Tamar said

"Mom. Mom. Miz Randolph ain' home to nobody. Nobody but jes' our own folks. Ah'll tak a messenge foh you, effen you offered

"Christopher?" came the sharp note of Tamar's voice on the extension upstairs in her room. "Phoebe I'll take my call, please." she said severely

Phoebe clicked the receiver sharply then stubbornly lifted it silently and listened.

"Dere dat man! Ah knows Miz Maria didn' lak him," she said to herself

"What is your message, Christopher?" Tamar's voice was shaking.

"Oh, Tamar, I've wanted to come to see you. I could hardly stay away. May I come tonight?"

Phoebe grunted into the telephone then stared at it aghast. She clapped her free hand over her mouth "The man had no manners. Wantin' to pay a social call on Tamah, do he? Dat's what kin' ob man he am," she thought

"I'm sorry, Christopher I'm not seeing any one just yet."

Phoebe gingerly replaced the telephone and crept silently down the hall. Maybe it would be better for her lam' to see someone but not Mr Christopher Sands.

Phoebe dropped her head back on the old rocker's head rest and gazed thoughtfully into the snapping pine logs. She sprang to her feet and called to Aristotle who was bringing in an armload of wood.

"Go fetch up dat ol' hen I pinted out las' night. Ah'll pop her in de kettle." And "If Mist. Ransome Todd should be comin' home on de way t'night, we'll have stuffed hen and dressin'," she added to herself.

Phoebe quietly went back into the hall and called Ransy's office number. A broad grin swept over her face as she went back to the kitchen. She set out the box of sage and the celery for the stuffing and began scrubbing corn bread and biscuits.

A good dinner. That's what they all needed. All week the food had been sent down to the servants—good food that was brought in by friends that had remained untouched. If only Tamar and her father would get outdoors and walk a bit, they'd both be hungry.

Phoebe's philosophy was based on the fundamental principles of life—food, sleep, exercise and love. Somehow they were all mixed up together, and where one was absent the others were bound to fall short of their potentialities.

Tamar knew that she must get out of the house this afternoon. Its confining walls haunted her. She kept picturing her father's body going to her mother's room almost every night since she had left them. Since she had come home to find him kneeling beside Maria's bed, and had slipped away without his knowing.

Her father would probably never be the Cricket Hill. She had thought it was the best thing for him, when he had mentioned it.

It was while she dressed that she remembered the events of the day preceding he; mother's death. They returned to the house in the early morning, and she was startled to think that she had forgot all about them.

Mr. Forrester had now before left indifferently. What difference did it make?

Tamar slipped into a woolly blue sweater. It was cool out today. She could see that the magnolias in the yard bowed their heads to a strong wind. Spring was coming on apace, together. She shivered. Perhaps if she had a cup of warm tea with her father, it would l-: good for both of them.

She ran downstairs and stopped suddenly on the threshold of the kitchen. It was bright with firelight from the logs

Your swag is nothing but a straight piece of goods about one and a third times the length of your valance board, and twice as deep as the finished swag.

You snip off its ends on a slant and cut the lower edge in a broad scallop, flow the ruffle to the lower edge and stitch tape to the top edge; then drape swag and tack tape to valance board.

Measuring the side draperies, add 2 inches for shrinkage and take them up in a tuck near the top. When you sew the ruffles on allow plenty of fullness at the corners to prevent "bopping".

Simple with our 32-page instruction booklet to guide you! Shows you with All-Bran pastry How to make swags and ruffles; How to add French pleats, cornices and many lovely curtain and drapery styles

Send 15c in coins for your copy of New 10-in-1 in Making Curtains and Draperies to: Home Service Dept. Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave E, Winnipeg, Man. Be sure and write plainly your name address and the name of booklet

THE PRINTER'S ERROR

The Observer Sound Sun Times says Accordingly to the old gag if a doctor makes a mistake he buries it, if a lawyer makes one he collects for it, if a judge makes one he eventually becomes a precedent, if a clergyman makes one he gets a call to another church, but in the printed world that let a printer make one and he gets

Gardening

Spread Nonings

Gardeners are advised to divide their seed into at least three parts, sowing a third as soon as weather permits, a third a little later and the balance at the very tail-end of the planting season. In this way if frost does cut down the first batch there will be more plants coming on and the season will be lengthened by the last part of the garden sown

Follow this practice in sowing out with vegetables, too, it spreads the harvest season over several weeks. It is best to have beans, carrots beets, corn and such things coming on in several stages, so that they will always be at their best for the pot

Continuous Bloom

The first objective of brand-new gardeners is usually a continuous display of bloom. With rugs, res a bit of planning, especially in the matter of timing showing during the very early part of the season and also for the fall-end, after the first frost or two In this planning a g.-d Canadian Seed Catalogue will be of immense help as it gives the time of blooming with each variety, the color height, hardiness and other pointers.

An Early Start

An extra early start can be obtained by using well-started plants either out of ones own greenhouse or hotbed, or purchased in flats from seedsmen or nurserymen. With these these plants are just about ready to bloom when the frost is gone. Indeed some of them may have the odd bloom on them when still in the boxes Experts, however, advise against leaving the bloom on at transplanting It puts a strain on the plant and is apt to delay growth. Pinched off, the plant soon recovers from the shock of transplanting and will make a sturdier and larger growth.

A few perennials like the dwarf pinks and Iris help out with early bloom. These will come along just a few weeks after the tulips and the crocuses. The middle part of the season is easy then, practically all of the annuals are at their best. Towards the end of the open season, salvia, Tonton, Scarlet Marigolds, late Petunias and Asters will keep you busy. Indeed some of the hardier ones indeed standing a little frost. Not planned at all by the first cold, and in fact able to survive from five to ten degrees of frost, will be the hardy, outdoor Chrysanthemums, the late Daisies and any other late flowers with tough, woody stems.

HIGHWAY PROGRAM WILL BE REVISED

Revision of the provincial govern ment's road improvement policy will be necessary this year, though about $7,000,000 has been voted by the legis lature for main highways construction.

The dominion government has re ported the province's application to prioritize that would enable it to ob tain aid for surfacing operations on three major projects. These were Medicine Hat to Suffield 24 miles; Calgary to Crossfield, Carrol conne on Jasper highway, west to Robb Beach Total of 67 miles is affected.

Through the representation of the provincial fuel controller, work on those surfacing projects has had to be post poned by the provincial public works department.

The dominion has told the province that it will do everything possible to secure asphalt is provided for main frontier requirements.

Officials of the Alberta Motor Association are planning to do this the assistance with the authorities and ascertain what programs of highway improvements will be carried out in 1942 by the dominion army.

With tourist traffic likely to reach a large volume this year despite ra tion conditions, there still will be need for considerable road work on Jasper highway, west to Robb Beach Total of 67 miles is affected.

Through the representation of the provincial fuel controller, work on those surfacing projects has had to be post poned by the provincial public works

PARKVILLE HELD FOR MISS MARY McEACHERN AT SHAY

Leaves for Toronto

After a week at a round of farewell parties for Miss Mary McEachern, It is Tuesday night again and tonight Mary leaves old Islay for Brightlights. She has joined the Women's division of the Air Force, so is away for Toronto

The biggest event was the party in the hall on Friday evening sponsored by the church and friends of the com munity. More than 150 people joined in making the night a gay and enjoy able one. The Rev A.T. Bell made the presentation, with some very worthy compliments to Mary and presented her with a Waterman's life long set, pen and pencil, both en graved.

Mrs Charles Robertson held the one time Imrcas club at her home one afternoon. The girls gave Mary a very nice overnight bag. The Curling club gave her a sterling compact engraved and a day time was enjoyed at the home of Mrs. Jelly Bell.

After several years in the telephone office we will miss Mary. Her position has been filled by Miss Denise Du puitt of town.

ISLAY

Rev A. Bell and Dr. Sweet are dig ging the grounds of the church. Every day now some are bit doby, a tree moved a bush replaced. Even if you look up at the top windows you will see color.

We noticed Bob Green in uniform this week, also Frank Johnson of the air force home on leave.

Red Cross Meets

Monday night was the regular monthly meeting of the Red Cross. The secretary and about three others appeared. It had been hoped to ar range for the drive for funds.

Mr Joe Paquett has built a real windbreak in the form of a bunker fence along the north and east of his lot. They are busy in the gard n too.

Six packets of seed in the Kop neth Simms the week end. He figures on a half ton of honey this summer.

Spring work is in full spring. The drum of the tractor is heard on all sides, very early in the morning until well on in the night.

Born at the Islay Municipal hos pital to:

Mr and Mrs. Jos. Elliott, Dewberry, on Thursday, April 9th, a daughter, (Shirley Mae).

Mr. and Mrs. George Robertson of Islay, on Thursday April 16th, a son, (James William).

Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie McFadyen on Thursday, April 23rd, a daughter, (Ruby May).

WILDMERE WINKS

Last week we forgot to mention the fact that Mr. Sheppard had his share of the snow we treated very nicely maintained it had improvement as it was very rough.

Ed Rust of Triangle was a patron in the Dewberry district on Friday days having some X-rays taken.

Tractors are humming early and late. Spring is fast coming on there are many whirlwinds as there are this spring. Sometimes as many as seven can be counted at one time in one field some people say it means dry weather

We heard our news item about the cars mentioned on the Neighbors News on Sunday morning over the radio.

Mr. and Mrs. J Wallington visited at the writer's cousin's home on Sun day afternoon, Mrs Abe Hirk in Win dermere district A pleasant chat was enjoyed. Mr. Hirk's sister is staying with them for awhile as her husband Mr. Good is in the Army stationed in B.C.

Noticed Armand Mc and Mr. Chas Morand and sons of Wildmere children at the church home one day last week. Miss V. Rutherford at the writer's on Friday evening for a short visit; Mrs. Chig Cruthers and children spent the week end with her sister Mrs. Mo and and family at Triangle; Mr. and Mrs L. Fredeen and family at the Prince home Sunday; Andy Carlson burning up his hay by meadow on Saturday evening, the light and smoke made a pretty picture against the sky line; We have neglected to send congrats to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shadlen (nee Beatrice Beckman) for a long happ married life. The young couple were married in Wainwright a short time ago.

Funniest thing this week Some one trying to whip skim milk for a cake

Our student minister arrived last Sunday just in time to hold church in the morning. He biked out from town practically all the way and that is a long distance when one doesn't know the way His name is Mr. Pick not Pike as stated in the paper last week. He preached a very nice sermon in spite of the fact that everyone and everything was strange to him. There was a fair-sized congregation in spite of the short notice. Mr. Pick will board at Mrs. Walter's home

40 M.P.H. SPEED LIMIT IN EFFECT

Speed limit of 10 miles per hour be came operative on Alberta highways May 1st, in consequence of dominion and provincial orders issued in the interests of rubber, gasoline and auto mobile conservation.

Donations to the Salvage drive are vital—don't wait until you are vac cining for your life with a Jap bayonet a few inches behind you before you realize the value of that old iron you have on the farm, those old tires out behind the garage, that basement full of old papers and magazines, that stack of old rags. Make your dona tion today. The Vermilion Salvage Depot is at the C.N.R. freight shed. Don't wait—do it now!

RED CROSS ASKING PEOPLE FOR MONEY

Starting May 11th, the Canadian Red Cross Society will ask the people of the Dominion to subscribe $8,000,- 000 to finance the work of the Society.

The money will be used for food parcels for Canadian and British prisoners of war in Germany and Italy, comforts for the armed forces, Navy, Merchant Marine, air raid sufferers, and hospital and medical sup plies; disaster and emergency, includ ing assistance to Allied Cross societies, and Blood Donor Service. All are vital functions of the Canadian Red Cross—each in itself plays an important part in the enormous but this great service for suffering hu manity.

It is the war spreads throughout the world the tasks of relief assigned to the Society increase until today there is no right or no activity that is not benefiting from the good works of this great organization.

Not only are Canadians and Britons receiving the help of the Canadian people through the Red Cross, but supplies and comforts are always be ing sent to the armed forces and the peoples of the United Nations. For example, the Society recently raised $150,000 to send medical and relief supplies to Russia.

The financial needs of the St. John Ambulance are also included in the budget of the Red Cross.

Shortly canvassers will call on the people of Canada to provide the $8,- 000,000 so urgently required to carry on the work of the Red Cross and when they call housekeepers and workers are asked to give generously.

DELIVERY REGULATIONS

Liberal exemptions are provided by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, so that the new regulations, forbidding merchants to deliver purchases free of charge when less than $10 has been spent, will not be harshly on housewives, points out Mr. W. S. Campbell, Regional Repre sentative of the Board in Alberta.

The regulations don't prevent the regular deliveries of bakery products and daily products when delivered by the usual conveyances, Mr. Campbell says. They don't apply to farmers who make door-to-door sales of produce; or to hospitals, clinics, drug stores, etc. Where the purchase is of a heavy or bulky nature—like a bag of cement a chunk of ice or a garbage can, cost ing less than $1 — delivery is per mitted No matter how small the value of the article it can be de livered if it is part of the purchase of the total value of which is $1 or more.

By requiring purchasers to carry small and inexpensive articles, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board is saving gasoline and tires for the men of the fighting forces.

Recording the names of the pioneer vote from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. is an in teresting experience. The first vote was that of a school teacher who was anxious to do her bit for her country previous to tackling the future rulers of Canada. Another lady who rushed into the booth like a blast of wind coming from the tail-end of a tornado was rather indignant when she found she could not get a private room in which to record her vote—we wonder now if she were one of the five No's. Two ladies who were holidaying in the district all the way from Vancouver did not overlook to record their votes and proclaimed to all and sundry that they were Yes women. B.C. has every right to be proud of such two public spirited ladies. If we had their home address we would send them this copy of the Standard. As the men dropped in to vote they were anxious to speak of taxes, pigs, etc., but not one once mentioned the war. Strange?

MISS MARY WALKER

Miss Mary Walker, 71, resident of Port Arthur for 16 years, died early Saturday evening April 25th, at the home of her sister, Mrs. H. Wilkin, 331 Van Norman Street, with whom she resided. Miss Walker was born in Lancashire, England, and came to Canada 37 years ago but shortly after wards returned to England. She again came to Canada in 1912, settling first at Vermilion, Alberta. She moved to Port Arthur in 1926. Surviv ing besides Mrs. Wilkin are three other sisters, three brothers, three nieces at the Lakehead and several other nieces and nephews in the Old Country. The sisters are Mrs. Wil kin; Mrs. J. Wilson, Vancouver; and Miss Madge Walker and Mrs. J. As pey, in England; brothers are Sam Walker, Vermilion, Alta., who is in Port Arthur for the funeral; C. W. Walker, Port Arthur; and S.T. Walker in England; nieces at the Lakehead are Misses Molly and Betty Wilkin, Port Arthur, and Mrs. J. MacDonald, Port William. The funeral was held at 2 o'clock, Tuesday April 28th from the chapel, 220 Arthur Street, to the Riverside Cemetery. Capt. the Rev. W. Holmes, Knox United Church, officiated.

SALVATION ARMY TO RAISE $750,000 IN FALL

To Carry on the Home Service Programme

TORONTO. — "Because the Cana dian Governme nt has ruled that there can be no united campaign by the Na tional War Services Organizations this year, and further, seeing the Government has decided to finance from the Federal Treasury "only" the wartime work of these Organizations; therefore, the Salvation Army will find it necessary to appeal to the pub lic for funds next fall in order to carry on its regular Home Service Programme." Commissioner Benjamin Orames announced today.

"This simply means we practically revert to the policy and practice which existed prior to 1941, when at the request of the Government, the Salvation Army joined with the other War Service Organizations in one United Campaign in raising both war and home service requirements, which was held in March 1941," the Com missioner explained.

"In these critical times the Salva tion Army will continue to fit in and co-operate with the Dominion author ities to the fullest possible extent however, in accordance with the Gover nment's ruling, we cannot raise 1942 funds by a national campaign as we had done up to 1941. Instead we in tend to conduct local appeals next fall in all those communities in Canada where our work has been carried on for many years, and hope that our kind friends and supporters will giv e the same assistance and co-operation that they have in the past. We know they are all just as anxious to see our work continue as we are." the Com missioner concluded.

Peanuts Among Valuable Foods

Look to peanuts when you're shop ping for an inexpensive source of several important food values

According to nutrition experts, two contain about 26 per cent of good quality protein; their fat content averages 40 to 50 per cent, which means high energy value and good staying power. They also fu valuable amounts of the B vitamins and minerals.

Peanut butter is top as a sandwich filler for children and school lunches. For added flavor combine with one of the following: honey, pickle relish, finely chopped celery, or raw whole wheat or Vitamin B white bread Canada Approved.

Nutritionists also recommend peanut butter sandwiches serve raw carrot or turnip sticks celery in season or other raw vegetables to add crispness and zest, easily put up in containers for the lunch box

SCHOOL BOARD CONSIDERS TREE PLANTING, LIGHTING, TYPEWRITER PURCHASE

Special Meeting Held

A meeting of the trustees of Ver milion Centre S.D. No. 1666 was held in Dr. J. J. Knoll's office on April 27, 1942, with Chairman Dr. J. J. Knoll, and Trustees Taylor, Tyner, Brass and Andrew present.

This meeting was called to consider tree planting, lighting at the Public school, typewriters for the High school and such other matters as needed attention.

Tr. Tyner was appointed a com mittee of one to inspect and report at next meeting on the condition of the used radiators stored in the pub lic school

Tr. Andrew that trees required to fill vacancies in the Public and High school grounds be ordered and that grass be seeded in the abandoned po tato patch in the high school grounds. Carried

TURKEY HILL TID-BITS

The only Tid Bits we were able to corral for this issue is the very pleasant time we all had at Mrs. Gor don's party.

Nine tables of cards were enjoyed and first prizes were won by Mrs. Gobeen and Tom Belton, while con solation prizes were won by Donald Gobeen and John King. After a very bounteous and delicious lunch dance music was included in until all wended their happy way homeward

The voting at Turkey Hill was quite brisk and the final count was 46 votes recorded 21 yes votes and 25 no

Mr and Mrs. Harry Taylor were Re turning Officer and Poll clerk

Before those notes appear in print the whist drive and dance to be held on May 1st will be a thing of the past, but at time of writing it is still in the future. We hope it will be a success as all proceeds will go to the Red Cross, a very worthy cause

The whist drive and dance held at the school on May 1st was well at tended and a nice little sum was raised for a very worthy cause, name ly the Red Cross. The prizes for cards were won by Mrs Dick and consolation, Dorothy Gobeen Mr. Day, aunt's first and Keith King consolation. In spite of the bad season and everyone feeling tired, the evening was one of pleasure, and that we have many more of the same kind

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Lynch on the birth of a son on April 24th.

We are sorry to report that Mrs. V. Voss has been taken to the hospital. Friends and neighbors wish her a speedy recovery.

The teacher and pupils are starting a scrap salvage at the school and the children are encouraged to bring all rubber, copper, and paper. Later it will be taken by truck to the Vermilion salvage depot. Do not overlook any scrap rubber as according to the radio news this week unless Canada can collect 50 million pounds of old rubber during May the tires will be taken off our automobiles. Bring every piece of rubber you can find.

The outstanding feature of agriculture in India is that cattle are not an important part of the agricultural system. Now only that, but the numbers of cattle are, for religious reasons, largely in excess of all possible requirements.

The Week in Legislative Circles . . . In Edmonton

TO RELIEVE TEACHER SHORTAGE

EDMONTON.—Designed to relieve the present and potential teacher shortage in Alberta and keep all the schools of the province open, a war emergency teacher-training program has been organized by the Department of Education. Details of the new program are incorporated in a booklet which is being sent out to all principals, trustees, superintendents, inspectors and secretary-treasurers. Any interested person by applying to the Department of Education, Edmonton.

A summary of the war emergency teacher training program shows that normal schools will open earlier. Lapsed certificates may be reinstated by the owner's attendance at summer school. University graduates may be certificated as high school teachers and that four groups of normal students will be sent out to rural schools from the opening day normal.

High school students who plan to enter Normal are urged to apply immediately for admission and to write the General, English Language, Mathematics and Science Survey tests at any examination centre on June 4. From the successful candidates 125 will be selected for immediate training at a special summer session at Garneau school, Edmonton. On Aug. 31 this special group will go out to rural schools to teaching duties. The regular Normal sessions will commence August 10th, instead of September. From students attending the regular sessions a second group will go to rural schools in October. This and the first group will return to Normal in January. At that time a third group will go out, and a fourth will leave Normal in March for teaching duties.

ASSISTANCE FOR STUDENTS

It is stressed that no needy student having the proper qualifications should put off applying for normal training. The Department is seeking to obtain certain assistance for such students under the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training plan. Former teachers who may wish to take up teaching as a war emergency job may have their certificates renewed after attendance at summer school and the attainment of necessary credits.

Physical volume of business in Canada was up 18.3 in February to 136.3 in March. Gain over March of last year: 8.5 per cent.

LEGION MEMBERS HELP MAKE THINGS EASIER

For Men in Uniform

By Mat Millay

Canadian fighting men, at home and abroad, are happier because of the efforts of Veterans' War veterans, and the other members of the 8,200 Canadian Legion branches in every city, town and rural community of the Dominion, Lt.-Col. D. E. MacIntyre, of Ottawa, general manager of Canadian Legion War Services, stated today in a message to D. Taylor, president, Vermilion Post No. 11.

The rigors of active service in the army, navy and air force have been lessened through the recreation, education, entertainment and personal services made available to the men. This assistance would not have been possible without the co-operation of the 300,000 enrolled members of the Legion branches and Ladies auxiliaries of the nine provincial and four state commands.

When Canada entered the war, Col. MacIntyre recalled, the Canadian Legion was one of the first organizations on the scene, prepared to provide huts, hostels and canteens, writing paper, sports equipment, magazines, newspapers and other conveniences for the men in the service.

PIONEERED EDUCATION

The Legion pioneered education for soldiers, sailors and airmen through Canadian Legion Educational Services, the nearest approach to a unified national system of education yet achieved in this country. Technical and academic courses are available to men in Canada, Newfoundland, Jamaica and overseas, in classes or by correspondence. The educational section is headed by Lt.-Col. the Hon. Wilfrid W. Bovey, of Montreal, the national chairman, and Squadron Leader Andrew Moore, prominent Manitoba educationist now in Ottawa national director.

"The individual efforts of the veterans of the last Great War, and their ladies, and the voluntary assistance of other citizens, have meant most to the success of our auxiliary service work," said Col. MacIntyre. "Our organization is much like the Red Cross in its methods. We serve not only the cities and towns, but the rural sections as well. There is hardly a person in the settled part of Canada who lives more than ten miles from a Legion Branch."

He explained that quite apart from the vast program of Canadian Legion War Services, of which Maj.-Gen. John A. Cunn, Toronto, is president, and Brig.-Gen. Alex Ross, Yorkton, Sask., chairman of the board, the branches are individually giving magnificent help to the service men out of their own resources.

VARIED ASSISTANCE

They have turned their branch club rooms into social centres for the men. Dances, socials and parties are being arranged for them constantly. The Branches are supplying ambulances, mobile canteens, cigarettes, parcels, magazines and papers, clothing, socks, sweaters, towels, comforts, duty bags, and are working in numerous other ways for the boys in uniform.

"The Canadian Legion is the parent organization and we are simply a department of the Legion formed to give direction to the Legion war effort," explaind Col. MacIntyre. "We work directly with the troops, in close contact with all fighting services at home and overseas."

Valmobile direction has been given this work by Alex. Walker, Calgary, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, and the national executive, and by the provincial executive officers led by the provincial presidents: S. Carl Hecklbert, Vermilion, Alberta T.A. Barnard, Nanaimo, B.C.; Lt.-Col. L.D.M. Baxter, O.B.E., Vic. Winnipeg, Man.; F. T. Dorey, St. Stephen, N.B.; J. J. Macintosh, Dartmouth, N.S.; Capt. Thomas Maxted, New Liskeard, Ont.; R. L. Mattson, M.M., Summerside, P.E.I.; J.E. Boyd, jr., Montreal, Que.; William Walker, Canora, Sask.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dearest wife and mother
Mrs. Mary Davies of Islay
who passed away, May 9, 1925
Nothing can divide us from Mother,
Or sever the cords of love;
She is resting peacefully with Jesus,
In that beautiful home above.
It is not the tears at the graveside
That tell how the heart is torn;
But the unseen tears in the after years.
And loneliness silently borne—
Always remembered by her loving husband and daughters, Dorothy, Lucile, Florence and Marjory.

G. E. Garand, Captain of the 19th Alberta Hussars, attended the ceremony in Edmonton on Sunday at the laying away of the colors for the duration of the war. The colors were placed in Holy Trinity church for safekeeping till a solemn ceremony. George must have had a pull with the cameraman for his picture looms up very prominently in a class taken of the parade which appears on page 9 of Monday's Journal.

Collective Security

The first threat of War was a conflict waged to end all wars, and to make the world safe for democracy. It is not the purpose here to analyze the various causes that have brought the world to its present catastrophic condition. It will suffice to say that if there had been a unanimity of purpose on the part of all the frontline nations after the peace of Versailles we might not today be forced to endure a second cataclysm. Experience is a great teacher and we, in all probability, from the knowledge gained by the tragic events of the past few years, again will hear the oft-repeated phrase that there shall be no repetition of a struggle for world domination. The point fact is that unless the democratic peoples of the world will stand firmly united there can be no definite assurance of future peace. There is every reason to believe that the subjugated nations will enter into any plan that would lend to their national security in the future. The experiences through which they have passed would certainly warrant this conclusion.

* * * *

World Revolution

In the last war nations who fought with the Allied cause are now in league with the forces of destruction. The peoples who were our friends are now our enemies. The present war has been more fittingly termed a world revolution as there are now few nations who are not directly or indirectly engaged in this life and death struggle. How are we to determine on whom we can depend to keep the peace in future? It would seem that only by the formation of a League of Commonwealth of Nations, united by a common ideal and purpose, can we hope to maintain our freedom of thought and action and guard ourselves against aggression. In such a covenant there could be no concept of neutrality or selfish isolationism or rival nationalism. It must be treated in a spirit that will not hesitate to make any sacrifice necessary to maintain a world at peace.

* * * *

A Directive Force

It would appear fitting that the English-speaking democracies could well take a prominent lead in the direction of a force of world opinion that would gain every country's assistance or any collective movement to disrupt the peace. The Atlantic Charter elaborated by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill is the initial step in this direction. The declaration has since been signed by twenty-six United Nations many of them suffering under the heel of the oppressor. It will require a strong directing force to the more liberal and the closest form of collaboration. We shall have to guard against any injustice, either economic or social. The fundamental principle of democracy that all men as well as nations should enjoy equal opportunity must be maintained. Trade restrictions will of necessity have to be removed and the principles of social justice extended to all nations. Only by setting an example of true democracy in our relations with other peoples can we be assured of a strong force of united nations that will stand firmly together to oppose the aggressor.

Must Use One Measure

Cord Of Wood When Stacked Contains 128 Cubic Feet

How much is a cord of wood?

In case you don't know the War-time Prices and Trade Board has decided the point because a cord of wood has been put from a uniform measure in the past A. R. Mackie, Research, says prices and supply representative announces.

According to J. McG. Stewart, final administrator a cord of wood from now will be 128 cubic feet of stacked wood.

In the past, three and four-foot lengths were piled up and they measured the height of a cord of wood, but not necessarily the width. Every three-foot length meant a one-foot block missing and 20 or 30 of such lengths meant a fair-sized amount of wood missing.

There is to be no measurement in Canada for a cord of wood and it is to be 128 cubic feet. Further every authorized primary producer or dealer in wood shall prepare an invoice to cover every sale of fuels at with the invoice the quantity, kind or fuel, condition of a cord sold and the invoice shall be delivered to the consumer in time before or at the time of delivering with the wood.

Should a producer or dealer be found guilty of violating the order he will be liable to a fine.

Not Painted On Rolling Stock Meant Saving For Railway

Now that salvage and economy are very much in the foreground, says a C K in Marketing I recall a story of one of the British railroads—the Great Western. A keen-witted clerk in the employ of the company submitted a suggestion that if the letter R were no longer painted on the company's rolling stock an appreciable saving might be effected. The suggestion was adopted, and after a time only the letter "G" appeared on the rolling stock. The saving resulting the first year was £7 000

One hour later he was sitting beside Hitler's desk, smoothing his face and hands with burnt cork.

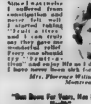
Is Your Liver Poisoning You?

Are you sick and tired out every morning — always constipated — can't eat without pain and distress? Your liver is poisoning your system — permanent ill health may be the result!

● Your liver is the largest organ in your body and, normally, should pour into the digestive system two pints of bile juice every day. If bile is not delivered to the bowels, undigested food decays, gas forms, and you suffer sick headaches, dizziness, coated tongue, acid indigestion, constipation and a miserable, sluggish feeling all over.

Without bile to digest fats in food, much of the food you eat just decays in the bowels. Instead of being digested and absorbed into the blood to nourish your body, it poisons you. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel "all in."

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable preparation which gently but surely helps the liver to do its job. Used by thousands for over 20 years. Ask your druggist for Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Follow the directions in the folder. Then you'll know why they are so famous for relieving constipation, biliousness, sick headaches, dizziness and bad complexions due to sluggish liver. Take one or two at bedtime with a glass of water. Next morning you'll feel like a million! Only 25¢.



"It used to, Bruce, but now I'm a non-stop eater. I suffered from constipation and never felt well. Then I started taking Olive Tablets and I can truly say they gave me wonderful relief from constipation and upset stomach. Now I eat as I please and enjoy life as I do more than I have for years."

Mrs. Florence Williamson, Montreal, Que.

"Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets have been a boon to me. I was badly run down and terribly nervous. My digestion was so poor and I was constipated. Then I started taking 'Fruit-a-tives' and soon made me better and strong. After two months' treatment I was in the pink of health and feeling fine. I am glad to recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' to one and all."

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

Very few people get to read their own "obituaries." Mark Twain did and found it greatly exaggerated.

Mine said, very definitely, that last week's article was the last in the series named "The Individual Citizen's Army."

Well, the title is up to the Editor. As far as I am concerned the week series if he uses it—will still be "The Individual Citizen's Army."

No Chief of the General Staff, no General Officer Commanding an Army in the field, no Admiral of the Fleet can fight a war these days unless he has everyone at home spiritually in the Army or Navy with him.

That means we are all fighting. We need training, some of us one way, some another. We all want to help. But we can't help unless we know how.

So, if you'll let me, I'll see what I can find out from the ways in which we can "slope arms" in our daily life always remembering that after the "slope arms" command there comes the command "fix bayonets."

"Lead-swinger," as any old soldier will tell you, means a man who has means to get out of doing his regular duties. He is looked upon, at first sight, as a smart guy who has "put one over" the Medical Officer.

But, as the fair sex points out when referring to the order in which man and woman were created, second thoughts are best and it is not very long before the "lead-swingers" fellow soldiers are full of scorn and contempt for him. They realize that in addition to putting one over the Medical Officer he is putting one over them—for someone has to do the duty he shirks.

The worst lead-swinger is the individual Citizen's Army which is all of us today in the man or woman who passes unnoticed unnecessarily.

This morning as I came down to work I looked, idly at first, and then with mounting indignation, at the stream of cars passing with only one person in each. I have no doubt that you have felt the same way many a time.

Do you think the same way about it when you have an errand to do?

Or do you just hop into the car and drive off?

Some little time ago one of these columns was devoted to the jaunty soldiers of the Armoured Corps. They and the airmen who bomb Germany and the Philippines, they and the men who patrol the Atlantic and the motor torpedo boats are the men we should save our gasoline for.

There is nothing more dusty-looking about a soldier who has been taken prisoner or killed. I know so do many of you. I have seen them. And men are going to be taken prisoner and killed if their mobile forts—whether they be tanks, armoured cars, universal carriers, bombers or submarines become immobilized for lack of gasoline.

A horrible thought? Sure it is. But that is how close the war is to us. One extra joy-ride or one trip by car that could have been arranged out afoot may mean the hair's breadth that separate life and death for the men in uniform.

So, walking to work, even walking to the movies, can be a form of war-work—a form of soldiering in the individual Citizen's Army.

And observing food and price regulations is another way of serving.

At Basic and Advanced Training Centres, in camp and on active service soldiers and sailors put in long hours at strenuous work. Their training simulates actual fighting—and actual fighting burns up energy.

To replace that energy good, hearty meals must be supplied. That's where the careful observance of the food regulations comes in. Every time the housekeeper provides more or little less than their sugar ration or bake a cake with a substitute for sugar they are releasing that much energy for Canada's Men at Arms."

And the housewife Lance Corporal or as she at least a Major in your home" who puts together a tasty menu of shank-bone, onions, carrots, a little veal, too much please turnip and a sage leaf or two instead of relying up the grocer for a can or two of this or that enrolls herself in the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps by leaving just a little more metal available for arms, ammunition or even tanks.

Here's a list of kitchen ammunition. One cup of refined white sugar can be replaced by maple sugar, one cup; maple syrup, one cup, honey, one cup; cane syrup, 1½ cups; corn syrup, two cups.

That's what the Individual Citizen's Army fights with.

Destroyer Used Sails

When Engine Trouble Developed Captain Resorted To Old Method When The commander of a British destroyer was escorting was about 150 miles from home a gale got up; the engine trouble developed a defect, and being unable to keep her head on a safe course she shipped a sea which did much damage, ripped off a hatch-cover and flooded the after compartments.

As the gale abated the wind blew fair for home and rather than ask for assistance which would take another ship off important escort duty, the destroyer hoisted up his sails from his whaler, together with one salved from a merchant ship's boat, set them on his fore stay and sailed his ship the 150 miles home London Times

GEMS OF THOUGHT

THE BEAUTIFUL

In all ranks of life the human heart craves for the beautiful; and the beautiful things that God makes are His gift to all alike.—H. B. Stowe.

By cultivating the beautiful we scatter the seeds of heavenly flowers as by doing good we cultivate those that bring forth fruit.—Richard.

That which is striking and beautiful is not always good; but that which is good is always beautiful —Miss De Luclos.

Life and goodness are immortal Let us then shape our views of existence into loveliness, freshness, and continuity, rather than into age and blight. Mary Howitt.

The beauty of holiness has done more, and will do more, to regenerate the world and bring to everlasting righteousness than all the other agencies put together.—Chalmers.

"Van Nestlewight talks a great deal about his family tree."

"Yes a family tree is much like other trees: the smallest twigs do the most rustling."

* * * *

"I hear your daughter is practicing on the harp How is she getting on?"

"Well, her mother isn't quite so keen on going to sleep as she was."

* * * *

Dr. Bawbones—I had a great many more patients at this time last year. I wonder where they can all have gone.

Wife—we can only hope for the best, dear.

* * * *

Uncle—Bo you lads have started a cycling club. What made them elect you captain?

Young Harry—Well, uncle, as a matter of fact, I'm the only one who has a bicycle at present.

* * * *

Mr. McSponger—Come here, Junior! Don't you know who I am?

Junior—Yes. I've heard daddy speak of you often. You're mother's cousin who stayed here two months one time and never offered to pay a cent for board!

"Have you ever seen a company of women silent?"

"Yes; once somebody asked who was the oldest."

WE'D LIKE TO TELL EVERYBODY ABOUT ALL-BRAN'S "BETTER WAY"

Says Mr. C. Boyer, Valleyfield, Quebec: "For many years we've enjoyed KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, the delicious cereal that keeps us regular ... naturally. In muffins, ALL-BRAN is delicious ... we have them almost every day. And ALL-BRAN is a grand cereal for breakfast.

Why don't you try ALL-BRAN'S "Better Way" to correct the cause if you are troubled by constipation due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in your diet? But remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like cathartics. It takes time. Eat it regularly and drink plenty of water. Get ALL-BRAN at your grocer's, in two convenient size packages, or ask for the individual serving package at restaurants. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

TO BRIDGE THE GAP .

To bridge the gap in an attack the army needs pontoon bridges. Has such bridge, which weighs 16 tons, requires enough rubber for 300 ordinary automobile tires. To bridge the gap between the present rubber shortage and the day when synthetic production will help to supply the needs of the armed forces, scrap rubber is needed. Get in the scrap!

TO SAVE BATTERY

A good way to give your battery a lift is to depress the clutch pedal when you step on the starter. When you do this the battery isn't given the extra job of turning the transmission gears.

Fourteen thousand average-sized ants are required to weigh one pound.

Grave Risks Are Taken To Publish News In Europe

London. — Death is the price thousands of readers of tiny news sheets in Belgium, Holland, Norway, France, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Yugoslavia and Greece gladly risk paying daily.

Death is the reward of men who have risked and often received for printing these news sheets in hidden cellars by candlelight.

All of Hitler's Gestapo, all his ruthless gaolciters have failed to stifle the underground free press in German-occupied Europe.

Copies come out irregularly, but they come out.

If the editor and his staff are shot, others take their places.

The most famous of these is the revived "La Libre Belgique"—which the Kaiser sought for years to drown in editorial blood.

Belgian sources say the paper flourishes today with its oldtime vigor although at least one editor and several distributors have been shot.

Each copy, handed from hand to hand, has thousands of readers Some times it is baked into a loaf of bread; sometimes hidden between the leaves of some Nazi book.

For big matter there are no rewards except death. The articles are unsigned. There are no salaries Paper and presses are at a premium

"Each slim sheet contains items gleaned from British and American broadcasts.

There also are savage editorials denouncing Hitler's henchmen. Instructions on how the populace should act and express their hatred.

This may be slim reading by Canadian standards, but it is desperately sought by the downtrodden peoples of Europe

While "La Libre Belgique" is the most famous, a foreign government in London reports that for every one underground paper of 25 years ago, there are 20 now.

Some are simply mimeographed sheets; some duplicated typewritten sheets; some not even that elaborate —just pieces of foolscap covered in longhand

In Holland, "Parool" (the word) and a dozen less consistent handprinted papers keep Netherlanders' spirits up

In Norway, mention of "Royal Post," most famous of Norwegian underground newspapers, makes Quisling grimace

In Czechoslovakia "V Jeh" (Forward) still is slipped under doorways on dark nights

In Poland "Walka (the struggle) is the leader of several score of papers trying to undermine Nazi authority.

Both the Yugoslav and Greek governments report anti-Nazi papers are circulating in their countries

In France, several dozen underground papers annoy both the German occupiers and Vichy French The one editor recently escaped to Britain is a jump ahead of the Gestapo

Most "freedom" editors aren't so fortunate

AN ASH HEAP

German Baltic Port Of Rostock Has Been Blitzed

London.—The centre of the German Baltic port of Rostock is an ash heap and fires still smoulder in the city which has been evacuated of all except firemen and a few military forces after heavy British bombing, reports reaching London said.

Photographs of the damage from the last most intensive R.A.F. offensive against a single town, taken from British bombers after the second night's raid, showed fires as bright that planes could be seen on the airdrome. A later picture the same night showed entire town engulfed in flames and smoke.

Berlin correspondents of Swedish newspapers said the Baltic base and plane manufacturing centre was virtually levelled and unihabitable.

Evacuation of the 90,000 population became necessary, they said, because public services and food and water supply became impossible.

Effects of Britain's newest giant bombs were shown in the reports of newspapers said the British bombing cities who said that great blocks of houses crumbled under the blasts and became tinder for incendiary bomb showers.

Price Control In U. S. Will Be A Boon To Canada

Ottawa.—Canadian business cast a glance back across six months of retail price control and generally found it good.

And the wartime prices and trade board, which is keeping price ceilings in place, said its work has been effective in preventing an inflationary spiral.

Business men and prices board officials alike accepted with satisfaction the United States announcement of price controls, on a basis similar to that employed in Canada since last Dec. 1

One official of a manufacturing association said manufacturers generally are in support of the price ... ing because it prevents inflation. A condition which would be "far worse" than price control.

"What effect did the price freezing have on you financially?" he was asked

Many manufacturers suffered losses because they got their raw products from countries where price ceilings had not been established," he said ... Tanneries and leather manufacturers who made purchases in the United States were hard hit. The cost of raw products went up in the United States but our prices were frozen here."

Establishment of a price ceiling in the United States would be a "great boon to Canadian manufacturers."

"The United States is 12 times larger in population than Canada and the countries are so closely related it was difficult to work out a price-freezing system independently," he continued. It will bring great relief to Canadian manufacturers who are largely dependent on the United States for raw products."

"How are retailers' gross sales holding up?"

"Retail are holding up well The price ceiling has had no appreciable effect on sales"

"How are profits"

"Retailers agree that the freezing of prices has affected their profits. They have had to absorb quite a bit of the increase and profits are down"

The "squeeze" to which he referred was that caused when retailers found difficulty in maintaining their prices at the levels established during the basic period from Sept 15 to Oct 11 Manufacturers and wholesalers were required to co-operate with the retailer in keeping prices below the ceiling and the "squeeze" suffered by the retailer because of the ceiling was also divided among them as far as possible."

BOMBING BRITAIN

Germany Using Guide Beam To Locate Prominent Buildings

London. — Britain's small town dwellers have tightened up their air raid precautions, quietly determined to endure Hitler's threatened "Guide Book" bombings.

The German air force already has brought death and injury to historic spots such as Exeter, Bath, Norwich and York, and the Berlin radio has threatened a bombing of "every British building marked with three stars in Baedeker." (Baedeker is a European guide book for tourists, and three stars indicate spots of paramount interest.)

Informed quarters said this month's civilian death toll from bombings is likely to be the highest since last July.

Until the end of last month 43,822 were killed, 50,482 injured by air raids on Britain.

Farm Machinery Comes In Range Of War Economy

Ottawa Farm machinery and equipment came within range of the wartime prices and trade board's powers and new controls program

An order issued by H H Hicks of Toronto administrator of farm road and mount pal machinery and equipment provides that wood or substitute materials must be placed in a wide range of farm implements neck yokes, doubletrees, rake bars, hay knife bars, wheels, farm trailers, reels for grain binders, outside loose knotting bowls and hog troughs

Except for wheels axles and bearings farm wagons will no longer be made of metal and the metal parts of sleighs will be restricted to shoes for the runners" the announcement said

The order bans use of rubber and 14 metals including war-consigned copper and aluminum in an extensive list of farm equipment items.

Exempt from the provisions are rubber for use in cream separators and pump cups in the electrical systems of brooders and incubators and tires on protective coatings for parts of metal with milk or milking machines cream separators and surface coolers

The board said provision has been made in the order for the administrator to grant special permission to manufacture any such parts needed but it is believed there will be very few requests of that nature as most commodity parts are standard and interchangeable.

INTERESTING WEDDING UNITES CLAYSMORE YOUNG PEOPLE

Bauer — Elias

Two of Clayesmore's most popular young people were participants in a very pretty wedding which took place at the Lutheran church in Mannerville on Friday May 1 at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon. The Rev. Mr. Poltman officiated at the ceremony which united in marriage Miss Nettie Elias, daughter of Mr and Mrs Elias of Battleford, Sask., and Mr. Joseph Bauer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bauer, of the Clovelly district. The bride has lived in the Clayesmore district for the past five years while Joe is one of our own boys, having been born here.

The bride, dainty and very lovely, was dressed in a floor length wedding gown of white sheer over taffeta. It was fashioned with long full sleeves, a fitted bodice and flare skirt Her veil, bonnet-style, fell in graceful folds from a coronet of orange blossoms. In her arms she carried a shower bouquet of pink roses Her only jewelry was a gold locket, a gift of the groom.

Miss Mary Williamson, the brides maid was very pretty in a gown of blue sheer, made on similar lines, in bolero style with touches of white, a small waist hat and her accessories were in white Miss Prill very beautifully played the wedding marches.

Mr Ernest Bauer of the Canadian Army who was home to attend his brother's wedding, was best man.

After the ceremony the happy couple motored to the home of the groom's parents where a wedding supper was held for forty or more guests. The tables were set on the lawn, the bride's table being centred with a three-tier wedding cake, the top of which was a cute replica of a bride and groom and doves decorated the corners.

Guests included Rev. and Mr. Poltman of Mannville and Mr. Carl Bauer of the R.C.A.F. who is at present stationed at Calgary.

The young couple will reside in the Clayesmore district.

Engine Bears Canadian Name On Britain's Southern Railway

THIS neated and smartest of British locomotives, the fifth in the new "Merchant Navy" series built and operated by the Southern Railway was appropriately named "Canadian Pacific" at a ceremony recently in Victoria Station, London, in the presence of a guard of honor and officials of both the Canadian Pacific and the Southern Railways. The latter company, one of Britain's great railways, conceived the happy idea of naming each of these engines after one of the standard-bearers companies serving the port of Southampton. Among the fleet of the Canadian Pacific's great white Empresses, which in war-time camouflage are now navigating themselves with notable gallantry.

The powerful new locomotive whose streamlined sides bear the Canadian Pacific's name and familiar red and white house flag in gleaming enamel, was officially christened by F. W. Mosher, acting European manager for the C.P.R. in London. He was introduced by Robert Holland-Martin, C.B., chairman of the Southern Railway.

A message of appreciation from Sir Edward Beatty G.B.E., K.C., LL.D., chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway was read during the ceremony. "We consider it a great honor," Sir Edward said "to have a Southern Railway locomotive designated 'Canadian Pacific' and look upon it as a tribute to the men of our own fleet who have given their all as one or are still serving heroically."

A glimpse of the "Canadian Pacific" appears below, while inset is shown the engine's glittering nameplate with the cherished house flag of the company's steamships. The signed for both passenger and freight service the new engine will be rated in "battle-dress" for the duration, after which it will appear in the glamorous colors that characterize the Southern Railway's engines in peacetime.

CHATSWORTH A.F.U. ASKS FOR MAIN MARKET ROAD

Many Questions Discussed — Addressed by L. McCollum

The regular meeting of the Chatsworth Local of the A.F.U. took place in the Chatsworth school at 8.30 p.m. April 28. The principal speaker of the evening was an address by Mr. McCollum on the municipal dortor question. This brought the difficulties in the way of a new agreement and also served to quell several false rumors. The meeting went on record as being in favor of continuing the present contract.

The gathering also heard the report of the committee which had interviewed the Council of the M.D. Vermilion Valley with respect to certain roads. Some reported that they had been favorably received and that the road would be repaired soon.

It was then moved that the Local sponsor one A.F.U. broadcast at the usual hour.

The last piece of business was the appointment of a committee to go to Innisfree to present to the M.D. of Minburn a petition that the Ottawa-Dayton-Elk Point road be declared a main main road. The delegation was also instructed to ask the council to consider the construction of the road straight south to the birch way, across the river bottom, or at least to have the necessary surveys made while the engineers are present

The meeting was then adjourned

FINE WEATHER AIDS SEEDING PROGRESS

Extra fine weather has greatly aided spring farming operations and according to reports from various districts seeding is general. There seems to be a widespread shortage of farm help and in many cases farm housewives are doing field work driving tractors, etc., in a determined effort to get the crop in on schedule.

SPECIAL FARES FOR THE VICTORIA DAY WEEK-END

WINNIPEG.—Special holiday fares for the Victoria Day week-end will be in effect between all stations in Canada, on the Canadian National Railways, according to Osborne Scott, passenger traffic manager. With May 24th falling on Sunday, the holiday will be observed on Monday and will be not only the first long week end of the summer season, but will provide an opportunity for a visit home or to see that husband, son or brother who may be with the armed forces

The special fare will be available from Friday, May 22nd until Monday, May 25th and will be good to return leaving destination until midnight of Tuesday, May 26th.

How wartime precautions affect the broadcast of weather reports to aircraft through the radio range facilities along Canadian airways. They are all coded Trans-Canada Air Lines has adopted similar measures for weather reports over its own plane to ground communication system using a somewhat different code system which also changes daily.

Kilocycling with John Johnson

To accommodate the shifting of the CBC National News bulletin to the new time of 8 p.m. (starting Sunday, May 10) several other CJCA features will occupy new spots in the schedule.

Amos 'n Andy, everlastingly popular colored men presentation will be to be heard at 9 p.m., Monday through Fridays; Penny's Diary, fast moving mirth provoker about the heart-flutterings of a teen-age girl takes up the new position at 6.45 p.m. every Thursday; Treasure Trail, glam orous gold-bearing quiza that provides laughs and cash for lucky listeners, takes the air each Tuesday at 8.15 p.m., Voices of Victory, providing intimate glimpses into Canada's war effort, will henceforth be broadcast at 8.15 p.m. Fridays.

Each Wednesday from May 13, CJCA listeners will get an unusual dramatic treat. The Green Hornet, a feature to be presented more radio-ial comment and listener response than many another program on the air. The Green Hornet is a feature that's as modern as tomorrow and will be heard each Wednesday at 7 p.m. from CJCA.

This mirth provoking program provides an entertaining peek inside the personal record of Penny, a vigorous, charming, life-loving young lady of 16, whose heartbeats are regulated in speed and intensity by the presence or go'ng of looking males.

The rollicking presentations of her diary-like jottings have excellent listening — and the survey shows that they do get a wide listenership.

Topical, thrilling and factual (based on actual experiences of the R.C.A.F.) "Flying For Freedom" draws the listeners like a magnet when it takes the air each Wednesday at 8.30 p.m. from CJCA. This action packed story of four loveable lads in Air Force blue who ride the skies of the 20th century on the wings of a new dragon. Without reservation, it's recommended listening!

— o —

Most CJCA listeners will concur with the results of the recent author-Native Hooper survey, which shows Fibber McGee and Molly in top place and the Aldrich Family, Chas. McCarthy and Lux Radio Theatre close behind. CJCA is particularly proud to feature these top ranking shows on its schedules

VERMILION'S PIONEER CITIZEN PASSES ON

Death of Peter Graham Pilkie In 92nd Year

Vermilion's pioneer citizen, Peter Graham Pilkie passed on to his reward on Tuesday afternoon May 12th at the age of 91 years, 6 months and 26 days. The death occurred in the Vermilion municipal hospital where Mr. Pilkie had been receiving medical attention since Christmas time.

The deceased was one of the true pioneer citizens of Vermilion, he came here before the town started and played an important part in its way of the traditions and organizations of the community.

He was born at Little York, now Toronto, on October 16th, 1850. The family moved to Lindsay, Ont., early in his life and there he grew up. At time of leaving to come west he had been city commissioner for many years. At the age of 20 years he had joined in fighting of the Fenian raids and was later a member of the 65th Victoria Rifles under the command of General Sir Sam Hughes.

In June of 1901, in company with his son Bill, he freighted down the Saskatchewan river on a raft of logs her from Fraser Flats near Edmonton, to the mouth of the Vermilion river. They unloaded and also freighted the lumber across country to the vicinity of Vermilion, then build Prairie Hen P.O. Pilkie homesteaded just a mile east of the present town and each of four sons also took up homesteads in the district. Robert Pilkie homesteaded the quarter on which Pilkieville now stands.

Early in the town's history Mr. Pilkie operated a lumber yard which his sons opened a general store in Pilkieville. He was a member of the first school board; superintendent of building of the Anglican church; was first president of the Vermilion agricultural society; a member for many years of the town council and president and honorary president of the Vermilion Old Timers. He was Police Magistrate for thirty years until 1938.

Mr. Pilkie celebrated his Golden and Diamond wedding anniversaries being predeceased by his wife on November 14th, 1940, since her death he has made his home with his son W. P. Pilkie in town, with Frank and with his daughter Minnie in Edmonton. Other members of the family are sons Albert in Winnipeg and Charlie in Toronto. He was predeceased by one son, Robert.

His death brings to an end the earthly career of one who has lived a long and full life and who has contributed much to the communities in which he has lived.

The funeral services are being held this Thursday afternoon at St. Saviour's Anglican church at 2 o'clock and interment will take place in the family plot in the Vermilion cemetery. A complete obituary will appear in next week's Standard.

AIR CADET OFFICER INSPECTS LOCAL FLIGHT

Flying Officer W. M. Bowman, Air Cadet Officer, No. 1 Training Command, paid a visit to Vermilion on Tuesday evening May 12 where he carried out an official inspection. He was at Mirmam in the afternoon on similar duties.

The inspection here was carried out on the school grounds where the regimental parade was perfectly executed by the well trained boys before a large number of spectators.

Following the outdoor inspection classes were taken on signalling, aircraft recognition.

Flying Officer Bowman expressed himself as exceedingly well pleased with the progress of the local unit which he characterized as one of the smartest he has inspected in his present tour.

Air Cadets of Western Canada are now under Command Headquarters, Royal Canadian Air Force, No. 1 Training Command, Calgary.

CLANDONALD RED CROSS NOW RE-ORGANIZED

Rev. W. A. McPhee President

A meeting to re-organize the Clandonald branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held on Tuesday evening. May 5th in the Columbian hall with a fair attendance. Mr. Robt. Muir, the Provincial Secretary, was present from Edmonton and gave a detailed and interesting address upon the many phases of Red Cross activity, particularly in relation to the work it is able to do among prisoners of war and in enemy countries. The Rev. L. G. Sieber, Mrs. Morton and Mrs. Whitby came out from the Vermilion branch and explained some of the details of branch organization. They also brought with them a representative selection of articles made by their members.

An election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Rev. W. A. McPhee
Vice-Pres.—Mr. T. J. Souter
Hon. Secretary—Rev. F. A. Peake
Hon. Treasurer—Mr. F.W. Fausch
Work Convenor—Mrs. A. Lawrence.
Other necessary officials of the branch will be elected in the near future.

It is hoped that the branch is active once more the vital and enthusiastic support of everyone in the district is essential

BRING IN YOUR RUBBER SALVAGE

Carload Wanted by End of Month

The Vermilion Salvage Corps are desirous of shipping a carload of scrap rubber to the Scrap Rubber Division of the National Salvage Campaign by the end of May. There is an enormous amount of scrap rubber piled up in the salvage depot now but it takes 2½ tons to fill a car, and every old tire, every rubber heel and sole is needed to make up the amount.

There must be hundreds of used tires lying around the country—every home probably has some used rubber that these in immediately. If you cannot get into town during the day, leave your rubber salvage at any garage or service station in Vermilion. They in turn, will see that it gets to the depot

Country schools are co-operating nobly in the Campaign and Corps at Clandonald, Inwood, Islay, Kitscoty and Vermilion are all working to-gether in a splendid effort to turn waste into use. The help of every citizen is needed also to make the campaign the success it should be.

Work Of The Red Cross

BOTH IN PEACE and war the Red Cross organization has conferred untold blessings upon humanity. But it is during the stress of war that the home-station efforts of the Red Cross are brought more intimately to the attention of the public. The good work accomplished during peace-time in relieving distress can scarcely be computed. In the Western Provinces the outpost hospitals have proven of inestimable benefit to the isolated settlers and the results attained in the care of crippled children have been manifold. Many children afflicted with deformities have been brought back to normalcy and returned to their homes to take their proper place in society. During the distressing economic period through which we have recently passed not a few people had reason to properly evaluate the ministrations of the Red Cross. It is only by voluntary contributions received from the public that this work can be carried on. Practically the whole amount of subscriptions thus received are devoted to relieving distress as the cost of administration has been kept down to a minimum.

* * * *

Has Wide Activities

War with its horrors but serves to increase the activities of the Red Cross and widen its scope of usefulness. Immediately upon the outbreak of war, no time was lost in going into action. Always prepared to deal with any emergency there has been no limitation placed on the diversity of its operations. The Canadian Red Cross answered the call that came from fifteen British hospitals for the gifts of articles of clothing for sick and wounded as well as surgical dressings. Thirty-six mobile kitchen units equipped to go into bombed areas were presented to Britain's fire fighters. An immense amount of clothing was sent overseas for the comfort of the evacuee children. Sailors comforts and supplies for the navy and merchant marine have been sent in large volume. Tribute must be paid to the army of Canadian women working for the Red Cross in the cities, towns and villages throughout the Dominion, and who have been ceaselessly engaged in knitting comforts for the soldiers, sailors and airmen. One is impressed by the vast quantities of knitted articles that have been received from women residing in the agricultural areas of Western Canada.

Aid For War Prisoners

The Canadian Red Cross is planning to send two million parcels of food to British prisoners of war by the end of this year. The packing of food parcels for prisoners of war commenced last year, and reached a total of 22,500 parcels a week and by the end of 1941, 612,944 parcels were shipped to British prisoners in enemy countries. Notwithstanding these reports the enormous number of these parcels are being received by the prisoners and do not fall into the hands of the enemy. A card system has been devised whereby all parcels so delivered are acknowledged by the recipients. Perhaps no greater or important work carried on by the Red Cross is that of providing food and necessities for war prisoners. In the last war many prisoners have reported that they would not be alive today had it not been for the parcels of food regularly received. Indeed the inception of the Red Cross was largely for this purpose. The International Red Cross was founded in Geneva Switzerland, in the year 1864, and its object then was to give aid to sick and wounded soldiers

Raid On Norway

Winnipeg Pilot Receives Recognition For During Work

Some time ago Sgt Air Gunner William Gaston of Winnipeg Man., the son of Major H H Gaston, who was district recruiting officer of the Fort Osborne Barracks in Winnipeg, took part in one of the most successful operations ever carried out by Lockheed Hudson bombers of Coastal Command.

This was a heavy raid on Aalesund, Norway, and Sgt Gaston was rear gunner in a Hudson from an R.A.F squadron. The pilot of his aircraft cut the ceiling at 6,000 feet and dive-bombed the target with the engines dead in order to fool the flak

For this performance, the pilot won the honor of a D.F.C. and Sgt Gaston together with all other flyers taking part in the raid, got a personal letter of congratulation from Britain's Air Ministry.

Today as a pilot officer, he is serving in a Lockheed Hudson squadron of the R.C.A.F in Britain a famous squadron which is now welcoming many new Canadian air crews to replace R.A.F crews transferred to other units. He was commissioned very recently.

Pilot Officer Gaston who is to fly in the same aircraft as the squadron commander Wing Commander A. C. Birrell D.F.C. came to England three months after enlisting in December 1940 as a service operator with the rank of LAC. Last summer he took his air gunner's course and flew with a Bomber Command squadron until he was transferred to the R.C.A.F unit

Of Interest To Rural Communities

In The Western Provinces

The winter series of the CBC's National Farm Radio Forum having concluded, it has been decided to carry on the work during the summer by a new series of 15-minute broadcasts to be heard monthly instead of weekly as in the winter. These summer Forums are to apply themselves to the practical problems of agriculture rather than to agriculture generally, as in the winter series

The CBC's Dominion Farm Broadcast which is estimated to have the largest Canadian listening audience of any programme in any category, went on the air on May 1st, 1933. Since forth it will be heard at 9.00 p.m Central and 8.00 p.m Mountain Daylight Time, and May 1st arrangements which is made, in keeping with the CBC's national policy, having it as illegal to be permeated. CBC's well-known announcer, Gordon Sparling Whittaker, Lorne Green, Larry Henderson, and Ted Devlin, will be heard. Regional newscasts, from the Prairie Regional Bureau at Winnipeg will be heard at intervals throughout the day and late evening. Regional news on CBC's Dominion Network from Winnipeg at 9.00 a.m. C.D.T., 8.00 a.m M.D.T., 12.45 p.m. C.D.T., 11.45 a.m M.D.T., 1.30 p.m. C.D.T., 12.30 p.m. M.D.T. One Of Wise Men

Winston Churchill Knows Light Exercise Best After Middle Age

Winston Churchill is one of the wise men who have tapered off exercise as the years caught up with them. He played polo well beyond his middle age, mounted on a pony like a small cart horse, and golfed with a belt as wide as a woman's corset. Then he took to brick laying, but one of his mate employees observed that he did not like to bend to get his bricks. Now he takes no exercise beyond a walk. But he walks fast and springly. He is noticeably livelier and lighter in weight now than he was when on the outside, protesting and prophesying

The Royal Flying Corps trained pilots and observers at Camp Borden, Ont. during the First Great War.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army.

By Alice Maurice Bell

Did you know that men fainted at the sight of blood, or at the thought of it, more easily than women? It's a fact! Perhaps not quite a fact from the strict angle of the clinical records of many cases that should accompany a medical statement, but—at least for the purpose of this essay—a fact!

The statement comes from a Faithful worker in the Ottawa Blood Donor Clinic of the Red Cross. Five days a week at that establishment streams of men and women go to offer five-sevenths of a pint of blood to be made into plasma and shipped to England for Canadian soldiers and bombed British civilians.

For some reason or other—largely psychological in the opinion of some of the volunteer workers—some of the donors faint. It can't be from loss of blood—many a soldier has lost more than that much blood and still had strength enough to "bawl out" the sweating stretcher-bearers for clumsiness. It is hardly likely the reason is delicacy for, in most cases, the donor has had to be a big husky male, while a little half-pint of a woman is not bothered at all.

At the Ottawa clinic, one afternoon six men were sitting in the rest room enjoying the hot, sweet tea or coffee that is given to each donor, while he rests for a few minutes following his turn on the table, when one of them keeled over. He was followed in a matter of minutes by four of the remaining five.

What has all this to do with the Individual Citizen's Army?

Quite a lot!

For one thing—and I should make it clear that many more people give their blood without fainting than who do faint—the giving of blood is a definite and easy piece of soldiering that we can do in our spare time.

For another, this gives example of why it is never safe for us to be easy on the sugar—there are many better uses to which it can be put than just sweetening beverages.

Two facts—that it is against the law to hoard sugar, and that the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic can't get sugar to good use—were brought home to Montrealers recently when more than a quarter of a ton of sugar was handed over to the Red Cross by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

It had been seized from a hoarder who was fined $100 and costs for "withholding from supply" after the fine was paid there still remained the question of the sugar. While the fine had exploited the offence it was still not possible for the owner to keep the sugar. It is against the law to have more than one week's ration of sugar in your possession.

Hence the windfall for the Blood Clinic which now has a year's supply. And do you know what that year's supply will do?

The clinic needs to "donate for processing 400 units of blood per week. That means that 400 blood donors get 400 sweetened beverages to help them recuperate and by simple multiplication it shows that the once-hoarded sugar will play its part in making possible the shipping of 20 800 units of blood plasma to where it is most needed.

Not all of us are handy enough to a blood clinic to be able to offer our blood—neither is every soldier in the front line. In fact it takes quite a number of soldiers behind the line to keep one at the front.

Of course in these days of mobile warfare it is sometimes hard to tell if the front line is in front, behind or at one side or every soldier, even if he belongs to what was a non-combatant service, is now trained to fight.

That's where the Individual Citizen's Army comes in. We can all train—in fact it looks as if we shall have to. There'll be no more telephoning to the corner drug-store for a packet of cigarettes or a bottle or two of "pop". Now we'll have to do without or put on a hat and walk down there for it.

That's all to the good. How long is it since you went for a walk with your wife, or you with your husband?

It used to be fun, remember? Now we're going to find out that it still is good fun and, what is better, by doing more walking we'll make ourselves fitter

There's no reason why only soldiers should be trained to physical fitness. In fact the members of our army need it more than they do—we've got to be fit enough to do without things so they can have them.

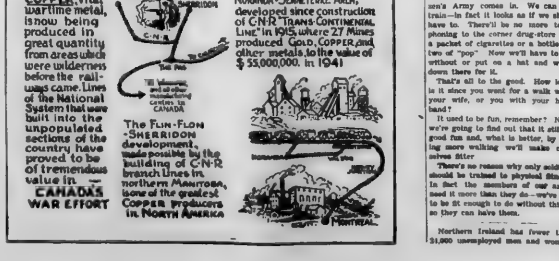
THE RAILWAY AND THE WAR . . . By Thurston Topham



Increased Flax Production Is A Vital Necessity

Ottawa.—Agriculture department officials looked to tens of thousands of prairie farmers to help offset Canada's shortage of vegetable oils by tripling their 1941 flax acreage.

The officials, bearing the close of an intensive campaign in which they had the co-operation of provincial governments, said all prairie farmers were being informed of the necessity for increased flax production this year to compensate for the loss of vegetable oils formerly imported from far eastern territory now in the hands of Japan.

Authorities said it was agreed flax was not a highly popular crop among western farmers, but it was essential that they assist the efforts of the United Nations by tripling their 1941 flax acreage to provide an objective of at least 20,000,000 bushels in 1942.

Over-seed of the prairie provinces must be in the ground within the next week or two and unless the acreage is sufficiently large the production required as an essential contribution to the war effort will not be attained.

In pamphlets it sought to make available to all prairie producers, the agriculture department said, that actual requirements were "unlimited," although an objective of 20,000,000 bushels had been mentioned. If the production is in excess of 20,000,000 bushels, it will be welcome.

A fixed price for flaxseed has been established at $2.25 a bushel basis No. 1 C.W. in store at Fort William.

"Flax fits into the crop rotation in exactly the same way as wheat or other small grains and is grown, harvested and threshed with the same machinery, therefore requiring practically no extra cost to produce," the board said.

"To general, the northern areas of the prairie provinces are more suitable for wheat of lower baking strength than the most southerly districts, are more suitable for the production of high quality flax. Earlier maturing varieties such as Redwing are pushing the flax northward.

The board said the place of flax in crop rotation should be so arranged as to give the crop the best protection against its greatest weakness, inability to compete with weeds.

Summerfallow land, which can be used a greatly increased area last year due to the wheat acreage reduction program, should provide ideal seed conditions for flaxseed production in 1942 the board said.

FARM MACHINERY

Steel Will Be Available For Repair Parts For The Week

Edmonton Although steel allotted for farm implements in 1943 will be cut drastically, more steel will be available for spare parts for machinery used by prairie farmers, J. H. Sweeney, Alberta's deputy minister of

Mr. Sweeney has just returned from Ottawa where meetings of the prairies agricultural engineering committee at Saskatoon The committee is a sub-committee of the national advisory committee on agricultural services.

The statement said only 25 per cent. of the steel tonnage allotted for farm implements in 1940 will be available in 1943 but 150 per cent. of the steel available for parts in 1940 will be allotted for 1943.

The new plan is inherent follows a protest made by agricultural authorities after Ottawa announced a short time ago that there would be no steel available in 1943 for farm implements Mr Sweeney said.

The Saskatoon conference discussed the possibility of reducing the number of types and sizes of farm machines in an effort to meet the shortage of steel

The statement said proposals made by Mr. Sweeney at the conference on behalf of the Alberta government and generally agreed upon by the other delegates included

Issuance of a statement by the federal agricultural supplies board stressing the need for repairing and conserving farm machinery.

That farmers be requested to order farm repairs early so that machinery would be in working order when needed

That the federal government issue bulletins explaining to farmers how machinery can be repaired and adjusted.

BRITISH DESTROYER SUNK

London.—The destroyer Jaguar has been sunk, it was announced. The Jaguar, of the Javelin class, of 1,690 tons, mounted six 4.7-inch guns and 10 21-inch torpedo tubes and carried a normal complement of 183 men.

CORREGIDOR HEROES

Pay Tribute To Brave Men Who Fought Tremendously

Sydney, Australia.—The heroes of fallen Corregidor have taken their important niche in military history, and their five months of resistance deserves a grateful salutation from Australia, because of the time gained for defence of this continent, the press said.

The Melbourne Sun-News recognized that Corregidor's surrender was a major defeat "testifying as bitterly to American unpreparedness as did the surrender of Singapore to our own," but said that the long defence in the face of hopeless odds had "enabled Australia to prepare."

"Let us use this time well," the newspaper said, "for the foe is strong, swift, confident and acquisitive."

The Melbourne Age said, "If sheer tenacity, bravery, and endurance had sufficed, the island fortress would never have fallen.

"What the men of Corregidor have done in the teeth of incessant pounding by shells and bombs, against the hardship of malaria and shortages, deserves to be in its own way with Tobruk, Sevastepol and Malta.

"In the same spirit of defiance the men of Midway island are hoiding out against all odds and preparation for the inevitable day when Japan will begin to feel the weight of counterblows in retribution for Pearl Harbor and Manila."

Sharp Crack In German Morale Has Been Noted

Istanbul.—A neutral business man who spent the winter in Germany reports a shortage of fuel and German locomotives and freight cars said that food and clothing are rationed so strictly that evasion of the regulation is spreading into the ranks of the German army.

The observer who has just arrived here, returning with nothing but p ...ses of deliveries after six months of the rolling stock he sought.

During five months spent in Berlin, from December through April, the business man said he witnessed a sharp crack in German morale and saw hope of victory fade from the German mind.

When he arrived in Germany in December, this observer said, he found everyone hopeful and there was much talk about a German victory.

But when he left in April he added, the country was dispirited and hunting talk of victory was gone and the general outlook was gloomy.

This observer said the principal cause for the fall of public morale was the tough winter the German army spent in Russia and the continually worsening supply conditions.

Entry of the United States into the war caused a momentary gloom, he said, but was quickly dispelled by Japanese victories.

When promised food ration cards no longer were obtainable, German housewives began selling army provisions to anyone who was able to pay, the observer said In December, he said one could get whatever food was listed on the ration cards, but by April only one-half the meagre official rations could be found legally.

He added that clothing, which is officially available by rationing, actually is almost non-existent now. Clothes, like food, disappeared during the winter, he said.

Henry Gorman homes on the Russian front are being made up by the calling up of boys and old men into the army, this business man said. Friends of his attending German university told him that all classes in their schools now are nearly empty. Only wounded men in uniform now are seen on the streets, he said.

DEMOCRACY SYMBOL

London Sir Smedley Crooke proposed in the House of Commons that a group of three from the Near-bench chamber be sent to the parliaments of the dominions and the United States congress, each inscribed as a symbol of a "common resolution to wage war in defence of democratic government." Clement Attlee, secretary for the dominions, said the suggestion would be considered.

FIELD SUMMERS

Men From Prairies Getting Good Training At Camp

Camp Nanaimo, B.C.—Rough and ready field gunners, most of them born and bred on the Canadian prairies, are learning how to pepper the Axis on the Pacific coast where, in the words of their commanding officer, the roads are rough and the timbers are tall."

"If they can learn how to go into action in this kind of country they can do it anywhere," said Lt.-Col. A. B. Gilbert of Saint John, N.B., officer commanding the 21st Field Regiment, as he watched the 64th Field Battery from Yorkton, Sask., perform a deployment manoeuvre in rough bush country a few miles north of this Vancouver island military camp.

Up narrow, winding roads that would have frightened many an experienced motorist, canny drivers drove the big field artillery tractors They bounced at 20 miles an hour over the rough field of an abandoned farm that had been cleared by fire in preparation for the inevitable day when the guns would be ready to fire and if live shot had been used shells would have been raining down on a target more than two miles away.

But the men got a taste of what real action would be like when Gunner J. F. Brown of Yorkton, who was acting battery commander during the absence of Maj. C. W. Beech of Yorkton, released a few thunder flashes (which have a realistic boom that shakes the countryside) and then set off a smoke generator and tear-gas compound.

As the eye-smarting mixture drifted over the mock gas alarms rattled and the men hurried to don their respirators. To Capt. Brown's delight, however, one gunner continued to go through from Capt. Gilbert to the guns, carried by runner since he was unable to shout through his respirator

The gunners had the last laugh, however, when the wind suddenly changed and carried the gas fumes to the rear where Capt. Brown stood Capt. Gilbert, gasping between fits of laughter, pulled the gunner out of the fog.

MENNONITES FOR B.C.

Victoria.—Ten Mennonite families, composed of 20 adults and 74 children from Saskatchewan have arrived in the Vanderhoof-Burns Lake area to take up farming They have joined 25 Mennonite families and 15 families from Alberta, after shortly, from Saskatchewan points. The Saskatchewan government paid for their transportation here.

Carrying steel air raid helmets, four dazed young Britons recently arrived in Canada. They were blitz scouts—four British boy scouts who have given distinguished service during bombing raids on their home towns Youngest is John Bithell, 16, leader of the fifth Birkenhead troop. He was awarded the Bronze Cross for bravery and devotion during the blitz.

CHANGE IN ARMY DIET

Amended Ration Scale Provides Foods Of Higher Vitamin Content

Ottawa.—Members of the Canadian army and the R.C.A.F. will cut down on bread meat and potatoes and make up on foods of higher vitamin content under an amended ration scale declared by National Defence headquarters

The new diet goes into effect June 1. One of its chief features is an increase in the fresh milk ration Grapefruit juices and fresh oranges have been added to the old scale.

Ham has been added as an exchange ration, or alternative, for beef as standard commodity.

Where the present standard ration now calls for 14 ounces of beef, and the same quantity of bread and potatoes only per man, the new scale calls for only 12 ounces of each of these commodities

On the other hand the fresh milk ration has been raised from 10 ounces per man to 15. The sugar allowance has been cut from three to two ounces daily for each man but this shortage is the service man with two meals a week than the civilian who has 3, of a pound

MILITARY TRAINING

Army Tradesmen Must Qualify As Fighting Men

Ottawa Because of the need to have all army tradesmen and specialists trained as fighting men, soldiers given trades training in future must first complete advanced training in their corps, national defence headquarters said.

The statement came simultaneously with announcement that Lt.-Col. Howard Kennedy has been appointed director of trades training, a new directorate, with rank of colonel.

In the past soldiers were selected in all stages of military training to go to trades training institutions, and when a man was selected he might be transferred to any corps.

All soldiers in trades training constituted a pool from which any corps or unit in need of specialists could draw men to fill their establishments.

Under the new regulations a soldier must have finished his advanced training first Then if he is selected for trades training by the commandant of the advanced training centre or the officer commanding his unit, he must return to that training centre when he graduates as a tradesman

The new policy it was said is based on the assumption that an army comprised of tradesmen, no matter how skilled, is useless unless trained as a fighting force as well. It is also expected to simplify matters from an administrative stand point and provide a better selection of men for trades training

Salvage Firm To Operate For A Maximum Effort

Ottawa. Formation of a government-owned salvage company controlled by order-in-council to "acquire and dispose of waste or used matter of all kinds" was announced here.

The new company will be known as Wartime Salvage Ltd and will operate under direction of the wartime prices and trade board.

"The company will operate in close co-operation with government department and agencies on questions affecting the purchase and disposal of salvage" it was said

In addition to regulating prices for salvage and waste matter in the interests of maximum supply it will have endeavor to provide facilities for the orderly marketing of all forms of salvage for which a commercial demand either does not at present exist or is not yet organized."

President of the new company is Walter A Bark of Toronto.

The national salvage control department will endeavor to be responsible for the systematic collection of all salvage after all and for any promotional campaigns aimed at bringing out all forms of usable salvage" the announcement said.

The announcement said the first operation of the new company will be in connection with waste paper

Call Tenders For Construction Of Alaska Highway

Edmonton. — Tenders are to be called this month from both Canadian and American contractors for construction of the permanent highway to Alaska, it was learned

The tenders are to be called by Thomas H MacDonald, commissioner of the public roads administration, federal works agency, in Washington, for construction of the wide highway from end of steel in the Peace River area to Fairbanks, Alaska.

The preliminary pioneer road now is being pushed through the vast hinterland of British Columbia and the Yukon by the U.S Corps of Engineers, under Brig-Gen William Hoge

Summer of the road has been listed as the public roads administration. By treaty, this road is to revert to Canadian control after the war and become part of the Dominion's highway system

It is understood in Edmonton that a group of large construction firms in Ontario is considering the organization of a huge company under the presidency of R M Smith, deputy minister of highways in Ontario

It has been suggested in Washington work on the southern sector be turned over to Canadian concerns giving them slightly less than half the work

Surveys for the permanent road have been by way by American engineers. They are working both from the air and on the ground No date has been set for calling the tenders

FUNDS AVAILABLE

To Assist Students Taking Pre-Medical Course At Saskatoon

Saskatoon—Dr W R Lindsay, provincial treasurer in the Saskatchewan announced funds would be available in the form of loans and bursaries to students taking the pre-medical course at saskatoon

The need for financial assistance by students to obtain Doctor Lindsay pointed out, had been created when it was decided to shorten the holiday period in an attempt to meet the growing demand for trained medical personnel in the services.

The first year would be lost in the training period, second year medical classes at the University of Saskatchewan to start this year on June 1, and will finish some time in December while first year classes are to start on September 22 and finish in April 30

These dates have been planned so that students may give undivided attention without loss of time.

SEND IN THAT TIRE, NO MATTER HOW OLD IT IS

400 Now At Salvage Depot

No matter how old or dilapidated a tire is—it is important to Canada's rubber salvage campaign and should be delivered to the Vermilion Salvage depot at the C.N.R. freight shed. The most important part of the tire is the rubber which is mixed in with the fabric so that is pure rubber.

According to information emanating from eastern rubber headquarters in salvaging tires, the worn down tread tire is peeled off it is only 40 per cent rubber. Then the carcass is left which is composed of fabric and pure gum rubber. This carcass is ground into powder and put through a hot caustic bath, which dissolves the fabric and leaves the precious rubber ready for further use.

So bring in every old tire—Canada needs rubber in her fight for freedom.

Four hundred tires have now been delivered to the salvage depot in Vermilion—this is our objective but this number should be exceeded and even doubled.

Besides tire hundreds of pounds of other rubber material is being turned in to the Vermilion Salvage depot. Have you done your bit yet? Dig out that piece of rubber, that tire, that inner tube and do it now!

SPRING ROUND TRIPS TO EAST CANADA, MAY 22 - 31

ISLAY

The Islay branch of the Red Cross is calling a special meeting on Saturday night May 16th at 8.30 o'clock to arrange for the canvass. The only canvass for 1942 is being asked and Islay's minimum is $500. Let us show that the money boxes at $2.50 each is being asked for weekly, for prisoners of war. Let us give freely to keep those men who bar their freedom fighting for us with something good to eat medical aid comforts for the troubled people.

Most friends in the county have their salvage material, especially rubber, ready and need only when the canvasser calls, as we hope to make a trip do for both Red Cross canvass and salvage. Rags, paper good magazines for reading, are needed. You know what is being asked for though reading your paper and also attending to your radio.

Harry Young has installed a telephone in his store. You country folks can now just call Harry, he will put up your order in time shape and send it out with your neighbor. Harry stocks everything from wool to nails.

Fare rates for Britain. From the rates are being shipped from we can see would think that Britain will get its ample supply of rubber goods and to spare. We suppose that 100 dozen would would be a very creative estimate. But, young boy sent 500 boxes a week and there are many shipped. So could rural farmer who sends for us.

The All Fruit was a success one to the last penny dinner.

Speaking of Red Cross—it is what would we do without our hospital we owe it to have behind us our point? Think of the people of Islay and district. It surely would be like a Dutch to us if it were moved from here. Think of the improvements recently that have been cared for Could you have cared for them at home? Think?

The Argentine carry over of wheat available for export at the beginning of 1942 was estimated at 211,000,000 bushels including 104,127,000 bushels from the old crop of 1941.

WOODVALE

Spring seems to be finally here, after a record of ten days with night frost in succession the last days in April and first week in May, leaves seem to be simply popping on the trees and the whole countryside looks ever so much brighter and cheerful. A good all day's rain soon would gladden everyone's heart, as it is again getting pretty dry. The mild winter seems to have been quite hard on perennial plants and strawberries have suffered more casualties than usual. However, we had our first rhubarb out of the garden and asparagus. Really everyone should try to have a bed of the latter. They are so easy to grow and are way ahead of any other vegetable. One needs only a few years' patience, until the plants get big enough and then enjoy them, until the other garden products come into their own.

Several more people are going to have been this year. We hear that Harvey Hankin, Bob Rankin have ordered a farm while Percy Van Wageningen will have two hives. Cold weather in California has delayed their arrival a bit.

Several friends of Harry Turner arrived at his home on the 6th for a surprise birthday party. A very pleasant evening was spent. Gienna, who works at the home of Mr. Thos. Watt, was one of the party.

Peter Dougan of the Red Cross canvasser or township 49 and will be around one of these evenings to see you — so have your contributions ready.

The Gunton-Watson Red Cross auxiliary is sponsoring a whist drive on Saturday the 23rd at 8 o'clock at the Van Wagenings farm. The money made on the winners and other prizes will go to the Red Cross. There will be boxing, games and a sing-song around the campfire see. It is hoped that there will be time to play a pleasant evening near the water and thus help a good cause.

The threshermen have been cleaning their grounds and planting perennial flowers in their flower beds which seems an excellent idea as they add bloom only while the children are still at school and they also do not suffer so much from the dry hot weather later in the summer.

One of the funniest things seen around here of late was Jack Holmquist Sofel keeping himself balanced on a barb wire fence over the water in Sweeney's slough to rescue Bertha Cowan's hat which had blown into the water. It was a really daring act as Jack is no lightweight and not only did the wire swing perilously, but also the fence posts themselves to collapse—but just didn't

600 ALBERTA GIRLS ENROL FOR HOME SERVICE

More than six hundred girls have been trained for Home Service work under the dominion-provincial youth training program during the past year and one-half years according to Mrs. Fred McNally, deputy minister of education. Most graduates are now immediately into employment, and are still following that employment. Nevertheless, there is still a waiting list both Edmonton and Calgary training centres and a call for new trainees has been issued.

At the Home Service Training Centres, girls are trained to become skilled housekeepers over a two months period. During the course of instruction in cooking, serving, nutrition and marketing, laundering, cleaning, sewing and mending, home nursing, first aid, personal improvement, and as time per mits training in handicrafts is given. The aim is to train the girl to become a skilled housekeeper, one who looks after main line track and sidings, averaging nearly nine miles each but each working unit

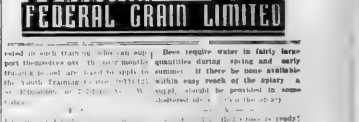
Agriculture and the War

More coarse grains, flax, dairy products and livestock are needed in Canada's war effort. Farmers will assist in Canada's war needs by producing these commodities, wherever possible.

The Government has created an assured market at guaranteed prices for these much needed war commodities.



Bees require water in fairly large quantities during spring and early summer. If there be none available the Youth Training Unit will supply it. A supply should be provided in some sheltered spot

M.D. Vermilion Valley, No. 482

Wheat Acreage Reduction Regulations, 1942

TAKE NOTICE! 1942 Wheat Acreage Reduction forms and instructions have been received and will be handled in the Municipal Office as follows:

The Council of the Municipal District of Vermilion Valley No. 482, at a special meeting held on the 25th inst., passed the following orders for the handling of this work:

1. One day a week (Saturday) shall be set aside for this work and no time can be given to it on any other day. Commencing Saturday, May 2 and each Saturday after, viz: May the 9th, 16th, 23rd and 30th, and Thursday 28th and Friday 29th.
2. The time expires on Saturday, May 30th and no application shall be received after that date.
3. Farm operators shall make application at the Municipal Office of the Municipal District where they reside who ther land is owned in another Municipal District or not.
4. Farmers who applied in 1941 and who have made no change in their land since last year, do not need to make an application in 1942.

BY ORDER OF THE COUNCIL.

H. W. BROWN, Secretary-Treasurer.

$9,000,000 NEEDED NOW!

Every dollar you give to the Red Cross is multiplied by three!

EVERY RED CROSS DOLLAR does the work of three dollars. The Red Cross buys materials at bottom prices. Then, millions of Red Cross workers, knitting, sewing, rolling, without pay, finishing these goods and transporting them free, multiply the original dollar-value threefold.

It is well that this is so, for food, clothing, shelter and hospitalization cost millions.

Every week, 40,000 parcels go overseas now, from the Canadian Red Cross, to prisoners of war. This must be more than doubled to meet the actual need. The surge is continuous; the increase must be continuous.

The Red Cross is on duty 24 hours every day. Never was a dollar worth more in the hands of the Red Cross than now. Do your part to keep this Army of Mercy on the march. Open your heart and your purse strings—GIVE generously.

The Canadian Red Cross Society account are subject to scrutiny by the Auditor General of Canada.

Premier, Alberbart Enunciates 5-Point Agric. Program For Consideration of Federal Govt.

EDMONTON.—In a call to agrarian unity with all producers and other citizens for a program of agricultural reconstruction, Premier Alberbart this week enunciated a five-point program for consideration at the commission to Parliament, the sovereign authority. The program follows: 1. The 1926 prices levied to be taken as basis for guaranteed prices for all farm products; existing prices based on point of delivery, to bear the same ratio to existing prices as the general level of secondary products bears to that which existed in the same year. 2. A definite long range policy in regard to grain and live stock production; 3. Adequate low cost credit facilities for agriculture. 4. A comprehensive scheme of crop insurance; 5. An equitable re-adjustment or all debts on a 3 percent basis.

so so so

NEW CREDIT UNIONS

Incorporation of five new credit unions during April brought to 58 the number of such co-operative unions and kindred associations in the province. Two of the new creations are of the rural community type. They are located at Consort and Mallaig (where the Alberta Arts, Edmonton, unit of the urban community type, and two occupational unions among Medicine Hat civic workers and Lethbridge civil servants. At the end of March there were 3,161 active credit unionists, with assets of $161,779 of which $139,584 is out working in the form of member loans. Since inception of the movement, loans have totalled $555,971. Surplus funds invested in approved manner, mostly Victory Bonds, amount to $12,431.

Alberta's system of farm land tenure brought in as an alternative to the homestead system is meeting with outstanding success, with the result that other provinces and sections of the U.S.A. are interested in making explanations of the plan. This was made known by Hon. M. E. Tanner who has been addressed a Rotary meeting in Edmonton this week. The lands and mines minister outlined details of the system, pointing out that the settlers pay rent only on the basis of the crop harvested, and in case of poor yield, no rents or taxes are payable. This abolishes the possibility of piling up arrears and debt. Since the program went into effect in 1938, 500 settlers have been placed on the land. It is hoped to place greater numbers after the war

DEWBERRY COUPLE WED FIFTY YEARS

Celebration in Edmonton

A surprise party was given by Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hunter at their home this week for Mrs. Hunter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lemp, on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Lemp were married 50 years ago in Europe, and have lived in Edmonton and district for 34 years. They homesteaded at Dewberry in 1904.

They have five daughters and two sons living. 13 grandchildren and three great - grandchildren. There were 17 present at the gathering. Mr. and Mrs. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ieert, Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Lemp, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lemp, and Mrs. H. Lemp and their families. Three daughters were unable to attend: Mrs. K. Daniels of Charlottetown, P. E.I., Mrs. W. Cunningham and Mrs. C. Olibert, both of Seattle, Wash.

The celebrants were presented with a dinner set from the family, and many people called to extend their congratulations.

For the occasion the table was set in lace with bouquets of pink and white snapdragon in hand-painted vase. In the centre was a two-tiered wedding cake with bride and groom miniatures on it and gold maple leaves decorating the sides. —Edmonton Journal

WILDMERE WINKS

so so so

Ray Osterberg of the Air Force who has been stationed at the prest count, arrived home last week to help his Dad with the seeding. Ray looks splendid in his uniform of blue.

Our club meeting was held last Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Osterberg and a big crowd of ladies turned out despite the busy time. A lot of finished work was seen in, dresses, rompers, socks and rompers, some for the Red Cross and some for the Red Shield. Three visitors were present, Mrs. Ed Mc Gill, Mrs. C. Morand and Miss M. Sander. A donation was made to the Milk for British fund, and the President Mrs. Wilson gave a short talk on the Saturday campaign. Mrs. Osterberg then served a very tasty lunch. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Riley's on the 3rd of June.

Mr. George Crothers is a patient in the hospital at present, suffering from sore feet. Here is hoping he will soon find some relief from his painful ailment.

There was a large crowd out to the church service on Sunday and Mr. Pick gave an interesting and fitting sermon for Mother's Day, which all enjoyed. We think we are going to enjoy Mr. Pick's sermons more and more.

Nogra is rather scarce these days as everyone is so busy but here are a few things noticed around: Miss Parker is bend spending the week end at the home of Mrs. Wallberg at the gas well; Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson visiting Mrs. Wilson's parents at Manville on Sunday (Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Findlay; Palomeno Hill and Harrington at the writer's home on Sunday to see the big calf; Mary Gilholme has joined the Women's Corps of the Army; Joan Gilholme is now working at the Royal Alex hospital in Edmonton; The Wallington's at the Gilson home Sunday evening and the home of Fred Arthur on Friday night; George Sanfort helping for a few days last week to get his wheat seeded; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gibson visiting on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sweeney of Vermilion; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Prissell at the Abe Prissell home in Battleview on Sunday; The writer had a nice chat with Mrs. Wm. Gow who is up from Calgary visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Debard of Barnsdale, on Saturday last in town; Last but not least a good rain would do wonders towards settling those clouds of dust, were are almost smothered in the fields and come in from work looking like another race.

Corp. Norman Smith was home over the week end, going back on Monday morning's train.

The Innocent Suffer

Nazi Method Of Reprisal Is Just A Bully's Trick

It is now a settled routine each time the commandos raid a Norwegian island or the coast of France, a certain number of natives, preferably "Jews and Communists," sometimes also those subject persons who cling to them by "solidarity" are seized and shot. Norwegians were shot after the Lofoten raids, Frenchmen were shot after the raid at St Nazaire and the more recent raid at Boulogne It is the old story of the bully who when beaten in a fair fight by a man half his size goes home and thrashes his wife and children to restore his self-respect. In Yugoslavia the powerful Nazi armies are unable to conquer the dauntless Christian of General Draja Mikhailovitch, but they avenge their humiliation by imprisoning and torturing his family and the families of his followers

Do they expect that such methods, from which many a primitive savage would recoil, will break the spirit and the courage of their enemies" If so, we must wonder again, in the words of Hitler, "what kind of people they think we are!" Certainly it is sad to know that each time we strike a blow for freedom some cruel punishment will be visited by the Germans upon innocent captives. But yielding to threats or blackmail will avail us nothing nor will it ameliorate the lot of those who are now in Nazi hands. Victory is our ultimate salvation less as does the whole world a. in the utter defeat of Nazism and the final destruction of its aspiration to place humanity under the boot of a master race Many innocents will suffer and die before that can be brought about, but the blood of martyrs is never shed in vain New York Sun.

SO YOU'RE GOING TO DO A PLAY?

Now is the time to make your plans for the next year. Directors usually spend the summer months reading plays, both from the point of reading enjoyment and of keeping up with New York stage and (b) of selecting plays for next winter's production.

The difficulty in doing this is the expense of buying books. The scripts of the newest plays often cost as much as $3 per copy. However, if you live in Saskatchewan, the Drama League, Darke Building, Regina, has a fine library. To secure books your group, if a junior (under 21 years), may pay a membership fee and then have all the privilege of securing (or reading several) copies at once. (There may be a slight cost to cover postage. I do not know). When these are returned another six copies may be selected. Books on technique are also available and a staff of advisors are available to assist member clubs with their problems.

If you live in Alberta, a letter addressed to Director, Dept. of Extension, University of Alberta, Edmonton, will bring you all available information about reading privileges in connection with an excellent library on drama and other cultural subjects.

In British Columbia, Dr. G Shrum, Dept. of Extension, University of British Columbia will give you information regarding reading facilities for your group on all cultural subjects. Residents of other provinces have similar services.

Now plays direct from the publishers are to be found on the shelves of these libraries, both one and three acts. Many of the newer plays are being made into pictures You may be able to see and enjoy these in the movie of "The Man Who Came To Dinner" there were few changes from the original script. Keep a list of the plays as you read them, name of publisher price of royalty, if any, cost of script, number of men and women in play and a synopsis of plot File these notes for future reference

And now, friends in theatre it is the end of the season It has been nice chatting with you. Till next season then, good-bye Mary Ellen Burgess.

Air Marshal Speaks Out

Billy Bishop Gives Advice To Troops On Wartime Travel

Air Marshal Bishop has hit upon the right way to talk to Canadian fighting men who have been balking at the type of transport afforded them on their voyages overseas. Up until now our officials have been handling them two ways: reprimanding them for lack of discipline or apologizing for the poor traveling conditions.

Billy Bishop put it this way in speaking to a group of airmen at Halifax:

"I can only hope you will be completely comfortable, but I'd like to tell you of my own experience.

During the last war I made eight crossings of the Atlantic. My first trip I sailed on the Caledonia out of Montreal. She was a cattle boat built in 1909 and we took 10 days to cross and we crossed without escort. There was not an inch of that ship that did not stink. Two hundred horses died on the way over."

That, says our No. 1 airman, was wartime travel in 1914-1918; and that, in one way or another, is wartime travel in any age. The Government should do its utmost to provide good passage—and the troops in turn should be ready to take what's coming Ottawa Journal.

Golden Text: The stone which the builders rejected, the same was made the head of the corner. Mark 12:10. Lesson: Matthew 21:23-27, 33-46. Devotional Reading: Psalm 2:1-8.

Explanations and Comments

Jesus Questions the Pharisees. Matthew 22:41-46. After being maliciously questioned as Pharisees and Sadducees, Jesus turned upon them and asked this question: "What think ye of the Christ? Whose son is he?" By this he did not mean what was their thought of him, the Christ, but, what did they think of the Christ promised in Messianic prophecy. Whose son was he? They answered, "The Son of David"; Isa. 11:1; Jer. 23:5. "How then," asked Jesus "is (the Spirit (by divine inspiration) "can David call him (the Lord as in Ps. 110:1.

"Jesus uses the Psalm as the Pharisees understood it. He argues from their interpretation of it. That if the Psalm was not written by David, the argument loses nothing of its weight. Jesus does not base his claim on the Psalm; he only shows these men that their own Messianic doctrine implicitly supported by claim" (Burton). "No signs of escape were open to the Pharisees; either to abandon the Davidic authorship or to deny the Messianic reference. Jerome tells us that they chose the latter and made the Psalm refer to Abraham or David or Hezekiah" (George Adam Smith). The question was not answered, but the question implies that Christ was the Son of God and Savior of God.

Jesus Denounces the Pharisees and Scribes. Mt. 23:1-7. Addressing the multitudes and the disciples Jesus counseled them to do whatsoever the scribes and Pharisees bade them do, for they were sitting on Moses' seat, that is, to them belonged the duty of teaching and hearing. The scribes were ordained with the laying-on of hands, and claimed to have received their authority through an unbroken succession from Moses." Respect was due to their office, and obedience was due to the demands of the law which they taught. Jesus would not have his hearers imagine that they should not heed the law because he criticized the interpreters of the law.

[illegible] This Side Them. Matthew 23:8-11. Jesus bids them not seek to be called rabbi, father, or master; they should be wholly different from the Pharisees, humble were the latter were proud and self-assertive.

Addressing the multitudes and the disciples Jesus counseled them to do whatsoever the scribes and Pharisees bade them do, for they were sitting on Moses' seat, that is, to them belonged the duty of teaching and hearing. The scribes were ordained with the laying-on of hands, and claimed to have received their authority through an unbroken succession from Moses." Respect was due to their office, and obedience was due to the demands of the law which they taught. Jesus would not have his hearers imagine that they should not heed the law because he criticized the interpreters of the law.

[illegible] This Side Them. Matthew 23:8-11. Jesus bids them not seek to be called rabbi, father, or master; they should be wholly different from the Pharisees, humble were the latter were proud and self-assertive.

THE MILKY WAY

So vast is our own stellar galaxy to which our earth and sun belong that it requires 30,000 years for light to cross from its dust outer edge to the planet, and light moves at the rate of 180,000 miles a second.

A stranger offered a ride to a pretty girl.

"Going north?" she asked.

"Yes, indeed," replied the motorist.

"Well, give my love to the Eskimos."

Richard Sheridan looked at his sister with a tolerant eye, his genial face lit with a slow smile. "Sister, you give yourself dand away when you speak of that man. Any one with half an eye can see."

Selby's laughter trilled. "Charleen, of me, don't it? But I don't care. I'm mad about him, simply mad! Hear me? I'd marry him tomorrow if he'd ask me!" In the dusk of the room which was lit only by firelight and one soft lamp, Tamar could see her eyes sparkle.

She moved to Selby's side with determination and put her arms about her. "There it isn't just infatuation, Selby?"

"Infatuation? Brother, have I ever acted like this before?" Selby smiled at Dick, abandoning her actions to his analysis.

"She's completely out of her mind. Things which have always annoyed her, she doesn't even see in the man. On the days when he's coming to supper, she's in a dither over the food and the words small is worth Dave or four small dishes later on. With one thorough digging or plowing in the spring, followed by two or three light cultivations about ten days apart afterwards, and the average garden will practically look after itself.

Transplanting

Success with transplanting can be assured by watering thoroughly after plant, shrub or tree is "planted" Of next importance will be stimulant.

Watering a plant is something like an operation for a human being, and like in operations, it is best to first ensure the attention. With shrubbery or trees you will find roots are few and the shock is severe. Half a pail of water after planting out is not too much for such big things, and the watering should be repeated two or three times a week. If a quick start is wanted.

With ordinary annuals and perennials liberal watering is also advised and whether from hot sun for the first few days. Some pick-up in the way of quickly available commercial fertilizer will help at this time, merely a pinch for small things like tomato plants or Asters, and perhaps up to a couple of handfuls for shrubs and trees.

Care should be taken in the use of any chemical Fertilizer that it does not actually touch roots or foliage. In the dry state it is liable to burn. Experts usually play safe and dissolve the fertilizer in water before applying

Thrilling To Be Appreciated

Say, you can really PLAY! Wouldn't you love to hear that said of you?

You can, you know. Teach yourself to play with a chart. You don't have to be talented!

The chart reaches the main part of your keyboard and also pictures a staff of notes with the keys on it note right next the key it corresponds to.

With this chart standing behind the matching keys you learn the notes quickly. And a thrill to discover that there are only a few different keys to learn C, D, E, F, G, A, B—shown in my diagram are repeated throughout the keyboard.

So you soon actually read any simple song you desire. Also a short-cut way to learn pieces is to play the tune with your right hand, simple harmonizing chords with your left.

Our 24-page piano instruction book, including life-size keyboard chart, has the basic chords you'll need for playing the short-cut way. Explains everything, gives you a way for practice.

Gardening

Not Too Deep

One of the commonest mistakes of the beginner in planting seeds too deeply. Authorities recommend as a general rule only sowing to a depth of four times the diameter of the seed. This means that things like peas and beans will be covered with about an inch of soil, but tiny seeds such as lettuce and poppies will be merely pressed in. With the very fine seeds old gardeners advise mixing with a little sand to prevent thinner and more even sowing.

Informal

Most gardeners are advised to follow the clump planting for flowers and shrubs rather than rows, that is, using groups of at least three of each flower or shrub. Here and there throughout a long bed of flowers an odd, fair-sized clump will be brought forward a bit just to break any tendency towards row lines, but the general rule of planting small stuff in front will be followed.

In both flower and vegetable gardening, of course, an early and thorough cultivation when the ground is moist and the weeds small is worth three or four such attempts later on. With one thorough digging or plowing in the spring, followed by two or three light cultivations about ten days apart afterwards, and the average garden will practically look after itself.

Danger! Liver Trouble is Serious

"Sun Down For Years, Has Perked Me Up"

"I was badly run down and terribly constipated. Then was your med I was always sick and tired. I suffered terrible headaches and nothing did me any good. After a few doses of Fruit-a-tives I felt like a new person. Sun Down For Years, Has Perked Me Up" and "Long Years of Suffering, Now Full of Life"

For a long time I suffered from bad headaches and dizziness. I had no relief until I tried "Fruit-a-tives". Now I am free from these troubles and enjoy good health. I recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to all my friends. Mrs. A. J. Schovers, Galt, Ont.

Are you nervous and irritable—can't sleep or eat—tired out all the time? If you're in that state, it's mighty liver to poison your whole system! Lasting indigestion may be the result

If your liver is the largest organ in your body and most important to your health. It supplies energy to muscles, tissues and glands. If unhealthy, your body lacks this energy and becomes enfeebled—constipation, headaches, dizziness, sleeplessness, sour stomach, bad breath, pimples, skin troubles and rheumatic pains arise from this poison. You become constipated, stomach and kidneys can't work properly. The whole system is affected and you feel "nerve," headachy, backachy, dizzy, tired out—a ready prey for sickness and disease.

Thousands of people are never sick, and have every prompt relief from these miseries with "Improved Fruit-a-tives Liver Tablets". The liver stimulating and tonic action of these wonderful fruit juices, gives back "Fruit-a-tives" to-day "Improved Fruit-a-tives" are the largest selling liver tablets. They have been used successfully NOW Let "Fruit-a-tives" help you back to health and happiness.

The Late King George

He May Have Started "V" For Victory Campaign

After all, says the Detroit Free Man Star, it may be that it was the late King George V. who started the "V" for Victory campaign.

The story goes when the late King was conferring with a sculptor who was designing new coinage for British, the monarch laughingly remarked,

"Make a big V. I would hate to be remembered for any of the other George."

It is understandable that a man of the high sense of duty and modest personality of the late King George would feel like that about his predecessors who bore that name.

But looking out now from the shadows he will be proud of the manner in which the son, the present King George VI., is with his gracious consort maintaining the tradition of service which he himself exemplified.

Did it ever occur to you that the trouble with the man with a grouch is that he can always find a line of malcontents to sympathize with him?

CANTON WATSON RED CROSS NOTES

A meeting of the Canton Watson Red Cross auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. J. Haan of Tolland on May 6th. Despite the busy season there was a good attendance and a nice parcel of finished work was turned in. Quilt blocks are being prepared now, to be made into quilts later on when the busy time is over. Thanks are due to Mr. Van Waveren-Haasen who has kindly donated the wool for this purpose.

A weiner roast is planned for May 23rd on the Van Waveningen farm at Woodyard from 8 p.m. onwards. Games, bathing and boating may be indulged in and there will be a singsong around the camp fire. A small charge will be made for refreshments. The Red Cross society is making an appeal for funds. Come and help a big cause in this small way and have a jolly evening besides. Everybody is welcome. It was also decided to hold a picnic again this year and the date was set for July 15th. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Wilhem Farr of Tolland and an invitation is being extended to members of the B.W.B. club to attend this meeting for a friendly get-together.

MANY MATTERS UP AT COUNCIL MEETING

Gas Company Asked to Repair Lanes—Bus Stop Still Unsettled

A special meeting of the town council was held on Monday evening, May 19th with Mayor Morrison and councillors Spencer, Kaiser, Scott, Porter, Bushell and Stewart present.

Correspondence: Northern Hardware re sidewalks; Western Greyhound Bus Lines re bus stop; Dept. of Nat. Defence re College; Salvation Army re Cunliffe; Harry Maxfleet re purchase of lot; Franco Oils Ltd. re gas bill; Can. Nat. Railways re spurr.

Letters from the Northern Hardware Co. and the Western Greyhound bus lines were handed to the Chairman of Public Works for attention.

Letter from the National Defence Dept. in reply to wire sent by Mayor Morrison, was ordered filed, but it was decided to keep in close touch with a view to having the college coupled.

Agreement with the Salvation Army Basset Home, Calgary, re Miss Cunliffe was contained on present basis of $5 per month.

It was noted that Mr. Swanson would get in touch regarding gas bill and no action taken for the present.

The C.N.R. reported that the spurr to the Light plant had been spiked, and that it would be left for the present. Letter was ordered filed.

Assessment plans as prepared by the City of Edmonton, and the Province of Alberta were examined but will be studied further.

It was decided to have the Gas Co. fire up to their agreement re putting lanes back in shape.

Constable Harrington, the Chief of Police, submitted a report on conditions in general in the town, and attended the meeting to discuss the various conditions.

The question of stock being on the airport was again up for discussion and it was decided to give final warning to owners that stock will be impounded.

It was mentioned that juke boxes are being played in a local cafe until well into Sunday morning, and the Secty was instructed to notify this cafe that the music must be turned off at midnight.

House tenders were opened but owing to the fact that several parties had been denied admission to see the houses, it was decided to re-advertise, and make arrangements regarding admission to the various houses.

Motions made and carried;

Bushell—Spencer: That Lot 12, Blk. 25 Plan 625V be sold to H. Maxfleet for sum of $15.

Bushell—Spencer: That building permits be approved for; Burns and Co., Creamery $600, Norman Greig, residence $700.

BRING IN THAT SALVAGE! Tires and Metal Wanted!

There is a small mountain of tires and old rubber in the salvage depot — but enough of this material — to make a carload by the end of May—that means that we have to double up the amount now collected. Islay and Clandonald have been good in the truck loads of tires thus helping out materially. Bring that old tire and tube to town today.

The fire trucks have been doing excellent work in picking up mate ial around town, using the delivery rig of M. Wiwer and soon to do it. On Saturday last they even visited the ball ground and picked up 30 o'd tires which had been dumped there last fall. Some boys have already made the Salvage Corps invaluable aid.

Metal is not yet coming in, in any amount. At Vegreville farmers have already delivered nearly two carloads to the Salvage depot there, amounting to nearly 100 tons. One farmer shortowed in three old tractors and turned them over to the Salvage Corps.

Don't forget—there is still a need for paper and rags although plans is practically unmarketable from Vermilion.

FROST BLACKENS CROPS AND GARDENS

The heaviest May frost in the history of the district was registered here last Thursday night and Friday morning when the thermometer sank to 19 above zero, 22 degrees of frost. This was followed up Friday night by another 12 degrees of frost. As a result wheat crops were frozen to the ground in many cases and barley, which has not the resisting power of wheat, suffered greatly also.

Gardens were badly hit and some things will have to be re-seeded. The blossoms were also damaged on saskatoon bushes etc. Many people are now watching to see what happens to the Elks, which would have been out in full flower by now, and it looked, previous to the frost, that it was going to be a real Elks' year.

The leaves and buds were completely frozen off the green ash trees so this variety will have to start all over again if they are going to leaf out this season.

DR. C. W. STEPHENS ENLISTS IN MEDICAL CORPS

Dr. Clive W. Stephens has enlisted in the Canadian Army Medical Corps and left on Sunday night for Edmonton where he will remain until June. From there he will go to Camp Borden for a two weeks training leading to his commission of Captain. Dr. Stephens purchased the practise of Dr. W. W. Bell four years ago, coming at that time from Bend, Sask. He is a native of Ireland, however, a son of Mrs. Stephens and the late I. N. Stephens. He took his public and high schooling in Vermilion, the degree of B.A. at McMaster in Toronto, and his medical degree at the University of Alberta.

During the past week Dr. Stephens has been the guest of honor at several farewell gatherings tendered by his friends who wished him the best of luck and a quick return.

Mrs. Stephens and two children will remain in Vermilion.

Boards of Trade Hold General Meeting At Derwent

Vermilion, Elk Point, Myrnam and Derwent Represented

Nine members of the Vermilion Board of Trade attended a meeting at Derwent on Monday evening at which representatives from four centres were present. These towns were Elk Point, Myrnam, Vermilion and Derwent. Clandonald members, also invited as having common interests and problems, failed to arrive. There were 42 in attendance.

President G. J. Algot, of the Derwent Board of Trade, acted as chairman of the associated gathering and stated that it was hoped to encommate considerable business and to learn a lot during the discussions of the evening. The younger towns to the north were just now encountering problems that Vermilion had met before and it was felt that much could be learned from the older town's experiences. Matters notated on the agenda were the weekly half holiday question, the Salvage problem value of boards of trade, incorporation of communities, an all weather north and south road.

The weekl half holiday was the topic first discussed. This is observed by some of the north towns on Wednesday and some on Thursday. Gerald Stephens spoke of Vermilion's experience in this regard and gave a clear outline of the store hours in Vermilion at the present time. He also noted that the weekly half holiday was first for three months of the year but is now observed for eight months. He expected that it would not be long hefore it would be extended for the year round. Derwent is just now deciding which is the better day, Wednesday or Thursday on account of local conditions, with Myrnam in the same position. This is caused by the trains coming in on Wednesday afternoon. Elk Point observes a half day on Thursday.

Stories Of Romantic Period In Ministry Of British Columbia

The death of Clarence Harper Tingley, born in Victoria 72 years ago, recalls one of the romantic periods in British Columbia's history, the 20 years and more during which his father, the late Stephen Tingley, drove for and operated the "B.X.", the famous express service on the Cariboo Road.

The first Cariboo expressman was Billy Ballou who, for four years maintained a more or less regular communication between the mining districts on the Fraser and the creeks and the outside. Ballou's service was crude and was carried on under circumstances of extreme hardship. So was that of his rival, F. J. Barnard, who is said to have walked the whole distance from Yale to the Cariboo mines with papers and letters on his back not once but several times.

In 1862, Barnard established a pony express and secured the mail contract and that put Ballou out of the running. This was the beginning of Barnard's Express the "B.X." which, for many years controlled transportation to the Cariboo and operated a famous line of stagecoaches.

Steve Tingley was associated with Barnard practically from the establishment of the pony express, first as driver, then as partner. Later he bought out the business and operated it himself for more than 30 years.

For many years, Steve Tingley was the best known whip in the West. It was he who drove Lord and Lady Dufferin through the Fraser canyons. Lady Dufferin met beside him on the box of the coach on the return journey to Yale and records proudly in her diary that the driver told her she "hadn't a scare in her."—Vancouver Province

MAY 24

THURSDAY: THE LAST DAY WITH THE DISCIPLES

Golden text: This do in remembrance of me. Luke 22:19.
Lesson: Luke 22:7-38.
Devotional reading: John 14:1-6.

Explanations and Comments

At the Paschal Feast, Luke 22:14-18. When Jesus and his disciples were seated for the Passover meal, he spoke to them with great intensity of feeling, saying, "With desire I have desired I'll have longed more than I can say) to eat this Passover with you before I suffer." We can readily understand his overwhelming desire to partake of that special meal with his disciples. The occasion points back to a most memorable event which resulted them of the beginning of their life as the people of God, and in the instituting at that time of the Lord's Supper by which the old and new together.

The Institution of the New Feast, the Lord's Supper, Luke 22:19, 20. And he took bread, and when he had given thanks, he brake it, and gave to them, saying, "This is my body which is given for you." This represents my body.

"This do in remembrance of me." By this act recall me to mind, even as the Paschal feast recalled to your mind the deliverance from Egypt. And he gave them the cup saying, "This cup is the new covenant in my blood, even that which is poured out for you." The graphic present is used because his sacrificial death was then at hand. The new covenant: a series of promises was usually offered in ratification of a covenant. "In the contrast of the old and the new, there is clearly a reference to Jer. 31:31-34 as well as to Exodus 24:8." A. E. Garvie.

The Announcement of the Betrayal, Luke 22 21-23. "But behold, the hand of him that betrayeth me is with me on the table." "He that dippeth with me in the dish," Mark 14 20: the dish contained the sauce of bitter herbs. To John, Jesus indicated that it was Judas, Jn. 13:26. By putting verses 21-23 after verse 18, we would make Jesus' announcement of the traitor's presence given before the instituting of the memorial rite and therefore in harmony with the account as given by Matthew and Mark.

IT CONCERNED HIM

An actor entered a tailor's shop and gave him an order for a suit. He took home a small pattern of the material and showed it to his son.

"What do you think of it, Tommy?" he asked.

"Not bad," he replied.

"Why you're looking at the wrong side," added the actor.

"I know I am," the boy replied, "but that's the side I shall have to wear when the suit comes down to me."

MIGHT BE GOOD IDEA

Sir Thomas Beecham said he would like to see a 90 per cent tax imposed on anyone making a speech on the war. "The trouble in North America is that every one reads six newspapers a day and listens to the radio the rest of the time," he said. "They have no time to think for themselves. Maybe this will be bad, it would be if they would get up and use their own brains!"

WALKING FOR HEALTH

"Walk your way to health" is the advice of E. A. Conklin, writing in the current issue of "Hygeia."

He asks: "Are you one of those who dislike the very thought of walking when a car, bus or other vehicle is available? "If you are," he advises, "it's really too bad, because apart from its many physical benefits, a daily walk actually improves your mental condition tremendously. If you're inclined to be melancholy when you awaken in the morning, a walk will help chase away your depression. If you have deep-rooted worries on your mind, walking will help relax you and give a temporary respite and allow you to face your difficulties a little later with renewed vitality."

Mr. Conklin believes that posture is important in walking. He says: "Tuck your half the joys life can give if your head is up in the clouds or directed towards the street beneath your feet. Try being comfortably erect, watching and checking on yourself at frequent intervals. If the muscles which control your posture have become a bit stiff and cause unwelcome pains, keep at it; slowly but surely nature will adjust you to your newly found physical position."

"Hand in hand with correct posture," writes Mr. Conklin, "goes the mileage you may put into your daily walking expeditions. For the beginner, a mile is sufficient. The experienced walker can gracefully stand four times as much. Walkers find that by gradually increasing the scope of their walks at the rate of an additional half mile each week, they are soon able to look a five-mile hike in the face writhing wincing."

Sold Well in Norway Until Nazis Detected The Allegory

An apparently innocent animal story, "Thumper the Seal, a Fable for Children and Adults," was a best seller in Norway, until the Germans detected the allegory. The book told of a small seal (Norway) which was made prisoner by the killer whale (Germany). The seal had an Uncle Walrus (England), who came to the aid of the seal and together they fooled the killer whale, "which eventually was caught in a rock fissure." Included in the story were two seagulls (Quislings) with red marks over one eye (the brand of Cain), who betrayed their former friend of the sea.

CHAPTER XXII.

Tamar remembered Ransome's warning about telling on the Corbett Hill Rd., after she had turned Madcap's head toward the dusty trail that led to the Petten's shack. She wanted no time on Jimmy Petten, though, for there were other things to consider.

She had called Dr. Forrester before she left Shadwell and wondered if she would know what to do during the time that it would take to drive out from Tahlahneha. Hill Road? She stopped, stunned with the impact of this last thought.

With determination she then urged Madcap forward. Shrugging her slender shoulders beneath their green sweater, she thought, "I am certainly getting to be a suspicious monger."

The old wagon track that she had known as a child had widened into a dusty road which trucks and cars cut out of the red clay. The narrow, weed-covered tracks that led to the Pettens joined abruptly to the wider road at a place hidden by thick undergrowth

Beyond the junction there was a sharp rise in the mine road, concealing what lay ahead. It had been weeks since Tamar had crossed the top of the hill.

Below her lay the swimming hole. She looked at the countryside around her. It was peacefully still and warm. The thought of the swimming hole drew her and she recalled vividly the last time that she had gone there.

"I'll ride Madcap to the top of Lee hill toward the mine," she thought.

Madcap picked her way daintily along the firm ground at the side of the dust. Her sleek coat shone in the sun and her proud little head was held high.

Tamar pulled on the bridle as they neared the rise, slowing Madcap's walk to a halt at the top.

Below her, just a few yards away, was were workings on the Lee Lode. There were three of them: picks and shovels in hand. They looked up sharply as her appearance, one of them called out. "The road's being repaired. You'd better go back, Miss Randolph."

Tamar never knew afterward why she thought he sounded too excited merely to be warning her about the condition of the road. Without a word, she brought her hand down sharply on Madcap's shoulders and started down.

Tamar heard one of the men say something in a low tone. "There's a good place here. We'll dump it right underneath—or something." he called warningly

Tamar sat rigid. Madcap stepped into a deep ditch that had certainly not been visible, and Tamar thought of a quicksand bog. She never loved Madcap's head into the dust.

The men swore viciously. The mare had broken her leg and would have to be shot. "What in hell will we do with her?. We haven't got long to decide."

Tamar lay in the dust where she had fallen while they talked. She tried to sit up but was too dizzy. She began to realize they were frantically discussing her

"Tourne will give us hell for more than this."

"Who'd have thought she'd pick today to go to the mine? Jake, you'll have to take her some place in the car"

"We've got to shoot the mare and get her out of sight. Here comes Petten comes along. Get that rope out of the car." Their voices were harsh with excitement.

Tamar knew a sickening wash of fear sweep over her. Kill Madcap? Not Madcap who was one of the family. She cried out, but the men were furiously didn't pay any attention.

Tamar heard one of them say something about her, but she walked slowly to the mare. She laid her head against that of the little roan and knew that she would always remember the look in Madcap's eyes. She suddenly couldn't bear it any longer. Blind with remembering she finally got control of herself.

"Lady, will you shut up that racket? We've got trouble enough without havin' you waterin the road. I'm sorry we've got to shoot her this a party little thing."

"Don't get soft, Jake. Get over Miss" shouted one

"Oh, don't kill her! Don't just don't!" begged Tamar. In a frenzy she ran toward the man with the rope. "Don't! Oh don't!"

Tamar saw that his face had certainly indelibly printed upon it the was hard and cruel and without lines of cruelty. He deliberately tied her in the grip of one hand and waved with the other

When the shot rang out Tamar was thrown violently to one side. "Want a bullet for yours?" He turned back to the mare. "Hitch her on to the truck and drag her out we've got to hurry"

Tamar watched in fascinated terror with tears streaming down her face while they pulled Madcap out of the ditch and dragged her, with much swearing and backing of the truck They took the dead animal back to the clump of undergrowth of the junction out of sight

In her helplessness, rage possessed Tamar. Why was it important they hurry?

"Why will Major Towne be angry for this mare?" she asked coldly of Jake.

Jake said nothing The man who seemed to be the leader finally threw down his pick.

"She's your job Jake. Take care of her until this is over"

"What'll I do with her?"

"Put her in the truck and drive— my God!" he broke off, 'Sister, you're sure in a tough spot' Fool women!" He called Jake to one side and they talked in low tones.

Without a word, Tamar started down the road toward home She began to run. She must get home and warn her father about the She knew now that she had been concerned with Madcap that she had not given a chance for common sense to tell her what was about to happen

She heard a car start up, and driving the men's purpose, broke through the wall of hedge, scratching herself on the thorns. But the driver had seen her He threw on the brakes and followed her, catching her roughly by the arm

She knew only one brief regret, before he picked her up and carried her to the car. It was not Jake

"It Pays to Deal at Wener's — The Busiest Store in Town!"

Eggs are among the vital foods in the diet and at the same time one of the most perishable. Therefore, special attention must be given to the egg, not only by the poultryman but by everyone who handles it from the time it is laid until it is taken from the carton in the room, or kitchen.

"If anyone honestly believes this action to be a good thing for this country, I shall respect him as an honest man, although I shall treat him as a dangerous lunatic, because he is advocating national suicide"—Donald Gordon, Chairman, Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

SMALL ATTENDANCE AT BOARD OF TRADE MEETING

The regular meeting of the Board of Trade was held on Monday at noon with a small attendance. Arrangements were made for attending the meeting of Boards of Trade scheduled for Bowness that evening. It was also decided to cancel next week's meeting as Monday May 25th is a public holiday, and on Monday June 1st C. E. Strocher, supervisor of Credit Unions, will be the guest speaker. The meeting will commence at 12.15 noon with a luncheon, the address following immediately after.

On receipt of word that the department of fisheries was seeking a training centre for Canadian Women's Army Corps a long wire was sent to the officials again setting forth the advantages of the Agricultural college. The delegation which waited on the M.D. of Vermilion Valley council regarding the improvement of a short stretch of road north and west of town reported a sympathetic hearing and it is likely that considerable work will be done on the roadway in question in the very near future.

It is really regrettable that in a town with the number of business men Vermilion has, only a few can attend a board of trade meeting. Yet three same non-attendees, who are unwilling to put themselves out one iota for the welfare of the community which is giving them their living, are the first ones to complain about why the college isn't used; why haven't we a real north and south roads; why non publicize our all field meets; why doesn't the board of trade do this or that. There is plenty of community work to do and every man in the town should shoulder a share of it.

ROLL OUT THE RUBBER

No more important task faces any voluntary organization than the rubber salvage program. Remember you and I and the people of Canada must produce 50,000,000 pounds of salvaged rubber to meet our war requirements.

Everyone realizes that old rubber tires are the chief source of reclaimed rubber poundage. Because this is so, however, many ignore other sources that must be tapped if we are to meet our quota. Don't let your eye glide casually over that old door mat or bathing cap when you are looking for rubber. Slickers, rubber heels, bathing caps and bathing suits, rubber tired sash trays, hot water bottles, hockey pucks, football bladders, rubber grips and exercisers, and garden hose are other articles that should be brought in by the thousands.

Men called for military training in Canada totalled 120,305 between Oct. 9, 1939 and March 12, 1942.

CONSERVATION IN THE HOME

Many simple practices may be adopted in the home to assist Canada's war effort says Miss Vera Richards of the Extension Branch, Department of Agriculture.

The following suggestions are made to remind housewives that adoption of these simple practices will be a saving and will support the Nation's war effort.

SAVE fuel by cooking several dishes in the oven at one time or cooking sufficient cereal for two meals.

SAVE all fat. Clarify and use for cooking.

SAVE sour milk. It makes tender cakes and biscuits and delicious rat trap cheese.

SAVE stale bread. It makes crumbs for escalloped dishes, dressings and puddings.

SAVE tea and coffee grounds. They are good for cleaning dishes, dressings and puddings.

SAVE vinegar from pickles. The spicy flavor adds zest to salads.

SAVE celery tops, parsley or green onion tops for the soup pot, or for seasoning. Beet and turnip greens are nutritious and tasty vegetables.

WILDMERE WINKS

Well folks, it looks as if this little item will be on Tuesday morning so it still knows how. That heavy frost we had the other night surely was tough on the grain and chickens that were out. The writer's socks are still ill in the pockets.

We wish to extend our sympathy to Mrs Burton Seale of Battleview on the loss of her father a short time ago.

The writer was called to Edmonton last Tuesday night owing to the illness of her sister-in-law Mrs. Elsie Graham who is in the Royal Alex hospital with pneumonia. When we left Edmonton she was feeling some better. Little Bobby Graham came back to the farm with us for a while until his mother is feeling better

Mrs. George Swaffield met with a rather painful accident last Monday evening (May 11) while watering some horses. She was pumping the water into the trough one at the animals raised its head rather quickly striking her in the face. Her face was very badly swollen for a few days.

Mr Thos. Best also met with an accident recently. While catching one of the horses on the range his foot got tangled in it, the horse became frightened and dragged him around the corral leaving his leg quite badly. After getting loose from the horse he walked back and 4 miles to his nearest neighbors about half a mile away taking him about half an hour. Dr. Hall of Vermilion got John Wilson to take Mr. Best to the hospital where he is still confined. All his friends wish him a speedy recovery and the same wish goes to all our other sick friends in the locality.

Another grand old man has gone to his well earned rest in the person of Mr P. G. Pitkie. He lived to be a good age among us and we extend to his sorrowing family our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement. One by one the old timers are going on but their good work left behind is a living monument to them.

Mrs. Robert Smith, we are glad to say, is slowly improving after her serious illness and is also patient in the hospital.

Gunner Laurence Graham came home Sunday morning last for his two weeks furlough. Laurence looks fine and likes the Army. For the past two months he has been stationed in Manitoba. Alex Ross of Wainwright arrived in camp just before he left so Arthur Pells of Battle Creek didn't once said both were fine and wished to be remembered to folks back here.

On Sunday the Wallington Lawrence and Dabby Graham were all visitors at the home of Mr and Mrs. George Rossington how lucky where a pleasant time was enjoyed Mr. Wm. Gow and children, Mr and Mrs C. Imbert Mr and Mrs H. Moore and daughter were also visitors at the same place so quite a party was enjoyed altogether.

Say folks, the calf is still growing. At two weeks it weighed 172 pounds. This making a steady daily gain each of 21 pounds. All who have seen it say it is the largest calf they have ever seen. It was also mentioned on the Neighbor Hours radio program on Monday morning.

J. C. Wallington has been chosen official collector for the Red Cross in our part of the country. He will be calling on you one of these days.

Parade of Tanks

Can you imagine what a 65-ton military "tanks" would look like? Well, if they rumbled past at the rate of one a minute, it would take over four hours for them to pass. They could turn the tide of battle. Yet, the amount of metal that goes into 25c tanks is the calculated savings made by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board in reducing the number of styles in plumbing and heating fixtures.

Loaded up to the gunwales, they couldn't attempt to carry the Canadian flotilla here, who will be shipped near battle areas out of the sawlines in cloth made by eliminating the ruffle and extra trousers from men's suits. Mr. Ed Preuss, Assistant Retail Administrator of the W.P. and T. Board, made an inspection of men's wear retailers all up the other day, when he showed them that the new economy order will save 1,125,000 yds. of cloth, a year—enough to make 225,000 civilian suits or battle dress for 375,000 fighting men.

NATIONAL WAR LABOUR BOARD

COST OF LIVING BONUS

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has found that the cost of living index number for April 1, 1942, of 115.9 [adjusted index 115] has not risen by one whole point or more over the index number for October 1, 1941, of 115.5 [adjusted index 114.6]. Accordingly, the National War Labour Board, pursuant to the provisions of Section 12 of Order in Council P. C. 8253, determines and announces, for the period May 15, 1942, to August 15, 1942, subject to the right of employers or employees to apply to a War Labour Board for authorization of payment of such an amount of cost of living bonus as a War Board may determine to be "fair and reasonable," under the provisions of the Order, that:

(a) There shall be no change in the cost of living bonus presently being paid;

(b) An employee who has not been receiving cost of living bonus may not begin to pay such bonuses.

REPLICA OF EARLIEST SETTLEMENT CREATED INTEREST

Lower Granville, N.S.—If the visitor wishes to see what one of the earliest settlements on the North American continent looked like he is required to pay a visit to Lower Granville where there has been erected an exact replica of the habitation built by the French explorers De Monts and Champlain in 1606. This is considered to be the first authentic European settlement north of the Gulf of Mexico, and is owned by the Province of Nova Scotia. The habitation was visited by nearly 10,000 tourists last season, the first year it was opened to the public. A force from Virginia captured the habitation in 1613.

M.D. Vermilion Valley, No. 482

Wheat Acreage Reduction Regulations, 1942

TAKE NOTICE! 1942 Wheat Acreage Reduction forms and instructions have been received and will be handled in the Municipal Office as follows:

The Council of the Municipal District of Vermilion Valley No. 482, at a special meeting held on the 25th inst., issued the following orders for the handling of this work:

1. One day a week (Saturday) shall be set aside for this work and no time can be given to it on any other day. Commencing Saturday, May 2 and each Saturday after, viz: May the 9th, 16th, 23rd and 30th, and Thursday 21st and Friday 29th.
2. The time expires on Saturday, May 30th and no application shall be received after that date.
3. Farm operators shall make application at the Municipal Office of the Municipal District where they reside who ther land is owned in another Municipal District or not.
4. Farmers who applied in 1941 and who have made no change in their land since last year, do not need to make an application in 1942.

BY ORDER OF THE COUNCIL.

H. W. BROWN, Secretary-Treasurer.

Don't be a CUPBOARD QUISLING!

"Cupboard Quislings"! Is that too hard a name for people who selfishly lay in unnecessary stocks of clothes or food, or other goods for fear of shortages?

No! The name is not too hard, even though it may be earned through thoughtlessness. For in reality they are doing, in a petty, mean way, what the Quisling does in the open.

Anyone who buys more than is necessary for current needs—

Is breaking his country's law for personal advantage.

Is betraying his loyal neighbours and those who are not so well off as he.

Is, in effect, depriving our fighting men of the munitions and supplies they must have to defend us.

Is hindering our war effort and helping our enemies.

Loyal citizens avoid putting unnecessary and abnormal strains on our factories. In time of war, loyal citizens do not spend one dollar more on civilian goods than is absolutely necessary for current needs.

The law provides for fines up to $5,000 and imprisonment up to two years for hoarding; and hoarding is just another word for unnecessary selfish buying.

In cases where it is advisable for you to buy in advance of your immediate requirements — such as your next season's coal supply — you will be encouraged to do so by direct statement from responsible officials.

The Week in Legislative Circles . . . In Edmonton

BY-ELECTION

No official announcement has yet been made in regard to the by-election made necessary in Edmonton by the death of Mr. D. M. Duggan. Under provisions of the Electoral Act the government has until Nov. 4 to hold the election. Before it can be held, a new enumeration will be necessary.

REFUNDING TALKS

Refunding talks will be resumed on May 21 in Edmonton, it is announced by Hon. Solon E. Low, the provincial treasurer. Word received from Controller Elliott, chairman of the bond holders section of the refunding committee, makes definite the resumption of negotiations on this date. It was reported last week that United Kingdom bondholders had made certain proposals relative to the bond situation and from the civic heads of Edmonton a request to be included in any favourable refunding plan, was received by Mr. Low.

LONG DRAWN TOBACCO CASES

What may be an impasse had been reached in the long-drawn tobacco cases in the province on Tuesday this week Mr. Justice Howson renewed permission to the province to appeal against decision of the Alberta appeal court which quashed convictions obtained against members of the tobacco trust on charges of operating a combine. When the firms were convicted initially nearly two years ago and local handling, fines totalling $221,500 were imposed. Later a stay of proceedings was ordered by another judge, although some defendants paid the fines. It is possible that the province may set quivered under the Criminal Code, the actions so far being come under the Combines Act.

When Trans-Canada Air Lines commences service to Newfoundland next month the passenger cabins of its planes will be "blacked-out" for arrival at the two scheduled stops on the Island. These are St. John's and Gander Lake. Curtains will be drawn over the windows 20 minutes before arrival and remain so until the aircraft is on the ground. The procedure will not be strange to air travellers as the practice has been in effect approaching Halifax for some time.

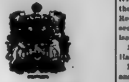
"Total war and a high standard of living simply can not march together . . . they are simply contradictory terms. That is very simple fact yet few individuals seem to have realized themselves what they ought to do about it. It has not yet dawned on them that if we are to organize for total war it is the people who must take the leadership." —Donald Gordon, Chairman, Wartime Prices and Trade Board.



TENDERS FOR COAL

(Western Provinces)

SEALED Tenders addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Coal for Western Provinces," will be received until P.M. (E.D.S.T.), Tuesday, June 2, 1942, for the supply of coal for the Dominion Buildings and Penitentiary Coal Farms and Stations throughout the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia

Forms of tender with specifications and conditions attached can be obtained from the Purchasing Agent, Department of Public Works, Ottawa, the District Resident Architect, Winnipeg, Man., the District Resident Architect Saskatoon, Sask., the District Resident Architect Calgary, Alta., and the District Resident Architect, Victoria, B.C.

Tenders should be made on the forms supplied by the Department and in accordance with departmental specifications and conditions attached thereto. Coal dealers' license numbers must be given when tendering.

The Department reserves the right to demand from any successful tenderer, before awarding the order, a security deposit in the form of a certified cheque on a chartered bank in Canada, made payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to 10 per cent of the amount of the tender, or Dominion Bonds at the (nominion of Canada or of the Canadian National Railway Company and its constituent companies unconditionally guaranteed as to principal and interest by the Dominion of Canada, or the aforementioned bonds and a certified cheque if required to make up an odd amount.

Such security will serve as a guarantee for the proper fulfilment of the contract

Joe Falcon was granted canvas for a tent. $19.45 passed as Pound fees and damages.

By Law No. 42 was given three readings and passed. This By-Law provides for the levying of a Poll tax.

One payabeet amounting to $6 was passed and other bills amounting to $1180 ordered paid.

Consideration was given to the distribution of the Government grant of $2500 for road purposes and the suggested roads will be submitted to the Department of Public Works. This grant entails the spending of an equal sum by the M.D.

Council adjourned.

BOWTELL BULLETIN

Twelve members were present at the last meeting of the Busy Bees club held at the home of Mrs. Meeks. Besides the regular members, visitors were Mrs. D. Gow of Calgary and Mrs. Rieble. Four new members joined the club bringing the total to 18. The four new members are Mrs. Moore, Mrs. L. Millar, Mrs. Repp and Mrs. Gow. Due to the absence of Mrs. Harrison, vice-president Mrs. Perkins took the chair. $30 of our cash was donated to war services. Mrs. Kendall donated a quilt top to be filled and finished by the Bonnadale ladies. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Dudelly's, lunch served by Mrs. McGinnis and Mrs. Sherwood.

We are quite pleased to have in our midst again Mrs. Gow (Violet Long) of Calgary who is spending a vacation with her mother, and her sister Mrs. Gen. Monaghan of the Morrison district.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman McClellan entertained a visit last week from their daughter Evelyn who now lives in Calgary.

There is to be a dance in the Bowtell school on May 29th sponsored by the teacher and pupils in aid of the Red Cross. Don't to get this date, see advertisement elsewhere in this issue for full particulars.

Miss M Knutson is helping at the Harrison farm for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudelly, Mrs. Perkins and baby Evelyn spent last Sunday at the Jones home in Kitscoty.

Frank Robinson and Joe Payne were noticed ploughing the gardens at Dorcadale.

Grandma McGinnis expects to leave shortly for Calgary.

Our Bowtell teacher certainly deserves considerable praise for the nice appearance of the school and school grounds. Mr. Repp kindly loaned the machinery for tree planting.

Here is a news item which is a little late. We regret to report that Mr. Payne had the misfortune to lose his barn, hay rack, set of sleighs and other articles in a recent fire. As everyone is preparing in the fields at the time it was a little while before help arrived and a strong wind at the time didn't aid matters any. It took considerable work to save the house and other buildings.

Mrs. A. Stone and Mrs. McClellan were much pleased with their recent lucky winnings judging from their words of appreciation.

There are two reasons for early seeding of flax. Fine seedlings are rather slow in making growth and are therefore poor competitors with weeds. Late seeding, with the consequent late harvesting, allows many weeds to reach maturity and thus in the meantime choke out the flax and rob it of moisture and fertility.

Great Britain has landed 700,000 bushels of wheat in Greece, but this is entirely insufficient to offset the food scarcity. Starvation is rampant throughout the country.

RED CROSS PLANS DISASTER RELIEF

Ready for Any Emergency With Trained Workers and Supplies

DRIVE FOR FUNDS UNDER WAY — GIVE GENEROUSLY

If Canada is invaded, from the east or from the west, or if disaster strikes suddenly in any part of Canada, the Canadian Red Cross is ready. A carefully perfected plan of action, groups of trained and organized Red Cross workers and necessary supplies of medical equipment, of food, blankets and clothing are there and waiting for whatever emergency that may arise. Within a few hours at most the entire resources of the Canadian Red Cross can be mobilized and made available wherever there is need.

Experienced in meeting sudden emergencies caused by fire, flood, tornado or famine, the Canadian Red Cross has organized to meet the demands of war on the home front as well as overseas and for the past two and a half years the national, provincial and local organizations of the Red Cross have been preparing to meet the urgent call, if and when it comes. Hospital supplies, surgical equipment and thousands of blankets have been stored at strategic points along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. Equipment has been standardized for a 25-bed hospital unit of which some 20 will be located in coastal cities and towns ready for use when needed. In addition twelve complete portable surgical units are already placed.

But most important of all when disaster strikes either in time of peace or in time of war is the need for a definite plan of action and a nucleus of skilled workers to put it into effect. The Canadian Red Cross has such a plan which is now in the hands of its provincial and local organizations across the country. It tells us simply and directly exactly what to do, and it is complete down to the last detail or cards for registering those who need relief and requisition forms for supplies that are needed. It is a plan born of experience in meeting every type of emergency where numbers of people are suddenly plunged into helplessness and suffering beyond the capacity of local relief agencies.

Quickly, when need arises, this plan can be put into action. Trained Red Cross workers are ready to get in touch with the military authorities, the Air Raid Precaution organization and other civilian agencies such as police and fire departments. Their responsibility is clearly defined — in the event of disaster "in mass" families and individuals to the extent that their needs are disaster-caused and cannot be met by the families themselves." The injured must be given proper medical attention, the hungry must be fed and the homeless must be clothed and given accommodation. Families must be re-united, relatives must be notified and thousands of anxious enquiries must be answered. When disaster strikes, people turn naturally to the Red Cross.

Under the Canadian defense areas surveys have been made by the Red Cross workers to find out where and how many people can be housed if coastal cities and towns have to be evacuated. Medical supplies and blankets are placed with material foreshought as to how they can be used to best advantage. Storehouses at in land points constantly keep large reserves which can be made quickly available. But most important of all the Red Cross has a plan for disaster relief, it has trained workers. If and when disaster strikes in Canada it will be the first few hours that count and it is for those hours that the Canadian Red Cross with its nation-wide organization is prepared and ready.

CANADIAN NATIONAL

Canadian Agriculture

CANADIAN AGRICULTURE is now just as essentially a war industry and just as vital to our war effort, as is the production of armaments. The old saying that an army travels on its stomach, is no doubt as true today as in the past. The first requisite of the army, navy and air force, both at home and abroad, is that the men and women who compose these services are provided with proper food and sustenance. It is not only our own Canadian forces that must be provided with food from Canada. Vast quantities of farm produce must be shipped, and has been shipped to Britain in order to sustain the populace and the fighting forces in the United Kingdom. In the first two years of war Canada has shipped more than three hundred million bushels of wheat and seven million barrels of flour. In the same period Canada shipped more than eight hundred million pounds of bacon and other pork products, one hundred and ninety-five million pounds of cheese, fifteen million dozen eggs, and thirteen million pounds of honey.

• • • • •

Facing The Situation

Canadian farmers, knowing full well the urgency of the situation are going to produce as never before. Here in the West perhaps unfortunately, it has been found necessary to turn at least to some extent from wheat growing to other crops that appear more essential for the prosecution of the war. A reduction this year of three per cent in acreage sown to wheat in 1941 is indicated. Western Canada is particularly adapted for the growing of wheat, and this has always been our main crop. However the necessities of war must now override the claims of economics and this year more attention is going to be paid to the growing of flax barley and other crops. Flax is needed to produce oil for our war industries and barley will be used for feed for hogs to provide bacon for Britain. In this war it has been found said that we are all in the front line and the man on the land is bearing his full share of responsibility. He has been carrying on in the face of many adverse circumstances and with grit and determination is prepared to do his full share in this fight for the preservation of democracy.

• • • • •

Meeting A Heavy Task

Thus in entering the new crop year of 1942 the Canadian farmer has set himself to the task of producing the essential crops to the limit of his capacity. Farm products will be shipped to Britain in quantities only limited by the carrying capacity of ships and Canada's ability to produce. Given favorable growing conditions and a minimum of the set-backs that plague the life of the farmer it is expected that the West will be able to contribute largely to the shipments going overseas. It is believed that measures will be taken to ensure sufficient help in the farm. Many farmers' sons have enlisted for overseas service but regulations have been provided in regard to enlistments to avoid any shortage of men that would seriously affect this important industry. Provision has also been made in respect to the supply of necessary parts to keep farm machinery in repair. And so the farmer puts his hand to the plough not looking back but with a grim purpose to do his part in no small way in this fight for victory.

Ogden's FINE CUT

Located on Big Mail Creek Cochrane, Alberta, the Oxyoke Ranch, founded in 1827 immediately following the Riel Rebellion, is still maintained by W. Hutchison, one of the founders. Comprising 10,000 acres of range land, the ranch annually grazes more than 1,000 head of fine beef cattle.

Chapel In Recreation Room And Canteen

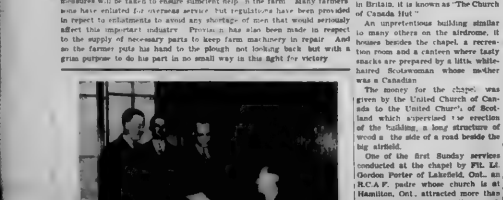
Somewhere in Scotland, Canadian and English airmen share the use of a chapel built by the United Church of Canada. The only Canadian church in Britain it is known as "The Church of Canada Hut."

An unpretentious building similar to many others on the airdrome, it houses besides the chapel, a recreation room and a canteen where tasty snacks are prepared by a white-haired Scotswoman whose mother was a Canadian.

The money for the chapel was given by the United Church of Canada to the United Church of Scotland which supervised the erection of the building, a long structure of wood a the side of a road beside the big airfield.

One of the first Sunday services conducted at the chapel by Pte. Lt. Gordon Porter of Lakefield, Ont., an R.C.A.F. padre whose church is at Hamilton, Ont., attracted more than 150 members of the Canadian squadron, a daughter unit to No. 6 Bomber Air Force Training Command, Ltd. Maurice Lipton of Sydney, N.S., and Belleville, Ont.

In the recreation room there are shelves of books and writing tables with letter paper and envelopes. There is a rolling concert stage behind a collapsible wall which is removed if there is an overflow attendance at a function. Under the chapel proper and recreation room can accommodate 1,500 persons.



Plans for a salvage campaign to retrieve tens of thousands of tons of scrap metal from Canadian farms are presented to Hon. J. T Thorson Minister of National War Services by H C Ray representative of the International Harvester Company of Canada, Limited. The company will use its 3,000 dealers across Canada to help get the scrap into the war effort. A. W. Wright and W. O. Maxwell company officials, look on.

To Help Win War

Harvester Dealers In Drive For Scrap from Farms

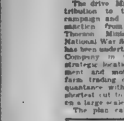
An organized effort to collect all the scrap metal possible from Canadian farms to help meet the critical war production need for scrap at the nation's foundries of Hamilton was announced by Mr H C Ray in charge of advertising and sales promotion for International Harvester Company of Canada, Limited. The scrap collection campaign will be conducted by International Harvester dealers in their localities and is part of a Dominion-wide drive for scrap from farms by Harvester dealers of 3,000 communities.

The plan Mr Ray said is a contribution to the national salvage campaign and has received official approval from Honorable C. D. Howe, Minister Department of National War Services The campaign has been undertaken by the Harvester Company in the belief that the strategic location of its farm equipment and motor truck dealers in farm trading centres and their acquaintanceship with farmers provide the shortest cut to farm scrap collection on a large scale.

The plan calls for the establishment by the dealers of scrap collection depots to which farmers may bring all the scrap metal they can find on their farms and from these points the scrap will be sent as required by factories including cutting out guns, tanks, and other war supplies. The scrap will be sold through regular salvage channels with remittance to each farmer for the full amount his scrap brings. There will be no charge, no commission, or no profit in it for the Harvester dealer who performs his service as a patriotic duty.

"A no-more of the possibilities," Mr Ray said, "is the enormous pile of scrap iron and steel on the countless Harvester dealers' premises—8,000 hundreds of thousands of tons. But, unless this scrap starts to move at once steel mills will have to reduce operations, reduce the production of arms and will slow down and more lives, time and money will be spent in fighting the war to a successful finish.

"On practically every farm there is a lot of scrap iron scrap that is badly needed right now. And knowing as we do that no people anywhere respond more readily than farmers to a cause of this kind we believe the farmers in our territory are going to pitch in and get this scrap into town and on its way to the factories."



ALL-BRAN REALLY IS DELICIOUS AND IT KEEPS US REGULAR... NATURALLY

Says Mrs. George H. Tremblay, Chicoutimi, Quebec "I can tell you that I wouldn't care to be without KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN now. The cause of constipation that's due to lack of the proper bulk is banished by ALL-BRAN Yes, the best part of it is that it gives more than just temporary relief."

Why don't you try ALL-BRAN'S "Bran Way" to correct the cause if you are troubled by constipation due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in your diet? But remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like cathartics. It takes time. Eat it regularly and drink plenty of water. Get ALL-BRAN at your grocer's, in two convenient size packages, or ask for the individual serving package at restaurants. Made by Kellogg's in London, Ont.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army.

By Allen Maurice Irwin

Guerrilla warfare. Something we have quite a lot about today. It's good thing to hear about, too. If there had been the same activity by Guerrillas in France that there have been in Russia and Yugoslavia the story of the past two years might have been different.

Of course, we have to be careful how we talk about war these days, it is no easy to say the wrong thing. Talking about defence, for instance. I'm not a deep enough student of the art of war to know who first said the best defence is to attack." I am a deep enough student of human nature to know that we ourselves are responsible for the heavy emphasis on defence in our national life.

During the lush years that ended in 1929-1930 we were, most of us, much too busy making money and having a good time" to pay any heed to the "some-day" that we might have to attack in a political enemy before he could attack us.

We were too busy having a good time to spend our easy money, too busy making necessities out of luxuries that we didn't need and would have been better without to do anything but applaud, or at the most, mildly decry politicians who voted to cut down our military expenditures. We were too anxious to have money to spend to demand that it should be spent to arm us for the days for military training. We were too fond of a soft time to join the Canadian militia in the days before the time changes that were taking place.

We even changed the name of the Department of Militia to the Department of National Defence thus perpetuating the thought of defence against aggression in place of the more virile, more honest name describes the law of gravity and flows back up again.

But this was to be about guerrilla warfare? It is. Guerrilla warfare is attack in the most modern manner. It is attack by small bands under many leaders who use their discretion in the handling of their small units to carry out the general plan of harassing the enemy, damaging important installations, severing and disrupting communications.

The "infiltration" we heard so much about during the fight on the Maley Peninsula was guerrilla warfare, much of the fighting going on in China is guerrilla warfare, a good deal of the training of the British Commando and the Old Country is guerrilla warfare.

In Canada the set-up of the Mobile Force in Quebec envisions guerrilla warfare. So does the elastic organization of certain units in British Columbia. There is a strong probability that training of the new Reserve Army will provide plenty of exercise of a guerrilla nature.

We Canadians should be "naturals" as Guerrillas. We hunt, fish, ski, hike and paddle a canoe. Guerrilla is less accessible to formal armies. We are used to the open, have to know how to stalk and take cover if we hunt big game—and many of us were Boy Scouts when we were younger.

It will interest many former Scouts to know that "Scouting for Boys", the book "father" of the Boy Scout movement, is recommended as supplementary reading for today's soldiers.

What has all this to do with the new conception of the individual Citizen's Army meaning all of us?

Well, we can be guerrillas too. There is many a hampering, delaying, disrupting action that we can fight in our own homes. Sometimes we are patriotic enough to observe the spirit rather than the letter of conservation and rationing regulations we fight a small guerrilla action against the Axis.

Every time we report an infraction of the rental regulations—even if it goes against the grain or a case of charging more than the basic price we fight a small but important guerrilla action against the common enemy.

If we are to win—and that means if we are to exist—we've got to save time, money, materials. But we can't do it sitting down, can we?

CONSERVING TIME

A lady, checking over her grocery bill, found this item: "One ton cat, 18c extra." Indignant, she called up her grocer and demanded to know what he meant by such a charge. "Oh, that's all right, Mrs. Blank," he replied. "That's just an abbreviation for 'canned corn.'"

No More Fancy Luggage

Unnecessary Gadgets Use Material Needed For War Effort

Fancy luggage will soon be a thing of the past, it was learned at Toronto from F. J. Shoemaker, administrator of luggage, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Unnecessary pockets, dress hangers and two locks will be missing from dressing cases, club bags and trunks soon to conserve precious rubber, rayon and metal for the war effort.

Look Out! A Sick Liver is Dangerous

Do you have persistent headaches and indigestion? Are you bothered by rheumatic pains in muscles and joints? A faulty liver is clogging your whole system. Serious ill health may result.

Your liver is the largest organ in your body and most important to your health. It supplies energy to muscles, tissues and glands. Normally, your body lacks this energy and you feel tired, run-down, and "out of sorts." Again your liver pours out bile to digest food, get rid of waste and allow proper nourishment to reach your blood. When your liver fails, an overflow of poor digestion and nourishment impregnates your blood with the waste that decomposes in your intestines. Nervous troubles and rheumatic pains arise from this poison. You become constipated, stomach and kidneys can't work properly. The whole system is affected and you feel "rotten," headachy, backachy, dizzy, tired out—a ready prey to colds and infections.

Thousands of people are never sick, and have more pep and vim than ever, because they take Dr. Chase's Liver Tablets. "The liver is tuned up, the other organs functions normally and famous good health results. Today "Improved Fruit-a-tives" are Canada's largest selling liver tablets. They must be good! Try them yourself NOW. Let "Fruit-a-tives" get you back on the road to lasting health. Get a new person. 25c, 50c.

I suffered so badly from Headaches, Pains in my back and joints. After taking Fruit-a-tives I felt like a new person. I have no more headaches, pains or backache and I am ready for work. I recommend Fruit-a-tives to everyone."—Mrs. Wm. Johnston, Sr., Fruit-a-tives, Ont.

"Fruit-a-tives" Is Hospital— Now Plant

I had a bad case of inflammation and constant loss of urine and kidney trouble. I was in hospital. Nothing did me any good and I was ordered to take Fruit-a-tives. In a very short time my troubles disappeared. I am now enjoying perfect health."—Mrs. Frederick Bradshaw, Lansdowne, Ont.

Post-War Plans For Employment Are Considered

Ottawa — Full employment for every Canadian after the war is the nucleus around which the government's advisory committee on post-war reconstruction is building its program for the period of demobilization and re-establishment, Dr. J. Cyril James, principal of McGill University and chairman of the committee, said.

Dr. James was appearing as a witness before the House of Commons committee on reconstruction and rehabilitation.

"Employment of every employable Canadian is essential for the full prosperity of the Dominion," he said. "All the potentialities of our country should be directed toward that end."

This meant demobilized service men and munitions workers must be absorbed into the Canadian economic and social structure with, if possible, an increase in the standard of living. To attain such condition plans for reconstruction must begin during the war.

After the armistice, soldiers will not be given cash bonuses in lump sums, but will be paid in instalments while they are under-going training or re-establishment in civil life, agriculture or industry. But despite the checks on inflation, Dr. James stated, there will be a boom following the war.

"It will give us a slight breathing spell, until industrial activity can be changeover from wartime to peacetime industry as an insurance against unemployment," he said.

"However, it will be necessary to relax some of our controls in the interest of freedom of enterprise. Private enterprise, labor, capital and industry should be given the help of government to reconstruct Canadian industry.

"Definitely there will be a post-war depression, and this time we will have to have a government plan of government-financed projects to reconstruct Canadian industry," Dr. James said.

Post-war employment, he said, is a purely domestic problem and already committees are studying its solution.

Conservation and utilization of natural resources was a second domestic problem. Canada's forests were an important factor in any reconstruction program, both for their preservation and for their use to provide employment.

A third problem was to develop public financial projects to provide employment in areas where there is unemployment.

Turning again to relaxation of wartime controls, Dr. James said: "It would be chaos if they were relaxed as soon as the war is over. The Allied nations will have to have a co-ordinated plan."

Each group of society would be restless for relaxation. The procedure should be to find how controls could be modified step by step, to avoid chaos that followed relaxation of barest controls in the last war.

This matter was being studied.

Studies were also being made of the agricultural problem. The solution depended partly on foreign trade and partly on new universal conveniences of variation and the importance of proper feeding. If feeding were really adequate there would be a market for all agricultural products.

Another major domestic problem with international implications was the turning of wartime industry to peacetime industry. If it were not dealt with there would be great unemployment and lack of consumer goods The advisory committee had asked major Canadian industries to co-operate by creating their own committee

Australian Prime Minister Pays Striking Miners Most Resume Work

Canberra, Australia.—Prime Minister Curtin called upon groups of striking coal miners to return to work or face governmental action, and said "the government shall stand or fall by the issue." If the miners do not go back to work the prime minister told parliament, authority will be invoked "to compel them."

BUDGET DOUBLED

Belfast "The Northern Ireland budget presented by Finance Minister J. Milne Barbour provides for a provisional contribution to the empire war chest of (£1,000,000 ($4,000,000), almost double last year's record contribution of £11,750 000

ARRIVES SAFELY

Canadian Icebreaker Montcalm Has Reached Northern Russia

Ottawa.—The Canadian icebreaker Montcalm has arrived safely in northern Russia and will remain at the service of the Soviet government for the duration of the war, it was announced.

The Montcalm is the second Canadian icebreaker to serve in those waters under war conditions. Toward the end of the first Great War an icebreaker newly-built at Glasgow for the Canadian government was langed to Russia by the British government with the consent of Canada.

The Montcalm has been in the Canadian service for many years in eastern waters.

The Canadian master and crew were to deliver the ship in the Russians who will operate it themselves. The Canadians are expected back in Canada shortly.

The ship is believed to be now in service in the White sea keeping the supply passage between Murmansk and Archangel open for the movement of troops and supplies for the Russian forces.

Wants Separate Canadian Air Force Overseas

Ottawa.—Air Minister Power told the House of Commons that he encountered some resistance in the past to both Royal Canadian Air Force and Royal Air Force officers to the policy of "Canadianizing" the R.C.A.F. overseas.

He said he also encountered some lack of enthusiasm on the part of the British air ministry, but he intends to persist in the policy.

"Nothing is dearer to my heart than the Canadianization of the R.C.A.F.," said the minister. "I should like to get all the support I can in parliament. And I don't know when I have had a greater sense of frustration than in my attempts to Canadianize the Royal Canadian Air Force overseas."

The minister said there were agreements both for and against the policy of grouping Canadian airmen in all-Canadian squadrons rather than mixing them up in the general pool of the R.A.F.

Some Canadian officers, brought up in the traditions of the R.A.F., were not sympathetic to the policy of segregating Canadians. An argument against segregation was, that Canadian officers could not enjoy the same opportunities for promotion to the command. If Canadians were in their own formations, as if they were dispersed through the Royal Air Force.

The minister made his statement in reply to T. C. Douglas (C.C.F., Weyburn) who suggested Canada should, if possible, have an independent air force overseas and Canadian squadrons co-operating with the Canadian Army.

Maj. Power said squadrons are attached to the Canadian Army for co-operation purposes and that he hopes there will be more.

The air minister told the house that the Canadian war effort was nearing the point were graduates will be prepared for actual warfare prior to going overseas instead of, as at present, completing operational training abroad.

Conservative House Leader Hanson questioned if it were practicable to have an independent Canadian air force overseas and Maj. Power replied that it was. But, he added, said, much could be done to group Canadians together and identify them as such.

When Defence Minister Ralston was overseas last year, an agreement had been reached to establish 25 Canadian squadrons in the R.A.F., in addition to three R.C.A.F squadrons serving overseas. So far, 22 of those squadrons had been established.

SLIGHT ADVANCE

Will Be Allowed In Prices Of Canned Salmon

Ottawa. — Retail and wholesale prices of canned salmon will be allowed to advance slightly, Neil McLean, fish products administrator for the wartime prices and trade board, announced.

Retail dealers will be permitted a one-cent increase on pound containers and half a cent for each half or quarter pound tin. Wholesalers are allowed 50 cents extra a case of 48 one-pound containers or 96 half or quarter-pound tins.

SINK JAP SHIP

Allied Bombers Get One Ship And Set Two Others On Fire

Allied Headquarters, Australia.—Allied bombers in a 1,500-mile round trip above northern Australia, sank a 2,000-ton Japanese ship at the Japanese-occupied Netherlands Islands of Amboina, and set two others afire, General MacArthur's headquarters announced.

Other Allied air units falling on a surprise Japanese base at Rabaul, New Britain Island, dropped bombs on 15 Japanese bombers drawn up on a runway, blowing up three of them, and severely damaging "many others", the communique said.

Still farther from the one Japanese ship sunk, the communique said that direct hits on two other ships, one of 3,000 tons and one of 2,000 tons, set them afire.

FOR THE NAVY

Plan To Establish Canadian Fleet Mail Office At London

Ottawa.—Establishment of a Canadian fleet mail office at London, England, and extension of the airgraph mail service to naval personnel, was announced by the naval services headquarters.

Arrangements have also been completed for naval personnel serving abroad to receive parcel post, headquarters said in a statement outlining postal arrangements for men in the Royal Canadian Navy, Royal Canadian ships and serving with the Royal Navy.

British Pilots May Take In Flight For United States

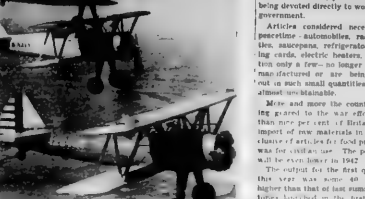
London.—The air correspondent of the Daily Telegraph and Morning Post said extension of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan for production of pilots and air crews for the United States may follow the forthcoming air training conference in Ottawa.

The Americans have not yet fully developed their own training facilities and it seems the obvious solution that they should use those already to hand in Canada," the correspondent wrote.

"It also appears likely that the other United Nations will be invited to send men to Canada for training."

RECRUITING IN INDIA

London.—The British Broadcasting Corporation quoted its representative in New Delhi as saying that "Indian volunteers are pouring into the recruiting centres of the city at the rate of 100 000 a month."



Britain's Battle Fleet Guards Lifelines Of The Empire

On constant guard along the lifelines of the British Empire, the mighty battle fleet of the Royal Navy is ever on the alert. Among these, as pictured in this striking photograph, is King George V, one of the newest and best battleships in the world. She was photographed from the deck of an accompanying aircraft carrier. The latest always on the alert, proved a smashing success in the Mediterranean recently in the sinking of four big Italian transports rushing war material to Tripoli. They were sunk by two British submarines. An anti-British lobby, the admiralty announced.

Production Of Munitions Have Been Increased

Ottawa.—Canadian explosives plants are producing 75 per cent. more than their estimated capacity, and one gun plant is producing two and one-half times as much as was expected of it, Munitions Minister Howe told the House of Commons.

The minister opened his review of munitions and supply department activities, as debate on the war appropriation bill continued.

Production costs in Canada compared well with those of the United States and United Kingdom, Mr Howe said. Quality was all that "can be desired." The department had placed contracts of more than $4 000 000 000 greater than the pre-war rational debt

Airplane industries had expanded their personnel by 400 times since the war began, and intake ran at the rate of 2,000 a month, representing men from farms or from schools without mechanical knowledge

Perhaps two shipbuilding yards now are fully manned and 17 still were in process of expansion. A sixteenth yard Montreal had laid its first keels last week One 10 000-ton merchant ship was being launched every four days, and this production rate would be increased to one every three days

Great Lakes and deepwater yards were "full out" on the production of corvettes and minesweepers and, as output would be expanded further, objectives were being approached.

About 14 000 small boats had been built since the start of the war including wooden fairmiles minesweepers and smaller craft

Mr Howe said aircraft production was about 400 machines a month

We have accepted very considerable orders for operational training planes from the United Kingdom and the United States."

The government company, Federal Aircraft Ltd., had been criticized, the minister said, but he considered the work of this company more outstanding than any other item of the aircraft production record

Industries established by Federal Aircraft covered 80 or 60 plants where work would be continued at least until the end of the war.

Canadian industry was "full out" in the production of motor vehicles, now in excess of 250,000 units, and automobile machines had been set up in every area of active combat. The "most interesting —the universal carrier" had been stepped up to very large production

The Angus shops at Montreal were producing tanks at the maximum rate at the objective set Commitments had been made for the supply of tanks to Russia until the end of the three months the Canadian shipments were even with those commitments

A second tank-building establishment —the second largest on the continent was not up to capacity because of the delay in obtaining transmissions from the United States As transmissions were received they were installed and the equipped tank was driven away the same day

Many navy guns had been made and a Vancouver factory making this weapon was coming into production. Particularly good results had been obtained in the manufacture of gun mounts, which presented more of a mechanical problem than the guns themselves

A program to provide spe al radio equipment for the Canadian and British navies had been undertaken.

Field guns and small arms factories were almost all in production

All previous figures for production of 8mm guns Colt-Browning aircraft guns and Boy anti-tank guns at the Inglis factory in Toronto had been greatly exceeded but the minister said he could give no detailed figures.

NEW AIR SERVICE

Critical Time for Beekeepers

The art of good beekeeping is to develop in a strong colony by June 20th and keeping it from swarming. The honey in which it lives and breeds during the next six weeks will have a tremendous influence on the size of the fall honey crop.

During this period the beekeeper must develop his colonies into large forces of worker bees, sixty thousand strong, or five times the size of the original package. This development is assisted by seeing that the bees are liberally supplied with food, when in sufficient nectar is available from the flowers. A hive at this time of year should always have three or four combs of honey in them.

Having developed a large force of bees ample room in the form of two brood chambers must be provided. For, if the colony becomes overcrowded at any time, it will make preparations to swarm.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE PETER GRAHAM PILKIE

The funeral of Peter Graham Pilkie, venerable pioneer citizen of Vermilion, whose death was recorded in last week's Standard, was held on Thursday, afternoon May 14th at 2 o'clock in St. Saviour's Anglican church. Interment took place in the family plot in the Vermilion cemetery. The Venerable Archdeacon Lovell-Sedge conducted the services. The late Mr. Pilkie had passed away on Tuesday May 12 at the advanced age of 91 years, 6 months and 26 days.

The large congregation which attended was composed of the young, the middle aged and a majority of old timers, some of whom had known the deceased since the year 1904. In the funeral cortege was a guard of honor composed of the local detachment of the 25th (Canadian Hill and Warren in full dress uniforms, paying a silent tribute to Mr. Pilkie's thirty years of service as Police Magistrate, and veterans, making the funeral a semi-military one in recognition of the fact that the deceased was a veteran of the Riel country, having taken part in Fenian raids and rebellion. He had also been made an honorary member of the Vermilion Legion Post 11 on his 60th wedding anniversary).

The late Peter Graham Pilkie was born at Little York, where now stands Toronto, on Oct. 16th, 1850. From there the family moved to Lindsay where he got his manhood. On June 14th, 1875 he was married to Katherine Fairbairn and to this couple the unique distinction of observing their Golden wedding anniversary in 1925, their Diamond anniversary in 1935 and that which answers in June 1940, which was spent at the home of their daughter Mrs. George Hodson in Edmonton. In June 1940, on the occasion of their 65th wedding anniversary, they received a wire of congratulations from their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth who were then in Canada. Mrs. Pilkie passed away on Nov. 14, 1940.

The late Mr. Pilkie came west shortly after the turn of the century, and in the early summer of 1903, he freighted a raft of lumber down the Saskatchewan river to the mouth of the Vermilion river. It was hauled overland to the then site of Vermilion, the advent of the railroad, to the vicinity of Vermilion and here he and his family have since made their home and homesteaded. Since that time he and members of his family have been closely allied to the history of Vermilion.

Pall-bearers were Messrs. C. W. Robinson, J. W. G. Morrison, C. L. Whitby, F. J. Robinson, Andrew McWilliams and D. E. Kennedy.

Surviving members of the family are one daughter Mrs. George Hodson of Edmonton, and four sons: Albert, Winnipeg; Charlie, Toronto, William and Frank of Vermilion. He was predeceased by one son Robert. There are also seven grandchildren and six great grandchildren

BOARD OF TRADE NOTES

(Crowded out last week)

The regular weekly meeting of the Board was held on Monday at 8:30 with a small attendance of only 12 members. Mr. Roy Shepherd, manager of the creamery, was in the chair for the first time and was introduced to the gathering.

As the secretary was absent in Edmonton without waiting there was no minutes or correspondence and only new business was dealt with.

W. F. Pilkie brought up the desirability of a daylight train service to Edmonton and thought that the time was opportune to bring this matter to the attention of the passenger officials of the Canadian National. After considerable discussion pro and con, the matter was turned over to the Ways and Means committee with instructions to press for additional service on the C.N.R.

Don Logan introduced the matter of two bed stretcher or road, one leading from the top of the Vermilion river hill north for two tare miles and the other running west from just north of the top of the same hill. These roads were originally put in 1915 as Vermilion Valley may bring on the extreme edge of the A.D. if all reports be true that they are highly fertile and need regrading to the worst way. The roads leading onto them are in excellent shape and well maintained, making the contrast all the more noticeable. The roads committee is to inservice the Vermilion Valley council and also the councillor for the division.

The next meeting of the Board will be held on Monday, June 1st and every business man is asked to attend

TEA AND COFFEE RATIONING ORDERED

Ration of Sugar Cut One-Third

OTTAWA, May 26.—Introduction of tea and coffee rationing and reduction by one-third in the existing sugar ration was announced today by Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

The "honor" system used since sugar rationing started will be maintained in the new regulations.

Effective immediately, the sugar ration is cut from three-quarters of a pound a person a week to one-half lb. Each individual's consumption of tea must be cut by one-half.

Consumption of coffee must be cut by one-quarter.

WAVE FORCE OF LAW

Special regulations for hotels, clubs, boarding houses and similar establishments to cover the rationing of sugar, tea and coffee have been prepared.

The regulations have the force of law behind them and, while the use or tickets is not being resorted to, Mr. Gordon said convictions will be launched against those who fail to obey the regulations.

Shipping difficulties have made it essential to conserve reserve stocks and reduce consumption of the rationing commodities.

With the sugar ration at one half pound a week, supplies were ample for many months and additional imports would make the situation so much safer.

The one-half pound sugar ration is the same as that in force in United States and the United Kingdom.

"CHAP" COOPER SERIOUSLY INJURED IN SHOOTING ACCIDENT

Abdomen Pierced by Bullet—Favorable Progress Thursday

Chap Cooper, 17 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Cooper, was seriously injured on Sunday when his .22 rifle accidentally discharged, the bullet passing completely through his abdomen. The accident occurred just south of the big slough in the river valley around 7 o'clock in the evening, and the boy had to struggle over more than a half mile of rough walking to the closest help at the home of Kenny Macdonald, C.N.R. pumpman. Help was summoned from there and the injured youth was rushed to the hospital where an emergent operation was performed by Dr. A.C. Bradford and Dr. Cromar. Reports Thursday morning were that Chap was showing slight but unmistakable signs of improvement.

Chap had taken part in a local tennis tourney during the afternoon and around 6 o'clock had gone home and stated that he was going for a rifle. He took his bathing trunks, and as an afterthought, his .22 repeating rifle, and headed for the valley on the west side of the river and shortly before 7 o'clock was noticed by picnickers walking northward. He reached a small spring just south of the big slough and there leaned his rifle against a tree while he had a drink. The rifle fell and as a consequence the butt in starting to rise his foot either dislocated the rifle or it just slipped from his grasp and fell across the still half sitting boy, and for some unknown reason, discharged. The bullet entered the abdomen just to the left side and passed cleanly through, coming out his back. Realizing that he was probably badly hurt, he hurried to the nearest help, and at 7.25 struggled through the back door of Kenny Macdonald's house, and carrying his rifle and bathing trunks against the wound. Only a few minutes before Mr. Macdonald had left in his car for Vermilion but his daughter Miss Agnes, hearing Kenny Jr. blowing after Chap, quickly hiked to the phone at W.J. Moore and summoned help from the home of Dr. Bradford. The Doctor too, had just finished a call to the hospital but his friends there, Mr. E. E. Wright, Mr. George Richardson and Mrs. Brad ford quickly summoned the boy to the pital. An emergent operation to prevent peritonitis and to close the holes in the intestines was carried out.

Indications are that complications have been avoided and that chances of recovery are good. Many factors were in Chap's favor following the accident, including his own very good health; the short time taken in reaching medical aid which was greatly assisted by the quick action and care of Agnes Macdonald and brother Kenny; the minimum of handling with which he was brought up the hill in the hospital by Mr. E. E. Wright Mr. George Richardson and Mrs. Bradford, and the performing of a truly masterful operation by Dr. Bradford, ably assisted by Dr. Cromar.

HEATHERBELL FLIERS DONATE CLUB FUNDS FOR SOLDIERS' SMOKES

The Heatherbell Fliers hockey club have donated the sum of $1.50 to the Canadian Legion Smokes Fund to be used for supplying Vermilion and district boys who are now serving overseas with smokes. This sum represents the balance left in the treasury at the end of the past winter's hockey activities and was turned in to the Standard on Wednesday by A. C. Mabry, manager of the Heatherbell club.

The money subsequently found its way into the hands of Mrs. Thos. White, secretary of the Canadian Legion committee here, which has been instrumental in making a good many shipments of smokes to our boys over from home. Needless to say, the donation was received with sincere thanks to the Heatherbell boys, the smoke fund was at a very low ebb and the $7.50 brought it high enough for another shipment to be made at once

As a proof that the local and district boys overseas really get the cigs sent to them, Mr. White produced a bundle of letters of thanks which he had received following the last shipment made.

Agricultural College to Be Utilized As Centre for C.W.A.C.

HON. W. A. FALLOW MAKES ANNOUNCEMENT TO STANDARD

The Hon. W. A. Fallow, Alberta minister of public works, made the announcement today (Thursday), that an agreement has just been completed with the Dept. of National Defence, Ottawa, to establish immediately at the Vermilion Agricultural College, a training centre for the reception of Canadian Women's Army Corps personnel.

The use of the College is a source of keen gratification to Mr. Fallow, who has worked on the matter consistently for the past year. The news will be received here with great satisfaction.

MISS CLAIRE WEST RECEIVES DEGREE AT UNIVERSITY CONVOCATION

Miss Claire West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. West, received her degree of Bachelor of Science in Nursing at the University of Alberta convocation last week. Her parents and sister Marjorie attended the ceremonies.

Claire is a true Vermilion girl and received her public and high school education in town and she pays high tribute to the standard of the teaching received in Vermilion schools, the firm groundwork standing her in good stead in her University courses. She graduated from the local high school in 1937 and commenced Varsity that fall on a pre-medical course in nursing, she entered the University hospital in the fall of 1938 and graduated with her Nursing Diploma in 1941. She then completed her degree work and graduated last week with her Bachelor of Science in Nursing.

Miss West is now spending a vacation at home before commencing Health Unit work.

STUDENT MINISTER COMMENCES SERVICES IN PRESBYTERIAN FIELD

The Presbyterian Church in Canada commenced services last Sunday at Hilda, Watson, Tulin and Wemild, the latter when Mr. Douglas G. Scouse of Knox College, Toronto, preached on the subject "Victory in Defeat." His text was taken from the 46th Chapter of Daniel and the sixteenth Verse, "Thy God whom thou servest continually, He will deliver thee." Mr. Scouse said: "Daniel had to choose between allegiance to God and allegiance to King Darius. He obeyed God at the risk of losing his own life. Daniel would rather lose life than lose his soul as those certainly do who attempt to live without prayer.

"The reason the world is in such a deplorable state is because the majority of people in Christian Christendom have refused to accept their responsibility as to Christ and the Church. Christ relies on faith but if we can keep upper most in our minds at all times the assurance that He spent His life to Christ and we shall be able to say with Paul, 'Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.'"

At the close of the services Mr. Scouse said that he was looking forward to his next visit and re-occupation. He asked for the prayers and support of the people in carrying on and extending the cause of Christ and the church in this district.

MILITARY PARTY INSPECTS SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE

Pleased With the Buildings and Surroundings

A party headed by Lt. Col. P. Y. Harcourt of Military District 12, Calgary inspected the school of agriculture buildings and surroundings here on Sunday and were very pleased with what they saw. They were impressed with the buildings, the kitchen facilities, gymnasium and class rooms. The grounds also offered ample room for drilling purposes. It was regarded as an ideal location to house about 500, probably with some construction of army huts.

According to information gleaned the buildings would certainly be recommended for use but nothing definite could be said as to when or whether they would be taken over.

Lt. Col Harcourt and party left here for Wainwright as they were making a tour of Alberta looking and reporting on the stations for military work.

The Vermilion Board of Trade has long been pressing for the use of these fine school buildings which were placed at the disposal of the Dominion government by the trustees when the school closed over one year ago now. Board of Trade delegations have waited on military officials in both Edmonton and Calgary, and detailed information has been sent to various departments in Ottawa. Every step to wire has been despatched just to let the authorities know that these modern and commodious buildings were still not being utilized.

Recently the board of trade has been favoring the use of the school for training quarters for the Women's Army Corps.

The Future Of Canada

THE AREA comprising the Dominion of Canada occupies the largest part of the North American continent. Stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific, a distance of some three thousand miles, it extends northward about the same distance. It is true that great areas in the northern part of Canada lie far north of the temperate zone, and might be considered to many as of questionable importance or value. It should be said, however, that the potential wealth of much of our northern hinterland has only in comparatively recent years been properly realized and appreciated. As a result of explorations such as fish mineral fields have been located, and mining operations carried as close to the Arctic circle. The aeroplane has been an important factor in annihilating the vast distances, and it has been through this agency that much of the development work has been accomplished.

* * * * *

We Should Take Stock

Geographically speaking, Canada is a wide domain, but it is unfortunately only sparsely populated. The density of population is estimated at less than three people per square mile, and the increase is not a matter of congratulation. The census of 1931 gave the population as 10,376,786, while in 1941 it is shown as 11,419,806, an increase which is less than one-third of the two previous decennial periods. A falling off of immigration has been a factor, while emigration to the United States and elsewhere has robbed Canada of many useful citizens. The so-called "Have Not" countries of Europe and Asia have long been casting covetous eyes on Canada, knowing full well our wealth of untapped natural resources, and room for expansion. It would seem that the time is ripe for the people of Canada to take stock of the situation, and to adopt measures to make better use of the heritage which is ours.

* * * * *

Room For Expansion

During the greater part of the last decade, Canada has been suffering in common with most countries from the ill effects of the depression. The markets for Canadian wheat and other agricultural products have been seriously affected and unemployment has been a problem. With the impact of war, however the picture has been considerably changed and it is generally believed that we shall enter a new era of prosperity. It is not only that this war has given an impetus to business but it is found that we can fabricate many articles that were heretofore imported. The war has also been the direct cause of the discovery of many minerals that formerly came from abroad and in other ways we have learned to be more self-supporting. It has been clearly shown that Canada has possibilities of expansion, perhaps greater than any other country. We have in our almost unlimited natural resources everything that is necessary for the building of a great nation. Canada needs men of initiative and driving force and vision to take full advantage of the opportunities which open before us. We need to develop a national consciousness, sure in our confidence of the future of Canada, and to strive in every way to be worthy of our position as the senior Dominion under the British Crown

Railroad Builder Had Track Bolt Cut To Proper Size

One day E. H. Harriman, the railroad builder, was walking along on one of his tracks with an assistant. He noticed a track bolt and asked his companion why so much of the bolt would protrude beyond the nut. He received the reply, "It is the size generally used."

Why should we use a bolt of such a length that a part of it is useless?" he asked.

Well, when you come right down to it, there is no reason."

The two strolled along and Harriman asked how many track bolts there were in a mile of track, and was told

The reason he remarked, "Well, in the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific we have about eighteen thousand miles of track and there must be some fifty million track bolts in our system. If you can cut an ounce from every bolt, you will have fifty million ounces of iron, and that is something worthwhile. Change your bolt standard" — Christian Science Monitor.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army.

By Allan Maurice Irwin

Last night I heard a radio programme in which a Regimental Sergeant-Major was quizzed in front of a number of Canadian soldiers It was well done, so well in fact that the B.B.C. had to ask the announcer to repeat something he had said. That was the announcer's meat. "What would you say," he questioned, "if one of those boys out there held up a parade to ask you to repeat the command you had just given?"

The Sergeant-Major was nonplussed. He didn't know what he would say. Then he recovered, "I don't think I'd better tell you on a national network," he quipped.

I have heard a sergeant-major being righteously indignant. And I have heard the troops being righteously—or almost righteously-indignant at the sergeant-major. It is an interesting game.

But it doesn't do much good!

Righteous indignation can do a lot of good, but it should not do much good. In fact it must do a lot of good if we are going to get anywhere in the way of work.

At the moment I am bubbling over with it and the subject is golf clubs. I don't mean the kind of club that might come in very handy for a member of one of our commandos, I mean the kind that will come in far too handy for our transport landing grounds for enemy aircraft.

There is altogether too much of the "Old Pals" mentality amongst some of the solid citizens said stolid—citizens who support our too-placed expensive golf and country clubs.

Why should a man who is too old to fight, or a woman for that matter, have to God's good earth to bundle and ball across fairways which are an open invitation to an enemy aircraft. Why should a man or woman be able to wound around a core to form a golf ball when rubber is so urgently needed in more essential fashion.

I know the standard answer. They get exercise in a way that they otherwise would not. And exercise doesn't

Ceiling On Incomes

Few Canadians Would Be Affected If Plan Was Adopted

If Canada were to adopt a ceiling of $25 000 on personal income after taxation, as has been the rule in the United Kingdom for some time and as President Roosevelt would have it in the United States, less than 400 Canadians would be affected. Canadian income and defence taxes reduce an income of about $50,000 to $25,000. In the fiscal year 1940-41, according to official figures, 473 Canadians had incomes of $50,000 or more. Fewer than 400 of these would be above the $60,000 mark —Edmonton Journal.

Doing Good Job

Postwoman In London Has Also Helped In Rescue Work

This is Mrs. F. E. Rose' second term as a wartime temporary postwoman in London. She held the same job in the first Great War and during the blitz on Britain last year was commended when, after rescuing two women and three children and tending wounded during an all-night raid, she reported for work just after daylight and started out on her letter-delivering rounds.

The railway bug, a tropical insect, is so called because of a red light on its head.

Canadian Fliers Have Landed In The Far East

London.—Canada's air arm, growing stronger day by day, as stemm of the Dominion stream in increasing numbers from the airdrome of Democracy, has been extended to a strategic corner of the East.

A brief announcement by R.C.A.F. overseas headquarters told of the safe arrival in the Oriental war theatre of the first Canadian squadron to serve elsewhere in this war than Canada or the United Kingdom.

A flying boat squadron commanded by Wing-Cmdr. Johnny Plant of Ottawa which has done valuable, though somewhat monotonous, work as a coastal command in this part of the war-torn world, left from a secret base in Northern Ireland and has completed its flight of thousands of miles without mishap.

The movement required several weeks of preparation. Hundreds of ground crewmen who set out on the hazardous journey by sea were followed recently by the aircraft which were flown out singly or in pairs. Word of the movement was withheld from the public for security reasons, until the last flying boat reached its destination.

It is expected that other squadrons will be operating on other fronts in the near future.

It is understood that a new flying boat squadron will be formed in Britain to replace the one despatched to the Far East.

The squadron had put in many hours of monotonous patrol and convoy escort work before its departure, but two of its members, Sqdn. Ldr. L. J. Birchall of John, N.B., and Warrant Officer C. Dupett of Hunterville, Ont., already had distinguished themselves in helping stem the Japanese thrust at the island of Ceylon in April. Their feat was officially described as "one of the greatest achievements of Canadian fliers of the present war."

They were crew members of the flying boat which first sighted the Japanese fleet approaching Ceylon. Nothing was heard of them after they flashed the alarm by radio to their base and they were listed as "missing after flying battle."

SENDING PARCELS

Prisoners At Hong Kong Will Get Them Through The Red Cross

Toronto.—Details of arrangements made by the Canadian Red Cross Society to send food and parcels to Canadian prisoners at Hong Kong were announced here.

The Canadian government will send to each soldier a complete outfit, medical supplies and mosquito netting. Next-of-kin parcels may be forwarded to supplement government and Red Cross aid.

Officers of the International Red Cross have obtained permits from the Japanese government and delegates will shortly visit the prison camp at Hong Kong, headquarters said.

Mrs H. Plumptre, acting director of the Red Cross inquiry bureau at Ottawa, said next-of-kin parcels must not contain food or chocolate but chewing gum may be sent.

The government outfit being sent does not include a sweater and officials suggest a sleeveless sweater and wool socks would be desirable.

Tobacco or cigarettes may not be included in the parcels. Toilet supplies may be sent and may include a toothbrush and powder safety razor and blades, hard nail brush, strong soap and shaving soap, comb and lipsalve.

Next-of-kin parcels should be sent to Ottawa immediately addressed in any Name of soldier, name of regiment regimental number, "taken prisoner of war at Hong Kong," care of force "C", General Post Office, Ottawa

DESERTED TOWNS

Being Converted Into Model Settlements For Japs In B.C.

Vancouver British Columbia's ghost towns of the interior Slocan district are rapidly being converted into model settlements where Japanese families evacuated from the coastal defence zone will make their homes, and the movement of Japanese families to the latest one, Slocan.

Latest figures show that Greenwood already has a population of 813 Japanese Kaslo 429, and Slocan 22. The fourth "ghost town"—Sandon—has only two Japanese so far, but a work crew of 24 carpenters, plumbers and laborers left to make preparations for the Japanese to follow.

THE TOKYO RAID

American Airmen Scored Direct Hits And Did Great Damage

Washington.—The recent United States air-raid on Japan has been revealed as a foray which found American airmen flying so low they could see the amazed expressions on the faces below, dropping bombs when within sight of the Imperial palace in Tokyo and leaving a swath of destruction 40 miles long and five to 20 miles wide.

The leader was Brig.-Gen. James H. Doolittle—Jimmy Doolittle, the famous speed record holder of the days of peace. President Roosevelt planed a Congressional Medal of Honor to his tunic at the White House and with the announcement came details of the attack were disclosed.

Direct hits left a nearly completed cruiser or battleship near Tokyo in flames. The Mitsubishi aircraft factory at Nagoya was strewn with incendiary bombs. Industrial concentrations, shipyards, docks, fuel stores, collections of fuel tanks, ammunition dumps at Yokosuka, Kenagawa, Kobe and Osaka, all felt the destructive effect of explosives

Guard Against Beef Shortages In The Future

Ottawa.—Arrangements to guard against future beef shortages in Canada and maintain prices for cattle producers were announced by Donald Gordon, chairman of the wartime prices and trade board.

These major steps have been decided on:

1. Producers will receive the price which they would normally receive for cattle shipped to the United States, and exports will be controlled when necessary.

2. A control organization will purchase cattle from exporters in periods of short supply and resell them for domestic markets.

3. Adjustments on ceiling prices on beef will be permitted, giving recognition to seasonal variations in cattle prices.

The effect of the plan on wholesale and retail prices will be announced later, Mr. Gordon said.

In recent weeks shortages of beef on eastern Canadian markets have been reported, while shipments to the United States under the quota which permits the export of more than 100,000 head annually from Canada have been made at record speed.

Mr. Gordon said the plan evolved to ensure adequate domestic supplies of beef and protect the cattle producers on the export prices was "comprehensive"

Cattle producers will receive the export price for the same number of cattle which could be exported to the United States, and the domestic market "will be supported up to the level of beef ceiling prices until enough export quota has been filled."

Beef cattle shipments to the United States are divided into quarterly quotas The quarterly quota starting on April 1 was filled early in May and the next quota shipments will start July 1.

"The details of the organization necessary to carry out the plan may take a few weeks, but immediate relief from the present unsettled condition in the beef industry will be given," Mr. Gordon said

The board had recognized from the first that price control the necessity of seasonal variations in the prices of certain agricultural products Beef cattle prices normally reached their lowest levels in November, after which there was usually a steady price rise to June of the following year

The necessity for such seasonal variations to cover cost of wintering and to encourage winter finishing of cattle, now was being recognized by providing for adjustments in ceiling prices by periods throughout the full 12-month cycle

Mr. Gordon said the plan was the result of investigation and study in association with the agriculture department and representatives of producers and the beef trade.

"The new plan includes a means of paying beef producers the export price for cattle which they would normally ship to the United States and provides a system for the control of exports of cattle whenever shortages in the domestic supply of beef call for action," Mr. Gordon said.

ARE BEING STUDIED

Ottawa.—Resolutions to insert between Canada and U.S have been and are being studied by the joint economic committee and by other agencies of the two governments, said a return tabled in the House of Commons 2443

MEXICANS ANGRY

Sinking Of Tanker By Nazis Has Aroused Intense Feeling

Mexico City.—The war drums are beating in Mexico. Organized labor formally has petitioned President Camacho for a declaration of war on the Axis, and offered the Mexican army at least 20,000 "fresh fighting men."

At the same time the permanent commission of congress definitely announced Nazi-Fascist "piracy" and urged the Mexican people to organize "meetings of patriotism."

The congress commission met for the first time since the torpedoing of a Mexican tanker by an Axis submarine.

Speakers drew wave after wave of applause as they denounced the Axis, pledged aid to the United Nations and demanded full retribution for the sinking. And they said the nation would follow the leadership of their president "into the trenches if necessary."

TOO AMBIGUOUS

Britain Not Satisfied With Axis Reply Regarding Aid Far Greece

London.—Dingle Foot, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of economic warfare, informed the House of Commons that German and Italian replies to the proposal to send 10 000 tons of grain monthly from Canada to Greece are "ambiguous" and it has been found necessary to ask further elucidation.

The German reply excluded islands where famine has been particularly acute from any participation in the scheme, jointly sponsored by Britain, Canada and the United States.

RELEASES SHIPPING

London.—Authoritative estimate that by eating the new brown loaf of bread for four days, Britons save 5,500 tons of shipping space. In 12 months this means releasing 800,000 tons of shipping.

NIGHT FIGHTER

Wing Commander Max Aitken, son of Lord Beaverbrook, led a squadron of night fighters that bagged four Nazi bombers Recently Aitken, holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross, personally shot down one of the four.

CAUSE FOR WAR

If Russia Supplies China With Arms Says Japanese Official

Rome.—Should Russia supply China with arms, this would be a cause for war, Toshio Shiratori, former Japanese ambassador to Italy, said in an interview.

(Russia has been reported supplying China with arms for almost five years over a long road extending into Central China from the Siberian province of Turkestan. Whether the supplies still are flowing now that Russia is heavily engaged is uncertained.

SHOWS DECREASE

Immigration Dropped Considerably For Year Ending March 31, 1941

Ottawa.—Immigration to Canada dropped by 22.9 per cent. in the year ended last March 31, the immigration branch of the department of mines and resources reported in an annual summary.

During the year ended March 31, 1941, a total of 11,496 immigrants, including British, American, European and other races, entered Canada but during the year ended last March 31, there were only 8,867. Of these 3,182 were English, Scottish, Irish and Welsh; 6,311 were from the United States, 183 were northern Europeans and 189 belonged to the other races of the world, including a lone Italian and a lone Japanese.

Most of the newcomers went to Ontario to settle—3,235 of the 8,867 total. Quebec received 1,799, British Columbia, 1,535, and Nova Scotia, 1,222.

Study Farm Unit To Assist Wheat Board On Quotas

Ottawa.—A farm from 121 to 200 acres is most common in Manitoba and Alberta, and from 201 to 320 acres in Saskatchewan, Dr. T. W. Grindley, secretary of the Canadian Wheat board, told the House of Commons.

Of 15 660 farms in Manitoba, 5 454 were from 121 to 200 acres and 4 017 from 201 to 320 In Alberta 9,261 of 30,795 were in the 121 to 200-acre category and 8 605 from 201 to 320 acres In Saskatchewan, of 35 527 farms 6,500 were from 201 to 320 acres and 8,500 from 121 to 200 acres

Dr Grindley said studies of farm units had been undertaken to assist the wheat board in establishing equitable quota delivery system. During the crop year 1941-42, wheat deliveries were limited to 230,000 000 bushels from all Canada, and for 1942-43 80 000,000 bushels will be accepted by the wheat board for all of the west

Dr Grindley said the board's experience was that there had been more compliments than complaints on the delivery quota system and its operation The small farmer had not suffered under quota regulations, in the past Mr Grindley said

P E Wright (CCF Melfort) said it appeared likely he would suffer in the future

Dr D A MacMillan, member of the board of grain commissioners told the committee that a plan to allow operations in the uncontrol committee whom elevator were crowded with grain The board decided will want to know what their government does with their taxes. Hence, the people are becoming more and more concerned over their local and national governments, with an eye toward protecting their own welfare

GOES TO HOLLAND

German Gestapo Chief To Cope With Anti-Nazi Resistance

London Heinrich Himmler chief of the German Gestapo, has arrived in Holland to cope with rising anti-Nazi resistance, the news agency Aneta said

Himmler reached the Netherlands after a visit to his Gestapo lieutenant Reinhard Heydrich, who now is in charge of the police in occupied France Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt commander of the German occupation troops in northern France, also was said to have visited Holland recently

The visit of Himmler followed a new outburst of anti-German activity which resulted in the execution of 30 alleged leaders if a secret anti-Nazi society and the arrest of more than 2,000 Netherlands army officers and the seizure of 400 prominent Netherlands estates

FIRE LOSS HIGH

Total Property Loss In Canada For 1941 Was $28,047,907

Regina City Clerk Que W L Clairmont Dominion fire commissioner, said that fire loss for 1941 showed an increase of $4,767 943 over the previous season and total property loss for the year in Canada amounted to $28 047 907 He was speaking at the annual meeting of the Dominion Fire Prevention Association

SNUTS IN CAIRO

London Gen Jan Christian Smuts, prime minister of South Africa has arrived in Cairo after travelling 2,000 miles by plane and car in 10 days, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported Gen Smuts visited base camps and hospitals on his journey.

War Has Given People A New Sense Of Values

London.—The British are thinking hard about the future these days and they're acting, too. They're trying to win the war as fast as possible so they can get to the task of building a better life The postwar system, most experts believe, will be somewhere between pure individualism and pure socialism

The war has done more than level homes and take lives. Its hardships have given the man in the street a deep-rooted will to achieve final victory. He has gritted his teeth and plunged into the job with a wholehearted desire to give luxuries, work hard and risk his neck to attain the way life he prefers The whole of that the British have done and is doing personifies "change."

An increase in politeness a noticeable the people are more friendly.

Those are just some of the changes bombs have wrought There are many others non-physical changes which have made the average man revise his ideas on politics and economics.

British history exemplifies an ingrained respect for position But today the line of distinction has been pushed back until the words of the Archbishop of Canterbury that "service comes first and opportunity to make profits comes afterwards' can be taken as indicative of how England is thinking

The average Britisher has taken a stand to be alive attitude," and that attitude alone, perhaps, can be credited with giving him a new sense of values which will to give up what he's had in order to repay Hitler with total defeat and thus attain what he wants in the future.

Reconstruction is uppermost in his mind, second only to winning the war Reconstruction not only of devastated homes and buildings but a revision of economies perhaps even of governmental structure. The Britons seem to accept the premise that in days to come wealth must not flow into the hands of a few, and that workers must have a greater share

However, it is felt that for some time after the war ends the people will be anxious to relax and enjoy life after this terrific tempo of war. This undoubtedly would tend to check any violent swing to the "left."

But whatever happens after the war the fact remains that today millions are saving how the "other half" lives Many more thousands than ever before are working with their hands in the factories Greatly increased numbers of citizens whose wages are being taxed higher than ever will want to know what their government does with their taxes Hence, the people are becoming more and more concerned over their local and national governments, with an eye toward protecting their own welfare

YOUR LOCAL NEWSPAPER DRAWS PRAISE —

The radio broadcaster over CJCA's "Editor's Hour" has taken special notice of the Standard during his recent broadcasts, commenting on both the news content and advertising contained in your local paper. Speaking of the many news items which always appear in the Standard, the announcer wound up by saying, "The Standard contains dozens of other items of local interest; the Editor and staff obviously keep close tab on town and district events and do an extra fine job of publicizing them."

If the Standard received the support it deserves, every business in the town would be represented in its advertising columns. The local newspaper more than any other, is a community project, it renders service to the community far in excess of any other line of business, and as such, deserves community-wide support.

He is responsible for explaining the objectives and methods of the division to different trade and industry groups. He will also aid them in obtaining their own efficiency-economy programs. Mr. Williams will cover the four Western provinces.

In addition to interpreting the policies of the Division of Simplified Practice, he will represent the Western viewpoint and will communicate the ideas and suggestions of business and industry to the division in Ottawa.

After a two-year clerkship in the Hudson's Bay Co. he entered the U.B.C. Arts course as an apprentice and spent seven years with the company. Later he became associated with business and financial enterprises in various executive positions. Through these channels, his work of the past two years has taken him into many different fields of business.

Consistent with the policy of the board, he will seek the close cooperation of business in diverting economies and conserving materials essential to the prosecution of total war.

PINS MAKE GUNS

For steel and brass savings. It is estimated 1,500,000,000 fewer pins last year than in 1940. In an order restricting the amount of steel to be used in hair pins and bobby pins in the United States it is expected to effect a saving of 16 thousand tons of steel. This is equivalent to the steel for 80 rather machine guns.

Total value contracts placed and commitments made by Department of Munitions and Supply on Canada in United Kingdom and other accounts are now over the four billion dollar mark.

WOODVALE

The Red Cross weiner roast and bazaar held on Saturday evening was quite successful. The bazaar, with Miss Green in charge with very neat articles made by the schoolchildren, and a great variety of donations by Woodvale residents, brought the sum of $117 and the booth cleared most likely around $9 above expenses, we have not heard the exact amount at time of writing. It was a lovely evening and we think the large crowd enjoyed itself very much. The girls played the boys a game of softball and were just going strong in catching up on the score when the ball broke. The men had their horseshoe game, while the ladies were visiting and having quite a bit of fun trying on an apron that was for sale and too large for the slim ones and just too small for the, let's say, slightly stouter ones. It finally found a buyer who could get in and out of it by herself. In the meantime the blast made round trips, loaded to the rim and kept going steadily all evening. Once it pulled out with ten wide-eyed youngsters and Chris Thomsen in charge. At the end Harry Pocaznik auctioned off the very few things left in the bazaar and some cookies and buns. Some of the bachelors will not have to worry about their baking — specially of cookies, for a long time to come.

Crops on summerfallow are still progressing but gardens are suffering and slow and other land is bone dry.

There are more hogs grown in Alberta than any other part of Canada at present and in Vermilion we are doing our share. Pigs are quite exciting animals and give us trouble at times. Imagine Bob Rankin's surprise, when, arriving at Bernadale with his car and trailer he found his new purchers vanished. He finally located them three miles south still whole and hearty and after a merry chase, with several rolling maneuvers and the neatest farmer cooperating, they finally were loaded again and reached their destination.

Peter Stanley gives his pigs quite a delicious mixture to drink that he wanted to try it himself one day, and dived head first into the pail, when leaning over the edge. It cannot have been as good as the pigs think, and as he has not tried them since ...

Cherish the lipstick containers on your bureau and dressing table. These and other such items destined for metal manufacturers come under priorities orders so cold cream jars and lipstick containers will probably be allocated to women who have no use for them. Women who have no use for them will be asked to turn in their empty containers to the Salvage Corps. Old cosmetics will probably be collected and used as fuel in the munitions industry, among the "musts" on the personal salvage list.

Conference Called of Prairie Governments and Farm Organizations

EDMONTON—Calling of a conference of prairie governments and farm organizations follows the successful gathering of farmer representatives with Alberta government officials in Edmonton last week. Attending the Edmonton meeting were officials of the Alberta Wheat Pool, the Alberta Federation of Agriculture, the United Farmers of Alberta, United Grain Growers' Ltd., and the Alberta Farmers' Union. Representatives of the Alberta Debt Adjustment Board, the Attorney-Generals Department and the Department of Agriculture were also in attendance. It was stated afterwards that all decisions arrived at were unanimous, although there were variations of opinion. Nevertheless, the conference was animated by a spirit of harmony and a determination to unite for the purpose of easing farm debt and production burdens.

Back Wages Collected

Under provincial labor legislation inspectors of the Board of Industrial Relations were instrumental in collecting $1,858.16 in back wages for Alberta workers during April, and organizing increases which total $90.77 weekly. During the year ended on March 31, wage collections totalled $27,858.11 and the amount of weekly wage increases obtained for workers was $2,224.62. Since then $2,275 more were were directly affected by inspections made during the year, it is shown by the Board report.

Cheese Making on Up-Grade

Cheese manufacture in Alberta's most flourishing branch of agriculture, according to the Department of Trade and Industry report for Feb. During the first two months of this year, a gain of 164% over the previous period in 1941 was recorded. Manufacture reached 491,187 pounds, for all of which there was a ready market. Butter for factory runs less than 1% to a total of 2,156,241 pounds worth $982,507.

Travelling Clinic Starts Tour

Alberta's unique travelling clinic has left Edmonton for the annual tour of country points carried out under direction of the department of health. This year's tour will include Wainfield, Minnehik, Breton, Warburg, Sangudo, Green Court, Mayerthorpe, Campsie, Fort Assiniboine, Lisard, Jarvie, Newbrook, Grassland, Plamondon, Wandering River, Canyon Creek, Fawn, Grimard, Palmer (or Grouxville, Tangent, Eyeroft, Hythe, Dellolt and Valley View. A survey nurse pays an advance visit to those points and arranges for local committees to organize arrangements for the clinical work. Since the work was begun in Alberta, 44,480 children have received attention, 11,153 minor operations have been performed and 28,420 dental treatments given.

Refunding Committee Meeting Postponed

Meeting of the Alberta refunding committee slated for May 21 has been postponed to May 27 or immediately thereafter, it is announced by Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer. Mr. Low also said that the postponement was made in order to permit a London representative of British bondholders to arrive for attendance. It was learned recently that these interested parties are ready to make submissions involving a cut in interest with Dominion guarantees. About $121,000,000 in bonded indebtedness is the Alberta total.

Coal production is also on the increase, thus reflecting the growing Eastern market for this Alberta product. By the end of February production compared with the previous period in 1941 had increased 25% with 1,176,322 worth $4,311,278. Also power consumed is steady going with two months output set at 1,095,825 barrels worth $3,984,106, an increase of 30%. Natural gas consumption rose 6% and was valued at $1,277,218.

Gains were recorded in construction, wholesale trade, bank clearings and live stock exports, which rose in the case of cattle 50%, to a value of $1,742,215. Decreases were shown in horse exports, wheat and coarse grain loadings, cement production and flour milling. Unemployment figures show a sharp decline, with slightly more than 1,700 registrations, a decrease of 70%.

BOWTELL BULLETIN

Twenty-two ladies gathered at the home of Mrs. McGinnis in a surprise visit on Grandma McGinnis on Wednesday afternoon. During the course of the afternoon a dainty lunch was served and Mrs. Rindale presented the guest of honor with a gift from the people of the district, consisting of a purse and silk stockings. Grandma McGinnis expressed her deep appreciation and pleasure and thanked everyone. She is leaving her 81st birthday and is still active and alert.

Mrs. B. Gow of Calgary visited at the Perkins home one day last week and will visit in the district until after the dance.

A number of children from the school here participated in the elimination track meet on Friday last in Vermilion.

Miss M. Spencer is, we are pleased to say, back in our district, and is at Mrs. Walker's.

William Walker celebrated his 70th birthday on Sunday by giving a party to the young folks.

Last word from Mrs. Harrison was that she is visiting her sister in Saskatchewan.

A Timely Warning

Truck drivers who take happy parties on pleasant summer jaunts, run the risk of having their gasoline rationing books pilfered, warns the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. It doesn't matter if the truck driver carries them, too.

Gas rationing is intended to preserve all the gasoline possible for the use of essential forces. A special clause in the regulations prohibits commercial vehicles from carrying passengers. It reads:

"No person shall hereafter use or operate or cause to be used or operated, whether for or without compensation, any vehicle for the transportation of persons other than the driver and any assistant or assistants necessary to load or unload goods on or from such vehicle."

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

By M. G. L. Stapp
Director, Economics Department, Searle Grain Co., Ltd.

News from Britain tells us that meat is becoming so scarce that the present ration, which is no more than one pound for each person each week, may have to be further reduced. There is, of course, not a single person in Canada who would not like to share some of the bountiful supplies we now enjoy of meats and other animal products, such as butter, cheese, eggs, butter and milk, with our British friends who are our most valiant comrades-in-arms.

Fortunately there is an easy method by which we can share to some extent. We can eat less of these precious foods ourselves and so release more to be sent to Britain. We can do this by consuming more vegetables; indeed nutritionists tell us that we eat nothing like enough for us ...ilth of the wonderful vegetables that our prairie lands can grow.

Every farmer therefore should certainly put in a vegetable garden this spring, both to help Britain and for his family's sake. Green-stuffs, such as broccoli, mustard and cress, brussels sprouts, spinach, cauliflower and lettuce should be included in the garden, for these leafy vegetables it is now found have a high content of those most precious A and C health-bringing vitamins.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Heavy flood da...e to winter crops has been s...ed in Hungary and the Balkans—Crop production in India and South Africa to below average owing to dryness — Canada's wheat surplus now is 107 million bushels less than last year and shipments continue good.

Following factors have tended to lower price: Generous rains have fallen over wide areas of Western Canada recently—Winter wheat crop prospects in U.S.A. continue generally satisfac...—President Roosevelt's anti-inflation message to Congress recently resulted in lower prices at Chicago.

The C.W.L. will hold their annual spring tea and sale of home cooking on Saturday June 6th in the Elks hall from 3 to 6 p.m. 6-7c

SUGAR RATION Now 1/2 LB.

Since sugar rationing was first introduced, the shipping situation has become more serious. The danger to ships and lives has increased. Consequently it has now become necessary to reduce the sugar ration from ¾ lb. to ½ lb. per week per person. Only persons in areas remote from source of supply are permitted to have more than two weeks' supply on hand at any time.

PER WEEK PER PERSON

SUGAR FOR PRESERVING

Special provision is made for additional quantities of sugar for home preserving and canning.

In addition to your ration, you may purchase ½ lb. of sugar for every pound of fruit that you preserve or can, and ¼ lb. of sugar for every pound of fruit made into jam or jelly.

Every person who buys sugar for canning or preserving is required to keep an accurate record of the sugar purchased for this purpose. If any sugar remains after canning and preserving, it shall form part of the regular ration of ½ lb. per person per week.

Loyal Canadians will be glad of this new opportunity to do their part to ensure Victory.

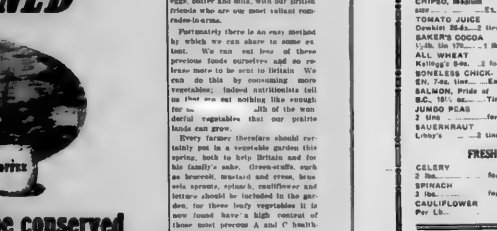
TEA AND COFFEE ARE RATIONED

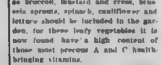


Ships and lives must be conserved

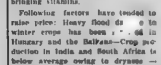
To bring tea from Ceylon and India, to bring coffee from Brazil, Colombia, Africa and other great commercial countries with submarines. Today these ships and their novel cargoes are required for more essential purposes. Every ship, every load of cargo space, is needed to carry the fighting men and to bring essential goods to Canada.

In Canada we must now reduce our consumption of tea and coffee. You must reduce your normal consumption of tea by at least one fourth. These reductions are absolutely necessary.

TEA CONSUMPTION must be cut at least one fourth



COFFEE must be cut at least one fourth



THIS IS THE LAW

You must not buy more than 2 weeks' supply of tea or coffee for yourself and household at any one week.

You must not make further purchases of tea or coffee at any time unless you have two weeks' supply in the form of the rationed orders. Remember, those in stock are your weeks supply.)

Retailers have the right to limit or refuse customers' orders if they suspect the law is not being kept.

Jewellers Of Queen Victoria's Time Now Doing War Work

Craftsmen who made beautifully worked diamond brooches, bracelets and other examples of fine jewelry for the court of Queen Victoria are among those who have come back from retirement to their benches in London workshops to add their skill to Britain's war effort. They are now fashioning delicate parts for aircraft, tanks, ships, torpedoes and bombs, as well as surgical and precision instruments. Some of them are as old as 89. In one workshop alone there are as many as 30 expert craftsmen between the ages of 60 and 80. At least one principal has returned from retirement with the others. He is R. C. Antrobus, who organized the jewelry trade for war work in the last war. It was Mr. Antrobus who, in 1930, offered £40,000 for the famous Napoleon necklace which the Emperor Napoleon I. presented to the Empress Marie Louise on the birth of their son, the King of Rome, in 1811. When he retired some years ago, Mr. Antrobus was head of the firm which five generations of his family have directed, but he, too, is now back at the bench with his men.

The General Retreated

Robert E. Lee Did Not Realize How Much Depended On Him

General Robert E. Lee could never realize the profound respect and affection in which he was held by his countrymen. One day, several months after the close of the war between the States, he visited a store near his home in Powhatan County, Virginia, and chatted with the proprietor about crops and other topics of local interest. News of the General's presence was quickly noised about the village, and a large crowd soon congregated in the store for a glimpse of the beloved figure. Suddenly turning about and noting the crowd, General Lee exclaimed dramatically, "Oh, Mr. Benders, I never realized I was keeping you away from so many customers. Please pardon me!" And then Lee beat a hasty retreat.

Preserve Tires

New Regulations Make It An Offence To Destroy Any Damp Rubber

Scraps of the regulation making it an offence to destroy tires has been broadened to include all scrap rubber. It was announced by the department of munitions and supply.

The order now provides no person shall burn, cut, or destroy "any tire or tube of a passenger car, truck, motorcycle, bicycle, airplane, or other vehicle, any rubber boots, hose scrap from repairing or from making repair materials, buffing scrap from preparing for retreading, retread scrap, flea belts, radiator hose," or other used or discarded rubber products or rubber scrap.

An authorized tire dealer must make the best possible use of tires and tubes which can be made fit for further use on the road, must re-sell those which are in good condition, must repair and re-sell those which can be made safe for operation, but is allowed to sell to another authorized dealer for repair and re-sale a tire which he does not want to repair himself.

All tires or tubes which cannot be sold, or repaired for sale, to a vehicles owner must be disposed of to a salvage collector such as a local branch of the local salvage committee or sold to a scrap dealer.

Explanations and Comments

The Agony in Gethsemane, Mark 14:32-42. From the upper room where Jesus and his disciples had partaken of the Last Supper, they went to the Mount of Olives. On reaching an enclosed place of prayer (a garden, John 18:1 called Gethsemane, a word which means Oil Press (it contained olive trees and an oil press), Jesus bade eight of the little group of them while he went farther to pray. In the solemn moments of life it is to man's "...call God dearest that one true, and Jesus took with him Peter, James and John, the privileged disciples.

Jesus began to be greatly amazed and sore troubled. "Amazed" is a strong word here. Think of it as "a mass", none one suggests. You are in a place where you cannot get out. You wander round and round. Jesus began to be amazed; he was filled with bewilderment and sorely troubled. And to the three disciples he said: "My soul is exceedingly sorrowful even unto death (compare our statement, I am ready to death, which means I am exceedingly tired); abide ye here and watch."

Privilege means responsibility. What could they do for Jesus by watching? His trouble was beyond their depth. But they could watch and warn him of the approach of his enemies so that he would not be taken unawares. They could keep fellowship with him in prayer. They could sustain him in his agony by their mere sympathetic presence.

And straightway in the morning the chief priests with the elders and scribes, and the whole council, held a consultation, and bound Jesus, and carried him away, and delivered him up to Pilate. And Pilate asked him, Art thou the King of the Jews? And he answering saith unto him. Thou sayest. And the chief priests accused him of many things. And Pilate again asked him, saying, Answerest thou nothing? behold how many things they accuse thee of. But Jesus no more answered anything; insomuch that Pilate marvelled.

"What then, shall I do unto him whom ye call the King of the Jews?" Pilate asked. His conscience had told him what he should do with Jesus yet he asked the people!

The people who but five short days earlier had acclaimed Jesus as king, now shouted, "Crucify him." Why, what evil hath he done?" Pilate asked them in helpless dismay. But they only cried the louder, "Crucify him."

Health League of Canada

presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

PHYSICAL FITNESS

"The industries of our country have a tremendous task to perform," said Dr. A. C. Ivy of Northwestern University at the Congress on Industrial Health, convening in Chicago recently.

"The successful accomplishment of this task depends primarily on the morale and physical fitness of our man power," he added.

Dr. Ivy reported on a few ideas that have been worked out to advantage in various industrial organizations throughout the country. The problem of fatigue, due to the heavy use of certain factory jobs, is one that confronts the medical departments of many industries.

Dr. Ivy states that enforced rest periods every other hour or so will eliminate fatigue and speed up production. This was proven by an actual wartime test when two officers at the front, for a friendly wager, competed in making equal lengths of trench, each with an equal squad of men. One let his men work as they pleased, but as hard as possible. The other divided his men into three sets, each working five minutes and resting 10. This was proven by

The Congress was also told that almost anything the management of a factory does, which stimulates the interest of the workers or indicates interest in the workers' welfare, improves production. Recreation rooms with supervised games are therefore suggested for large industries employing hundreds of workers. They should not feel that their identity is lost or that they have become mere cogs, but are important factors in the country's war effort and therefore the management is very much concerned with their welfare.

Dr. Ivy urges the personnel managements of industries to experiment continually as experimentation will do much to maintain the morale of the workers.

Soar Record Boom

New York Economist Looking For Big Business After The War

Paul F. Cadman, of New York, economist for the American Bankers' Association, predicted that if the United States can get through the war without being invaded it will enjoy the biggest business boom in history after the war is over.

He told 500 New Jersey bankers at their annual convention that the measures the United States is taking to produce munitions for war are also preparing it for peacetime production afterwards.

The wartime destruction of property in other parts of the world, he said, is creating customers who will clamor for American materials and finished goods when peace comes.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Tamar tried to stop her trembling, but the remembrance of this man's words not more than 15 minutes before, came back to her, "Sister, you're sure in a tough spot!" It seemed like a horrible nightmare, or that she was the character in some silly movie, being kidnapped by a gangster.

But the climbing speedometer of the car, the trees flashing by as it sped crazily around curves in the dusty road, and the amazing beautiful of the driver's expression told her that it was no dream.

The common sense told her that she must not try to escape, lest they both be killed, and prayed that the highway patrol would stop him. Several times she thought they must go over into a ditch, but each time the driver managed to keep on the road.

Ransome Todd had finished signing the last of the letters when his telephone rang. It had been an unusually busy day, and he had not noticed how late it was growing

His partner was caught the sound of Phoebe's voice, and he sprang to his feet. "Talk sense, Phoebe" he shouted. "Say it slowly this time."

"De Pelten youngun, name of Marigold, come foh Miss Tamah dis afternoon, Mist Ransome," Phoebe's panting name more distinctly than her words. "He' me needed de doctah, and dat Tamah called him up and took de youngun and rode Maddap to de Peltens. She stayed till Doctah Perry come, den she sez he', De Pelten youngun foan' one of Tamah's green gloves, an' follo'ed heh. She say she heah'd a shot, den she saw Miss Tamah run down de road. Some man ketched up wif he' and grab and put Tamah in de cah and drive off."

Ran's heart stopped beating, then pounded until it must burst his chest, the pain was so great.

"How long ago, Phoebe?"

"A good half-hour, Mist Ransy," her voice shook. "Mist Randolph done tooken his reh and he' to go down de highway."

"Did you call the police?"

"Yas'm, sh called. Mist Randolph was lak a madman. He patrol ain a rollein' around."

"Keep the Pelten child till I get there, Phoebe."

In all of his years of driving, Ransome had observed the traffic speed regulations in Tahlahoma. But today, with a grinding of gears, the car was off like a streak, roaring around the square, and off toward the highway. Pedestrians gathered in little knots exclaiming about the recklessness of the driver.

Ransome thought the drive to Shadwell would never end, and at last the car turned into the big trees at the turn into the lane.

Marigold Pelten, eyes wide in her dirty face, rose in frightened timidity and sidled down the steps of the verandah.

"Tell me all you can," said Ransome in a harsh voice.

Mr. Todd, I followed her, because she had her gloves, and she was good to Ma," the tears trickled down and Marigold began to sob. "I heard a shot, and had before I got to the junction. I couldn't see Miss Tamar, and I was scared. Purty soon I seen her runnin' down the road. I run down to the junction, Mr. Todd, and then I seen the man carryin' her to the car. Miss Tamar tried to get loose, but she couldn't. He drove away awful fast."

"What color car?"

"Black. A little car, what you call——"

"Coupe?" he helped.

She nodded. "That's all I know, excepting, sir, that Maddap is dead."

"Maddap?"

"Uh-huh. It looked like they dragged her and had her behind that brush at the corner." Marigold's sobs grew louder.

Ransome burst into the house and called the local police office.

"Tom!" he spoke swiftly, "this is Todd speaking. I'm at Shadwell, have you anything on Miss Randolph's disappearance?"

"The patrol is on the lookout. But the black coupe seems to have disappeared from the face of the earth. We've combed the roads around here."

"Where's Taylor, of the FBI?"

"He's already on the job. Just a moment, here's a call."

Ransome waited impatiently. Out of the turmoil of his chaotic thoughts one thing remained certain. If the patrol were unable to locate the car that had spirited Tamar away, how could he expect to find her? A sudden wild thought assailed him. Maybe the old mill on Whiff ..... it would be the perfect place, providing nobody thought of looking there. And the driver would have just about time to make it there before the roads were watched.

But before the telephone rang, he had realized that there were dozens of places in the immediate neighborhood that would serve very well as hideouts until later.

It was Tom Sidwell. "Todd! There's $50 to pay on the car I got into Taylor's car. Ransome hung up the receiver to follow them or go out by himself in a maze of bewildering possibilities.

Tamar's common sense told her that she must not try to escape, lest they both be killed, and prayed that the highway patrol would stop him. Several times she thought they must go over into a ditch, but each time the driver managed to keep on the road.

"Yas'm, sh called. Mist Randolph was lak a madman. He patrol ain a rollein' around."

Marigold's wild scream startling him more than the incident.

Ransome came to a skidding, determined stop. "Get out!" he shouted glaring into Marigold's face. Dumbly, she obeyed.

Ransome trotted as he sped on. "Fool kid. No telling what I'll run into down here. I'll kill the man who took her away in that car."

He shut out the picture of Tamar, game little fighter that he knew she was, trying to squirm out of her captor's hold. If only she would have sense enough to obey him.

At the junction in the road, he slowed, but not enough to keep from skidding when he stopped at the foot of the hill. He made a wide flounder-ing circle, and barely kept from hitting the express truck which had sunk its wheels into the same ditch where Maddap had met disaster.

He recognized Major Towne who had seemed in deep discussion, but now was staring in surprise at Ransny. Taylor, the FBI man, was firing questions at a man. Two patrolmen stood by.

Taylor greeted Ransome brusly.

Ransome walked directly up to Major Towne. "Where is Miss Randolph?" he asked coldly, boring into the man's little close-set eyes.

"What color car?"

"Black. A little car, what you call——

"Coupe?" he helped.

She nodded. "That's all I know, excepting, sir, that Maddap is dead."

Gardening

Still Plenty Of Time

It is not too late to plant an excellent garden. As a matter of fact, experienced gardeners point that far more people err on the early planting side than vice versa. There is little real growth for the majority of flowers and vegetables before mid and late spring has up. With many things it is better to plant late than too early.

Of course there are some exceptions. There should be no delay in getting such things as peas, spinach, lettuce and radish into the ground.

The safest rule with flowers is to plant those that would naturally seed themselves in the reader's particular district. Among such "self seeders" are many of the poppies, the calendula, alyssum, nemesia and other very hardy types.

Grass is also a plant that makes its best growth in the cool weather, and new lawns or lawn repair work should be started just as soon as soil is fit to work safely. The way to tell if this moment has arrived is to observe soil texture, if muddy and inclined to stick to shovel or shoes it is not dry enough. Soil fit for gardening is moist but not sticky. It will crumble when compressed in the hand, not pack into a tight ball.

Spading

In planting flower and vegetable seed, spacing is important as even the ridiculous does not care to spend much time kneeling and thinning. Labor can be saved by not sowing too thickly. Corn beets, peas and similar plants with big seeds can really be sown at the distances advised on the packet. With tiny seeded lettuce, alyssum or poppies, however, it is practically impossible to sow thinly enough so that the first mixed with a little sand and the whole sprinkled evenly can be spread out

Even with all this care however usually some thinning of plants is essential later ..... and ..... order growth will result where there is plenty of room.

Annual flowering bulbs such as tulips, hyacinths and daffodils should be left in the soil to mature after their period of bloom is over. At this time of the year they cease to be an ornament and many gardeners are tempted to pull the disfiguring tops. This practice is with-out doubt responsible for the shortage as we are to some to get full supplies of these bulbs again until after the war. It is best to let them cure naturally. However, be can hide dying foliage with some well started bushy annuals. Transplanted now they will be big enough to hide the spring bulbs when the blooming period is over

Not more than one-fifth of the water in the ocean has a temperature of more than 60 degrees Fahrenheit.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our beloved daughter

Maxine

who passed peacefully away May 25th, 1938.

We saw you fading like a flower.
But could not make you stay.
We sorrow you with tender kindness
Until God called you away.
Oh Maxine dear, we loved you,
And our hearts ache for you still,
Forgotten by some others,
But by us you never will."

—Fondly remembered by Dad, Mom, Bro., Boys, Ella, Melvin and Glenna.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of

who passed away May 28, 1941.
Quickly and suddenly came the call.
His sudden death surprised us all.
Dearer to memory than words can tell,
The loss of a father we loved so well
—Ever remembered by his wife, daughters, son and family.

Stagette Notes

Eight members of the local Stagette club attended the annual convention of the National Association of Stagettes, held in the Macdonald hotel in Edmonton May 24th and 25th.

The girls report that they have come back inspired and enthused as a result of their attendance. They have gained a greater knowledge of the work of the club and new local executive qualities in carry on their work in true Stagette style. They found a spirit of good fellowship and co-operation which has helped their respective locals. Apart from the business and inspirational side of the convention, there were the social functions which the girls enjoyed immensely. They not only with every member of the club might have been present to share in a very pleasant week end.

The Vermilion club was represented officially by Mil Noonan who gave a resume of the club's work since the organization last January. Marie Stewart, the local club president, spoke to the convention and at the banquet Jessie Swanson toasted the Calgary club. Other local members in attendance included Dorothy Heidebrecht, Norah Nelson, June Burch, Margaret Shand, Lucie English. The girls presented a gift to Marie Stevenson Requested as their contribution to the Sunday evening entertainment.

Mrs. B. Carey of Calgary, formerly of Vermilion, was in attendance and renewed acquaintance with the girls. Mrs. Carey is the organizer of the Vermilion club.

Mr and Mrs. Roland Earle and family motored to Vermilion last Friday. They were accompanied by Mrs. A. Adam. —Sunnyville Novelle.

WILDMERE WINKS

Several people have been sick with the flu in our part this last week or so.

A meeting was held of the three church boards at Auburndale church on Wednesday evening last. Those attending from here were Mrs. Gibson and Mrs. Smith, the latter acting for the writer who was sick that night. It was decided to reduce the amount to collect in our field, so we will do our best to get the amount we are allotted. Mr. Pick has said that he will keep expenses down as much as possible.

Mrs. Chas. Morand, Triangle, is a patient in the hospital suffering from blood poisons in her finger caused by a sliver.

A recent letter from Mrs. E. Graham, Edmonton, says that she is now home again from the hospital, but is still feeling weak.

Mrs. Robert Smith, we are pleased to say, is getting along splendidly. We extend our sympathy to the young couple on the loss of their infant daughter.

Congrats to Mr. and Mrs. Owen of Auburndale on the birth of a baby son and to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Goddard of Vandenhoff on the birth of a baby girl. Mr. and Mrs. Goddard were the folks who were snow-bound at the writer's for a few days last April.

George Love has been called to report for duty in the Air Force and left for the city on Sunday morning.

Albert Howard was a pre-war visitor over the week end. Albert is studying to try and pass for a pilot in the near future. Good luck, Albert.

A shower will be held at Triangle school on Friday evening May 29th for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shahan (see Marvine Beckman). Everybody welcome.

John Wilson is always out for sport for the community and is now lining up golf links and has a field out southeast of his house where nine holes can be played. It's getting to be quite an attraction for old and young alike.

Visitors at the Wallington home on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. George Bengough, Georgina, Shirley and Maxine, Mrs. Debord, Mrs. Moore and Lousette, Mrs. Wm. Gow, Charlie and Donnie, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Dirk, and Jean Ralph. A very enjoyable time was had by all present.

Jimmie Wallington has been out collecting for the Red Cross this week and is very pleased the way everyone responds to this very worthy cause.

George Crothers returned home last Friday from the hospital much better he says, and we are all pleased to hear it.

Gunner Laurence Graham will leave this Friday to resume his training after spending the past two weeks at his sister and brother-in-law's home. He has seen a lot of his friends in the short while home.

J. E. SWANSON NEW MANAGER OF VERMILION CONSOLIDATED (1935) LTD.

Those interested in the rapid development of the oil drilling and marketing program of the Vermilion and Lloydminster fields will be pleased to hear of the appointment of John E. Swanson as manager of Vermilion Consolidated Oils Limited, and their subsidiary the Vermilion Refinery Ltd., located at Bermudale.

Mr. Swanson is well known as vice-president and general manager of the Northern Natural Gas Co. Ltd. of Houghton, and Vice-President and general manager of the Prairie Public Service, Vermilion. His added responsibilities and interest in the development of oil production here will be welcome news to all who are familiar with the importance of developing one of Canada's much needed war supplies.

Mr. Walter F. Thorn, president of Consolidated Oils, made known Mr. Swanson's new appointment when he visited Vermilion on Monday last.

REV. F. A. PEAKE OF CLANDONALD ORDAINED

Four clergy were advanced to the priesthood at an ordination service on Sunday morning last in All Saints' Cathedral, Edmonton. One of the new was the Rev. Frank A. Peake of Clandonald. Conducting the ceremony was the Rt. Rev. W. F. Barfoot, Bishop of Edmonton and assisting were the Ven. Archdeacon Leversedge, Ven. Archdeacon Tackaberry, Canon A. M. Trendell and Rev. R.S. Ottley.

ARRIVES OVERSEAS

Sgt. Pilot Donald Irwin was among the recent arrivals from Canada in Great Britain. Donald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Irwin of Vermilion. His two sisters Doris and Lucile attended high school in Vermilion some years ago. Donald received his wings at Claresholm on March 28th, 1942. He has an older brother serving as wireless operator in the R.C.A.F.

CARLOAD OF RUBBER TO BE SHIPPED SOON

Salvage Still Coming In — Metals Mount Up

The Vermilion Salvage Corps reports that there is now a carload of rubber stored in the depot and application has been made to the Rubber Company of Toronto for shipping instructions. This carload will go direct to the east. The car will be loaded as soon as instructions are received from the company which should be any day now. Railwaymen estimate the rubber poundage on hand will be in excess of a small car which means that there is more than 30,000 pounds in the pile. Besides the tires, which include some from tractors, there are boxes and bags full of miscellaneous rubber of every description mostly packed up by Bill May here. Help of the citizens will be asked for loading when the car is spotted.

The shipping of this car of rubber does not mean that collection of the valuable material will stop. A start will immediately be made on gathering together a second car. Smaller than carlots can be disposed of in Edmonton.

The Vermilion Salvage Corps tenders its sincere thanks for donations to the rubber collection, and hopes that everyone will carry on the good work.

Clandonald and Islay truck owners are especially thanked as they have transported several loads from these centres free of any charge. That is the spirit that helps so greatly.

METAL MOUNTING UP

Now that contracts have been finished there is a decided increase in the scrap metal hauled in to the depot and practically a carload is on hand. Scrap metal dumps at the elevators, left there last fall, will also be picked up when Bill May time comes. Considerable work will be required sorting the material into steel and cast, and also in tonning. Assistance or men who know metals will be asked.

CANNOT MARKET GLASS

Owing to the fact that glass can only be marketed in carload lots to the glass works at Redcliffe, the local Salvage Corps has ceased collecting this material. The junk companies in Edmonton do not handle glass and thus there is no means of disposing of it except in carload lots. What is on hand will be shipped to Edmonton in the first carload of mixed salvage and donated to the Edmonton salvage committee, so that centre ships it on by the carload.

In the meantime, keep your salvage committee, so that centre ships it on by the carload.

56-Year-Old Ship Was First Armored Vessel To Sail Great Lakes

The 56-year-old U.S.S. Michigan, better known on the Great Lakes as the "Wolverine" is going to war—but not in one piece.

It has been decided to scrap the old vessel—the first armored ship to sail the lakes—and divert the metals to the current war effort.

Some quarters had fought the move on the grounds that the one-time pride of the navy should be preserved as a historic relic. But it was pointed out that the "Wolverine" had been permitted to disintegrate in the mud of Misery Bay in Lake Erie for the past several years

The Statue Of Liberty

Lord Halifax Says Everyone Should See This Amazing Figure

Lord Halifax was in New York a few weeks ago and did a bit of sightseeing. He took a boat trip out to Bedloe's Island to make a close inspection of the famous Statue of Liberty, that huge and familiar torched figure, the first glimpse of which every passenger on an incoming liner looks for when nearing the estuary from overseas. The British Ambassador was deeply impressed. "Tremendous," he ejaculated. "It is beautiful; everybody should see it."

Probably everybody who goes to New York does see it, but it is not enough to be satisfied with a look from the Battery wharf. Everybody should go over on the ferry and into the statue. As one approaches the island in the boat the statue appears to tower over all like a precipitous mountain. It almost takes one's breath away, but perhaps the greatest surprise a visitor may get is to see human faces peering out of the figure's hat, more than 300 feet above sea level. How did people get in there? Then you find that you can go inside the statue at the base, ascend in a capacious elevator and emerge somewhere in the vicinity of the shoulders than climb up stairs in the head to the hat and view the vast perspective of Manhattan. Those who do not make the final climb can look from shoulder height.

There are 300,000 pounds of bronze in this 450,000 pounds figure, the metal is 2½ feet thick, the index finger eight feet long, the whole hands 16 feet, the right arm holding the torch is 42 feet long and with a bicep 12 feet thick, and the diameter of the head is 10 feet. Forty people can stand inside the head and 13 inside the torch. It is the most colossal figure ever made, and took Bartholdi five years to do it. The statue was put together in Paris in 1881, but five more years elapsed before it was bolted on the base on Bedloe's Island.

The Statue of Liberty was the gift of the French people to the people of the United States for what they had done in the cause of liberty everywhere and French liberty in particular. Today, the American people are again fighting for French liberty which the Vichy Frenchmen are seeking to destroy. The Statue of Liberty is now almost a mockery.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Shipments Are Smaller

Tea May Soon Come Under Voluntary Rationing Plan

Voluntary rationing of tea in Canada is under consideration by food control authorities, it is learned at Ottawa.

Tea shipments under the altered Pacific situation have resulted in "pretty skinny," officials state. It is believed that voluntary restrictions on the domestic consumer will soon have to be imposed in order to secure fair distribution of the available supply and reduce the total amount used.

If and when applied, tax rationing will follow the general pattern of present sugar regulations, officials intimate. Though the ration will be voluntary, there would be heavy penalties for violation of the regulations, overbuying and hoarding.

Discussion prohibit rationing of tea, officials asserted that the voluntary rationing of sugar had scored a success in Canada. Through public co-operation and general enforcement supervision, the system has succeeded beyond the hopes of the wartime prices and trade board at the time it was introduced, officials state.

This Is Something New

Radio Tower Tunes Sunday Pool Water Supply Into Immediate Use

Towns whose water supply is threatened by enemy action have been given a novel hand by the enterprising Thameside borough of Erith in Kent.

Erith, says the St. Thomas Times-Journal, has turned its swimming pool into a first rate emergency water reservoir for more than 300,000 people.

Normally the borough draws its water from the vast network of London's Metropolitan Water Board, but recently the local authority thought it prudent to make a survey of all available secondary supplies.

They found 16 deep wells in the district. Eight were used for industrial purposes only, one for drinking and laundry, one for public bathing at the Council's swimming pool, and four were abandoned.

Although the water from three of the deep wells was found to be suitable for drinking, and could in any emergency be worked by National Fire Service pumps, the most prolific source proved to be the swimming pool of 70,000 gallons. The well supplying it yields 30,000 gallons of water an hour, and a total of 17,000 gallons of chlorinated water per hour can now be served from the three existing stand pumps.

From this one source, therefore, 408,000 gallons of water can be had for drinking every 24 hours, with 70,000 gallons always in reserve. Allowing two gallons per head per day Erith's swimming pool would therefore serve a population of 204,000.

BRITAIN'S CHEESE MEN

The only countries that can feed us are Russia and Brazil. Russia actually contains as many square miles of forest as the Empire, and Brazil has not fought Germany contains a very small proportion of the world's forests.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JUNE 7

FRIDAY: THE DAY OF REPENTANCE !!!

Golden text: He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed. Isaiah 53:5.

Lesson Mark 15:33, 34; Luke 23:33-43. (Compare John 19:25-30).

Devotional Reading: Psalm 22:1-5; 14-18.

The Crucifixion, Luke 23:33, 34. When they came to the place outside the city of Jerusalem which is called the Skull (Golgotha or Calvary), Dysmas Latin, Calvary English), they crucified him. "They" of them might be no doubt about the disagreeableness of the Saviour's sufferings, they knew him between two thieves" (Brooks).

"Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do." This prayer of Jesus was for the men whose duty it was to nail him to the cross. They were casting lots for his garments, but also, we may well believe, for the Jewish Sanhedrin, his long-time enemies, who were guilty of bringing about his death but who acted blindly, without fully realizing the full extent of their deed.

The Mockery, Luke 23:35-38. As the men who crucified him divided his garments among themselves (the headdress, the shoes, the outer robe, and the girdle) and cast lots for the seamless inner robe (John 19:23, 24), the people stood around calmly watching and the rulers smiled at him, saying: "He saved others; let him save himself, if this is the Christ of God, his chosen." And the soldiers also mocked and cried, "If thou art the king of the Jews, save thyself," as they offered him the customary drink of vinegar. And there was the superscription over him which read, "This is the King of Jews." It was customary to affix to a cross an inscription naming the crime committed by the one crucified. Pilate could ascribe no crime to Jesus, and he had this inscription written so as to annoy the priests who, as he expected, considered it an insult to themselves: read Jn. 19:21. The inscription was in Hebrew, Latin and Greek, the languages then spoken throughout the civilized world and all who passed by could read it "In place of this superscription the eye of faith sees another: 'Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world'."

Health LEAGUE of CANADA presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

DIET FOR WORKERS

How much should an industrial worker eat in order to attain maximum efficiency in wartime production?

When the Congress on Industrial Health gathered recently in Chicago, Dr. A. C. Ivy, well-known physiologist of Northwestern University, gave the Congress some enlightening facts on a worker's food requirements.

Most men working in wartime plants are on the job at least eight hours a day. Minimum requirement for eight-hour laborers is a diet containing 3 800 to 5,000 calories a day. This is considerably more than a white collar worker requires.

Powerful men working longer hours require even a greater allowance—up to 7,000 calories above the basic requirements.

As to what the diet should consist of—Dr. Ivy and those trained mainly on a worker's menu are adequate, if the vitamin and mineral content is sufficient. Heavy muscular work does not increase the requirement for proteins but it does increase the requirement for fat and carbohydrate.

However, warns Dr. Ivy, the fat content of a man's diet should not be too large, as some men's stomachs will not tolerate it.

Foods high in mineral content are milk, whole-grain cereal, enriched flour, meats, fish, eggs and vegetables. At least some of each of these important foods should appear on a worker's dinner table each day.

Grow Their Own

R.A.F. Stations Go Into Vegetable Gardening On Big Scale

R.A.F. stations are continuing this month the "dig for victory" campaign which yielded such excellent results last summer, writes the London Times Aeronautical correspondent. A great number of the airdromes will be self-supporting in vegetables. Expansion of one fighter station group has involved extra acres of virgin land, and the transport officer, a member of a Lincolnshire farming family, borrowed a plow from a farmer friend and spent his evenings turning over the ground with the assistance of tractors from the airdrome. The extra acreage will enable the station to produce enough vegetables for its own supply all seasons.

THE NEW ORDER

Much of Britain's wartime organization can be made the basis of our postwar endeavor, said Professor Tait, of the University of Birmingham. "I look forward, for instance, to community schools where the sons of the Duke and the son of the Dustman will sit side by side in the better England of the future."

ANNE TEDLOCK BROOKS

CHAPTER XXIV.

Tamar, in the car of her captor, felt the tenseness in the air and increased its speed. They would never be able to stay on the road, she thought in terror as they followed the curves in dizzy skidding.

She bit her lips in determination. She must not speak. They would both be killed if the man had to divide his attention. After an interminable length of time he turned off the highway, but they had gone so far that the place was unfamiliar.

Tamar knew that he had one thing in his favor. No one would suspect that she had been spirited away for perhaps hours yet. Of course, the man intended holding her only a few hours. Just until they had accomplished the hold-up of the truck.

The car came to a halt in a lonely spot on a country road.

"Now, my little lady. Everything is just ducky. I've already stuck my neck out. I'll be charged with kidnapping you if I'm caught. So we might as well sweeten up the pot. I'd say that your father's got a lot of money since the Cricket Hill has been opened up."

Tamar tried to look at him with contempt instead of the fright that she knew must be staring out of her eyes. "Kidnapping! I'm sure you wouldn't do that. Let me go, and you'll be safe." Her voice, weak with dread was almost a whisper. "I won't tell them I was kidnapped. You'd be safe. Take me back to the highway, and I'll get a ride back to Tahaleesha."

His laugh held the contempt of forgotten innocence. "No, I wouldn't be accused of kidnapping you! No! Well, I am holding you for ransom. Maybe that isn't called kidnapping in Georgia. But that's what they call it up North. Now, don't get tough, and if you do what I say, you'll get by. But I wouldn't hesitate to throttle you, young lady."

The man took a dirty handkerchief out of his pocket. Tamar drew back as he made preparations to tie it about her eyes. Then he changed his mind and stuffed the cloth into her mouth instead.

Tamar's white eyeballs fluttered down and a tear trembled on the lashes. She opened them wide and said in cold hatred: "You're a dirty beast. If Ramone Todd or my father ever get their hands on you, they will kill you for a rat."

"A rat!" He laughed. "That's my name, lady. Louie the Rat. But you gotta smile when you say it, it's from now on. Only best friends call me that, and they always smile." He jerked her hand around and tied the handkerchief over her eyes.

Tamar felt his hands and screamed. "Keep your hands off me, you beast."

"Give me your scarf."

She fumbled with the knot and pulled the white scarf from around her neck. Where could he take her? As soon as her disappearance was known, the whole place would be accused. Ranny had warned her to stay off the Cricket Hill road. He knew that the gold shipment to be taken would be held up. Where had the police been when it had taken place? Where was her father this afternoon?

The car started up once more and she knew that they traveled on the Tahaleesha road for miles without meeting a car.

"Duck!" Louie shouted once, and Tamar remained upright, pulled her viciously down, bumping her head against the instrument panel.

After a long time they stopped once more. He yanked her from the car. She could not tell where they were, but felt short, dead grass and stubble beneath her feet. She was lifted and suddenly realized that she was being put into an airplane. She struggled wildly.

"That won't do any good. No one's around."

She heard him fumbling with the safety belt, heard the cockpit door slam and fasten, and then the whirr of the propeller blades.

Tamar had never fainted in her life, but realized as blackness "upped over her that they were taking into the open. She never knew how long they were in the plane.

Darkness was first descending when Louie landed the plane in a small clearing. Tamar was not quick to his command, fearing him. She looked anxiously about her, but the place was unfamiliar. Mountains rose on all sides, and on a nearby foothill she could see a log cabin nestled among pines.

"It ain't a hotel, and the accommodations are slim, but it'll do. Now march along, and quietly, because I don't do any good to throw a fit. There's no one within miles."

Tamar thought fleetingly that she would be the sports clothes she had worn this afternoon over to the Pettens. It seemed like ages instead of a few hours ago. Her father must be frantic by this time. And Ranny! Of course he would know her disappearance was somehow connected with the discoveries they had made.

It was cold, and Tamar shivered as the wind struck her.

"I'll build a fire pretty soon, and find something for us to eat." Louie grinned at her, and Tamar felt sick again.

She stumbled along, trying to keep up with him so that he wouldn't have to touch her. Tamar thought of her mother, and an agonizing pain shook her. Marta had been an gentle and understanding with even the most undeserving, how would she have handled this situation?

The cabin was surprisingly well built and fairly new. Its logs had not yet weathered sufficiently to hide the chinks. Louie produced the key to the door which swung open to a gloomy interior

For a wild instant Tamar thought, perhaps she could get away while he builds the fire. But the man was fumbling with matches and struck a light. He moved over to a table and held the flame to the wick of a coal oil lamp. The chimney was smoked, but the room grew bright.

"Well, here we are!" Louie rubbed his hands. "Know how to cook? You might as well be useful."

Tamar shook her head. "I've not learned."

"Too good, eh?" Didn't your ma learn you? Oh, I forgot you Southern girls never lift your fingers. Well, Mister, I'll learn you a few things. Learn you how to make a home for a man."

"Man?" Tamar said sarcastically. For one moment she thought he would strike her, then he laughed it off. "I almost forgot. Too bad to harm you, for I guarantee to return you safe and sound."

Due To Rationing

New Figures For Madame Tussaud's Exhibition Have No Clothes

Rationing, particularly the controls on soap and clothing, has gone beyond the British family in this war and struck at the wax figures in Madame Tussaud's famed exhibition. So far as clothing for the models goes, there are more difficult days in the wax works, perhaps than at any time since 1802 when the late Madame Marie Tussaud came to England from France and started her show. She had been attached to the household of a sister of King Louis XIV, and learned the making of wax impressions prior to the French Revolution. Ready for display now are three new figures—Sir Stafford Cripps, Gen. MacArthur and Pvt. Hiro, William Temple the new Archbishop of Canterbury. They are designed by Bernard Tussaud, great-great grandson of Madame Tussaud, but they need clothes before appearing in public. And in wartime London new clothes mean coupons, which mean on turn mean going to the Board of Trade for purchasing points. As it is a Tussaud figure can be clad for 45 to 50 ration points—plus cash—but in happier days cash was only required. When clothing be obtained for the three new figures they will join a company of prominent figures ranging from the fitting image of a sour and cynical-faced Voltaire to such modern prominents as tennis-playing Fred Perry and Prime Minister Churchill. Latest recruit to the company is the Russian Marshal Timoshenko, who wears military boots coat and riding trousers with red facings and big top boots took the full number of ration coupons. Next year Madame Tussaud's biggest sewing problem at the show [illegible] ups from soap control. Before the six figures were taken from the show every day to have their hair washed and groomed, their faces and hands sponged and their clothes, if necessary renewed. But now soap is at a premium, so the treatment is less frequent and is done with liquid soap which isn't rationed.

HEAVY WORK LINGERIE

Hauling his lobster traps to the surface the other day, Charles Beever, living 30 miles east of Halifax, discovered an 18-pound lobster tangled in the lines. He reached out to seize Mrs. Crustacean, but the lobster seized him. In the ensuing struggle Beaver fell into the water. A nearby fisherman came to his assistance and Beaver was pulled out with the giant lobster still clamped to his wrist.

Gardening

Must Thin

Thinning, as any experienced gardener will confirm, is most essential [illegible] left alone to maturity, filling or crowding out the weaklings. Of the time to thin the thousand seedling pines that normally start to grow on an acre of land, less than a hundred are permitted to reach full maturity three-quarters of a century later. In gardening the same stern but necessary example must be followed. If left too crowded, flowers become spindly and weak, easy prey for the first stiff wind, heavy rain or hungry insect. Vegetables too get spindly or woody.

Seasoner Cure

The well started carefully planned garden will not require little care and should be returning big dividends in pleasure, health and daily fresh vegetables. Aside from gathering flowers and salad materials right at the door, there is little to do.

Grass should not be cut more often than is necessary; keep it at its check [illegible] borers and caterpillars will benefit from a little cultivation during July, and if flowers are picked regularly the plants will continue in bloom.

Garden Pests

Garden pest [illegible] are divided into two groups, those that do damage to the foliage and those that work on the juices. For the first group a contact insecticide applied [illegible] is usually sufficient. Often when both are present a combination of the two is necessary, that borers pierce the leaf with whole oil soap, a quarter pound of soap to a gallon and a half of whisky. Blended, this makes a [illegible] Leaf 60," or any other [illegible] sprayed from a syringe or stirrer.

When fungus [illegible] the plant the foliage usually [illegible] with a brown, or white [illegible] to cover the leaves. Spraying with Bordeaux Mixture is doubtful, especially [illegible] ground sulphur [illegible] dusted.

Not His Worry

Southern Farmer Had Easy Way Of Avoiding Tough Question

The old-school Southerner, brimming with pride over his farm in the Alabama coastal region, was extolling its merits to a Northern friend. "Why, man," he said proudly, "the trees grow so thick on that land that you couldn't put your arm between them. And as for wildlife, deer are so big that their antlers have a spread of 10 feet!" The Northerner's eyes mirrored questions. He said, "It's interesting, Colonel, but how in the world do the deer get their antlers between those trees?" The colonel stiffened. "That, suh," he replied pompously, "is their business!"

SELECTED RECIPES

BOILED DRESSING

2 eggs
2 tabl spoons white sugar
1 tat spoon Bruton's or Canada Corn Starch
1 tablespoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
½ cup Crown Brand Corn Syrup

C. D. DENNEY, SUPERVISOR OF CREDIT UNIONS, ADDRESSES BOARD TRADE

C. D. Denney, Edmonton supervisor of Credit Unions, was the guest speaker at the Board of Trade meeting on Monday at noon. The meeting drew a better than average attendance of business men of the town and attracted a half dozen farmers as well.

Mr Denney, in his enlightening talk stressed the fact that Credit Unions were not in opposition to any institutional business such as the banks or treasury branches, nor were they dominated by any order or denomination. He went on to tell of the good that is being accomplished through Credit Unions and gave an idea of how they work. Through the proper use of the union the individual who in the ordinary course of every day life has no resource to credit of any kind, finds credit available to him. The Credit Union also encourages the habit of systematic saving, even if the amount is only 50c per week. Most successful credit unions were where business men and farmers took an interest in and supported them. Some individuals, who would never be in need of assistance, yet deposit regularly because of the good the credit unions do for his fellow worker or employee, as credit unions are often formed by employees of large businesses, such as packing houses etc.

Steps are being taken towards the formation of a Vermilion and district credit union.

Another general business meeting of the board will be held on Monday next June 8th when several business matters which were held over, will be brought up.

OBITUARY

CHARLES HENRY WILSON

A large congregation attended the funeral of Charles Henry Wilson, the former Vermilion man, who died at Banks, Vancouver Island on Saturday May 23. Among the pallbearers was Chris Jerkila, also formerly of Vermilion.

Charles Henry Wilson, who had a large circle of friends in Vermilion, operated for many years the Cecil Hotel at the corner of Johnson and Cleveland Streets. He was born in Westgate, Bradford, England, on Nov. 18, 1882, and served for seventeen years in the Royal Navy and was head gun torpedo man. He was discharged from the navy and went to Edmonton in 1907, operating the Brunswick hotel at Vermilion until the outbreak of the first Great War.

Mr. Wilson went overseas in 1915 with the 50th Battalion as machine-gun instructor, and was transferred to the machine-gun brigade and served throughout the early warfare in France. He was several times mentioned in dispatches. He was with the Army of Occupation in Germany. He was discharged out of the army in 1919 and then engaged in the hotel business in Vermilion. Mr. Wilson was ill for about a year.

He is survived by his widow, Edith Mary Wilson, proprietress of the 17-Mile House at Banks; one son, James William Wilson, serving with the Royal Canadian Air Force, and two infant grandchildren.

ISLAY

Harry Robertson is on a holiday visiting his brothers Charlie and George.

Dickson held a Red Cross evening last Friday. Mrs W. Haimes was the winner of the gasoline iron.

Two carloads of people attended the Christian Education advance conference in Vermilion on Monday. We report a very worthwhile day. Among those present from Islay were the Rev. and Mrs Bell, Mrs. Gallagher, Mrs F. Mairs Mrs. H. Gilchrist, Mrs Ann Morrell and Gladys Stone. We do thank the Vermilion people for their fine hospitality.

We heard some very alarming remarks on the untidy appearance of Islay from some strangers. So we think that all residents of the village should get busy so we won't have such statements repeated.

The proceeds from the Historical school dance, auction and raffle held on May 22nd amounted to $76.40; this to go to the Red Cross. The winner of the clothes raffle was Mrs. R. Stone and of the home of home lates were Alice Buchanan and Mrs. Grant. The teacher and pupils wish to express their appreciation to all who helped or contributed to this worthy cause.

WORKED HARD TO ATTAIN COLLEGE USE —

The town council, the Board of Trade and the Hon. W. A. Fallow, provincial minister of public works, all deserve their need of praise for the success of negotiations leading to the decision of the military authorities to use the colleges buildings for a ladies' training centre. All worked hard and earnestly to attain the end announced last week. Everyone is highly satisfied at the type of enterprise to be carried out here.

STANDARD ADVERTISEMENTS WELL READ —

Anyone having any doubts about the Standard subscribers (and others) reading the advertisements contained in their local paper should have made the rounds of the town on the special Salvage pick-up on May 26th. The previous week a small advertisement had been placed in the Standard asking that all salvage be placed at the front gate. There was no further advertising yet fully 2 out of every 4 gates contained various materials at the stipulated spot.

For the information of everyone, portions of the town by-law dealing with firearms and discharging of same, is contained elsewhere in this issue. Every person especially parents and guardians should make themselves thoroughly familiar with these laws.

CLEANER STREETS —

As a result of systematic raking up of waste paper and burning of same along the streets as the business section, which had been carried out now for the past month, Vermilion is a much cleaner and neater looking town.

TURKEY HILL TID-BITS

The Turkey Hill Ladies club held its first meeting of the year recently at the home of Mrs. Eva Hawley. It was election of officers and the retiring president and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Hawley and Mrs. Davis were re-elected. Chairmen were sent to several local boys now serving overseas and ten dollars was given to the Red Cross. The next meeting will be held on May 16 at Mrs. Lomax's home.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis wish to thank the neighbors who so kindly helped put in their crop while Mr. Davis was ill in bed. Good neighbors are very hard to get along without and we believe the Turkey Hill neighbors to be of the best.

Mr. and Mrs. Logan treated the school children to a trip to the show last week. In return the children are busy gathering scrap rubber and other articles, the returns for the honor to be turned over to the Jr. Red Cross. Mr. Logan is going to bring the loose to town for the children.

Five members of the Alberta legislature have offered to resign their seats to the new Premier and it is more than likely — as an offset to being made to have the Premier represent a northern constituency — that the resignation of Archie Campbell, member for Vermilion, will be accepted and Premier Sifton will sit for Vermilion.

George C. Powell sold 95 head of horses from his Island Hill ranch to the Manitoba Live Stock Co-op Winnipeg

Under the direction of Councillor Roy Walker, a first class cleaning of the Grimsby Bear coulee has been put in between Sec. 22 and 23 09 4.

Under Contractor Parsons the new $30,000 flour mill for Vermilion is rapidly looming upwards. Work has reached the third storey.

CHATSWORTH CHATTER

Now that the "spring rush" season is over we hope to be able to continue the Chatter without so many interruptions.

Miss Mowbourne spent the Victoria Day week end holiday at her home in Edmonton.

Miss Nan Cameron of Indian Lake, who has completed her Normal course, is practise teaching at Chatsworth this week.

Last week's heavy frost did much damage to garden plants We have had quite a few heavy frosts through out the month of May—not to mention snowstorms, the last one being on May 31st. Cutworms are also quite prevalent.

Poplar leaf damage similiar to last year's is very extensive this season.

Quite a number of young people are working throughout the district. As see Arnold at McKee's; John Kinney at Hope's, Lloyd Cubbledeen at Mr Kee's, Jean Telford in town at Reid's; Ritty Tovell and Muriel Anderson at the local hospital, Kathleen Martin at the creamery.

May Telford is staying at Branham's until the school term is completed.

Congratulations and best wishes are extended to Mr. and Mrs Joe Thomson.

The Ottawa Athletic club is holding a dance on June 12 at the Ottawa school.

Miss K. Robson spent the week end at the homes of Thompson's and Good's.

Jim Panter has had his tractor all overhauled.

Mr. Lemkay held an evening service at the Ottawa church last Sunday at 7.30 and though there was not a very large turnout the service was enjoyed very much by those present

Mr. Ross Enfield of Westlock was a visitor to Vermilion last week.

Mr. H. J Davies suffered a badly bruised hip recently when he was kicked by a horse Mr Davies is convalescing for the Red Cross

And now for some tatty belated news which may still be news to some folks. There was a farewell party at the Ottawa school on Tuesday night May 12 in house of Roy Cubbledeen of the R.C.A.F. and Charlie Cubbledeen of the R.C.A. Roy was home on leave for spring work and Mr. and Mrs Robson were visiting the former's home in King Edward district. Dancing was indulged in and lunch served at midnight. Music was supplied by Charlie Mullen, Lloyd Cubbledeen, Jim Thompson and Mrs. E. Thompson. The gathering broke up about 1.30 with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Joe Farkash has received a post [illegible] at the [illegible] training.

Mrs. Joe Farkash and Michael were recent visitors to Edmonton where Mrs. Farkash received medical attention for throat trouble.

E. Thompson bought a new "AR" John Deere tractor and new Massey Harris tiller combine with seed box this spring.

The Ferguson family is now living in the former Solberg place

Mrs. Ferguson is convalescing at the home of her sister at Walsworth

About a month ago Joe Farkash's old setter bitch died of auto which had been kept to feed in the shed.

The Ottawa road is being rebuilt with the big grader

Last week's rain was most welcome.

MUST REPORT EXCESS TIRES

Automobile and truck owners must report in writing to the Tire Rationing Representative of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, any excess tires and tubes in their possession whether new or used, over what is necessary to equip the running wheels and one spare rim of each vehicle in their ownership or control. It is not necessary to give the identification numbers of the tires.

There is no present intention of calling in excess tires, states the Controller of Supplies. The control of tires is part of the completion of the rubber resources of Canada.

Tire Rationing representatives in Alberta are stationed at Red Deer, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat, Grande Prairie, Calgary and Edmonton in the regional and sub-regional offices of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

November is Alberta's Bridge Month

November still ranks as Alberta's "marrying season", according to Donald McAfee, provincial registrar, who has just issued figures showing the war time marriage rate. June, popularly known as the bridal month, ranks only third in this province, with December in second place. Average marriage rate from 1924 to 34 ranged between 4,000 and 7,000, but with the advent of war the figures rose. In 1939 there were 7,435 marriages and in 1940, 8,742. Later figures are not yet available.

Crops are now looking nice and green.

Mrs. J. H Tovell, who was a patient in the local hospital last week, came home on Saturday.

Friends of the Anderson children, of the Bird Hill district, were rushed to hospital last Sunday, suffering from acute appendicitis. Mr. M. Tovell took the child in by car

Our laboratory has made duplicate germination tests and sent out reports on 9,000 seed samples of cereals and flax during the past winter. This shows clearly the service we offer us in demand among farmers and as appreciated by them. Grain buyers are placed to be in a position to assist the farmers in this way.

An equally, if not more important matter I to—

Why have we in the grain provinces fallen on for about of our last saving g 11 00 annual, there are several reasons. Seed had unsuitable for planting due to frost in some districts and it is not particularly also crop to handle. However, one of the chief reasons for lighting shy of flax is the prevalence of weeds.

Every farmer should know the names and habits of all kinds of weed he has. Perhaps this sound like free advice which is worth only what it costs. Not so; it is a plain statement of fact. Any farmer who cannot recognize all important weed may be buying seed very unprofitable seed without knowing it.

In order to have weeds accurately identified with out cost, it is only necessary to deliver specimens from fields with seeds and flowers if possible to any grain buyer of Elevator company interested will be glad to forward them, to our office, and we will report promptly.

We feel bound to apologize for dashing with a subject so unhappy but the weed problem gets worse year by year, and we are ready and willing to help.

Our 72-page bulletin "An Illustrated Guide to Prairie Weeds" is available to for ern free. Onsult your local grain buyer or write to us for a copy.

A national output of 150,000 bicycles in 1942 has been authorized. This is 150 per cent of last year's production. Order prohibits making of children's bicycles and eliminates all unnecessary parts and trimmings in new adult bicycles.

Flax and Coarse Grains Production Needed as a War Measure

Farmers are urged by the Government to produce as much coarse grains and flaxseed as possible.

Coarse grains are required for the production of livestock and dairy products, and flaxseed is urgently needed for its oil content.

NEW DEPUTY MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE

Appointment of O.S. Longman, B. S.A. to the position of Deputy Minister of Agriculture was announced by Hon D. B. MacMillan last week. Mr. Longman, formerly Field Crops Commissioner, succeeds J. G. Riverway, who resigned his position at the ministers request. The new deputy has a long record of agricultural service with the province, and is recognized as an agricultural authority.

Alberta's speed up program of teacher training is already under way, and 73 potential high school teachers are busily engaged in studies which will permit them to go to small high schools of the province by October of this year. Twenty of the students have already graduated as Bachelors of Arts, and they are eligible for Sr. high school certificates. The remainder are undergraduates who may take junior certificates. First normal students will shortly begin their specialized training when outstanding candidates are selected for the initial training period which will permit their going to rural schools or a short session in Dec. open in Sept. ember

Appointment of Alfred Speak.man, M.L.A., and leader of the Independent group in the Legislature to the House Committee investigating conditions under The Workmen's Compensation Act is announced. Mr. Speakman succeeds the late R. C. Fontaine, M.L.A. under the chairmanship of Dr. J. I. Robinson, the committee also included J. W. Beatty, K.C., M.L.A. and Frank Lent, M.L.A. A call for submissions has been made.

TRAINING FOR ALBERTA GIRLS

The recent call for women trainees who will be fitted for work in war industries has brought a good response, according to J. H. Ross, Alberta supervisor of the youth training plan. A class of 100 is desired, and about 50 women are applying weekly at Edmonton and Calgary, he said. Another phase of the youth training program receiving support is the Home Training Service, which offers free tuition in household economics and management to applicants, and assists in finding positions for graduates.

While Mr. Hanson, federal Conservative leader, was making in the Commons that the Finance Minister do something to help Alberta pay her provincial obligations, Hon. Ernest of the imminent meeting of bondholders and government representatives here were being worked out. The total sum involved in the negotiations for refunding is $121,000,000 approximately, of which $17,223,556 is held in Britain, payable in sterling.

A most unusual honor has been awarded radio's most unusual comedian—Charlie McCarthy. Already seven times various capacities in the Army Air Force and the Marines, Charlie has just been inducted into the Navy, with the rank of Chief Petty Officer. The induction ceremony took place after the Chase and Sanborn broadcast at the naval air station in Alameda, Calif., and Officer McCarthy will wear on his sleeve a non-regular insignia that equals Lieut. with his usual suave.

Prompted by a continuing upsurge in listener response, we can't help but direct some attention to the lively, entertaining and factual scans of the C.B.C. which is now released from CJ C.A. every Wednesday evening at 9.30. Based on the actual records of Canada—Canadian, American, Australian and Englishman — each story is a dramatized version of an official happening in the Air Force.

"Soldier's Wife" is the intriguing title of an interesting daily serial that just made its appearance on CJ CA's schedules. Released Monday, Friday at 9.30 a.m., each episode features the day-to-day history of the wife and family of a young Canadian soldier who is serving Overseas in the armed forces. CJCA's listeners already are taking it right to their hearts, as their many comments indicate.

Ezra Stone, radio's Henry Aldrich CJCA, Thursday 6.30 p.m., was gifted with a real character case bearing the Canadian emblem when he opened the Canadian Red Cross Drive on a special program May 11th—but Ezra doesn't smoke. He uses the case though, to carry his identification papers.

Eric Wild's smooth arrangements,

CLAYSMORE CLIPPINGS

Mr. and Mrs. N. Horning of Streptbrear called on a few old friends in the district on Monday May 25th on their return trip from Iron where they had been visiting Mrs. Horning's sister and family.

Several Claysmore people spent the holiday week end or two weeks ago in Edmonton. Those included Miss Lena Miller Miss B. Sands and Miss Mary Seymour.

Mrs. R. Chrysler assisted in the Manville Coop. store during the absence of the manager last week.

Miss Esther Chalmers visited the Chrysler children over the 24th of May holiday.

Welcome rain fell over the district last week and showers have enjoyed this week. Here is hoping they con tinue all summer.

CUMMINGS FLASHES

Q.M.S. Little and Mrs. Little of Kingston, Ont., spent Sunday at the Wilson home on their way to visit their daughter Mrs. Ed Emsland in Edmonton for two weeks. They left for the city the same evening. Mrs. Mary Emsland also visited the Wilson home and she related the sad experience she had a few days ago. She was in a business place and picked up a Norwegian paper published in Canada, and therein saw the name of her cousin's son among the list of patriots shot by the Nazis as hostages. Mrs. Emsland saw this young man when she visited Norway shortly before the war started. He was just 17 then and attending school.

The sympathy of the district is extended to Mrs. Tommy Smith (nee Lil Harris) who suffered the loss of her brother who was killed in a bombing raid over enemy territory. It will be remembered that he flew a bomber across the Atlantic in the shortest time a few months ago. May the sorrowing family be comforted in knowing that he died fighting for the lives and homes of his loved ones in Canada.

Mrs. Cliff Fenton is visiting at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. May. She is also practise teaching again at Heatherdell school.

A large congregation attended the church service at Heatherdell on Sunday evening and listened to an earnest and interesting sermon by Mr. Pick.

In a letter received from LAC Wilson a short time ago he mentioned that he had received the carton of smokes from the Legion. He thought very kind of them in remembering the boys overseas and said he was writing to thank them for the gift. The writer said that strange as it may seem he has not yet run across a home boy over there in spite of the fact that so many are in the old country. He can certainly appreciates the Standards the family sends on to him. He has recently enjoyed a months leave which he spent in Scotland and England before being sent to a new station. The family presume that he has landed in the far east with one squadron from the north of Ireland The home town paper will be doubly welcome if he is now in that far distant land.

Mrs. Wm Meadows left this week for Edmonton where she will receive medical treatment. We hope that she will return feeling much better.

Noticed around:— Ivan McInnes building an addition to the home with the help of Mr. Fred Arthur.

—o—

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. J Green on the birth of a son.

Our teacher, Miss Proctor, spent the holiday week end at her home in the city.

Mr. C. C. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Ivan visited several of the homes in the district one evening last week. They very kindly took in six old trees to the salvage depot for Fred Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and Edith and John McInnes spent an enjoyable evening at the Brook home last Sunday when they partook of a dinner in played by the 20-piece Blended Rhythm orchestra, have provoked plenty of comment amongst CJCA listeners. When this Canadian-born conductor raises his baton each Tuesday at 6.30 p.m., a pleasant 30 minutes is always in prospect.

THE CHILDREN'S SCRAPBOOK

Bright and early one Saturday morning a cameraman dropped in on "The Children's Scrapbook" in CBC's Toronto studio, just to see what Peggy and her friends really look like. Baths finished, cameras clicked, and here are the results:

Upper row, left to right: Mr. Winter, the man who always makes things seem (really funny Matters); Byng (Byng Whittaker) and Austin (Willie) laugh at a funny bit in the script. Music-maker Field (Jackie Scherman) and Percy—he calls it Patsy, but his real name is Bud Knapp—gaze in wonder and admiration at the erudite Miss Bookworm, who's known to her friends and intimates as Lois Donald-son; Peggy (Peggy Loder), Mary (Grannan, Supervisor of Children's Broadcasts for the CBC, and producer Sydney S. Brown hold a script conference before the rehearsal.

"The Children's Scrapbook", now in its third season, is heard on the national network of the CBC and in the United States over stations of the Mutual Broadcasting System, every Saturday at 11.30 a.m. CDT (10.30 a.m. MDT).

Our Air Offensive

IN RECENT weeks the air offensive launched by the R.A.F. against Germany and German-held military and naval bases in Europe, has awakened a feeling of optimism among people of the United Nations. After being for many months on the defensive, it has been heartening to see hitting blows from the air delivered against German war industries and strategic points held by the Germans. Captain Harold Balfour, British Undersecretary for Air, who headed the British mission at the United National Air Conference at Ottawa, said of these raids: "It is a positive offensive, and constitutes a second front in the air. We are holding a large force of German fighters over the West which they would dearly like to send East. We have also forced the Nazis to retaliate on England with bombers they could put to better advantage over Russia." At present about eight hundred planes are available to take part in these R.A.F. attacks and it is expected that it will soon be possible to send over a thousand at one time.

* * * * *

Effect Of Recent Raids

A recent raid on the City of Lubeck was of such proportions that it can now be designated on a map only as having once been a city. The term "Luhecking" is now used in referring to devastating air offensives, and as Prime Minister Churchill said in his last radio address, the R.A.F. has many other places in Germany marked out for similar treatment. On humanitarian grounds there can be little objection to this offensive. It is the most effective way of bringing the war to the German people, and with the memory of the cruel raids on England in 1940 and 1941, it may be surmised that it is the only form of war that the German people understand. How great will be the effects on the morale of the German people we cannot accurately determine, but that it will affect it in no small degree, we can be sure.

* * * * *

Axis Can Be Defeated

There is danger, however, in feeling any undue optimism over the results of this air offensive. The Axis nations are still strong and there is no indication that they can be soon or easily broken. Some interesting facts about the strength of the Nazis have been given by American newspaper correspondents who have recently returned in an exchange of nationals between Germany and America. These writers, many of whom have spent months in internment camps, are confident that the Axis can be defeated, but they emphasize that it can only be by an "all out" effort on the part of the United Nations. They tell us that the people of Germany and Italy are feeling the strain of war, that the Nazi machine is still strong and that Hitler is determined on victory in 1942. However, it may well be that the large-scale air attacks now commenced will mark a turning point of the war, and the beginning of an Allied offensive which will gather in proportions until the Axis nations are brought to defeat.

A Useless Order

No Need To Tell Germans Not To Accept Substitutes

Alvin J. Steinkopf, Associated Press Staff writer, says: "Don't accept substitutes" would be idle advice to Germans nowadays—it taxes their ingenuity just to keep life going anywhere near normal.

If there are no clothespins, the resourceful housewife hangs out the wash with odds and ends of old paper clips and safety pins.

She can't get toothpaste and has no illegal black market sources. A pretty good substitute is a mixture of soap, soda and baking powder.

A broken shoelace is an emergency.

In southern Germany and Austria, where bunches of leather thongs are used for dusting some Germans separate old ones, sew strips together and get rawhide laces to last even through a long war.

There was one cruise in a Berlin household when the glass top of a percolator broke. An inquiry about a replacement would be a confession that one had coffee, hence suspicion that he dealt on the black market. Anyway there are no percolator tops. Solution: a milk bottle wedged into the top of the coffee pot.

The war against waste is waged with the same fury as the war against Russia.

Woe to the farmer who allows wheat to mold, or a few potatoes to rot.

Repaying Loans

China Always Pays On Schedule In Spite Of War

This year the United States Government extended to the Chinese Government a $500,000,000 loan, and the British Government loaned $250,000,000. The magnitude of these loans, says the St. Thomas Times-Journal, which are but a drop in the bucket of American and British finance, is indicated by the fact that they are equivalent to the entire volume of Chinese currency in circulation. They mean a great deal to China, yet the amount of the British loan is only equivalent to paying for the war for four or five days at the rate of British expenditure.

China has had several previous loans from both countries. Despite its disruption of industry and production, China, according to a report from Washington, has been repaying its loans on schedule. Payment is not being made in money, but in essential natural products, such as wood oil, which the United States wants and which they bargained for.

China is not spending all her money on the war. She can run her war against Japan very much cheaper than the Allies. She has practically no navy, certainly no expensive battleships, and her soldiers only get a few cents a day. Here arms have been good, and what she is getting now that is effective is supplied to her under the lend-lease program. She has re-established nearly 1,400 factories in the hinterlands and built thousands of miles of highways.

NATIONAL INCOME

The national income of Canada is defined as the net value of goods produced and services rendered during a given period states the Monthly Review of Business Statistics. An alternative definition is the sum of the individuals' savings of enterprises and the income payments to individuals rendered in Canada, including salaries and wages, workmen's compensation pensions, dividends, interest, rentals and withdrawals of working proprietors.

HAD GOOD REASON

This story is being told of the refusal of Dutch girls to fraternize with the Nazi soldiers. One soldier reasoned of a fair lady who was unsympathetic to his entreaties. "Why can't we be friends" the Nazi soldier pleaded. "The reason is clear. What is it that's keeping us apart?" "Rotterdam," the lady reminded.

More than a hundred varieties of sausages are made in the United States.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

An 18-year-old man of my acquaintance came to me with a tale of woe yesterday. He had been to the Recruiting Centre to join up and had been turned down because of a hernia.

That young man had two courses open to him. He could go to the Navy and the Air Force, be medically examined, rejected—and get a "Dear Jerk" letter which would, in the eyes of the public, permit him to retire himself to an occupation paying more than $1.30 a day, clothes and keep, without reproach. The other course was to pay out of his own pocket for an operation which will make him fit for service.

Which course did he take?

Well, I called him a MAN of 18, didn't I?

There is nothing much more to be written on this subject, is there?

One of the hardest things any old soldier has to do is to learn not only to keep his mouth shut on the question of enlistment but to keep his thoughts in order as well. It is fatally easy to look at a strapping fellow in civilian clothes and wonder why the blankety-blank he isn't in khaki." It is not so easy to marshal your thoughts and weigh the many reasons that may exist.

I suppose the principal reason that such thought control is necessary is the hatred of civilians for anyone wearing C.R.F. buttons today were "conscripts." It has been brought home to me on many occasions time and again that the number of conscripted soldiers who reached France in 1917-18 was a very small proportion of the Canadian Expeditionary Force.

One great unfairness in public thinking and newspaper editorials it seems to me, is the constant direction of blusts at youth. Great that this is a young war. Great that some steps are being taken in the direction of thinning out the older ranks—you still don't see Generals in their thirties.

And I don't think you should. Nevertheless it is still a matter for comment when a man in his late Twenties is promoted to Major.

Let's have the emphasis on the young executive and youth. Let's fill our administrative and training staffs with older, but not aging men.

I have not yet had to die the man who was too young to do his bit in 1914-1918. He missed that because of youth—he missed another time because he's "too old." Too old to fight, that is.

Maybe none of us will be too old to fight!

In the meantime if anyone is to miss his present opportunities for a commission in the Army. Of can do a real job in administrative, quartermaster, ordnance, transport and similar services. All these jobs be required some of the young. At men doing that kind of work in Ottawa and other headquarters know.

There is a young man's war—a war that can use, and use well, men in their middle twenties; a war, to quote the phrase of Russian. Pole-ish, Yugo-Slavian guerrillas, that can find the right niche for a young man of any age.

So let's not look too askance at the young fellow of 19-25. Perhaps they will be the better soldier for a chance first to appreciate that they have a stake in the country.

And those of us who are compelled to be civilians what about us?

There is plenty for us to do. And most of it is so easy. That's probably why we find it so hard!

We can stop be-devilling some of our fellow-civilians who have undertaken the damnable task of trying to teach us to be sensible. We can start making things easier for storekeepers, wholesalers and manufacturers who are getting together and advising the Wartime Prices and Trade Board how best it can control their businesses for the common good.

We can help to make the most of

DEATH AND FUNERAL OF MRS MARY McGILLIVARY

On Sunday May 31st, one of Vermilion's best known old timers passed to her eternal reward, in the person of Mary McGillivary, known and loved by a host of friends as a genial kindly, loving person and friend to all. The deep sympathy of the entire community goes out to her bereaved brother and relatives.

Born in Ontario on on Sept. 12th, 1859. Miss McGillivary came west with her brothers Andrew and John in 1903, in the home 12, miles south of Vermilion where she resided until her death. Her brother John died in 1917.

Left to mourn her loss are brothers Andrew, Vermilion; Aber, Terrace B.C., one sister Mrs. Kingsbury, Montreal, two nieces, Mrs. Leon Kehoe, Vermilion, Mrs. Herb Fields, San Francisco.

The funeral took place Wednesday June 3rd from the United church at 2 p.m. Rev. Bieber conducted the service. The large and representative funeral was a touching exhibition of the peoples' sympathy in time of sorrow and a last glowing tribute to the respect and esteem in which the deceased was held in the town and district. Interment took place in the family plot in the Vermilion cemetery. The pallbearers were: Basil Hawley, Clifford Hawley, James Powell, Dennis Noonan, Robert Rankin and Jim Rankin.

Floral offerings were received from the following: Brother Andrew, Myrtle, Leon, Larry; Mr. Hope; Ger ald Herb; Mrs. L.L. Kehoe, Leona and Billie; Mrs. Ed Kingsbury and family; Marjorie Knapp; Friends and Neighbors—Mr. and Mrs. D. Noonan and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. Powell and family, Mr. and Mrs. Logan and Jimmy, Gordon family, Mr. and Mrs. T. Davies and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. Gaheen and family, Mr. and Mrs. H. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. B. Hawley, Clifford and Betty.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. Andrew McGillivary and Mrs. Leon Kehoe wish to acknowledge with deep appreciation the floral offerings and any expressions of sympathy offered them in their sad bereavement.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of

H. Harcourt Bender

who died on June 8th, 1934.

"Gone from us that smiling face
His pleasant cheerful ways,
A heart that was as many friends
Is beyond happy days.
Though his smile has gone forever
And his hand we cannot touch
We shall never lose sweet memories
Of a brother we loved so much.

FAREWELL AT UNION SCHOOL

Union school was the scene of a very pleasant event Friday, May 29th, when friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Funnell gathered to bid farewell to them when they were leaving again after spending Wes' furlough visiting his father, Geo. E. Funnell in Union and Mrs. Funnell's family near Kinsey.

An interesting part of the evening was a presentation by the district every ably made by Harvey Rankin to Mrs. Funnell replied thanking everyone in a few well chosen words.

Mr. and Mrs. Funnell entertained the crowd with songs which everyone enjoyed.

Dancing was indulged in until the wee small hours to music kindly supplies by Mr. and Mrs. Alf Logan and Jimmy.

Everyone made Mr. and Mrs. Funnell a hearty farewell by singing "Auld Lang Syne" and "For They are Jolly Good Fellows".

Wesley is now stationed at Brandon and all hope he will have another furlough as he says "Visit the district once more before being sent overseas.

WILDMERE WINKS

Good neighbors turned out and put in Tom Best's crop as he is laid up with a sore leg in the hospital. Among those helping were Jack Powell, Geo. Wilson, James Wallington, Lindy Padden, Jos. Kennedy, Laurence Graham and Aubrey Rendell. One never knows how many friends they have until sickness and troubles overtakes us.

We wish a speedy recovery to Chap Cooper in his sudden and serious accident. Guess one do such awful things to make conversation. To all our other sick folks we extend the same good wish.

What a grand rain we had last week ..... Everything looks so fresh and green after the long spell of dusty weather. If the nights would only warm up so things would surely jump with the nice sunny days.

Mrs. Chas Morand came out from the hospital on Saturday after having lay for a few days with her mother Mrs. Adam Smith until her hand is somewhat better. At present she has a cast on her finger.

We noticed an item in the Standard from the government regarding the use of tractor belting gas to go in pullies etc., or to take a neighbor along when he has no other way of going ..... still we saw a car drive around the village block in town on Saturday one less than three times with only the driver in it. If the saving gas we do not see it. The poor old farmer duties. What have others to say on is supposed to keep his hand on the this subject?

Activity in the Oil Field

NEW PRODUCTION MAP FOR VERMILION CONSOLIDATED

The Vermilion Consolidated Oils Limited have received the services of Mr. Milton H. Scales of Los Angeles who will be in charge of putting the wells on production. Mr. Scales is already in Vermilion and has had considerable experience with the same type of well as found in the local 15-15

o o o

Production figures now available for the month of April show that there were nine wells producing in the Vermilion field and that 4096 barrels of oil were produced. Two of the wells, Vermil Con. 9 and Acme 4 were on for a very short period in April only, while the Old Discovery well usually up in the four figures dropped to only 210 as it was being reconditioned.

The big producer was Vermilion Con. No. 8 (Hamers 2) with 1686 barrels. This well produces by its own gas pressure.

A big jump can be looked for in production figures soon as Vermilion Con. No. 9 and Alberta Southern have been added to the steady producers.

o o o

The S. W. S. Drilling Co. have now completed Acme No. 5 which is located between Acme No. 1 and No. 2. This well was cemented in on Wednesday and is the second of five wells which Whitney Wilson's company will drill.

The A.W.S. are also moving in a rig to drill the Saskatoon No. 1 well for a group of Indian Head, Sask., business men. The location is lsd 14 of 18-50-5W.

o o o

Good progress is reported from Vermilion Consolidated-O'Sullivan, which is located north of Bassett school on lsd 3-6-15-6W1, being drilled by Mike Williamson, where a start was made this week and surface casing has now been cemented. This well will test an entirely new section of the field.

o o o

The North-West Company recently staked its first location in the Vermilion area and the well, known as North-West Company No. 1 is now drilling at the oil sands and drilling is proceeding cautiously. The location is lsd 4 of 24-50-5W1. This brings the well about 15 miles west and a little north of the present producing Vermilion field. The site of the well is in the Vermilion river valley a mile north of Ramsey school. The well is being drilled by Cody Spencer of General Drillers. Acreage held by the North-West Co., a subsidiary of Imperial Oil, is said to be in excess of 500,000 acres. They have been conducting a detailed seismograph survey west and north of town since last fall.

O. Hollingsworth has a deal pending for the drilling of two wells on Sec. 5-6-1.

Lloyd Clinch is at present in Vancouver completing arrangements for the drilling of further Vermilion wells, locations of which I ..e already been selected. Princeville 2 will be on lsd 8-31-50-4W1.

o o o

Jim Mason, field inspector for the Alberta Conservation board, has been granted four months leave of absence which he will spend on other engineering work. His place here will be taken by Jack McCahill who is at ready on the job.

NO RIDES ON TRUCKS

Attention of all truck owners and drivers is called by Mr. W.S. Campbell, Regional Representative of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board to the new regulations, forbidding truck drivers to carry passengers, unless in possession of a permit to do so This applies even to employees of the truck owner, members of his family or persons carried free.

Permits only is made when livestock is being carried, when owners of the livestock may be carried in the cab.

Persons requiring permits must apply to the Regional Director of Transport, Williamson Bldg., Edmonton, giving name of the owner, make, model type, serial number and license number of the truck and full particulars of what the permit is required to cover.

The permit system is part of the plan to conserve gasoline and rubber for military needs by limiting non-essential mileage travel.

AIRMEN IN TRAINING SEE NATIONAL PARKS

OTTAWA—National parks in Canada numbering 26, attract visitors in increasing numbers, according to the traffic department of the Canadian National Railways, reporting 20 per cent more travellers in these parks during the past year. National parks near military training centres prove attractive to men of the armed forces, airmen from Australia and New Zealand being particularly enthusiastic visitors to the mountain parks of Western Canada including Jasper National Park in the Canadian Rockies

Nothing To Give'

Shirer Cannot Promise Anything But Use Of Bulgaria's Army

W. K Kelsey, in the Detroit News, says reports of a pending revolution in Bulgaria are probably premature but King Boris still has cards to play in the game with Hitler Certainly Hitler would like to use the Bulgarian army; but what can he promise Bulgaria in return" If he offers her an outlet on the Aegean Allied to Greece, he offends the Turks mightily, and it is to his present interest to keep Turkey neutral at least, and gain her friendship if possible If he offers her Rumanian land he makes the Rumanians already fighting mad at Hungary angrier still He can't bring much economic pressure to Bulgaria, as she is a self-supporting agricultural country. Air Cadet League

Expected To Expand To Force Of 50,000 In Next Year

Expansion of Canada's air cadet organization to a force of 50,000 men-aged youths in the next year was forecast by Group Capt. D. C. Hume, national director of the Air Cadet League of Canada, on the league's first anniversary.

Group Capt. Hume said his prediction was based on air cadet progress during the league's first year, when more than 15,000 boys enrolled in 126 squadrons

Cadet squadrons are divided by provinces as follows: Ontario, 53; Quebec, 22; Saskatchewan, 21, Alberta, 21; British Columbia, 14, Nova Scotia 7; Manitoba, 4, Prince Edward Island 2, and New Brunswick, 1.

Pembroke Leader Awarded His The Distinguished Service Cross

Flight Lieut. Percy Pickup, tall blond pipe-smoking pilot, who led the paratroop raid on Bruneval in February, was awarded the Bar to the Distinguished Service Cross.

The citation said that "by his courage, self-sacrifice and devotion to duty he set an example which, although attained by few is admired by all."

At the time of the Bruneval raid Pickard commanded a Whitley squadron which included a number of Canadians, whom he called "very good airmen."

The parachutists led by Pickard destroyed a German radio aircraft location unit at Bruneval, 12 miles north of Havre, then scientists fought their way to the beaches and returned across the Channel on light craft escorted by warships and planes. Heavy casualties were inflicted on the Germans and some prisoners taken. British casualties were light.

Taking Large Part

Women Are Doing Splendid Work On Railways In Britain

Moving "sprightlier" than the men they supplanted, women are responsible for service with the fighting forces, women railway porters, in their dark blue trousers, twill jackets and peaked caps, made a distinct impression on a male observer who visited a vast goodsyard (freight-yard) to see how Britain's railways are meeting the transport needs of war."

The railways have adapted themselves to deal with the traffic of an army larger than Britain has ever known. They are carrying enormously increased quantities of coal, ore, pig iron, coal and limestone necessary for Britain's steel productivm. They are engaged in the extensive traffic involved in the sending of munitions abroad.

And in this great effort of the railways women are taking a large part.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JUNE 14

SUNDAY: THE RISEN CHRIST AND HIS DISCIPLES

Golden text Ye are witnesses of these things. Luke 24:48.

Lesson: Luke 24:1-49.

Devotional reading: Psalm 16:5-11.

Explanations and Comments

The Empty Tomb Seen by Three Women and by Peter Luke 24:1-12.

The Interview Reported to the Disciples. Luke 24:13-35. Then came back to Jerusalem and rushing into the upper room where the eleven disciples were wondering over the report that their Lord had appeared to Peter, the two excited men burst in with their amazing conversation with the risen Christ. They had met Him on the road to Emmaus as a stranger, He had walked and talked with them as a comrade, he had talked with them as a teacher, but not until they were seated at the table as friends had they suddenly been convinced as to his identity. He had taken the place of host, and it was while he was breaking the bread to give it to them that they recognized him and then he had suddenly disappeared.

The Sudden Appearance of Christ Himself. Luke 24:36-43. "Peace be unto you." Thus Christ greeted them as he suddenly appeared in their midst. Notwithstanding what they had just heard, they were terrified, for they supposed they beheld a spirit. "Why are ye troubled?" he asked, and "Wherefore do questions arise in your heart?" Then to reassure them, to convince them that he was not a disembodied spirit, he bade them see his hands and his feet and feet. "A spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye behold me having," he told them. And while they still disbelieved for very gladness, yet real state of mind he asked for something to eat, and when they gave him a piece of broiled fish, he ate before them.

Parting Words. Luke 24:44-49. Luke's narrative reads as if all these farewell words of Jesus were spoken at that evening meeting with the 11, but in Acts 1 3 Luke tells us that Christ showed himself alive after his passion by many proofs, appearing unto them by the space of 40 days, and speaking the things concerning the Kingdom of God." Read Mt. 28:16-20; Mk. 16.14-18; Jn. 20:24 to 21:

Health LEAGUE of CANADA

presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

NUTRITION CAMPAIGN

In one Canadian city, Montreal, 10,000 women are attending the lecture course of the "Food for Health —Health for Victory" nutrition campaign. Six thousand of the women are French-Canadian, the remainder are English. The lectures run for four weeks. Trained dietitians are giving their time freely.

The importance of milk, cheese, fruit and vegetables in the daily diet provided the theme of this week's lectures. Milk was described as the most important food in the diet—a food upon which no other single substitute could be found.

Canadians do not eat enough cheese, it was declared. The average yearly consumption is between only three and four pounds, and it should be about ten pounds. At present with the vast export of cheese to Britain, 113 million pounds were shipped over last year—there is a scarcity of cheese in the country but most the world gets back to normal it was hoped that more cheese would be eaten here.

The popular idea that cheese is indigestible was cleared up by the lecturers. Cheese is highly concentrated food and should therefore not be eaten as an extra snack but as part of the meal. For instance, it might be used once a week as a substitute for meat or fish. Another good way to work it into the diet would be to round out a meal in which the main course was a salad.

As little cooking as possible was suggested as the secret of good vegetable cookery, also as little water as possible. And the cooking water should be kept and used as a vegetable juice drink or in soups and sauces. The reason for this is that most of the valuable vitamins and minerals dissolve out into the water during cooking.

The time honored custom of preparing vegetables ahead for cooking and leaving them soaking in cold water was denounced by the lecturers as a way of getting rid of vitamins If prepared ahead vegetables should be put in a covered dish without water. In the ice box until it was time to cook them Canned and frozen vegetables had as high a vitmain content as fresh ones, it was stated, unless the fresh ones came straight from the garden to the stove.

Fruit of some sort, fresh, canned, or dried, should form part of each day's diet and children should be given dried fruit instead of candy. Everyone should have two ounces of orange juice (a quarter of a generous cup) or four ounces of tomato juice a day.

ANNE TEDLOCK BROOKS

CHAPTER XXV.

"Miss Tamar Randolph Kidnapped," the headlines were in startling black, splashed over every major paper of the South the next morning.

With the exception of the green suede gloves found at the scene of the junction of the Cricket Hill Road, there were no clues. Other headlines played up prominently in the same paper were the pickup of the armored truck and robbery of the gold bars from the amalgamation mill at the mine

Ransome Todd and Knox Randolph paced the verandah. On the terrace stood grave-eyed men talking and listening in low tones Police guarded the entrance of the lane and strode around the big sprawling white house Phoebe and Aristotle moved silently about in the kitchen. Excepting for coffee, none of the breakfast had been touched

Ransome's face was chalk white, and Tamar's father looked as though he were on the verge of collapse. Neither had made any attempt to lie down during the night They had been in consult with Taylor and employes of the mine and Major Towne.

Randy had already made a frantic trip to the old swimming hole on the bank of the Chestatee River where Tamar had seen the Major and the man called Nick. There was been no traces of anything out of the ordinary The plans had been changed—believed for them disappearing at some mysterious hideout, he concluded

It was almost dark when Randy drove into the weed-grown track of the little rutted road that led into the picnic grounds of Whiffle Creek where the old mill stood As he followed the road, he could see the lovely face of Tamar beside him, and feel her presence as of the day they had spent there. He felt dumb, as though all life had stopped and that living would never again be possible, until she returned safely.

Randy could see that nothing about the place had the appearance of having been recently visited. He sprang out of the car, followed by a policeman and Knox Randolph. Recent rain had washed the old dock clean of all the old tire tracks, and he noticed there were no new ones. He opened the creaky door cautiously. The glowing weather was silent and empty.

The policeman ran his big flash over the place, and the beam picked out the walls alone. The crude furniture had been removed and the room was barren.

"Taylor has had this safely sealed!" Ransome exclaimed. "When could the furniture have been removed"

"Maybe it's another part of the old mill," suggested the officer.

But a hasty examination proved that nothing was in the storage rooms and bins and the rotting boards testified that no one could have safely used them.

They had gone back then to Shadwell. It was almost dark when they reached the place, and Randy noted again the darkness down by the old slave quarters, huddled as they were in the deep shade. This sense of suspense was heartbreaking; not knowing that Tamar was safe, or even alive was torture to Randy.

All night they had listened to stories of different employes of the Cricket Hill.

Major Towne was so bewildered over Tamar's disappearance that even Ransome believed that he knew nothing of her whereabouts. He brought Marigold Fetlen and her father to Shadwell, there to confront the Major with her story, and to repeat to the Major the story that Fetlen himself had given him about the test ore that was taken out of the mine in February.

As he strode about on the wide porch this morning Randy remembered how well Towne had played his cards last night. He spoke so convincingly that he knew Randy wondered how he could lie so expertly. It was with satisfaction that he saw Towne and Fetlen both taken away to be held for questioning.

Phoebe appeared in the doorway. "Mist' Randy?" she called.

Randy did not hear her, he was so deep in his thoughts. He felt the tug on his arm and finally looked up. "Yes, Phoebe?"

"Mist' Randy, honey, why don' you call dat Mist' Sande on de phone and talk wid him? It's he in love wid Miss Tamah lak ah think he is, he may fin' out sumpin fuh yo'."

Randy stared at her, stupidly, as his tracks. Why hadn't he thought of Christopher sooner? And where had he been last night when they were talking with the Major?

Randy strode into the house and into the den where Christopher Sande lived All work had been suspended at the mine until further orders, he knew. The desk clerk answered with a sleepy voice

"What time?" Ransome asked sharply.

"It was early. He had breakfast in the coffee shop and left right after. His mail and key are still in the box"

"As far as I know he was But we could find out from Towne. On Ransome. I don't like to throw any suspicion on that young engineer but it seemed like such a fine man. He couldn't be connected with this, I'm sure."

"Let's check every possible clue," Ransome said grimly "Why should we let him get by just because he has a pleasing personality? We've spared none of the other employes"

"Very well. Of course you're right about asking; but I'll wager that he was out of town on business or gone East for the good-end."

In another moment they had left in Ransome's car, fares a little more alert with the hope of finding something definite

The drowsiness of the little town of Tahlahwaha had given way to an undercurrent of excitement. Knots of people stood about looking questioningly at the courthouse. As Knox Randolph and Ransome Todd hurried across the green of the lawn into the old white building, they nodded rushed other, voices raised in speculation.

Towne would not talk. "I don't know where Sande was" I'm not responsible for the moves outs of all the employes at the mine. I don't know anything about him and I won't give you any information concerning where he might be."

Ransome said: "You've heard of lynchings, haven't you? We seem like a pleasant little town here in Tahlahwaha Outside this building stand a group of 50 men which would grow to a hundred in five minutes. I'll not say possibly let them take you, Major."

Towne's face grew livid. "I'm going to see you for having me held, Todd."

Randolph's face hardened. "Major Towne, you can give any light on the disappearance of my daughter, I advise you not to withhold it any longer. Certain things are going to come to light at the trial that look bad for you. Kidnapping is a Federal offense, you understand."

Major Towne's reply was completely drowned by the crash of thunder.

"I'll go to my office for a moment," Ransome's message has come in there. Want to come along with me?" Ransome asked the older man, studied his face. Randolph looked broken with the strain of the night.

As they entered the bank building they heard a step at the top of the stairs. It was Dr Forrester He called to the men "Walt Ransome called to the men "Walt Ransome Dick had heard anything."

"Has Dick heard anything" The note in Randolph's voice had a piteous plea

"No And he's all broken up——" Forrester said.

On sudden inspiration Ransome ran up the stairs to Dicks office He stood at the door. "Dick, my engineer, Dick"" he burst into the room

Dick whirled away from the window where he had been observing a cold world outside. He looked in on Ransome. "You're back So soon" He don't know anything about him Would Selby" I'll call her He reached up the telephone and gave the number

"Wait —pull Yes, central Yes he's here. What time?"

Ransome discourteously pulled the telephone out of Dick's hand. What, time?" He shouted impatiently

In a few minutes Ransome Dick and Knox Randolph were running out to the garage where Dick's car was parked. Ransome and Dick had followed Ransome down the stairs He grabbed Knox's arm to keep him from following. "Stay without a word the car and into the car

"What is it" Dick shouted as they skidded around a bend

Had Fun Anyway

Artist Holds Exhibition Of Work Rejected By Royal Academy

This year's Royal Academy exhibition—the 174th—was the same old story for Painter Albert Perry. The paintings he submitted, just as religiously as some 90 others during the past 31 years, were rejected.

Not the least perturbed, Perry held his own exhibition. It attracted even more attention than his private exhibition last year when students walked the streets with Perry paintings displayed on back and front of sandwich boards.

This time the artist's collection of rejects hung from the sides of a horse-drawn cart. Perry himself, burly, white-haired and smiling, was high on the driver's seat. Two girl students, in the back of the cart, held up paintings for all to see.

That is fun," exclaimed the artist between shouted "giddaps." "The president of the academy has been invited to our little show."

As the cart rolled through crowded Piccadilly Circus, Perry wondered unnecessarily if the head of the academy would show up, flicked the horse with the end of the reins and told of plans for his next year's show.

"There'll be a big procession every bit as much fun as the whose paintings have been rejected by the academy over the past 20 years," he said. "There'll be sculptors. No artist whose work has been accepted will be eligible."

The whose claim of a record number of rejections is disputed by C B. Cove, retired Dulwich builder, says he asked the academy to settle the argument

Influence For Good

Nothing Is History Conquers With That Of British Empire

It cannot be denied that in the history of the world there has never been an influence for good to compare with that of the British Empire. Four nations—Canadian, Australian, New Zealand and South African—bear witnesses to the fact that it is built on a foundation of freedom Wherever there have been subjected races, as in India, they have benefited by British protection and British administration, while being led as fast as possible along the road to self-government. And ever since there was an Empire, it has been a bulwark of freedom against tyranny Every part it is playing in this war is merely a continuation of the part it played in the last

The glory of Britain and of the Empire is to be learned in the attacks of their critics. In the years before the war Britain was blamed for not preparing aggression for which they appeared Nobody thought of suggesting that the United States or Russia, Japan or Italy, or Germany, or Hitler That was always held to be Britain's job, for the reason that people thought that which seemed to need no help from friend from enemy that they thought should all about it Britain was in any circumstances

The following letter was received from LAC Len Heidebrecht now stationed with the middle east forces in Egypt. He received one of the Xmas parcels sent from the people of Vermilion and district to our boys overseas and thanks all for it. His letter follows:

Feb 24 1942.

Dear Mr Graham:

I am returning a greeting card as requested, a greeting card which I took to heart. It was in a parcel of assortments which I received today from my friends.

Well I am very grateful to all for the message, and I return it with the same thought. Thanks a million.

Since I came out to Egypt my mail took awhile to catch up to me but this month has been exceptionally good considering the conditions. Then when a parcel arrives O.K. we know conditions are very good.

I received a bundle of Standards from home, which I thoroughly digested. I see that the town is growing with the large amount of drilling operations taking place.

This winter has been the warmest I have ever experienced. I did miss very much the skating, but that will wait for a while. One gets used to sand like we do anew at home.

I've had the pleasure of seeing the pyramids and sphinx. Cairo has many interesting places to see. The service clubs are many and good, which is a real asset to us when far from home.

I enjoy my work here and am in the best of health.

Well in closing I give my best wishes, and good luck to everyone.

So long for now and carry on.

Yours sincerely,
Leonard Heidebrecht.

ANNUAL FARM & HOME WEEK AT OLDS SCHOOL

The Annual Farm and Home week will be held at Olds School of agriculture June 22nd to the 26th.

Cars repair and operation of farm machinery will be one of the chief topics for men. For those able to attend this provides not only a very pleasant but profitable holiday from the farm.

Your District Agriculturist, D. A. Andrew will be able to give you full particulars re transportation, lodging etc.

CANNING REGULATIONS UNCHANGED BY ORDER

New Sugar Rationing Cut Will Not Affect Preserving, Jam Making

Made necessary owing to transportation difficulties, the new sugar rationing order of May 26 cuts down the amount of sugar permitted each person from five quarters of a pound to half a pound a week. The order does not affect the one issued earlier in regard to extra sugar for canning fruit. It is permissible to use one-half pound of sugar for each pound of fruit in canning or preserving, and three-quarters of a pound of sugar per lb of fruit for making jams and jellies.

TOLLAND

It is with deep regret that the community learned of the passing away of Mrs. Fred Wolters at the Islay hospital on Sunday June 8th after a lengthy illness. The sympathy of a wide circle of friends is extended to the bereaved family.

The Fred Rhodes was home for a few days here last week.

Pte. Tom Gray, home from the east a few days ago after being away since last summer.

John Leslie who has been working for Gordon Trethewey all spring has been called for his military training.

Congratulations are extended to Mr and Mrs. Desmond Cooper on the birth of a son in the Vermilion hospital on Friday June 5th.

Mr and Mrs. Ben Johnson of Auburndale were visitors at the Mr Grath home last Sunday.

Charles Mitchell is home from his parents' home recently after working for the past year in Vancouver. The journey was made by car.

Pte Arthur Felix is home on furlough.

A/C1 Harold Webber has been transferred to Belleville, Ont., to take further training. His wife and family are staying at their home at Asha Beach at the present time.

Mr and Mrs. A. R. Trevithick of Auburndale visited at the Webber home last Sunday.

Mr and Mrs Wilson Ford and Ian were dinner guests at the home of Mr and Mrs F Gibson of Basswood last Sunday.

CROP CONDITIONS —

A review of crop conditions throughout the district reveals that seed did not germinate evenly and now appears very patchy. Stooling of early wheat has been satisfactory but that of later grain is poor. Conditions up until Wednesday's rain were decidedly dry but of course are now materially improved. Wheat is very short for the time of the season and averages about 3 inches in height.

About 35% of cultivated land this year is in summerfallow which is above average for the district. Wheat acreage is 7% lower, barley acreage up 15% and oats 2% up. Flax acreage is about 400, four times that of 1941.

Frost caused some damage to oats and barley necessitating some 5 to 7 per cent re-seeding.

Crops are decidedly backward due to the cold dry spring and set-backs by frost. There is quite a heavy growth of weeds.

More than 90,000 rural dealers across Canada are being asked to help to pledge themselves to press the sale of War Savings stamps for the duration of the war as representatives of the National War Finance Committee, it was announced here by George W. Spinney, chairman.

Pledges will receive official window signs confirming them in their appointment as representatives of the Committee which is charged with selling the idea of thrift to Canadians through the regular purchase of war savings stamps and certificates.

Mr Spinney explained that if the sale of war savings stamps had not been on what might be called a total war scale from the start, one of the adverse factors was that in many cases people had to go some distance to get them. To overcome this, the aid of the responsible merchants of Canada was being enlisted and their obvious personal interest was of good augury, according to Mr. Spinney.

Having due regard to the increased incomes of many wage and salary earners in the Dominion, it was pointed out by Mr. Spinney that it was the duty of the National War Finance Committee to see that no means should be overlooked to remind Canadians of the twofold investment in every purchase of war savings stamps or certificates — thrift and a stake in victory.

Over 1000 Canadian airmen took part in the record bombing attack on Cologne.

Rural Gasoline Stations To Open One Night A Week

OTTAWA. — Gasoline stations in rural areas more than five miles from a city will be allowed to remain open one evening a week, Munitions Minister Howe announced in the House of Commons late Tuesday.

Relaxation of the seven o'clock closing order was being made for the convenience of farmers who found it difficult to make gasoline purchases during the day, the minister said.

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

By H. G. L. Strange
Director, Research Department, Searle Grain Co. Ltd.

THE FIXING OF PRICES

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board in order to stop inflation in Canada are attempting to "peg" the prices of certain commodities and products. This has been tried on many times in the past but it has never been successful because price fundamentals always been "set" too rigidly and not in line and the plans broke down. The "set" prices usually broke down because the relationships between supply and demand changed and no longer warranted the prices that had been "set". In other words too much price pressure accumulated behind the dam and either the price dam broke or the prices ran over the top.

Mr. Donald Gordon, Chairman of the Prices and Trade Board, is evidently profiting by past experience for he has stated that regulations in order to increase the pool to any scarce commodity, the price of which is now badly needed, than a HIGHER price must be offered in order to increase supply.

This policy of arranging fluctuations so as will have the Government paying a better price for wheat in order to succeed that past plans of a fixed and unalterable price.

It is interesting to note that Mr. Gordon is really realizing that such a price can be set and controlled that it must be changed from time to time to accord with the changing ratio of supply and demand. Other essential war products may not be fortunate.

Following certain bases decided on raise policy. Cattle prices at Winnipeg are now at the highest levels in twenty years. Reports from Europe continue to indicate deterioration in the food situation in the Axis countries. Government announces that farmers would be insured 2 million dollars to encourage cattle feeding and increase farming on marginal properties in reveals.

Following factors have tended to lower price. Unfavorable crop prospects in Europe and elsewhere. Heavy movement of wheat from the Argentine, Australia and Canada 288 million bushels, up 17 million from 1941—Good rains have fallen recently over widely scattered areas of Western Canada.

HABITS ARE CHANGING

You've noticed it . . . Canadians are adjusting their way of living nobly each day to meet present circumstances. In this third year of War . . . have you made your total effort to win? . . . It's total War. The opportunity to help is yours by joining others who have sidetracked all unessential spending to Save For Victory. Start that War Winning Habit now—buy more Stamps each week!

WILDMERE WINKS

At the B.W.D. club meeting held at the home of Mrs. Riley on Wednesday last there was a splendid crowd and quite a lot of finished work was turned in despite the busy time since our last meeting. It was decided to put on a picnic by the club on July 1 to be held on the school section north of our school and will close with a dance in the school in the evening. Next meeting is a joint one, Mrs. Frank Gibson and Mrs. Hatke being hostesses and it will be held on July 9th at Basswood school. At the conclusion of the meeting Mrs. Riley served a very tasty lunch which everyone enjoyed. We forgot to mention that two visitors were present, Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Clark, both of Tofield.

Our club has been invited to attend the meeting of Tofield Red Cross at the home of Mrs. Ford on Wednesday of this week. More about this next time.

Corporal Norman Smith, AC Wm. Garnett, both of the Air Force, accompanied by Mr. Albert Shaw, a former teacher of our school, spent the week end in our district, the former at their homes and Mr. Shaw at different homes, all returned to the city on Monday morning.

Mr. Howard Gibson, Basswood, and Mr. Howard Frissell, Battleview, both received their army call last week and on being medically examined Howard Frissell was passed but Howard Gibson failed. He will report for training on the 12th. Howard is a son of Mr and Mrs A Frissell and they have one other son in the Artillery Army in the Ambulance Corp.

Mrs. Chas. Morand who has been laid up with blood poisoning in her finger now has to have part of the finger removed owing to the bone being diseased. We all wish you the best of luck as with a family of nine children one needs both their hands to work with.

Tom Best returned home Thursday evening last from the hospital, but is still unable to walk on his leg which he injured in it. Mrs Robert Parth also came home from the hospital on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs Jack Marfleet and family are now living in the house on the old Blakely farm which corners the farm where their son was electrocuted by fire.

Mrs. George Cruthers visited at the writer's after church Sunday. In the afternoon Bill Adam Smith and Ray Canterberg called for a short while, going over latests golf at Johnny Wilson's. Ray starts his return trip to Air Force duty next Tuesday June 16. He has been home on furlough.

Congrats — To Mr. and Mrs. Jas Cooper of Tulsade on the birth of a son on Friday last at the Vermilion hospital. Both doing well.

Miss Mary Sauder spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mr. Adam Smith. Miss Evelyn Howard also spent the long week end at her home here in Wildmere from her school near Wainwright.

A splendid crowd turned out to church on Sunday to hear the equally splendid sermon given by Mr. Pick. What an array of Christ's which was enjoyed by everyone.

On Tuesday last Rev. L. Archer [illegible] company with Mr. Pick and Mr. Lemkay of the north field, called at the writer's home to see if we could find a place to hold a boys' camp this summer. Keep July 1st in mind folks!

LACK OF EDUCATION NOW NO BARRIER TO AIR FORCE

Lack of education is no longer a barrier to keen, medically fit lads who are anxious to fly. If the desire and ambition is already present, the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training school will supply the educational instructions free of charge. Not only is the instruction free but the men are paid an allowance of $7 a week for single men living at home, $10 for single men living away from home and $15 for married men or heads of households.

Young men between the ages of 17 years 3 month and 23 years who have completed one or two years secondary school are only may attend school for twelve weeks, which will give them academically the equivalent of Grade XI maths and physics. Those subjects are essential for those training as Pilots, Observers, or Wireless Operators (Air Gunners).

During the course the students have an opportunity of taking part in sport activities and elementary drill. At regular intervals lectures are given by R.C.A.F officers on such subjects as Theory of Flight, Navigation, Link Trainer, etc. This gives everyone a chance to ask those questions about which he has been wondering for weeks and months or years.

Immediately upon graduation from the school, the student is enlisted in the A.C.W. in the R.C.A.F and proceeds directly to the Manning depot.

On acceptance for educational training at the pre-enlistment school the men may be granted exemption from compulsory military training upon application to the Divisional Registrar.

In the first year's operation, Canada's Air Cadet league enrolled 15,000 boys. Enrolment of 50,000 is expected next year. (League boys are given free p eliminary air training.)

HON. W.A. FALLOW FLIES NORTH

The provincial department of public works is planning to clear a 20 mile stretch of road west of Grande Prairie to enable drilling equipment to be moved to oil projects close to the B.C. border. At Peace River, Hon. W.A. Fallow announced that work will also be carried out on the Ortimbabe-Fairview section, Grande Prairie to Beaverlodge and Spirit River to Dunvegan. The minister flew to the south country.

BUY YOUR WINTER COAL NOW

EDMONTON—Buy your winter coal now and save needless suffering later. This is the gist of a message issued by Premier Aberhart this week after he had received a communication from the Federal Coal Administrator. Heavy demands on labor and transportation next fall and winter will make hazardous the mining and delivery of coal, Mr. Aberhart said, and it is imperative that miners be kept working such as to avert a threatened famine. Declaring that rationing may be necessary, the Premier said that it was understood the question of credit reliance to consumers was being considered.

Outside markets are tending to increase production of Alberta coal. Record figures issued by the Department of Trade and Industry show that in the first two months of this year the output was 1,174,822 tons, valued at $1,211,578. This was 265% higher than that of the same two months in 1941, the production also increased during the period, with 1,085,825 barrels valued at $2,604,105 showing a 346% increase.

MUNICIPAL CONVENTION AT CALGARY

EDMONTON—Among the speakers addressing the 26th annual convention of the Union of Alberta municipalities in Calgary June 23 and 24 will be Premier Aberhart, Hon. Ladies May-hard, Minister of Municipal Affairs, Dr. Robert Newton, President of the University of Alberta. While the three ministers members are expected to speak on governmental topics, Dr. Newton has announced he will speak on reconstruction.

MORE BUTTER NEEDED

Warning that a butter shortage may be expected this fall was voiced by D. H. McCallum, provincial dairy commissioner. Shortage of farm labor, gasoline restrictions, feed and manpower scarcity were given as reasons for the shortage expected. Declaring that Canada is behind its requirements, the commissioner urged greater production of quality dairy produce for the British market.

Bowtell School

Dear Public:

We, the Bowtell Junior Red Cross wish to thank everyone who so kindly helped with our dance.

We would especially like to thank David Horne, Teddy Reid, Don Davies and Clayton Taylor for rendering several vocal selections and Miss Lawrence who kindly accompanied them. This was much enjoyed by all.

We also want to thank Mr. Shewood for his services at the door as doorman; Mr. Perkins for being floor manager; Mrs. Sherwood who helped greatly in making our dance a success.

Last but certainly not least we wish to thank Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Preston, Mrs. Repp, Mrs. McGinnis, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. MacFarlane and Mrs. Gow for donating cream and ice cream freezers. We also want to thank the people who donated articles for the auction sale, and Mr. Debrod who made a very capable auctioneer.

Thanking you all again, we are

FARM DEBT QUESTION

A proposal for a three-province conference to discuss farm debt in West Canada emanated from a meeting held in Edmonton recently of representatives of five Alberta farm organizations and members of the Alberta Government, including Premier Aberhart, Hon. Lucien Maynard, Hon. Solon Low and Hon. D.B. MacMillan. The farm organizations represented included The United Farmers of Alberta; The Alberta Farmers Union; The Alberta Federation of Agriculture, United Grain Growers and Alberta Wheat Pool.

Premier Aberhart opened the conference and one of the most important points in his remarks was the recommendation of the people of Alberta to demand an equitable readjustment of all debts on a 3% basis.

A Growing War Effort

SOME INTERESTING figures regarding the returns to the Dominion treasury through the channels of direct taxation were recently given to the House of Commons by Finance Minister J. L. Ilsley. The increase to the national revenue from these taxes for the year ending May 31, 1942, was $347,300,000. Mr. Ilsley described this figure as "startlingly tremendous." He further stated that while this increase was due in part to an increase in the rate of taxation, an upward swing in general business conditions was also a factor. Analyzing this figure, Mr. Ilsley showed that personal income tax for the year ending May 31, 1942, would show an increase of $105,100,000, national defence tax $84,900,000; and excess profits tax $153,300,000

* * * * *

Trend Of Business

While production of luxury goods in Canada has been widely and rapidly curtailed, there has grown up a large defence industry, which is taking up great quantities of material and providing employment for large numbers of workers. In a recent survey of business conditions in Canada, published by the Bank of Nova Scotia, it was stated that employment in industrial plants had increased thirty per cent. in the last year, and sixty-two per cent above the levels just prior to the outbreak of the war. The same report says that there was a material increase in gross farm income during the past year. Cash income from the sale of farm products during 1941 were placed at $876,000,000, an increase of 18½ per cent. over 1940, and the highest since 1929

* * * * *

Increase Of Farm Products

Since the outbreak of the war farm living costs have increased five per cent. and the cost of production by one half. Nevertheless there has been an increase in the output of agricultural products to meet the rising requirements of war time. While returns to the farmers are not as great as the gross increase suggests, there has been improvement in some branches of the agricultural industry. The production of metals and forest products also show great increases, and these figures all tell the story of an ever-expanding war effort within our Dominion, which is vastly absorbing greater quantities of our material and human resources. Now that the initiative has been seized by the United Nations on most of the fighting fronts, it is to be hoped that the offensive spirit will gather strength. It should make itself felt by the renewed determination of all Canadians to provide the money necessary for the support of the men in uniform.

THE LAST WORD

When the building of the Erie Canal was being discussed, the subject of favoring it was being argued in a Quaker business meeting of men. It was opposed by an influential member—no less than Elias Hicks celebrated American preacher—on the ground of its being a speculation. Among other objections he went on to say. "When the work is finished, if any canals were intended they would have been made." Thereupon, a member rose up and in the intoning voice usually heard in the meetings, said, "And Jacob digged a well" and sat down.

RATIONING AIDS HEALTH

Health tests in London show that rationing has improved rather than retarded the health of the average adult and child. This is ascribed to the careful planning that precedes all rationing decisions. More than 10,000 evacuees are weighed and measured every three months. Similar tests are applied to children in evacuation camps. The lessons learned will be put to practical use after the war.

Nearly 8,000 miles of a wire so fine it will float in the air can be spun around a single one-pound hump of platinum.

56th Edition McKim's Directory Of Canadian Publications Just Off Press

Canada has now 1,311 publications, of which 953 are weeklies and 167 dailies, according to the 56th edition of McKim's Directory of Canadian Publications, just off the press.

During the past year, the dailies have decreased by five and the weeklies by 31, while 20 monthlies and 23 miscellaneous publications have been added to the list. Suppression of Canada's two Japanese dailies narrows the Japanese language press in this country to one weekly, while the Chinese continue to lead among the dailies in the total of 66 foreign language publications in 16 different tongues, with four dailies of their own, two in Toronto and two in British Columbia.

"Necessary curbs on consumption and the re-directing of productive capacities to the service of the war machine have necessitated a shift in emphasis which changes the nature rather than restricts the scope of advertising," says C. T. Pearce, President of A. McKim Limited, in his foreword to the directory, which comprises 483 pages, and includes exhaustive data on markets throughout the Dominion. "Those who, with their eyes on the post-war world, take the necessary steps to maintain and increase the goodwill created by consistent advertising will find themselves in the position to cope with circumstances when peace comes."

For Overseas Forces

Cry "Send It's Smokes" Helped By Gift Of 2,000,000 Cigarettes

A total of two million cigarettes will be distributed among Canadians in land, sea and air forces now on active service overseas, as a gift from The Dodds Medicine Company Limited, Toronto, maker of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This is understood to be one of the largest individual gifts of Canadian-made cigarettes to the Canadian Forces on active service overseas, and distribution will be carried out through the facilities of the Overseas League, (Canada) Tobacco Fund, Toronto.

From all parts of Canada money is collected and cigarettes sent to all branches of the service overseas at the rate of 10 packages of 25 cigarettes each for $1.00. With each package is addressed post card with the donor's name and hundreds of thousands have been returned to Canada and the United States by grateful men of the air force, navy, army and merchant marine. Any amount is acceptable and carefully administered by the Overseas League Tobacco Fund, King Edward Hotel, Toronto. This is voluntary work and the Governor-General, Lord Athlone, is leading patron in Canada.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About Take And That In The Canadian Army.

By Alan Mowbray Irwin

"Canadians must supply more tanks, more guns, more men, more bombers, more rifles." You have heard public speakers read these sentiments of time and again. And audiences stamp and cheer and, let us hope, dash off to buy more War Savings Stamps and Victory Bonds.

Well, so long as the audience reacts that way why should anyone worry?

And yet there is a worry there. It's the grouping together of machines and men.

It's bad psychology. It illustrates too well the Colonel Blimp type of thinking.

What right has a politician to think of men—your son or brother or father or husband or friend—in the same breath as machines?

We can sweat and sacrifice and save to "supply more tanks, more guns, more bombers, more rifles." We can and we must!

But I' is not our sacrifice or our sweat when the men go. That is theirs and we have no right to be smug and complacent when they volunteer or make their choice we are to them or they to us.

You'll hear the same type of speaker say, "Canada must give assistance has given two sons to the Army."

Mrs. Blank hasn't given her sons to the Army. They weren't hers to give. Let us rather say that Mrs. Blank gave her sons to a character that made them ready to offer their services, perhaps their lives, to their country.

But don't let us class them with the machines that are being built to aid its soldiers by the Colonel Blimp's Army.

The men who put on their country's uniform when that country is fighting for the existence of the Christian world do it for the same reason their fathers did. There is no hiring fire or firing squad in them. No inward, silent sound of Kipling's flute, no proud thought of sacrifice, no strong call of duty. They put on the uniform because they are men and men fight to protect their own and preserve their heritage.

They don't get into uniform because politicians or preachers or Colonel or Colonel Blimps tell them. It's their duty—neither should we who are not permitted to wear uniforms need to be "needled up" to put our backs into backing the soldiers in.

"Not permitted to wear uniforms." But we are! we are permitted to wear uniforms of our own design and manufacture. We can wear uniforms represented by turned coats, by frayed cuffs, by lack of frills to save cloth for vital needs.

We can wear uniforms by walking to save gasoline, by abstaining from candy to save sugar, by wearing old clothes, by eating plain food, by buying two War Savings Certificate stamps instead of going to a movie.

That way we can be privates in the Individual Citizen's Army—and it's a lot harder to be a good private than a good General.

That way we can supply the men in uniform with "more tanks, more guns, more bombers, more rifles."

The farmer who patches up an old hoe, the housewife who makes over an old dress, the school-boy who walks acutely past a good slide to save wear and tear on his boots (or maybe the seats of his pants) is supplying more machines to the troops.

Those are the thoughtful people. What about the thoughtless ones?

To be thoughtless these days is to be unpatriotic—and to be unpatriotic these days is close to treachery.

Perhaps we should drop fancy language these days, perhaps we would better understand what harm thoughtlessness can do if we were to call a sugar hoarder a traitor, the man who conspires to get a double-breasted suit a traitor, the joy-rider a traitor!

Streets In London May Soon Have Sea Of Females

Costermongers' picnics, quick-stepping animals of 12 to 14 hands, soon may be a novelty on London streets.

They are in demand by country residents who have laid up their automobiles and are travelling by trape and old-fashioned gigs. Before the war the ponies sold for approximately $120. Now they bring twice that and are becoming scarce.

One horse dealer said women in particular are buying the ponies because they are easy to handle and have a lot of "horse sense."

Says Canada Is Following Policy Pay As You Go

Seigniory Club, Que., (CP)—Neither domestic financial consideration nor foreign exchange problems have been allowed to obstruct the scope and character of Canada's war effort, Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, told the annual meeting of the United States Bankers' Association for Foreign Trade.

Speaking to the bankers at their first meeting in Canada, Mr. Towers said Canada had decided upon a policy of "pay as you go" in conducting the war, with consequently high taxes and internal borrowings, and introduction of foreign exchange control regulations. He outlined the workings of the exchange regulations.

"I am not going to go into details but will only say that control of capital will be vested in the same breath as machines?

We can sweat and sacrifice and save to "supply more tanks, more guns, more bombers, more rifles."

But I' is not our sacrifice or our sweat when the men go. That is theirs and we have no right to be smug and complacent when they volunteer or make their choice we are to them or they to us.

SUGAR RATIONING

Bakers Must Keep Within The Industrial Use Of Sugar

Ottawa.—Wartime prices and trade board officials said that under revised sugar rationing regulations, confining the industrial use of sugar to 70 per cent. of the quantity used in 1941, bakers are permitted to use icing on their products provided they remain within the quota allowed them.

Before the tightened sugar ration was announced recently by Donald Gordon, chairman of the prices board, bakers were able to use 80 per cent. of the sugar they consumed in 1940, and, after Easter Monday of this year, were not permitted to use sugar for icing.

Under consolidated regulations for the industry the provision forbidding bakers to make use of sugar for icing has been removed, officials said. But, if icing is to be used, it must be taken from the sugar available under the 70 per cent. quota.

Canadian Corps Goes Through Marching Test

Somewhere in England.—In its largest, hardest and longest battle manoeuvre, a Canadian corps has been engaged in testing 24-day endurance test which saw infantry march between 250 and 300 miles as the corps waged mimic war against a British corps over southeast England.

The infantry moved afoot without the usual transport and carried out almost incredible forced marches by day and night, culminating in the climax of the Canadians' attack training for operations on the continent. In many respects it was without in the type of fighting they would have while establishing a bridgehead in Europe before vehicles landed in numbers.

The regiment marched 36 miles in 30 hours and engaged British forces during this time in lengthy sham battles. Infantry of a whole division hoofed 40 miles in 18 hours in a marathon push after 10 days of steady marching of 20 to 25 miles a day

Both Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, Canadian corps commander, and Lt.-Gen. B. L. Montgomery, commander of Britain's southeast army, who directed the exercise, told war correspondents they were highly pleased with the Canadians' performance.

In a message to all commanders and commanding officers in his corps, Gen Crerar said:

"Sincere congratulations are due to all ranks in the Canadian corps on the manner in which the troops, commanders and staff have stood the very searching test of their abilities to take it and give it in exercise conditions which called for the maximum from everyone

"Much was demanded of officers and men. All calls were answered and in consequence great results have been achieved. Having confirmed what the Canadian corps can do when required, we can face the future with great confidence."

Gen Montgomery, who commanded the third division of the British expeditionary force and who landed in Sicily, said the Canadians were "really first class" and that their soldiery is "of the highest class."

"They are at their best when the battle becomes mobile and fluid, for then their natural qualities of leadership and energy show themselves," he said.

Night after night after long marches, small parties of Canadians broke through the British lines to eavesdrop on staff conferences, to steal maps marked with British dispositions, capture prisoners, including several senior officers, and bring back valuable information.

Gen Sir Alan Brooke, commander-in-chief of the home forces, Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, the Canadian commander, and Maj.-Gen. R. W. Browne, inspector-general of Canadian establishment outside the corps, watched the exercises as observers.

SALVAGE METAL

Illegal To Destroy Or Throw Away Any Collapsible Tubes

Ottawa.—The wartime prices and trade board announced that used collapsible metal tubes must be delivered to a drug, cigar, general or department store, and that "no person may lawfully keep in possession any used collapsible metal tube longer than reasonably necessary for delivery."

The board said it is a breach of the new regulations to "destroy or throw away" any "empty collapsible metal tube which contained any substance or matter."

Stressing the importance of careful salvage, the board's announcement estimated that about 250 used tubes would supply the necessary tin solder for a Bolingbroke bomber.

Winnipeg.—A saving of more than 60 per cent in consumption of gasoline and rubber will be effected by a plan to zone milk and cream collection in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, W. H. Musgrove, chairman of the advisory board to the Manitoba Dairy Association, said.

PRAISE FARM WOMEN

Government Expresses Appreciation For All Given In War Work

Ottawa.—The government is saying "thank you" to the farm women of Canada.

In a $30,000 advertising campaign centred in farm publications the agriculture department is expressing the government's appreciation of the part women on farms are playing in the war effort.

Women who have left the farms for jobs in industry are generally recognized as doing vital war work, but the government feels women who are staying at home on the farm also deserve recognition, an official said.

Women on Canadian farms are not only looking after their families and doing normal work about the farms but in many cases have undertaken additional farm work to help relieve labor shortages

Reports reaching the agriculture department indicate also that these women are somehow finding time to do knitting and carry on other Red Cross activities on a scale equal to that of urban women.

TIME INDEFINITE

Further Consideration Needed Before Air Agreement Is Signed

Ottawa.—A last-minute postponement of the signing of the new British Commonwealth Air Training Plan agreement has been made.

The agreement was to have been signed June 8 but it is understood some details required further consideration and the affair has been postponed indefinitely

It is understood the broad lines of the agreement have already been settled but that some of the financial or other phases of the arrangement have not been settled

FOR CIVILIAN USE

Synthetic Rubber Not Available Until 1945 Says Noted Chemist

Hamilton. — A noted American chemist predicts that there will be no new rubber for civilian use until 1945 at the earliest.

He is Dr M I. Cramer of Philadelphia, who told the annual convention of the Canadian Chemical Association that another two years of war will see the synthetic rubber industry firmly entrenched. He estimates that the United Nations have a rubber stockpile of 800,000 tons and that the annual production of plantations and rubber trees in Allied territories is around 170,000 tons.

Audacious Raids Made By British Troops In Libya

With British Forces in Libya.—One of the most daring information services ever attempted is operated by a band of audacious British volunteers who slip through the enemy's back door in ordinary trucks to find out what he is doing.

Like the scorpion, which is their emblem, they carry a dangerous sting for their enemy Sometimes they shoot up an enemy post before they return, or bring back some prisoners with them

Always they are working hundreds of miles behind hostile lines with no hope of support from their own forces if something goes wrong

They have no secret weapons, no disguises. They wear regular uniforms and ride in trucks not even armor-plated

Their weapons are speed, surprise camouflage and firing power

They were organized in July 1940, after Italy's entrance into the war made it imperative to know what was going on in Libya

They recruit, in a "poor show" to this much about their work which they call stunts" but this is one hair-raiser:

A long-range patrol of 20 men came in by the usual desert back door to try shoot up an Axis encampment and beg some prisoners The drove boldly down the main Axis highway in Libya and found, when they arrived that they were 20 against 500

The headquarters of an Axis motor convoy which just had arrived brightly lighted the camps central square Germans and Italians sat around, smoking and eating

For four minutes the two groups stared at each other the enemy showed only mild curiosity Then one of the Britons was overheard speaking in English and the first shot rang out

A roaring gunfight lasted 25 minutes sometimes with the men blazing away from farther from each other than 20 yards Then the British volunteers pulled out They had captured two prisoners killed many of the enemy and destroyed some trucks The patrol suffered no losses not even a wounded man

It was not so difficult as you might think, said the leader who was under the Middle East for the greatest. Jerry didn't expect us there

MAY RATION COAL

Public Advised To Get Full Supply In Early

Toronto.—Coal may be rationed both in Canada and the United States this winter, J McG Stewart federal coal administrator for Canada told the convention of the Canadian Retail Coal Association

If rationing of coal goes into effect in the United States as a result of transportation conditions it will surely be ratio ed here almost as a certainty Mr Stewart said. "We have been trying to arouse the public and persuade them to get in their fuel supply early

"To take the form of rationing here would be practically parallel to the plan adopted in the United States" he said "But in any event we will let the public know in lots of time There won't be any case of people being unprepared some Tuesday and effective the next day."

Mr Stewart told the convention that the basis of rationing "fears" is the expected pinch in transportation facilities this autumn

Summer traffic on railroads always is less than winter traffic and during this winter there will be even heavier demands on transportation facilities he said September first or possibly Sept 15 is our deadline for coal transportation because then there will be the wheat harvest to transport as well as war materials."

Since Confederation in 1867 Canada has had 39 bank mergers.

War In Skies Being Won By Score Of 2 To 1

London.—In the matter of plane losses, the R.A.F. reports it's winning the war in the skies by a score of two to one.

Two Axis planes downed for every British plane lost—that is the tally in the latest air ministry tabulation.

The air ministry figures are: 5,009 British planes lost; 10,045 German and Italian planes destroyed. That includes all the European and Middle Eastern fronts for the war, so far.

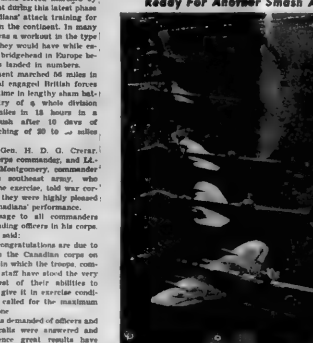
The air ministry also figures that Germany has been raided 69 times and occupied countries 144 times since Jan. 1.

In the three big raids on Cologne and Essen, say the British they dropped far more bombs than the Germans ever showered on Britain during a similar period

Germany's high point was the month of November, 1940, when 6,700 tons of bombs fell on Britain But in four nights the R.A.F poured 7,000 tons of bombs on France and Germany

As for the Far East, the air ministry says more than 1,200 Japanese planes have been shot down by Allies forces to date The Allied losses are not given

Ready For Another Smash At Axis



Boarding the trucks and mounting around them equipment of Britain's huge four-motored Stirling bombers are pictured after being serviced and bombed-up ready for the take off on a flight over enemy territory. Stirlings are the largest bombers in the R.A.F. and are built to spearhead for Britain's aerial offensive against the Axis They carry a tremendous cargo of bombs and have a very wide cruising radius

FOUR-FOOTED CHICK CURIO

A four-footed chick, hatched out on the farm of J. L. Edwards, was on display at the Sayre Co-op for a few days this week. It was a real curio and the bright little fellow didn't seem to mind his extra appendages in the least. The extras were fastened on behind his regular feet, all were normal size but only three were used as the fourth foot was turned sideways instead of to the front. The chick is now being cared for by Mrs. Tom Tuts of Turkey Hill.

Success-story of a stage comedy becoming a top-notch radio show is that of "The Aldrich Family". In 1939 Clifford Goldsmith, author of the play "What a Life", was commanded to transfer the play to radio as a summer replacement for Jack Benny. As the Aldrich Family, the play was such a success that it remained on the air as a separate program. Now nearly three years old, "The Aldrich Family" makes Thursday, 9-9.30 their day for CJCA's radio fans—the time is 6.30, so go to

For a quick pick-me-up Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning, try "Get Happy". This 5-minute program of peppy piano, maracibas, accordion and vocal music is sure to give you a lift. Try it sometime. so go to

Designed for relaxation and listening pleasure is "Waltz Time" presented each Friday evening from 7 to 7.30 on CJCA. Waltz melodies—both old and new— are supplied by Abe Lyman's orchestra

BOARD OF TRADE NOTES

Just eleven members at the board meeting on Monday, introduced to the gathering was Mr. Dixon, who is now a member of the staff of Vermilion Consolidated Oils.

Note was taken of the fact that work on the V.R.A. buildings preparatory to their occupation by the C. W.A.C. was already underway.

Mr. J. K. Swanson, newly appointed manager of Vermilion Consolidated Oils, was present and gave a resume of activity in the field. He noted that 100 cars of oil had now been shipped out, also that his company alone now had a payroll amounting to $4000 per month in Vermilion.

The next meeting of the Board will be held at 12.10 noon on Monday, June 15th. At least fifteen members are urged to attend although twenty-five would be closer to the number that should be there.

SALVAGE CORPS LOADS 33,710 LBS. OF RUBBER

Being Shipped to Toronto

The Vermilion Salvage Corps on Wednesday evening spent a rushed three and a half hours loading a car of old passenger and truck tires, pieces of tires, inner tubes, besides several dozen sacks of solid rubber shoes etc., which Bill Marlow had neatly tied up, sorted and ready for shipment.

The job was a big one and was accomplished with a good deal of hard work by a crew consisting of 15 men and boys, whereas another four or five helpers would have come in very handy and made the task considerably lighter for all concerned.

Officials of the Salvage Corps have real praise for the school boys who have consistently helped in this effort, some half dozen turned out again for the loading and every one did a man's share of the work.

The carload amounted to 33,710 lbs. and took all the rubber at the Salvage depot, with the exception of the small pieces of which there is about a ton left. The rubber all had to be weighed before loading and this in itself was quite a job. The passing of the various kinds of rubber, divided according to instructions were:

Passenger tires, 17,064 lbs.; truck tires, 2816 lbs.; split tires and large pieces, 6144, black shoe rubber, 6366 lbs.; inner tubes, 1180 lbs.

This carload is being shipped to a specialty set up government buying agency in Toronto.

The next job will be the loading of a carload of scrap metal which will go to Edmonton.

9-YEAR-OLD BODY SCOTT DROWNED IN BLACKMORE LAKE, GREENLAWN DIST.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Scott of Greenlawn; Father Working in East Munition Factory.

Roderick Scott, nine year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Scott of Greenlawn, was drowned in Blackmore Lake on Tuesday last week, June 9. Circumstances surrounding the drowning are unknown as the boy was apparently alone at the time of the tragedy. The boy's father is in the east where he is working in a munition factory. Blackmore Lake is a favorite picnic spot located in the Greenlawn district, some six miles north and a mile west of Dewberry.

It appears that Rody, as he was familiarly known, had left home to go to the post office for the mail. At the post office he had met a playmate Dick Ketchum and the two boys decided that they would walk to the lake and go wading. After waiting they went to a nearby strawberry patch and after some time the two lads parted, noting their separate directions, Dick going to where his brother was working and Rody apparently starting back to the post office to pick up the family mail and return home.

Later that evening however, Frank Stone and Ivan Ketchum were returning from their work and came across Rody's clothes lying on the shore of the lake with no sign of the boy. They searched around and then fearing the worst, Ivan went on home and got a car in order to get more help from the neighbors. Hallie Ketchum and Frank Gray were secured and the hunt began to search the lake bottom in the vicinity of where the clothes were found. After pushing around for a considerable length of time the body of the boy was picked up by Hallie Ketchum and Frank Gray and carried on to the shore where the search had started.

Dr. Miller of Elk Point and the R. C.M.P. Derwent detachment, investigated the case.

The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the Scott family in the sudden and tragic bereavement.

14 Producing Wells In Oil Field By End of Week

Situation Now Most Encouraging

With two new producers already on pump and three more due to start pumping before the week is out, and with the Old Discovery well back on full time production, the situation in the Vermilion oil field is decidedly encouraging, according to a survey made by the Standard representative on a run through the field this week.

Besides the last three weeks the Vermilion Consolidated Conditioning Plant has made the following shipments: week ending June 4th — 1 tank cars; June 11th—4 cars; June 18th—9 cars. A total of 118 tank cars of fuel oil have now been shipped from the plant since the start of the operations on January 21st. 118 cars means some 27,000 barrels of oil.

The picture in the field is decidedly encouraging and by the end of the week if all plans mature there should be in the record number of 14 wells producing.

The Old Discovery well, Vermilion Consolidated No. 2 is back on pump and is producing 70 barrels per day. V.C.O. No. 7, which hasn't been on pump since being drilled in, is now pumping 25 to 30 barrels; V.C.O No. 8 is due to start pumping for the first time this Thursday and 90 barrels is expected. V.C.O. No 8 is spouting forth at the rate of 25 to 30 barrels under its own pressure; No. 9 has been cleaned up and is producing a steady 25 barrels per day.

Besides all this is the fact that Fidelli has had the sand bridges eliminated, boiling was being carried on Wednesday and it will be put on pump this Thursday also. The Al Jevis Southern is now having pumping equipment installed and tubing and pump are being put in at the Mea Ides No. 1 on the Hamera farm, where an exceptionally fine looking sample of oil was examined.

In the meantime Consetoga, Princeville, Vermilion, Richardson 1 and Acme 2 and 4 are right on pumping, so that by the end of this week there should be a record number of wells pumping forth crude oil.

MORE TESTS FOR VERMILION OIL AREA

Following news of last week that F rth West Co., had commenced its No. 1 on the Lindbergh location drive, word was received this week that the same company is to extend its exploratory drilling over a very wide area in this field.

Three more wells are to go down at once in widely separated parts of the area, with the drilling contracts for all the tests already let to Gen eral Petroleum.

The initial well in the new area which is about 15 miles west of the present Vermilion oil field, is at 20th West Chapman No. 1, on Lsd 7, 8-55-5. It has already had show ings of gas between 1140-1180 ft. and 1400-1450 ft. and is operating the usual precautions on the Vermilion wells.

N.W. Claymore No. 2 is to be drilled on Lsd. 1 16-56-7W.B. or about 6 miles south and east of the present test.

N.W. Manville No. 1, has been spotted on Lsd. 1 of 15-56-8W.4 nearly 4 miles south west on N.W. 4 days upon No. 1.

W. Tuvell No. 1 pull test on Lsd. 4 of 3-57-7W. about 10 miles north east of Chauvin No. 1 result.

NO MORE WASTE PAPER WANTED FOR TIME BEING

The volume of waste paper being shipped into the various factories by Salvage Corps throughout Canada has temporarily swamped all facilities for handling same, according to word received by the secretary of the Vermilion Salvage Corps, consequently no more waste paper is being collected until further notice.

The letter from the headquarters of the National Salvage Campaign at Ottawa states in part "The amount of Salvage collected has been of inestimable value in furthering our production of vital war materials. Iron steel and other metals, rubber, bones and rags and paper, fats have flowed from the prairies to consuming industries and salvage materials must continue to flow in ever increasing quantities. There is however one of these materials that is no longer needed in large quantities and that is waste paper. In the past we have been able to organize markets in Canada and the United States, for waste paper accumulating in the Prairie provinces and for many months all the paper collected found a ready outlet. Now, however the vast volume of paper brought in by your splendid efforts combined with intensive drives in the U.S., has resulted in a temporary oversupply, a quantity greater than the packers and mills can handle for the time being. This being the case the committee on Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan are requested to curtail further collection of waste paper until such time as you are told to do otherwise. Arrangements are being made to move any stocks of salvage paper which salvage centres have on hand".

Please remember, this may be only a temporary curtailment of collection of waste paper, and does not mean that you are to stop your good work in other salvage. Your activities must be intensified and the effort formerly expended in waste paper should now be devoted to the collection of vital material such as metals of all kinds, rubber, burlap, rags, tin and bones."

In accordance with three instructions the Vermilion Salvage Corps is not collecting or taking any more waste paper and Cardboard and especially large ones are always needed for packing of rags and small pieces of rubber etc.

Publicity For Canada

-FOR SOME TIME it has been felt by many Canadians that too little is known about Canada in other lands. This has been notable, especially in England and the United States, where the Canadian visitor has on occasion encountered what is to him an amazing and appalling lack of knowledge about our country. In the past we have met this situation with tolerance and some amusement, but there has always been, too, the suggestion of a slight to our national pride. It has been realized, however, that this lack of knowledge about Canada by many who live beyond her borders is not due to lack of interest on their part, but to our failure to publicize our country

* * * * *

Need Wider Information In recent months this question has been considered more seriously than at any time, because of a misapprehension that has sprung up in the United States regarding Canada's war effort. Many American news writers who are apprised of both sides of the situation have been urging Canadians to increase their organization for publicity in the States. Many Canadian newspapers have likewise been stressing the need for a wider service for information below the border. To deal with the problem the Dominion government recently appointed Mr. Charles Vining a Montreal newspaper man, to make a survey of Canadian publicity in the United States and to report to the government on his findings. Doubtless that will result in an expansion of our news services in the United States and in the prosecution of a better understanding there of what Canada is doing in the present world struggle

We Should Be Realists Canada as still a young nation. We have a magnificent country, rich in natural resources and scenic beauties. Many of our resources are developed and are the sources of large and modern industrial enterprises. Our agriculture is on a scale sufficient to supply our own needs and those of many other parts of the world. At present both our industry and agriculture are playing an enormous part in sustaining England in these critical times. Because we are still a young nation we have not yet found a strong means of national expression. We have no newspapers or magazines with a large international circulation. In the years following the war there will be great problems to be settled and Canada will be represented at the council tables with the United Nations. It is strongly felt by many thoughtful Canadians that before that time we must not only fully realize our importance as a nation, but spread that knowledge through the nations at whose side we are fighting

Commando Raids

Vice-Admiral Lord Mountbatten Discloses Some Inside History

How Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, commander of the German Afrika corps, escaped a commando raid but lost his entire general staff was told by the dark-haired commander of the fabulous commandos, Vice-Admiral Lord Louise Mountbatten.

It happened the night before the British offensive in the last Libyan campaign. A commando party worked its way over the desert, behind the German lines, until it came to Rommel's base.

The place was captured easily and everyone inside killed or captured but Rommel was not there—he was in Rome attending a birthday celebration.

Lord Louis told how two young British commando officers calmly stood on the forecastle head of the explosive-laden destroyer Campbeltown in St. Nazaire harbor, blandly assuring 50 to 100 German technical experts that all was well until the ship blew up and carried everyone to death. The raid on St. Nazaire was made March 28.

"Those two boys stayed there and never batted an eye" said their commander. "They had guts."

The youthful commander of the commandos he is only 43 but he has seen much naval service in this war and the last one—stressed the tenacity of his combined force of sailors, soldiers, marines and marines, each becoming a regular Allied force because American officers now are attached to his staff and their commandos are coming to the United States for instructional purposes.

Then there's the matter of economizing in the use of materials

Factory Made Cricket Bats But Now Makes Rifle Stocks

A North of England factory which used to make cricket bats has now turned over to producing butts and stocks for Lee Enfield guns and rifles says the St. Thomas Times-Journal

It occurred to its manager when war broke out that his machine could be adapted for making the slimmish "furniture" of guns. The suggestion was promptly acted on, but he won the day and got his contract

Today the machines which three years ago were turning out cricket bats are shaping Enfield stocks of wood from the Urts in as many minutes Other machines complete the 12 processes which are necessary before the butts and stocks go into the seasoning chamber to mellow. They are then treated with linseed oil.

The craftsmen who made the cricket bats maintain that today, out of a pile of other rifles, a seasoned war veteran will still choose the

Britain Has Given Island Of Patos To Venezuela

Patos (Spanish for ducks) island, a 170-acre dot in the Caribbean, three miles off Venezuela, used to be one of the tiniest bits of the British Empire. The Foreign Office kept a retired Negro policeman from nearby Trinidad there as caretaker All he had to do was run up the Union Jack daily His family and his goats were the sole inhabitants There weren't any fences.

Britain originally claimed the island under the 1803 Treaty of Amiens which gave it Trinidad. But since 1904 Venezuela has disputed its ownership, and the squabble threatened the otherwise friendly relations between the nations.

On May 21 Britain did the noble thing. George Gilpard a big redleg Patos to Venezuela free of charge.—Newsweek.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

Well, we got it at last! A touch of total war in our own front yard! Freighters torpedoed in the St. Lawrence! I know the news is stale, but since I know that broad estuary as well as most of us know Main Street or Broadway you might be interested in a few remarks on the subject.

Naturally, since the question of security enters into it, I shall not attempt to speculate as to where the attacks took place although, judging by the hour at which the attacks were made and the reported time of the landings of survivors at various little ports it is not too hard for an ex-ship-news reporter to figure out within fifty miles or so.

What is most important, now that the sneaking underwater hounds have at last gathered their courage to the point of risking their lives in confined waters, is the steps to be taken by members of the Individual Citizen's Army.

There is no need to worry about the steps that are being taken by the Canadian Navy—it was succinctly announced that long-prepared plans were at once put into effect.

Reverting to the days after the little yellow apes attacked Pearl Harbour? They shelled the California coast. That was done from a submarine.

It can happen here!

The foreground for thousands of possibility are landings at obscure spots in the dead of night for water and food (or fuse) oil

That is why a recruiting campaign is going on for the Reserve Army. Its purpose is to get the middle age group and married and single men whose categories unfit them for overseas service to enlist in forms of Home Guard." There may be work for a home guard much sooner than is complacently supposed.

There are long miles of shore-line on both sides of the estuary in which deserted farm houses are the barely signs of habitation. But the men and women who live in these picturesque white houses are of a sturdy stock that stems back to the hardy Frenchmen who wrested Canada from the defences of nature and who ably defended their province against the savages who would be appalled at the savagery displayed today by the "cultured" Hun.

Even if there are submarines in the St. Lawrence we cannot sit play the role of Madeleine de Verchieres, we cannot all join the Reserve Army, but we can all play our parts by doing everything possible in our daily lives to conserve every resource for wartime production.

From the little port that harbours the pilot tender to its mouth the mighty St Lawrence River takes on almost the properties of an inland sea. Heavily-wooded country abounding with wild life backs the settled fringe along the shores. It is tempting country to brutalised men who have been cooped up for weeks in the fetid atmosphere of a submarine.

Wild life, moose, deer, smaller game, are very tempting to men who have been living on German naval rations. They may be tempted to try a little hunting. And it may be too bad for them. Have you ever faced a conscientious Game Warden?

The farmers of the lower St. Lawrence are an amphibious people equally at home between the handles of a plough or a pair of oars, in a gasoline tractor or a fishing launch capable of riding the heavy seas for which the great river is noted. They will give a good account of themselves if they get the chance.

They are used to making a living the hard way in a year round contest with the elements and will be just equal to protecting that living when the occasion arises.

But they won't be able to do it alone!

They will need, and must have, every other citizen standing by behind them. They will need the Royal Canadian Navy which so many of their sons have joined. And that Navy needs heavy clothes, warm food, rubber boots, depth charges, ammunition.

You're guessed it! That's where the Individual Citizen's Army enters the picture again.

To give the Navy its woollen sweaters, its heavy socks to wear under sea-boots, its hot cocoa-sweetened for charge—its depth charges, we have to do without a great many things.

Every order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, the board of economic strategy, is designed to make some important commodity or ingredient available to one of the fighting services.

Metal legs are banned — depth charges are metal kegs; sugar is rationed—sugar makes alcohol, alcohol makes explosives; rubber is restricted —rubber makes seaboots; we carry parcels to save wrapping paper—wrapping paper helps make shells; and we shouldn't need to be ordered. We should cheerfully volunteer to make even more savings than are planned for us.

That torpedo in the St. Lawrence was a bugle call.

Let's "fall in!"

Canadian Railways Ready To Handle Any Increase in Business

Toronto.—The greatest movement in Canadian railway history is taking place today and rail facilities probably will be utilized further after the war, R. C. Vaughan, president of the Canadian National Railways said in an interview at the Canadian Manufacturers' Association convention here.

"There seems to be some misunderstanding regarding the ability of the railways to handle more business," he said. "I can definitely say that as a result of a far-seeing program introduced and carried out some time ago we are in a position today to meet all demands."

Mr. Vaughan said the C.N.R. is not yet inconvenienced by lack of manpower but there is a possibility of women being called upon to replace men.

NOT READY YET

But Britain Will Soon Send 1,000 Bombers Nightly Over Germany

Germany has been warned to prepare for air raids on a scale hitherto unknown.

Air Chief Marshal A. T. Harris of the R.A.F. described as "silly" the phrase that "bombing can never win a war."

"We shall see" he said, speaking in a newsreel. "It hasn't been tried yet and Germany, more and more desperately clinging to her widespread conquests and still foolishly enough striving for more, will make a most interesting subject for the initial experiment.

"Japan can be used to provide the confirmation. But don't expect too much just yet. There is work to do first—and a great deal of it."

Harris was erroneously quoted in a Canadian Press despatch as suggesting that 10,000 bombers a night might soon fly over Germany and that many might fly directly from America "with formidable bomb loads." Harris did not give any figure on the number of bombers that might be used and did not indicate that bombings of Germany would be made by planes flying directly from North America.

Harris said it was not possible for the R.A.F. to put 1,000 bombers a night over Germany "whenever we please." He said that time would come—"it may not long be delayed; but it is not yet."

Slave Labor And Bondage Under Rule Of Nazis

London.—Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov, in a 3,300-word diplomatic note accused the German high command of introducing the "unheard practice of physical extermination" of war prisoners.

The German plans were said to have called for:

"Universal plunder of the population of our country in both towns and villages, accompanied by seizure and shipment to Germany of the personal property of the citizens and the property of the Soviet state.

"Utter destruction of towns and villages from which the Nazis were forced to retreat under the blows of the armed forces of the Soviet Union.

"Seizure by the German army of occupation of land given by the Soviet state in perpetuity for the free use of collective farms and the settlement of German managers and German landowners on the seized land.

"Slave labor and bondage for our workers and peasants under the rule of German authority.

"Forcible abduction of forced labor in Germany of several million Soviet citizens including men and women of all ages and the illegitimate classing of them as prisoners of war.

"Destruction of Russian national culture and the national culture of the peoples of the Soviet Union and the forcible Germanization of Byelorussia, Ukrainians, White Russians, Latvians, Estonians and other peoples of the U.S.S.R.

Extermination of the Soviet population, prisoners of war and guerilla fighters by the German fascist executions and the massacre of Soviet citizens irrespective of their nationalities, social standing, sex or age"

Honors Awarded For Bravery To Canadian Flyers

Ottawa.—Gallantry in the face of danger, and outstand harde work and efficiency are recognized in the list of King's birthday honors awarded in Canada with recommendation of the Royal Canadian Air Force and announced here.

The list at one time since the awards were established during the Battle of Britain, the George Cross and the George Medal are awarded in Canada. The list is also remarkable because the honors are awarded on recommendation of the Canadian government directly to the King, instead as before on recommendation of the United Kingdom air ministry.

The list contains only those honored for service in Canada, honors accorded Canadians for overseas service are in the fighting services are being announced in London.

The greasy lads who keep the aircraft fit for flying receive ample recognition in the list. Many of those honored are mechanics, some for general efficiency and good service and one or two for bravery

The honors announced are one George Cross, two George Medals, 10 British Empire Medals, nine Air Force Crosses, four Air Force Medals and one mention in despatches. Of the total, 11 awards are for bravery in dealing with accident situations, 14 are for general efficiency, and two are for both.

The George Cross was awarded posthumously to LAC K. M. Crawell of Vancouver, who died from burns suffered trying to rescue a pilot from the machine in which both crashed in earth.

Gravell, a pupil at the Calgary wireless school, not knowing the fate of the pilot, ignored the burning of his own clothing and tried to save his companion.

Flying Officers corporals. A E Sinclair and A. S Havion received the British Empire Medal for action that endangered all personal safety in saving a hangar and 18 aircraft at Saskatoon from destruction by fire. The hangar filled the fire extinguishers on a burning plane at close range and thus enabled service crews to rock it off the jacks and wheel it out of the hangar

Flt.-Sgt. G. F. G. Gayton, of Winnipeg, received the British Empire Medal for hard work at the bombing and gunnery school at Mossbank, Sask.

Due almost entirely to his efforts," the citation said, "the maintenance flight at Mossbank is now one of the most efficient in Canada"

The Air Force Cross was won by Sqdn.-Ldr. Frederick Moir Milligan of No. 32 S.F.T.S., Moose Jaw Sask whose "keenness and efficiency have been an inspiration to all who have come in contact with him." The citation said the efficiency of the squadron had reached a very high standard through his outstanding example.

King George Pays A Visit To U.S. Warships

U S Naval Base in Britain

For the first time in the war the King has visited United States warships in British waters He was received with the usual ceremonial ceremony of the world's greatest naval powers blended with the easy democracy of the nations these ships defend.

King George first was piped aboard one of the United States' most modern cruisers, then went in Rear Admiral For et Gillin's flagship barge to a tatt ship

He made the minute inspection of a man who knows ships and has served aboard them, chatted and joked with officers and men alike and ranged the ships from officers' washrooms to seamen's messes and the mid ship bridge to the after gun turrets and watched the long naval rifles swung and elevated.

"It was a great moment in naval history," commented one observer "It meant the welding of two great navies in the world fight in the face of the Axis

As the King was piped aboard the cruiser, United States marines stood at attention, a Marine guard outdid even its traditional smartness in presenting arms and the band struck up "God Save The King"

Inspecting the crew's quarters, the King expressed surprise and pleasure at the luxury of the fittings

He talked to men as one sailor to another. Almost the first question the King asked: He liked our ships liked the cut of our jibs and liked the way the war had shipshape and Bristol fashion

Allocate Food Supplies For The Allied War Effort

Washington. — Agriculture Secretary Wickard called the government's new wartime food committee together for its first meeting, to hear an optimistic report on production prospects in U S. and to make a survey of prospective requirements for military, lend-lease and civilian needs

The nine-member committee was created by the war production board to control the production, importation and allocation of all food supplies and to act in the interest of the Allied war effort

Wickard planned to lay before the committee a report that agricultural production in the United States is keen better at its maximum of the war. The federal crop reporting board said that if the weather continues favorable prospects include a new one if its darkest food production, may be considerably exceeded

This picture of American prodigies was in sharp contrast with conditions in Germany-occupied Europe. Reports received by Wickard through Swedish department and other sources indicate that continental Europe now faces its darkest food period. There will be no surplus, due to an unusually severe winter that killed thousands of cattle, a late dry spring and shortage of labor fertilizer, seeds farm power and equipment

SHORT WAVE SYSTEM

Canada Is Considering Proposal To Establish Broadcasting

Ottawa The House of Commons radio committee has placed a proposal for creation of a short wave broadcasting system in Canada at the top of its agenda

Leaving that equipment is immediately available but that the opportunity for purchase may disappear at any time, the committee decided a proposal to make an interim report to parliament

At a previous session the committee learned from Dr A. Prince, CBC assistant general manager that short wave channels allocated to Canada now are in use by other countries it was possible to still operate on these channels but in some cases there might be interference, he said.

CLANDONALD OLD-TIMER CELEBRATES 89th BIRTHDAY

Now At Lakefield, Ontario

Wellington MacDonald, well known pioneer settler of the Clandonald district, who is now residing at Lakefield, Ontario, celebrated his 89th birthday on Sunday May 31. He was born in a log cabin on the banks of the Otonabee river, a short distance from Lakefield in the year 1853. His father died when he was six years old and at the age of eight years he left home to earn his own living. He learned the trade of carpenter and many of the houses in the old Wellddale district were built by him. In 1904 he and his two sons homesteaded near Wellddale and here he continued to live until 1925 when he again returned to his old home at Lakefield. One son Bruce still remains in Alberta and is well known in Vermilion.

During the past twelve years Mr. MacDonald has suffered several bad accidents including a spinal fracture, hip fracture, ankle fracture and four broken ribs. He visited old friends in Vermilion and district some four or five years ago.

BUNDLES FOR BRITAIN

The following "Bundles for Britain" were received by the Frog Lake Chapter, I.O.D.E. from the people of the Union district per Mrs. Cartwright a few weeks ago but acknowledgement unavoidably overlooked: 2 boy's shirts, 2 children's dresses, 2 children's slips, 2 prs. children's panties, 1 pr. children's bloomers; 7 baby gowns, 1 baby petticoat; 5 prs. baby booties.

This generous contribution has been forwarded to I.O.D.E. headquarters at Edmonton for shipment overseas. The record by the women of Union district in donating bundles for the children in bombed out areas in Great Britain is deserving of the highest praise and the Frog Lake Chapter is deeply grateful for their efforts.

CALF CLUB SHOW AT VEGREVILLE; HIGH PRICES PREVAIL

The Vegreville Beef Calf club held their show in Vegreville on Tuesday, June 9th.

The following day the three winning calves were entered in a championship class in Edmonton in open competition with winners in four other Clubs from Sangudo, Derby, Spruce Grove and North Edmonton. After the show 77 calves were sold at auction.

J. Robinson of Boyle was awarded the grand Championship, his calf, an Angus, later sold for 29c per pound. Betty Hughes of Vegreville was awarded the Reserve Championship for her white Shorthorn which later sold for 27c per pound.

The Vegreville calves averaged 724 pounds each and sold for an average of 12.9c per pound and netted their owners an average of $107.20.

NEW SIDEWALK IN WEST END —

A new sidewalk on a "new" plan is being laid in Block 19 on 1st Street North. This is Vermilion's newest residential street, a block which has more new homes than any other in the town, five new residences being built within the past year and a half and two others shortly before that, owing to the fact that the section is new, a large number of hedges have been started, young trees set out on what is usually regarded as the boulevard, and everything painted to the street being a real credit to the town within the next year or two. Then it is rather surprising that such promise was entirely overlooked by the town council who are laying anything but a slightly sidewalk of rough unfinished timber in short lengths, which means that it will be all levels before much time has passed, and this is being laid right along the property line of the householders, thus completely eliminating the boulevard or strip of land for trees and grass which adds so much to the appearance of a residential section. It is unfortunate that these efforts already expended on beautifying will no far naught as the walk is being laid within a few inches of the young trees already planted on the one side and the hedges on the other.

It is to be regretted that the council didn't see fit to put the sidewalk in its proper place and also one more in keeping with the possibilities of the new street.

AGRICULTURAL CONVENTION AT RED DEER, JULY 2 AND 3

CALGARY, June 16. — Delegates representing the 58 affiliated organizations of the Alberta Federation of Agriculture will meet in annual session at Red Deer, Thursday and Friday, July 2 and 3 it was announced today by Lew Hutchinson Duhamel, chairman of the Board of Directors.

Among those who will address the convention on current agricultural matters is Hon. J. G. Taggart, Ottawa, Dominion Food Administrator and chairman of the Canadian Bacon Board. All of the Federation's sessions will be open to the farming public.

In the House of Commons, debate has opened on Government Bill to amend the National Resources Mobilization Act. Section three of the Mobilization Act limits compulsory service in Canada and Canadians but not war. A non-political Bill proposes to delete that provision, thus enabling the Government to send conscripted men overseas.

OBITUARY

JULIE AGUSTA CAROLINA WOLTERS

Funeral services of the late Carolina Wolters who passed away June 8 at the age of 75 years, 3 months and one day, were held at the United church, Vermilion on June 11, at 2 o'clock. Interment was made in the Vermilion cemetery.

The services were conducted by the Rev. L. G. Sieber and Deaconess Denton. Great words of comfort were spoken, taken from the theme of the hymn "Jesus Keep Me Near the Cross". Two of the deceased's favorite hymns "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" and "Softly and Tenderly Jesus is Calling", were also sung during the services.

She leaves to mourn her loss her loving husband, four sons, three daughters, thirteen grandchildren and two great grand children. Her only sister, Mrs. Marie Boeck, of St Louis Missouri, passed away January 6 of this year. Her sons Elmer Kottmeier of Des Moines, Iowa, Fred Kottmeier of Tofland, Alberta, Herman and Otto Wolters, Tofland, daughters Mrs. Arch Dudley, Antigo, Wisconsin, Mrs. John Coward, Eaxford, Alberta, Miss Alma Wolters at home.

The pallbearers were: Thomas Watts, Gordon Trevithick, Jack Lyons, Eldridge Webber, Alex Kiss and Chris Thompson.

Julie Agusta Carolina Wolters was born in Gufell, Province of Saxony, Germany, on March 7, 1867. Orphaned at the early age of nine she took the first opportunity to come to America and in the spring of 1885 came to her sister's home in St. Louis, Mo. In February of 1888 she married Fred Kottmeier. To this union were born three children, a friend, who died in infancy and Elmer and Fred. She continued to live in St. Louis after her husband's death and moved to a farm in Kinsick near St Louis after her second marriage in 1896 to Fred Wolters. While residing in this district three more children, Herman Otto and Margaret were born in 1901 the family moved to Columbia, Missouri where Freida and Rosa were born. In the fall of 1911 she came to the Tofland district with the family of the five younger children to join her husband on his homestead which he had filed on two years previously. This made her a continuous resident of the Tofland district for thirty-one years.

Floral offerings were received from the following: The Family, Chief Marmeret, Orah and Family; Freida Jack and Family; Rosa; Herman Otto, Gladys and family; Elmer, Bessie and family; Fred and Ruth, Christine and Inez; Friends and Neighbors of Triangle district; Tofland U.F.A. THE TASK COMMITTED TO THE DISCIPLES

Golden text Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation Mark 16:15.

Lesson Matthew 28 16-20; Mark 16:9-20; Luke 24 49-53

Devotional reading Isaiah 49 1-6.

Explanations and Comments

Jesus Himself at The Great Commission, Matthew 28 16-20 The eleven disciples (the successor of Judas had not yet been chosen) went to the mountain in Galilee where Jesus had appointed a meeting. It was a well-known meeting place, and probably came to them the appearance which probably is to be identified with the one mentioned by Paul in I Cor. 15 6, where he was seen "by about five hundred at once." When Jesus appeared in their midst some recognized him and worshiped him, others (not the eleven) doubted. Throughout his early life, and now here also after these many centuries, Jesus has been a divider of men.

All authority hath been given unto me in heaven and on earth; in these words Jesus asserted his right to command. The future of his kingdom was his supreme concern and he issued his royal order. "Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you." "To the people of his time the audacity of the command must have sounded like insanity. It seems to some in our day. In the light of reason the command was ludicrous in the light of history it is sublime." (Thomas J Villers).

"And lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." May these words become to us not only a belief but an experience.

I need thy grace every passing hour.

What but thy grace can foil the tempter's power?

Who like myself my Guide and Stay can be?

Through cloud and sunshine, O abide with me"

The missionary John Paton, has testified to the full presence of the Lord in the midst of his hard and lonely labors in the New Hebrides. Speaking of a time of great trial he said "Nothing else than the abiding presence and power of my dear Lord and Savior could have prevented me from losing my reason and perishing miserably" His words, 'Lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the world' became to me so real that it would not have startled me to see him as Stephen did, gazing down upon the scene "

Defender Of Malta

General Dobbie Has Nothing But Praise For The People

General Sir William Dobbie has been mooting the British press and the prominence have been greatly taken with him. They do not usually rise at the end of these conferences, as we often did in other day, reports the Manchester Guardian, and get one of their number to say they have felt it a great honor to meet him. Something has moved newspaper men when they become articulate in their way. Sir William must be one of the saldest men who ever wore a general's uniform. He spoke quickly, after the manner of one who has other things to do.

He looked round the table and while he hands together, very much like the family doctor prescribing treatment. One felt that this calm, undemonstrative man, who has been the soul of the defence of Malta, should be quickly introduced to whatever general it is that believes in inculcating "hate" as the way to make heroes. His faith was mostly about the people of Malta; and it was all praise of them. He spoke no syllable about his own part. And the praise was from the heart. "More British than the King, more Catholic than the Pope", "That," said General Dobbie, "is how the people of Malta have been described. Their love of the British Empire is simply intense."

That Kentucky Editor Has Right Idea About Strawberry Shortcake

A Kentucky country editor, quoted in the Louisville Times, champions crisp-crusted strawberry shortcake and denounces "the soggy mixture of poundcake" so often offered instead. The genuine, bona fide strawberry shortcake, according to the Kentucky editor, "should be a sandwich, as it were, of ripe berries hiding their blushing beauty between layers of crisp pie crust." He adds: "The restaurateurs who dish up some dark and sad looking berries on a square of wet and and tasting cake should meet the fate of folk who sweeten cornbread. They should be hanged 'north of the river' and be forced to eat cold bread and never see a hot biscuit."

ANNE TEDLOCK BROOKS

CHAPTER XXVI.

Ransome thought he would never reach the junction on the highway where the Dixie Pond Rd. joined it. It was almost noon and the sun shone warmly down upon them.

The Dixie Pond Rd. was seldom traveled excepting for the tenants of a number of small farms that lay scattered about. It was surprising that any cars could have landed in the plane there and it not have been noticed. Ransome thought.

He found the mail box marked with the name of the man who had called him, and turned the car in the narrow road winding between sunfladen trees. Bird dogs and geese made great confusion as he stopped at the little rural mail box and saw a tall, lanky man got up slowly from the stone steps.

"Reckon you're the one I talked to about the plane."

"Yes," said Ransome, opening the car door. "This is Mr. Randolph, the girl's father, and Mr. Sheridan, a lawyer friend, Mr. Rawson."

The stranger looked them over silently and then said, "How-dy." He turned back to Ransome.

"Can you take us to the field right now?"

"I'll git in with ye, and we can drive up to it. Jes' down the road a piece."

The field where they stopped had been planted in broom corn, and had been recently cut, and most of the grain turned under again. In one far corner they found marsh grass growing, and it seemed to be here the plane had been kept.

The brown grass was crushed down in a great sweeping path, and the men knew that it had happened when the plane used it as a runway.

"Whoever landed that plane must have known something about the place. There must have been a car waiting, and they must have tested the marsh grass to make sure that it wasn't too wet!"

Dick Sheridan nodded. "You're right about that. No one could have just taken a chance on a thing like this unless it was a forced landing.

"The plane must have circled here, to take into the wind. Then someone general it is that believes in inculcating "hate" as the way to make heroes. His faith was mostly about the people of Malta; and it was all praise of them. He spoke no syllable about his own part. And the praise was from the heart. "More British than the King, more Catholic than the Pope", "That," said General Dobbie, "is how the people of Malta have been described. Their love of the British Empire is simply intense."

walked over, but there's nothing I could do."

"No sign of a car?"

"No. I thought I heard one go by jes' fore I turned off our lane to go into the field, but I was walkin' and the bushes grew so high I couldn't see.

"Let's get to a telephone. I want to call Taylor and see if he can check for transient planes at the airports around. I think there's some connection, even if you don't, Dick," he said shamefacedly. But he knew that he was clutching at faint hope. He couldn't give up; any clue must be traced until he was satisfied that it had nothing to do with the disappearance of Tamar.

Rawson told them the plane gained altitude so rapidly that he had no chance to see the size or kind. "But, gentlemen! I don't know enough about planes. I jus' knowed that was what it was. I ain't ever seed very many."

They would have to go to a nearby general store to call the FBI man, and started to get into the car. Suddenly Dick Sheridan's eyes caught the glint of something in the grass. He picked it up and turned it over in his hand. It was a circle of yellow gold that Tamar always wore in place of a scarf through. Having been stepped upon, it was bent almost double.

Ransome in that moment felt the onrush of an anger that he had never experienced before. His fingers gripped the ring until it through and the red blood dripped down his hand.

Knox Randolph touched Ransome's arm. He took the gold ring from his own lifeless fingers. "Tamara's," he said through contorted lips.

As they rushed to the general store Ransome thought of the impossibilities of finding Tamar immediately. Where could they look?

Ransome talked with Taylor and then the men headed back for Shadwell. Perhaps some message would come for Randolph by this time. If no they could only get in contact with them. No matter the ransom demand, Randolph had known that he would get the money together

State troopers were at the junction when they turned into it. They stopped and showed identification cards two men went back to the field where the plane had been to guard it. "A network has been thrown up, Mr. Randolph. All highways are being patrolled. Word just came to me that the driver of the truck has been found."

"He didn't see the car that carried away the gold?" Ransy asked.

"No. No further clues

Shadwell lay silent in the early afternoon sun. Even the noisy guineas which usually haunted the lawn were absent today.

Ransome rang the bell as he hurried in. "Phoebe! Any messages?" Phoebe stepped on the threshold aghast. What had happened to Miss' Ranny? "No, suh. Miss' Ranny Dey ain' none come. Dat BIP man done call."

"Taylor?"

"Yassuh. He say yo' get in tech instantlmcous." She plucked the telephone out of its cradle and handed it to him.

Taylor told Ranny that the armored truck driver stumbled into a filling station at daybreak, about 25 miles out of Tshiahneka

"I'll be in your office right aw . . . I want to see him."

Once more Ransome stepped into the car and started it

"Wait, Ransome" said Knox. "I'll sit here by the telephone Something might come in and maybe they wouldn't let any one take the message but me"

Ransome saw the trembling of his lips and knew that Tamar's father was a broken old man today

The truck driver was of middle age. He looked pale and ad though he had spent a sleepless night. His bloodshot eyes looked steadily into Ranny's as he told his story

"I was detained at the mine. Purposely, of course, I see now. But at the time I thought nothing of it, excepting that it would make me late getting back. When I reached the foot of the hill leading to the Junction, I was going pretty fast. Without warning, the wheels dropped off into the ditch that had been dug and covered over. Like an elephant trap. I knew immediately what had happened, so I just sat there, waiting for their next move."

Ransome sa'ed impatiently, "And what was it?"

"A voice called to me, 'There's a bomb under you that will go off in exactly three minutes! Get out with your arms over your head. Take your choice, that, the gold for me or hell for you.' I thought they were bluffing, and pulled out my gun."

The man whitened. "I don't want you to think I'm a coward, but have you ever thought that you were going to be blown into little bits?"

"No, I must confess I felt uncomfortable," Ranny said soothingly.

"I watched my second hand on my left wrist. I never saw anything go around so fast. Well—I opened the door and crawled out just as they made ready to light the bomb."

"And then?"

"Some one struck me and I went out like a light. When I came to, I was lying among bushes the dust propped up on a boulder. It was cold and I could hear water dripping. It was raining. I felt that I could see the sky lightening, and pretty soon I could see that I wasn't far from a creek. I got to the highway somehow after and got a ride into Tshiahneka."

"Can you find the place again?"

"Yes, easily. I marked it with stones."

The sharp ring of the telephone interrupted. Taylor answered it. "It's Knox Randolph, he says he must come at once. He's had a message."

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

With hot weather on the way, handy hints for keeping foods fresh are made rolls that can be mixed in cold storage and baked as needed. Happily, these hints are not hard to find. 30 minutes tackle the recipe goes like this

All Bran Refrigerator Rolls

1 cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1 cup All-Bran
1½ teaspoons salt
1 cup boiling water
2 eggs
2 cakes compressed yeast
1 cup lukewarm water
6½ cups flour, sifted

Put shortening, sugar, All-bran and salt in large mixing bowl. Add boiling water, stirring until shortening is melted. Let stand until mixture is lukewarm. Add well-beaten eggs and yeast softened in lukewarm water. Add one-half the flour and mix well till batter is smooth. Add remaining flour and beat well until dough leaves sides of bowl. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until dough is soft and elastic. Place in greased bowl, cover closely and place in refrigerator for night or until ready to use. Form balls of dough to fill greased muffin pans about half full. Let rise in a warm place about two hours or until double in bulk. Bake in moderately hot oven (425 degrees F.) about 15 minutes.

Yield 3½ dozen rolls (2½ inches in diameter).

Heroism Of Sailors

CBC Correspondent Tells About Sinking Of British Battleships

Per the three days following his rescue from the Repulse sinking, CBS correspondent Cecil Brown was so busy writing and broadcasting that he did not have time to shave or to wash off the oil in which he had been immersed for hours. "But throughout that time," he says in his story of the Prince of Wales and Repulse disaster in Liberty magazine, "through the sickness from the oil, the pounding in my ears, and the burning in my eyes, one constant thought kept a choke in my throat It was the vivid saddening, proud memory of heroism, determination stamina, and the way brave men die that more than fulfilled Nelson's great words to his men of the British Navy 'England expects every man to do his duty!'"

The battle between the great ships and the Jap planes lasted for slightly more than an hour .says Brown in the article, and the first Japanese bomb, dropped from 12,000 feet, smashed the catapult deck of the Repulse Heroism among the men was a commonplace. A twenty-year-old marine, Morris Graney, got Brown into a crowded raft after he had first up saved himself by climbing onto a small table. "Graney were only shorts and his chest was covered with oil. His brown hair streaked over his forehead and into his eyes I think the oil must have helped many a man. He was almost six feet tall husky, almost barrel-chested Above a square jaw he had a slim, delicate mustache and blue, blind, sky eyes. In all the time I saw Graney I saw only one deliberate emotion expressed in those eyes. That was amusement."

Admiral Tom Phillips stirred to Singapore just in time to take the Prince of Wales and Repulse out on heir first and last engagement in the Far East. Captain Leach commanded the Wales and, writes Brown, "Phillips and Leach, were last seen standing on the bridge of the Wales, the water rising up to meet them. meeting, and then covering them"

Have Sticky Job

British Workers Busy Salvaging Sugar From Wrecked Warehouses

Of the total quantity of foodstuffs damaged in this country by air raids up to the end of last year nearly three-quarters has been saved. One of the best examples of salvage is a very large proportion of sugar. The sheds in which the sugar was stored were hit by enemy action and turned to the ground. Many tons of sugar lay in the debris.

It is probably the stickiest job that men could be put to and every week hundreds of tons are salved. The latter case the record is played over and the names of those who have taken part in the broadcast are heard. It is then that the names of the participants are released to the Canadian Press to appear in the newspapers several days after the broadcast at a date to take place For the benefit of rural listeners who may not have the opportunity of seeing the programme, the names of the speakers are announced as soon as possible after the broadcast immediately following the News Abstract at 6.30 pm (CST 4.30 pm MDT), over the entire CBC Dominion Network. It will be understood why there is sometimes an unavoidable delay of several weeks between the time the broadcast or recording is made in Britain and when it is heard on the Canadian networks

WEDDING BELLS

SELTHUN—FORBES

Miss Rhoda M. Forbes of Two Hills, Alberta, and Mr. Raywood O. Selthun of Derwent, Alberta, were united in the bonds of matrimony on Thursday June 18th at St. Saviour's Anglican church, Vermilion. The Venerable Archdeacon Leversedge officiated.

Miss Bella Selthun was bridesmaid and Homer Campbell attended the groom.

The young couple will make their home in Derwent.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. Tookey and family wish to thank Dr. Sweet, and staff of the hospital, also friends and neighbors for the kindness showed to them in their sad bereavement.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of
"Ted" Witherbe
—who passed away June 20, 1936.
Good to remember him who ever was true.
And who though absent, is just as dear.
—Mother and Both.

APPRECIATION

We wish to take this opportunity of thanking the people of Vermilion and district, and friends in distant parts, most sincerely for their kindly interest and sympathy expressed in Chap's accident, and for the sincere wishes extended for his complete recovery. We are deeply grateful also for kindnesses extended to him and to us; and for the capable care and attention given by Dr. Bradford and Dr. Cromar, Mrs. Corley, Nurse Keith and staff of the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon H. Cooper.

DISTINGUISHED MUSICIAN TO CONDUCT TORONTO CONSERV. EXAMS HERE

Viggo Kihl in Vermilion June 26th

Viggo Kihl, the distinguished pianist who was born and educated in Denmark, went to Leipzig for further study, enjoyed a successful 10-year career in London, England, and for more than 25 years has lived in Toronto, still conducts current examinations for the Toronto Conservatory of Music in Vermilion on June 26th.

According to the late Dr. Lauchlan Mason, noted music critic of the Toronto Globe and Mail, the fortunate circumstances which brought this gifted artist to live in Canada are as follows: "In his 20th year, a brilliant London debut established him in England, and it was there he met his fair, Wagt book heard and heard of him, and invited him to become a member of the staff of the Toronto Conservatory of Music.

"Since his arrival in Canada, he has been continuously before the public. He as a concert pianist, playing in all the larger cities from Montreal to Victoria and as far north as Prince Rupert and Peace River, with particularly thorough covering of Ontario. He has been soloist with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra at least five times, as well as with the Promenade Symphony, the Vancouver Symphony, and many others.

"The largest audience he recalls having faced numbered about 10,000 when he played in Buffalo at the celebration of 100 years of peace between Canada and the United States.

"Among the well known artists who have been his pupils are: Frances Adaskin, Mona Bates, Lotte Crear, Kathleen Irwin, Ida Krehm, Weldon Kilburn, Max Keller, Mary Morley, Florence Singer, Gwendolyn Williams and many others.

"As lecturer, teacher, musicologist and player, Viggo Kihl's contribution to the artistic development of Toronto, Ontario and Canada has been not only outstanding but almost unique."

AIR CADETS TO CAMP AT NORTH BATTLEFORD

Leave July 5th

Vermilion Air Cadets are leaving on July 5th for North Battleford where they will camp for one week at the North Battleford Flying school.

The Air Cadets will take the following personal articles of clothing equipment with them to camp:

1 pr. shorts, 1 pr. soft-soled shoes (runners), 1 sweater, 1 raincoat or windbreaker, 3 changes of underclothes, 1 pr. pyjamas, 2 towels, tooth brush and tooth paste, boot polish, soap, mosk. handkerchiefs.

Do not bring cameras with you as it is strictly forbidden to have them in camp.

A parade will be called soon to make all arrangements regarding the camp.

RED CROSS DRIVE REACHES $2,200.00 MARK

The drive for Red Cross funds has now reached the impressive figure of $2200 with $2300 in sight before the end of this week. If you haven't made your donation yet, see W. P. Pilkie.

DOMINION DAY WEDNESDAY

Next Wednesday July 1 is Dominion Day and a public holiday throughout Canada. All stores and business places will be closed on that day.

Sports are being held at Mannville, Lloydminster, Myrnam and Greenlawn.

Wednesday next July 1 is a public holiday, consequently the Standard is desirous of obtaining ALL advertisements A DAY EARLIER than usual. Instead of writing your ad on Tuesday we're on Monday. News items, bulletins etc. would be appreciated earlier also if possible.

PRIZE LISTS PRINTED

The Standard commercial printing department delivered the Exhibition prize lists to Secretary R. C. Hackett the first of the week.

OIL FIELD CONTINUES UPWARD TREND IN BOTH DEVELOPMENT, PRODUCTION

Vermilion Consolidated Oils Pay Roll Reaches $7,000.00

The Vermilion oil field continues its upward trend in field development and production, J. K. Swanson, Vermilion Consolidated Oil manager stated to the Standard this week.

Mr. Swanson said that nine C.N.R. tank cars were loaded at the refinery last week, and nine more will be shipped out this week. Well production is consistently increasing. Vermilion Consolidated has now on production all but one well on the Hamsey lease. The old discovery well V.C.O. No. 2 still continues to give a splendid account of itself.

Field production according to Mr. Swanson has reached an all time "high" by the placing of Pickell on the pump last Saturday. Alberta-Southern as well as Meakin No. 1 will soon be placed on production. He further stated that the Vermilion field drilling pattern is being expanded and this procedure giving satisfactory impetus to the consistent oil values in this area.

Contractors are busy on new locations and a general upward trend is strongly in evidence.

Big Pay Roll

Mr. Swanson said that the monthly payroll for drillers and crew men now average around $6500 to $7000 per month. The direct effect of this additional monthly pay roll in the town of Vermilion is in evidence not only at hotels but by merchants and restaurants and thus is reflected throughout the town, giving evidence of a very healthy condition.

MORE BUILDING PERMITS

Several building permits have been issued during the past week. These were to Chas. W. Robinson, W. H. Graham and E. E. Wright.

Charlie Robinson is having a kitchen built to the north side of his home and is adding a masonry front vestibule or verandah on the front.

W. H. Graham is having a sun porch finished on his south side property.

E. E. Wright's permit was for a 16 by 14 brick garage on the property occupied by S. Millward.

Various other construction is in different stages of completion. A new house for Mrs. Chas. Lewis is nearly roofed while residences for Lloyd Dowdell, H. Jenkins and E. Davis are nearing completion. Work is also being finished up on the conversion of M. Greig's large house into a duplex.

GOSPEL HALL—VERMILION

The annual Bible Conference will be held JLY. on June 27 and 28th. A hearty invitation is extended to all. Come and hear the word of God expounded by able Bible teachers. Meetings on Saturday June 27 at 10:30, 2:30 and 7 o'clock.

Greenlawn Old Timers To Hold Annual Picnic July 1st

The Greenlawn old Time s are holding their annual picnic at Ketchum Lake on July 1st. A full program of horse races, baseball and baseball for men, women and children has been planned. There will be booths on the grounds and a motor launch operating on the lake.

An innovation this year will be the draw for lucky prize of $5 one for the ladies and one for the men. Tickets numbered in duplicate are being issued at the gate for this purpose.

The big day is being wound up by a dance at night.

TALK ABOUT CO-INCIDENCES!

(From Chatsworth Chatter)

Jane Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Thompson, B.R. 1, Vermilion, recently received a letter from Jane Thompson of Arras, B.C. The B.C. Jane Thompson had seen June's name and age in the honorable mention column of a word building contest in the Winnipeg Free Press, so she wrote to her asking what date her birthday was and stating that her's was June 6th, which strangely enough, happens to be the date of Vermilion's Jane Thompson's birthday. Other co-incidences are that they each have one brother, John by name, and each quit the same distance to school.

Army Week will mark a new high in the outpouring of patriotic feeling among Canadians. It is a week set aside in response to widespread public demand for the purpose of honoring the men in khaki who have offered to give their lives if necessary to defend the cause and to preserve our way of freedom.

The lads of Canada's Army have sacrificed all the comforts of civil life and the association with kith and kin in order to serve their country. During Army Week the Canadian people will have an opportunity to show their appreciation of this sacrifice. For weeks now Citizens' Committees have engaged in shaping out programs for entertaining and honoring the troops. Every community, large and small across Canada will have a part in this enthusiastic demonstration. Theatres, civic organizations, industries, retail stores, clubs and women's organizations will do their bit to achieve the maximum success.

Public and private buildings will fly flags throughout the week. The public will have a chance to attend "Open House" at military camps and reserves and schools to hear the inspiring music of military bands and to watch the stirring parades of Canadian soldiers. They will have the chance to entertain men of the Army in their homes and at dances and concerts. Service stations will be supplied in home, churches and in business houses, while Home Radio will be prominently exhibited.

Newspapers will publish special Army editions, the radio will carry programs on the Army Week theme and theatres will present Army films. Hotels and restaurants will serve meals based on Army rations and the householders are asked to do likewise on one day of the week. Members of the Reserve Army will take part in parades and will wear their uniform one day in the week. Sports programs, church parades and drumhead services will have their part in the agenda. Tribute will be paid to the next of kin of lads on active service. The overseas lads will not be forgotten and citizens are asked to make a point of writing to them and of sending parcels during Army Week.

Dominion Day, July 1st, falls in this week and as it marks the 75th anniversary of Confederation it is fitting that the majority of towns and villages in Canada are planning a big celebration for that day. It will give added interest to Army Week and to the deep-seated desire to honor the lads in khaki.

This is a citizens' show and every community in the country will want to have a part in it. Not only will it give to the soldiers that they will not been forgotten by the public, but it will go far towards enlightening Canadians more intimately concerned the role of Canada's Army and the manner in which the troops are cared for and trained. Until the present time the Army has been somewhat over shadowed by the sterling performance of Canada's Air Force and the Navy which have seen action on all fronts while the Army has remained inactive so far as actual combat is concerned. It cannot be forgotten that in the end it will require an invasion of the European continent to ensure the final defeat of Hitlerism. Then the Army will be called upon to play its part.

Meanwhile Canadian troops have been in England and in the Dominion are training tirelessly to fit themselves for the supreme struggle that is to come. In training centres, outfits and camps from one end of the land to the other they are undergoing strenuous physical training and instruction in modern methods and weapons of war so that they may not be found wanting when the zero hour comes.

Canada has an army of which to be proud and Canadians will have the chance during Army Week to demonstrate their true appreciation of the men who are making the greatest sacrifices in the battle to preserve our liberty. The days from June 29th to July 5th should culminate in the most memorable exhibition of patriotic fervor in Canada's history.

TOWN COUNCIL HOLDS SPECIAL MEETING

Tax Sale Is Set for September 2nd

A special meeting of the town council was held on June 22nd with Mayor Morrison and Councillors Kaiser, Scout, Porter, Spencer, Bushell and Stewart present.

Letters from Mrs. E. Messler, Child Welfare, Vermilion Municipal hospital C. E. Strocher,

Letters from Mrs. E. Messler, and Child Welfare were read and ordered filed.

The letter from the Vermilion Municipal hospital was considered and it was decided to move three light poles when material is available, which should be in the near future. It was decided not to sell Blocks 1 and 2, plan 5746AY as requested to the hospital, at present.

The sale of town houses was considered, and it was decided to give legal notice to three present occupants to vacate.

The airport was discussed at some length, and it was decided that pro grass made so far was very satisfactory. The boys were instructed to see cities in charge to transfer in case of those being required

Mr. A. C. Heebert, auditor, was present when arrears of taxes were discussed.

The following motions were passed:

Porter—Scout: That steam heat be supplied to Crown Lbr. Co. Ltd. as per agreement.

Bushell—Spencer That part of lot 4, blk. A be sold to C. E. Strocher for $20.

Stewart — Porter. That building permits be passed as per application of W. H. Graham, E. E. Wright, C. W. Robinson.

Bushell — Spencer That date of tax sale be Sept. 2, 1942.

Meeting adjourned.

Subject to confirmation of Council.

REGULAR BOARD OF TRADE MEETING NEXT MONDAY

The regular weekly meeting of the Board of Trade will be held on Monday next June 29 at 12.10 noon in the Kiwanis hall. A full attendance of members is requested. There were 18 at the meeting this week and it is hoped that this can be raised to 25.

Instead of the month of July the regular summer recess will be observed and only one general meeting will be held. This will be on July 27th (Monday) at the usual hour.

Messrs. E. E. Wright and A. Davis reported on their interview with W. J. Hanna re the road to the Vermilion pool. It appears that the privilege of being able to drive through this section has been allowed by local Legion spots, consequently pedestrian traffic only will be allowed to the swimming pool.

DEWBERRY FAMILY LEAVES FOR THE EAST

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Lewitt and three children of Dewberry, visited at the home of Mr and Mrs. J. R. Robson and family on Sunday while en route to Calgary, Chicago and the East. They intend to take up residence somewhere in Ontario for the duration of the war at least.

Mr. Lewitt recently sold his general merchandise business to Dewberry Co-operative Assn. Ltd. While acting as manager for the latter organization for the past two years he has proved himself to be a keen business man and has succeeded in building up a splendid business.

A. H. Lewitt was secretary-treasurer of the Dewberry district school board.

Mr. Lewitt was a member of the Vermilion city school attending the municipal convention there.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE IT?

Seeking adventure no doubt, a small adult duck got down the brick chimney at the B.A. oil office sometime over the week end, and was rescued therefrom Monday morning by Joe Blair and Don Logan

The bird went down the chimney and from there into the stove pipe. He got stuck on the damper and then couldn't get down any further nor back up. On opening the office Monday morning the boys heard the scratching sound and disconnected the pipe just above the damper — imagine their surprise when a very much soot besmirked duck stuck its head out

The duck was displayed at the Standard office and then taken to the river and set free, much to its delight

METAL WANTED

Salvage Corps Requires Carload by End of June

The Vermilion Salvage Corps are appealing for more scrap metal as they wish to load a car by the end of June. There is a steady flow coming in, in small quantities, but more is needed to fill a 54-ton car, and it is needed quickly. The government has sent out appeals to speed up the salvage of metals and rubber particularly and the local corps are anxious to do their part. It requires the efforts of every person to put the Salvage drive over.

In bringing in metal remember that sheet steel less than one-eighth of an inch thick is no use, this eliminates stove pipes etc.

Ali Aluminum Car Stock

A valuable contribution was made on Tuesday of an all aluminum car block, which was brought in with a considerable amount of other material by Ross Taylor from north-west of town. The block was from an old Willys car once owned by Lance Littlewood. A heavy copper radiator was also brought in off the same premises

Vocal and Instrumental Recital To Be Held First United Church

A vocal and instrumental recital will be given by the pupils of Mr. W. B. Elford at the First United church on Monday June 29 under the auspices of the choir.

Admission, adults 25c, students 15c. Tickets may be obtained from members of the choir. 10c

District Boys Join R.C.A.F.

Three more district boys have now joined the R.C.A.F. and have already commenced their training at the No 3 Manning Depot Edmonton.

The boys are AC2 John McMorrow of Dunbonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McMorrow. He is now taking training for an airframe mechanic; AC2 Herbert Sidney Wehdale, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Wehdale of Dewberry, training for an airframe mechanic. Martin Elson Van Nest, AC2, son of Mr. John R. Van Nest of Claysmore has also commenced his training as an airframe mechanic. He has lately been employed at the coal mines at Coal Valley, Alta.

Single men to age 25 are now eligible for compulsory military service.

The Wheat Situation

Visible supplies of Canadian wheat on May 22nd totalled 426.1 million bushels. This is a decrease of 4 million bushels in a week and is 43.6 million more than the visible supplies on the same date in the previous year.

Now that seeding is pretty well finished, farmers are delivering a little more grain. Last week 1.9 million bushels were marketed, bringing the total up to 164.3 millions compared with 304.5 millions for the corresponding period last year.

In Alberta 56,576,500 bushels of wheat have been delivered from Aug. 1 to May 22.

The western Canadian crop is fairly well seeded and conditions are on the whole, favorable.

The United States is likely to have a big crop.

Conditions on the European crop are unfavorable a severe winter did a lot of harm. Bread allowances have been cut in the continental Euroneans countries. In Germany, it is 10 ozs per individual per day; in Italy, 9½; in the Balkans and Hungary, 7½. In Great Britain people are permitted to eat all they can buy and have more reserves both at home and in North America. —The Budget.

CUSHMAN'S FLASHES

A third time party and dance was held at Heatherbell school last week and a very large crowd attended. Early in the evening ball games were played by old and young and everyone had a fine time. Prizes went to Miss Forester for the best hard time dress made of sunny sacks all trimmed and pleated and George Erickson for the prettiest. All funds went to the Red Cross.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Mr. Fred Arthur and Mrs. Hazel Hansen on the sudden death at their brother Howard in Minnesota which he had lived for the past 22 years. He homesteaded here in the early days and is well remembered. The remains were brought here for burial and the funeral was held last week.

Mrs Marry Myre and daughter Marion of Turner Valley are visiting at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Mabry.

Mrs. Wilson has returned home from Vermilion after spending a week at the W. J. Fisk home and while there she enjoyed rolls from quite a number of friends. While in town Mrs. Wilson attended a meeting of the Red Shield and there too she spent an enjoyable evening renewing old acquaintances. The Red Shield is certainly doing its share in war work, the thanks the kind friends who made it possible for her to attend as being a skin in outings are few and far between and the break was thoroughly enjoyed.

Messrs. Brooks and McInnes were noticed on their way to drill more wells

JUNE RAINS CONTINUE

The most copious June rains experienced for years continued throughout this week when a .45 inch of rain fell. This brings our total for this spring, or since April 1st to 2½ inches, practically all of which fell during this month.

Pipe Major John MacMillan of Chesholmdd and his crack No. 8 District Depot Pipe Band arrived back in Ottawa last Sunday evening after taking part in the "Heroes Day" parade in Boston on the Wednesday previous. They then moved in New York for the Memorial Day celebrations on Saturday last. This parade included 500 pipe people and was 116 blocks long. The Pipers Band in which there are many boys from the Chesholmdd district, marched and played for more than four hours and were on the job for more than ten hours. They were the only Canadian band in the parade and drew the biggest hand of the lot.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

(This paper does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents.)

The Editor,
Vermilion Standard.
Dear Sir,

Interested by your editorial remarks in your last issue I took a walk through the west end of town on Tuesday evening and must confess that I was amazed at the short sighted policy of the town council in building this sidewalk along the land set aside for boulevard in every other residential block in the town. In my opinion it is a distinct lack of foresight as beautification programs are being carried out on practically all new property in the block — and some really nice trees are already in evidence on the two corner properties. It is an action which will reflect more and more on the general appearance of the town itself.

It really appears as if the town council should be a little more consistent in its policies—one year it is giving trees away for citizens to plant and the next it is either having them cut down or building sidewalks over them.

Until one council knows what they are going to do from year to year Vermilion will remain a dead town in wet weather, rare get stuck in the clay on Main Street.

From a quiet spot where growing palms have not yet lessened the attention of the town council.

New Bulletins Available Free

The Agricultural Extension Service of the Department of Agriculture will have for distribution within a short time two new bulletins or special issues.

The first bulletin deals with honey and is especially valuable in using honey in place of sugar. The second bulletin contains information on salads and emphasizes the value of salads in maintaining the health of the family. "Pudding and Clothing" is the name of a bulletin which has recently been reprinted. It is written by J.S. Shoesmith, of the Department of Horticulture, University of Alberta, and P. D. Hargrave, Assistant Superintendent, Provincial Experimental Station, Brooks. The bulletin contains much useful information and instruction for orchardists.

These bulletins are available without charge from the Agricultural Extension Service.

Air Cadets to Have Official Flag

CALGARY. — Canada's 15,000-odd air cadets soon will be able to parade under their own flag, one approved by the King. It was announced at Ottawa recently.

Design of the official Air Cadet Ensign has been approved by the Chief of the Air Staff and the original painted sketch has been returned bearing the King's signature.

Air Cadet Squadrons may earn the ensign after three months operations. They will be presented, one to a unit, by Air Cadet League headquarters. To qualify squadrons must complete three months training and must have their unit approved by a member of the leagues' national directorate.

One hundred and twenty-nine squadrons of air cadets now are operating in Canada. By provinces they are divided as follows: Ontario 38; Saskatchewan, 12; Alberta, 17; Sask., 21; Man., 4; Ontario, 28; Quebec 28; P.E.I., 3; Nova Scotia 7 and New Brunswick, 1.

New Treaties Are Acclaimed By The Russians

Moscow. — Thundering a vote of complete confidence, the Supreme Soviet, at its first wartime session, ceremonially approved the Anglo-Russian Treaty after hearing Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov express the deep hope that the "common enemy soon will feel on his own skin the mighty blows" of Russia, Britain and the United States.

Molotov told the cheering Russian parliament, as Premier-Defence Commissar Joseph Stalin nodded agreement, that the question of a second front in Europe was given "serious attention" both in London and in Washington. In the latter city Molotov considered a full understanding with the United States on the war and on post-war problems.

The three great world powers announced on June 11 that they had reached complete understandings on "the urgent tasks of creating a second front in Europe in 1942.")

Molotov disclosed that President Roosevelt had raised an invitation to the trip which resulted in the Washington agreement.

He told the Supreme Soviet that the Washington agreements would accelerate and increase deliveries to the Soviet Union in spite of the damaging Axis attacks on convoys destined for Murmansk and Archangel, Soviet Arctic ports.

He declared that although several Allied ships had been sunk en route to the Soviet Union, such attacks had not prevented increased deliveries.

Molotov revealed that the new agreement with the United States envisaged American aid amounting to $3,000,000,000.

The Supreme Soviet officially approved these resolutions:

1. To approve the government foreign policy.

2. To ratify the treaty between Russia and Britain on the alliance in the war against Hitlerite Germany and her associates in Europe and on Collaboration and mutual assistance thereafter."

The treaty was signed in London May 26.

Molotov declared that the conversations in London and Washington strengthened the conviction that the "victory between imperialism and will be considerably faster."

Stalin, in his first public appearance of the war, received a 3-minute ovation which was stopped when a bell rang.

Standing behind Stalin, in full field uniform, was Marshal Kliementi Voroshilov, hero of the Leningrad siege, and commander-in-chief of Russia's Far Eastern forces.

BLAST SUB BASE

Deliver Heavy Blow To Nazi Submarine Production

London. — British and Canadian flyers delivered a heavy blow at Germany's submarine production in the heavy bombing of Emden, June 8, which destroyed the Nazi naval service announced.

It said photographs taken on reconnaissance flights showed that one large shop built since the start of the Nordenwerke shipbuilding yards had been destroyed by flames.

Another large shop in the same yards was listed as severely damaged, while the smaller buildings burned out and two large warehouse-type buildings demolished.

SITUATION EASED

Canada Said To Have Passed Acute Crisis In Production

Winnipeg. S. F. Grindale, deputy food administrator, wartime prices and trade board, said in an interview here he is confident Canada has passed the most acute period in beef shortages. En route to Ottawa on a tour of western centres, he said there is no scarcity of beef west of Winnipeg. Equalization of prices with United States markets had made it just as profitable for the farmer to sell his stock for domestic use as to export them.

TO PAY FOR CRIMES

London. — The Czecho-Slovakian government, meeting under the chairmanship of President Eduard Benes, resolved that all Germans, from Hitler down to the last Elite guard and Nazi storm trooper, "responsible for crimes committed in Czecho-Slovakia will not escape their well-deserved punishment" after the war.

COST IS MOUNTING

Britain Now Spending $34,250,000 Every Week For War Purposes

London.—The House of Commons voted a new £1,000,000,000 ($4,450,000,000) credit for war purposes at the request of Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, who said it brought Britain's total war allocations during "the costliest war in history" to £10,050,000,000 ($44,700,000,000).

Britain's rate of government expenditure recently has risen to £34,-250,000 a week, Sir Kingsley added.

He said that votes of credit already given, not counting the new request, exceeded the total of those granted from 1914 to 1919 by £300,000,000.

"This is by far the costliest war in history but this does not dismay us," declared the chancellor. "There is no faltering in the financial or any other sphere."

"It is two years ago," the chancellor added, "since we left behind the actual highest rate of expenditure at any one time in the last Great War."

Even in the past year, he observed, the daily expenditure had increased by £2,000,000.

Army Will Play Important Part In Winning War

Ottawa.—The "big innings" of the army in the present war is coming soon, Lieut.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, chief of the general staff and acting commander-in-chief of the west coast defences, said in a broadcast speech directed to all soldiers in Canada, but particularly to junior officers.

The past two and one-half years of war have belonged to the navy and the air force, Gen. Stuart said. The army had had training but little fighting. The navy and the air force had avoided defeat but it was necessary to win the war and the army would have to do that by the "physical occupation of territory."

The general asked the public to visit the army during Army Week (June 29 to July 5) to "assist the army to do its bit in interpreting itself to the public.

"Victory cannot be attained without the active participation of the army. We now are on the road to victory and the great opportunity for the army will soon present itself."

The war was at a critical stage, it was time for every soldier to take stock of himself so that the army could not only match but improve upon the efforts of the enemy. He urged junior officers to examine their activities in the light of the application to them of moral, mental and physical qualities. The moral component was by far the most important. The quality of loyalty was important in the moral sphere, loyalty to superiors, loyalty to subordinates and loyalty to truth.

A junior officer had to look to the interests of his men and if he found loyalty to them in apparent conflict with loyalty to his superiors he would probably find a reform in loyalty to truth."

"We do not subscribe to the 'yes man' type of loyalty, said Gen. Stuart. "We have no place for such type of servility in the Canadian army today. We need individuals who have minds of their own and are not afraid to express their views and who are not frightened to fight for the interests of the men they command."

"It was a privilege to serve in the forces. It was a greater privilege to command 50 men but it carried responsibilities. Officers should know their men individually because each was different. They should know their problems and see that each man attained a definite standard. They should be careful of punishment for it was usually an admission of failure to strike the right note.

Every job in the army had to be done in the best possible way. To bring this about officers had to remain constantly at school, improving their military knowledge.

FOR WAR PRISONERS

Halifax. The Canadian Red Cross is packing 40,000 boxes a week for British prisoners of war and is trying to reach an objective of 70,000 a week, Mrs. Wallace Campbell, O.B.E., national war work convener of the Canadian Red Cross, told Red Cross workers here.

YUGOSLAVIA'S KING

Has Become Unofficially Engaged To Princess Alexandra Of Greece

London.—"A Londoner's Diary" in the Evening Standard said King Peter of Yugoslavia has become unofficially engaged to Princess Alexandra, daughter of Princess Aspasia and the late King Alexander of Greece. The columnist added an official announcement is expected after the return from the United States of King Georgs of Greece.

King Peter, 18, is an undergraduate at Cambridge University. The princess, 20, lives with her mother in a London flat. She is a cousin of the Duchess of Kent.

The Bombers Of Cologne

The R.A.F. attacks on the industrial city of Cologne, Germany, undoubtedly saved after the fall of France reached a new pinnacle since its raid upon the Cologne industrial centre and the promised 1,000-bombers-a-day-over-Germany. The King Inspects American Warships

King George is shown right as Admiral Harold R. Stark, commander of the U.S. naval forces in European waters, as His Majesty visited aboard the U.S. flagship during his visit to the home fleet. The King was inspecting the honor guard of American sailors when the photo was made. This was the first intimation that the United States has heavy naval units working in co-operation with the British navy in waters adjacent to Britain and probably engaged in keeping open the northern supply line to Russia.

Dramatic Trip Of Churchill To United States

London.— Prime Minister Churchill's dramatic trip to the United States to confer with President Roosevelt sent a fresh wave of second-front speculation over Britain.

The prime minister's trans-Atlantic dash to America, the second in seven months, meant only one thing to the man in the street—an offensive in 1942.

With traditional British caution sources close to the government sought to tone down the import of the visit. They termed it "strictly business" but unofficial circles were unanimous in the opinion that the Roosevelt-Churchill talks would produce big things."

The objective of the men who accompanied the prime minister gave a foretaste to the possible subject of the talks.

The subjects to be discussed by Roosevelt and Churchill are believed to be:

1 Opening of a second front
2 The Anglo-Russian treaty
3 The shipping situation
4 Allied strategy in the Middle East, the Orient and Australia
5 The shipping of American supplies to Britain, Russia and China.

The problems raised by the Allied shipping losses under Axis submarine and air attack, a matter brought up in the House of Commons, will be considered it was believed here, as a major matter of Anglo-American naval strategy

The two leaders are expected to exchange views on the recent developments in the Near East particularly in the light of Axis gains in Libya, and also on the course of the war in Russia, where the Nazis are making a determined drive toward the oil-rich Caucasus

Canadian Units In Alaska With U.S. Air Forces

Victoria. — Royal Canadian Air Force squadrons and anti-aircraft units of the Canadian Army have been operating for some days with the United States forces in Alaska, Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, chief of the Canadian general staff, said in a statement released here.

Gen. Stuart, who arrived to take over temporarily as general officer commanding the Pacific command, said he had been authorized by Defence Minister Ralston to make the statement

Gen. Stuart said he attached considerable significance to the latest Japanese move in the Aleutians. It is an obvious defensive attempt to neutralize, destroy or occupy such air bases in the Aleutians as can be used for "jumping off points" for raids on Japan by shore-based aircraft.

"It is also true that if Japan can hold the gains in the Aleutians she will be much closer to Canadian objectives than she was before. In those circumstances it is idle to say that we are not concerned with developments."

Gen. Stuart, in an interview at Vancouver, was quoted as saying there is "no reason to be alarmed over the little invasion of the Aleutian Islands by the Japanese."

"I am afraid I could not have expressed myself clearly when questioned by the press at Vancouver yesterday," Gen. Stuart said.

The implication from my statement as reported is that I do not place much strategic significance in recent events in the Aleutians. I would like to correct this impression."

FASCISTS TROUBLES

Talk Of Purging The Party Of Weak Members

New Delhi, India. — Discussions which might have a tremendous effect on war operations in this part of the world are in progress at Wardha between Mohandas K. Gandhi and other major leaders of the All-India Congress party.

After several days of conferences on whether steps should be taken to help or hinder the British war effort, these participants, Gandhi, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru and the congress president Maulana Abu Kalam Azad, could only say they were exploring one another's minds.

Both Azad and Nehru admittedly have disagreed on many points with Gandhi. Some observers say Nehru and Azad also disagree between themselves. All are agreed on one aim — independence. But a major issue is whether to attempt to achieve it immediately or to defer a showdown until the menace of Japanese invasion has abated.

Gandhi's contemplated course is another big issue. He has announced intentions of launching a new movement to be felt by the whole world and certain to engage British attention' even if it perhaps does not interfere with British military operations

Many veteran observers in India both Indians and Occidentals, expressed belief that Gandhi faced a sharp factional disputes within the All-India Congress party, was planning a deliberate clash with British authorities, with the attendant possibilities of jail and hunger strike Gandhi has used these means before, not only to revitalize his following but to re-focus attention on himself

SUGAR RATIONING

Four Classes Of Consumers Eligible Under Coupon Plan

Ottawa.—Four classes of consumers will be eligible to purchase sugar under the coupon rationing scheme which goes into effect July 1, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board said in a statement supplementing an outline of the plan given by Donald Gordon, board chairman, in a radio address.

Purchasers are classed as private consumers, industrial users, public caterers and institutions. The coupons will be used only for the private consumers

Public caterers and operators of institutions will be required to fill out voucher forms when purchasing sugar. The new order also makes subject to the same limit as industrial users—70 per cent. of the quantity of sugar used in the corresponding quarter of 1941

Public caterers must also continue to observe present regulations which require buying sugar coupons on tables or counters, limit a serving of sugar for beverages to three lumps or one teaspoonful and a serving for food to any customer to two teaspoonfuls

Operators of boarding houses may use the coupons of their boarders or may register as institutions.

Retailers are not permitted to sell sugar except to an industrial user, a public caterer or an operator of an institution unless the purchaser submits an application for registration as a user of sugar. The application is forwarded to the board by the retailer and names the retailer as the sole supplier of the purchaser for the quarter ending Sept. 30, 1942

To make seasonal supplies available to persons who require sugar administration of R. H. Nobbs, on recommendation of the food administrator and Fergusson may make arrangements for extra supplies, over the 70 per cent quota, to the industrial users for preserving and canning domestic fruits and vegetables.

Coupons turned in by private consumers to their grocer eventually reach the Wartime Prices and Trade Board When the coupon reaches the board it comes into July 1, no person may purchase sugar for himself unless he is the holder of a ration card nor may he buy sugar for any person not in his household or for any person in his household who has not a ration card

Retailers to replace their sugar stock will be required to turn over to wholesalers the coupons they have received. The coupons are returned by the wholesaler to the board and purchases from refineries are made with a wholesale purchasing certificate.

Russian Farms, Factories

By H. Leslie Enstis

Many who have thought the Russian Bear was still hibernating have been amazed at the astonishing advance realize that the might of Russia is much more than weight or man power. It is the result of the application of science to a tremendous development of the country's endowment. Science in the soviet has been applied consistently to the arts of both peace and war as recent wars have demonstrated so forcibly.

It is perhaps not surprising that tremendous of Russian achievement calls for late seeing that it is all a development of the last Five Year Plans. Plans to intensify agriculture, to organize and use mechanized agriculture established research in plant and animal husbandry and create human mentally and exhaustively with the problems of soil fertility.

The Soviet in the early stages wanted itself of the technical knowledge possessed by scientists or other

TIRES LAST LONGER AT LOWER SPEED

By operating a car or truck at 25 miles per hour instead of 35 miles per hour the wear on the tires can be cut in half. At a speed of 40 to 45 miles per hour the wear is 2.7 times as great more than at 25 miles per hour, says W. Rathbun, Agricultural Engineering section, Farm Mechanics Division Central Experimental Farm Ottawa.

Not only does a lower speed reduce the surface wear on tires but it also reduces tire breakage as the tire gives less compression and wear on other parts of the machine. Blowouts at a moderately low speed may be cut to likely to occur a tire should give flat or blow out when the car is in operation. Brake wall rigidity caused by strong brakes pushing the tires or railway tracks can be eliminated by lower speeds on rough roads.

The heavy low or heavy high acceleration and the fast turning of corners, which is associated with high speed driving wastes gasoline and rubber.

NATURE'S "MASS BIRTH"

Of all the seasons in the farmer's year, early summer best gladdens the heart. It is now springs to the eye the full extent of nature's ever-ready urge to mass birth, tender young hosts in plants trees vines and shrubs are now spread to eventual fruit and harvest, young life joyously rushing and gambolling on yet un-trodden fields but hourly gaining strength and consistency from rich soils drawing from the dams distended with milk itself but young grass transformed by nature's mysterious alchemy into a more precious essence and crushing was into vast coops receptacles from the blown by the winds of heaven to the far corners of the globe and dropped into the earth's waiting to be fed of mother earth so starting the cycle of life once again on its great annual course

The farmer's part in this destined sequence of nature's marvels is with care, patience and skill to utilize these natural phenomena so that the fruits of it all shall be food needed for sustenance by the world's teeming populations that they in turn may have strength to fulfil their own appointed tasks

Following factors have tended to decrease supply or increase demand Wheat acreage of the four principal wheat producing countries in 1942 is estimated at 124 million acres down 11 million from 1941 1 2 Losses in winter and spring wheat crop prospects continue excellent — Growing conditions over Western Canada are generally good More favorable weather in Western Europe recently has improved new crop prospects.

Longer Runs for Locomotives

TORONTO. — The longest single locomotive run in Eastern Canada, and one of the longest in the Dominion, was inaugurated by the Canadian National Railways recently, between Montreal and Halifax, a distance of 844 miles. The decision to operate single locomotives between Montreal and the Atlantic seaboard was made to release additional heavy motive power for Canada's war service.

The locomotives used on the through trains between Montreal and Halifax are of the Northern type, No. 6100 Class, which were built for either fast passenger or freight service. They have a tractive effort of 57,000 pounds and are counterbalanced for a speed of 85 miles per hour. In passenger service they will handle 10 coaches, and in freight service, over some portions of the road, they will handle more than 100 freight cars. They have been known to haul as high as 8,000 tons of freight, or a train approximately a mile in length.

By the change in single locomotive operation between Montreal and Halifax seven of these locomotives will be released to handle essential war supplies and materials to the Atlantic seaboard.

ANNE TEDLOCK BROOKS

CHAPTER XXVII.

Tamar knew that as long as she lived she would never forget her experience in the cabin at the foot of the mountains. After a meal of fried potatoes, corn bread and slabs of canned meat, which Louie had prepared she washed the dishes. Louie set by the fireplace and watched her.

Tamar had eaten slowly, a little of this and a bite of that to keep up her strength. Her hands trembled and she dropped the heavy coffee cup and broke it, the brown liquid spreading on the white flooring.

"Nervous, eh? I'm surprised that you society dames don't know how to handle any situation with calm ness and poise. Now, you take Therese she'd be perfectly at home —gets her this place or your own drawing room."

Tamar knew that he was teased, and played with his great idea and the success with which he so far had in carrying it out. She had haltingly written the news to her father. "I am safe and unharmed. The place I am in is comfortable." Louie had quoted the words to her and she tried wildly to think of something to put into it to make her father know that she was unharmed.

"Make yourself comfortable, Miss Randolph." Louie said, mockingly gracious. "There's a deck of cards and cigarettes in the guest room. Help yourself."

Tamar went directly into the bedroom and closed the door. There was the key in the lock and she turned it.

Louie laughed. "That would certainly burn Therese up! She'll probably claim pretty title through. I'll tell her that you thought your charms were irresistible."

Tamar's fingers gripped together across her lips to keep her from crying. Her face turned a deep crimson and she looked wildly at the only opening in the room, a small window that could see that it was tightly shuttered and that it was hopelessly impossible to consider escape through it.

Even if she could get out of the cabin, where could she go? She knew that the cold night air and the wildness of the countryside were an formidable as Louie himself. The lamp that Louie had provided her with was turned low on a table beside the rude bed. The chimney was smoked and had the appearance of neglect. The room was cold and she longed for Louie's Therese.

"You'll find some night clothes in the dresser. Help yourself."

I'll not touch a thing! Tamar thought with disgust. This jacket she had put on only at his insistence and it had looked clean and new. She looked at the bed. It seemed comfortable. When the coverings and sheets clean? She hesitantly investigated, turning back the heavy spread.

"Clean sheets and covers are on the shelves," Louie's voice caused her to jump. She had a feeling that he could see every move that she made

Underneath the spread the mattress was bare. It had been stripped of everything. Again, Tamar had the impression that the place was cared for. As though the linens had been taken away to be laundered. She grinned to make the best of the situation and wanted most to a cup of coffee. Opening it, she found a pile of clean sheets, pillow cases, towels and heavy wool blankets of varied colors. The feeling came over her, she thought. The labels were still on some, proving they had never been used and that between two of linen

"Get out some stuff for me, Sis I'll take the living-room couch, thank you."

Tamar's figure grew taut. So she would have to open her door once more? The feeling of safety which had stipped over her as she turned the key a moment before now dissappeared

"Hurry up in there. I'm tired I've got a big day ahead of me. And you can lock the door if you like. The shutters nailed down and I'm pulling the couch across your door, so you can't get out. Of course, I think you'll be sensible though, and not think of going into the wilderness outside. You couldn't get away, even if it was day."

Tamar pulled down some more linens and covers. She could hear him removing his boots and heard them drop to the floor. "We'll get some sleep tonight. Hand me those things."

He grinned at her as she thrust them through the opening in the doorway. She closed the door and locked it once more. What would tomorrow bring to her? she wondered. She opened the chest and found her pajamas.

Therese has fairly good taste, she thought. A pile of lingerie greeted her eyes. Sheer linen gowns and pajamas in tuscone and blues, jersey lounging pajamas, bathrobes and lightweight flannel. All new.

Tamar chose the warmest looking of them all. She stripped off her slacks and green sweater, and in another moment was looking in the glass at her reflection

Then she fell like laughing wildly She was still sane enough to care how she looked She should be down on her knees giving thanks for this Therese, who was influential enough to manage Louie's actions by some kind of remote control.

It seemed hours before Tamar could stop shaking and really feel warm and relaxed. She drifted off into a fitful nap about daybreak, only to waken and toss again. She could hear Louie's heavy snoring in the next room, and having heard him pull the studio couch in front of her door, knew she could not hope to get out.

The intense cold had sharpened during the night and she pulled the blankets up over her head. In her next few minutes' slumber she raised about the meadows of Shadwell Manor with Nanny before her galloped Tahlahnela II. They quarreled over who had won the race, and Phoebe settled it with a big slice of gingerbread, warm from their own Tamar's mother called down the big stairs and they had gone up hand in hand to sit by her side while she told them the story of "Red Riding Hood" Tamar said, "But, Mumsie, we're grown up now" Maris smiled at them and said, "Yes, but there's always a need and delight somewhere." Nanny jumped at her, then, and Tamar screamed wildly, for as she hurtled herself down the stairs, the one who followed her was the old, teasing, laughing Nanny, but Louie, with fangs bared!

"Holy mackerel! Shut up!" shouted Louie. "What's the matter, did you hear a mouse?"

She could see a light under the crack in the door and knew he had lit the lamp. "He hum! Time to get up. How'd you sleep, Princess?"

She could hear him moving about. Heard the snapping of kindlings in the fireplace. "I'll make ya a little coffee, Jillady. Hope you're more sociable today."

Tamar remained silent. So Louie wanted to be sociable? And he was feeling very good this morning over the prospect of the day. How would he get the note to her father? And how could he bring Therese here without leaving her at all?

Tamar thought wildly about Shadwell. Her dress had been so vivid, and her remembering tears of her mother had dried at Louie's ridiculous attempt to flatter What would Nanny be doing about her? She knew that by would never stop searching. Dear Nanny She loved him so. She wished achingly for a sight of him and hear her father and mother again together on the terrace at some

Meeting days that pass so rapidly that we don't take time to appreciate them, she thought. A year ago we worried about money, but I had a wealth in love and association that was too good to last

"Shall I fix your tray, Princess, or would you rather come and join just folks and eat with me?" Louie called as he walked toward the kitchen.

Tamar did not answer

"Oh, well, you can cook your own breakfast! But you'll need some coffee, but you gotta fry your own eggs."

She could smell the tantalizing odor of bacon and coffee presently.

"Get up, Princess! Hurry up, or I'll come in and pull you out of your downy couch. I've got work to do today."

Tamar slid out of the bed and dressed with numb fingers She heard the couch being slipped away from the door and the sharp voice of Louie: "I've left you some grub, Princess, by the fire, come on now!"

She turned the key and opened the door The big room was lit from the burning fire and also from a reluctantly it looked cozy" I'll bring your plate, a tray for you. You can eat with it on your lap. Then I'll have to get busy."

To be in such a dangerous situation, it was ridiculous to feel so safe and comfortable as she sat before the fire and sat down on a low stool now I've never entertained as I am this a lady in my life" Louie said admiringly

Tamar blushed. She must look a fright in the firelight her hair fell about her white face but her eyes were deep with fright and weariness. Was Nanny then she had be years

"However," Louie went on, "I like 'em pumpy"

Tamar ate the bacon and egg and drank her coffee black

"Thanks," she said, "and please listen. If you'll get me to a civilization I'll forget about this little indiscretion. I'll still get a check for you."

Louie jumped up in an instant. "You little fool! Just because you've been good to me don't think you're not meeting terms."

Tamar said quickly. I was only trying to help you out that's all, on you it could be just as bad

Louie threw back his head and laughed "Oh, you're priceless!"

He walked over to the fireplace and stood looking down at her.

"Trip To The Moon

Could Be Made in 45 Hours Record-Ing To Plane

The British Interplanetary Society recently revealed that it has drawn up plans for a 1,512-ton rocket driven spaceship which it claims could make the 239,000 miles to the moon in about 45 hours.

Passengers in the projectile would be equipped with air-pressure suits and parachutes would be provided for them to descend from airlocks on each side of the craft. On the return trip the space machines would use a giant parachute as an air brake after it entered the earth's atmosphere

Every Three Seconds

Army Greatcoat is Completed In Factory At Leeds

Army greatcoats use up 40 miles of cloth and lining a week in a single Leeds factory where one garment is completed every three seconds. This workshop and another which has turned out 830,000 battledresses a week are using every week enough cotton to go three times around the equator. These are only two of the 250 tailoring firms who were given the largest single clothing order ever placed — for 5,000,000 battledress blouses and 6,000,000 trousers. That meant 9 000 miles of cloth, absorbing 10 000 tons of wool; 9,000 miles of lining, and 200 000 000 brass buttons. A week later, 1,150,000 army greatcoats were ordered, calling for 7,000 000 yards of the heavy milled waterproofed cloth specially produced for the purpose by the Yorkshire mills, who blend six different colors of wool to make the perfect khaki In six months the overcoats produced from Yorkshire cloth would have provided 25 years' supply in normal times

Cereal Substance

Claimed Superior To Alcohol For Making Synthetic Rubber

Investigations are being conducted by the National Research Council into the production of a substitute from cereals which may prove superior to alcohol in the manufacture of butadiene an important element in manufacture of synthetic rubber. It was revealed in a return tabled in Commons.

The return was made for Dr. G. Flatney (Lib., Montreal-St Mary, who asked whether scientific research has been carried on as to the possibility of using Canadian grown cereals to produce butadiene

Alcohol which can be converted to butadiene can be produced from cereals by recognized fermentation methods the return said, but investigation now is being conducted along other lines

Staffed By Women

More Girl Employees In Canadian Banks Than Ever Before

In probably no industry or business have women taken the place of men in such numbers as in Canadian banks "Women represent 50 per cent. of our staffs and the number is still increasing," is the report from most banks More and more women replacements are expected There isn't a "youngster" left, that is, a single male between 18 and 26 or so, in the banks unless he's been classed as physically unfit by military authorities Right now there are only girl copy boys in banks Last ever office. It doesn't take much calculating to see that when girls get back to normal, and men take over their old jobs that there are going to be a lot of girls who'll know all about how books are balanced. An official of the Royal Bank gave out these figures We started the war with 1,200 men and 300 women in our Ontario branches At the end of April, this year, we had 850 men, and something like 833 women. Many of the girls are tellers, and some are acting as assistant accountants."

Destroy Flies

Flies Formed To Be A Source Of Infantile Paralysis

An interesting statement made recently in a report to the American Health Association, was that flies were carriers of infantile paralysis virus. It was pointed out that poliomyelitis is a disease of summer, more prevalent in rural areas than elsewhere

Warmer weather will probably be the time in just as great proportion as ever It is obvious how important it is, then, to guard against infantile diarrhoea and other diseases often caused by flies which pick up the deadly contagious germs on manure heaps exposed garbage and other favorite breeding places.

Health authorities rightly warn against allowing flies to enter the home or the store, where they deposit filthy bacteria (which may number 5,000,000 for a single fly) on food, dishes and even little babies sleeping in their cribs

The importance of this cannot be over-emphasized but to destroy flies before they get in their deadly work is the object, the safest method, as it eliminates the extraordinary prolific breeding capacity of the common house fly. In this connection, it is interesting to recorded that Wilson's Fly Pads offer a rapid, safe sure and cleanly method of killing all the flies that are in the house in the right place at the right time, will do the trick In war days, when the efficiency of a nation's morale is greatly aided by protection of health and anything that helps to exterminate flies, helps to do this

Incidentally, Wilson's Fly Pads work wonders in destroying ants, too, which are destructive annoying pests, indoors and outdoors

LIVE ELEVATORY EXHIBIT

A brightly lighted mechanically operated exhibit will emphasize the tremendous importance of agriculture in Canada's war program will follow the main action of the live elevator conspicuous exhibit at the fair circle this season. The entire back part of the 100 ft. booth will be divided into three sections. The first will be a fa... with animal scene. The... will illustrate the production of those farm products which are urgently needed for war. The second scene shows an industrial area. From one end of the... an essential farm product will be seen moving to the factories. This movement will be... by means of an endless belt. At the... end of the... no factory there will emerge the processed farm products to be used for shipment to Britain and the fighting fronts. The third scene will show a convoy of ships actually moving out to sea. Merchant ships carrying precious food from prairie farms will be escorted by warships arranged in proper convoy order.

One of the sides of the exhibit will be used to illustrate the amazing things which are being done to facilitate overseas shipping space. Exhibits will be included to show how much space is saved by drying eggs, evaporating and powdering milk and dehydrating fruits and vegetables. The... on side will illustrate how... food needed for war can be protected by controlling weeds, insects and diseases.

A pamphlet entitled "Your Farm Has a War Job" will be distributed from the exhibit. Several moving pictures will also be shown. All farmers and other fair visitors are cordially invited to visit the Seedtime and Harvest campaign display. It will be shown at the Swift Current Booster celebration and the following exhibitions: Bidwell, Calgary Portage la Prairie, Turtleford, Melfort, Edmonton, Vermilion, Vegreville, Red Deer, North Battleford and Prince Albert.

NATIONAL SELECTIVE SERVICE

CONTROL OF EMPLOYMENT

NO EMPLOYER SHOULD ENGAGE OR DISCHARGE, HIRE OR PERMIT, WITHOUT THE APPROVAL OF A SELECTIVE SERVICE OFFICER IN AN EMPLOYMENT OFFICE OF THE UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE COMMISSION

Whenever a vacancy occurs, or additional staff is required, or a lay-off of staff is anticipated, the employer shall notify the local Employment Office, and may engage only persons referred to him by, or approved by, the local Employment Office.

A local Selective Service Officer may revoke at any time, on not less than two days notice, any approval granted by him.

Appeal from a Selective Service Officer's decision may be made in writing within ten days to the Divisional Registrar of the National War Services Board, and the decision of the Board shall be final.

EXCEPTIONS

This order does not include employment: (1) In connection with fishing, hunting or trapping; (2) Subject to the Essential Work (Scientific and Technical Personnel) Regulations, 1942; (3) In domestic service in a private home; (4) Of students other school hours or during holidays (but does include employment during Summer Vacations); (5) In part-time work which is not the principal means of livelihood; (6) Casual or irregular employment for not more than three days in any calendar week for the same employer; (7) Under the Government of any Province.

This order does not affect Re-employment: (1) Within not more than 14 consecutive days after the last day a person worked for the same employer; (2) After sickness or disability which caused the termination of employment; (3) On resumption of work after an absence caused by an industrial dispute; (4) In accordance with a collective labour agreement which provides for preference according to length of service or seniority; (5) On compulsory re-instatement after Military Service.

Until further notice from the Director of National Selective Service or a local National Selective Service Officer, any employer may temporarily engage any employee, for a period not exceeding seven days to a local office as an applicant for the approval of such engagement. Such application shall state the insurance book number, or the insurance registration number, (U.I.C. Form 413), name, address, age, and occupation of such employee, the name of his or her most recent employer, and the date he or she left employment with such employer.

Penalties for infringements of this order provide for a fine up to $500.00, or imprisonment up to 12 months, or both fine and imprisonment.

This order supersedes previous National Selective Service Orders respecting restricted and conditional occupations.

Dominion Day

AS ANOTHER anniversary of the founding of our Dominion passes into history, Canadians may feel with pride that the hopes and visions of the men who brought about Confederation have been fulfilled. At no time in the seventy-five years since Confederation have world-shaking events been recorded in such quick succession as they have in this year. As a full-fledged nation, beside other freedom loving peoples of the world, Canada has taken her place in the grim struggle to maintain the principles on which our national unity is based. Freedom of speech, freedom of religion, the advancement of learning and the right of everyone to enjoy the privileges of a free citizen, these are the things which Canadians have always known and enjoyed and for which they are fighting to maintain it.

A Milestone In History

The passing of this milestone in the history of our country finds Canadian soldiers, sailors and airmen in many part of the world; in England, in Libya, Malta and Hong Kong. Many of them are guarding our own coasts. On farms and in factories across the country, workers are producing supplies for our armed forces and for those of our Allies. Because of our fortunate geographic position, and the watchful eye of the British Navy, we have so far been spared the horror of having war actually reach our shores. There have been submarines in the St. Lawrence River and some Japanese planes near the coast of Alaska, but as yet only those in our armed forces and their families have felt in any great degree, the real hardship of war.

* * * * *

Must Face The Future

The extra taxes, the rations and shortages of some commodities which we have experienced have affected our lives, but we as yet know nothing of the sacrifice and effort made by the people of England, Russia and China, or the horrors experienced by those living in the occupied countries. Canada has at the moment internal problems, but these have been others in the past and there will doubtless be more in the future. Understanding and breadth of outlook by all those living in the Dominion, are essential in solving these problems. As they have risen in face and solve the many difficulties in building up the war effort, so Canadians must face and solve their internal difficulties. As we begin another year of our national life, we in Canada have much for which to be thankful, and many achievements to make us proud, and to give us courage to face the future.

Tried Camouflage

Hot Dummy Furnaces In Enemy Did Not Deceive R.A.F.

German camouflage experts, fearful of raids on Essen, were revealed to have built many dummy blast furnaces some distance from Essen's main targets in an effort to deceive enemy raiders.

Joseph W. Grigg, Jr., former United Press manager in Berlin, who arrived in London after five months internment in Germany, said that the "ersatz" targets were built of bricks in the same manner that dummy "Berlins" were constructed.

"The blast furnaces of the Ruhr Valley, including those at Essen, Dortmund and Gelsenkirchen, were visible for miles at night because their flaming smokestacks were perfect beacons for bombers," Grigg said.

"To guard against this the Germans constructed a large number of dummy blast furnaces, belching smoke and flames at night like the real ones in an attempt to deceive the R.A.F. bombers."

Great War Plane

Bristol Beaufighter One Of Most Powerful All-Purpose Aircraft

The Bristol Beaufighter, despite only a small measure of fame won mostly as a night fighter, is one of the R.A.F.'s most powerful all-purpose aircraft.

Easily identified by twin-motors protruding beyond a short nose, the Beaufighter is described by the authoritative magazine Aeroplane as "a craft without equal in its 'combination of speed, range and hitting power."

With a top speed approaching that of the fastest single-seat fighters and greater range, the Beaufighter has a concentration of fire power—765 rhe a minute—exceeding anything possessed by other operational types. While it first came into the news for the toll it took of German bombers raiding Britain by night a year ago, the hard-hitting aircraft at the time was performing many other duties on many other fronts.

It was patrolling the seas and serving as convoy escort and also acting as escort fighter for Britain's own daylight bombing forces. In the Middle East, it was out-performing the best the Axis could offer and proving the most effective aircraft of any in service in that theatre. "Probably no British airplane has been more penalized by the Air Ministry's habit of suppressing the names of airplanes used on operations than has the Beaufighter," says Aeroplane.

A Bristol team of designers who started to put the Beaufighter on paper in 1938 were aiming at a high-performance craft of many uses and easy to build. To bring it into production quickly they prepared their design so as many parts as possible of the already-building Bristol Beaufort could be used.

Eight months after the idea of the Beaufighter was born, the plane was in the air with the Beaufort's wings, motor nacelles, under-carriage and tail unit. The first Beaufighters went to R.A.F. squadrons during the Battle of Britain.

Following in the path of a famous ancestor, the Bristol Fighter of the First Great War, the Beaufighter is on the way to becoming one of the outstanding planes of this war.

Money From Salvage

Nova Scotia Fishermen Were Paid Nice Sum For Work

Goods salvaged from a merchant vessel which ran aground off Nova Scotia netted fishermen $25,000, H N M Stanbury, provincial salvage organizer, said. Tons of lard, biscuits, barrels and floating free on the surface like miniature ice floes, were garnered by the fishermen, in addition to tires and war supplies of many kinds. One fisherman alone, it was reported, received $1,500 in mattress tolls for his few weeks' work.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

National unity is a term that has been loosely, often much too loosely, interpreted to mean the interrelation of English and French speaking Canadians. So generally accepted has this interpretation become that most of us seem to have forgotten that national unity is non-existent so long as the tribulations of Canadians in any of the provinces are not shared by Canadians in the other provinces.

What prompts this sermonizing is the recent flurry over the reduction of the gasoline rationing unit in the Maritime Provinces from five gallons to two due to a shortage which by the time this reaches print may have disappeared. There was a perfectly natural feeling there that it was not fair that Maritimers should be on short commons" when drivers in the other six provinces still could obtain their full ration.

Ottawa answered by pointing out reasons that fully justified the reduction

All of this is a preamble to the charge that we are failing to live up to our privilege of serving in the ranks of the individual Citizen's Army

How?

It should be obvious!

Have we in the central and western parts of the country any moral right to five gallons of gasoline when because of transportation or any other difficulties, fellow provinces in our behind the lines army—who are much closer to actual warfare and potential attack—have to be reduced to two gallons.

Why if there is true national unity, do we not spare the public embarrassment of Ministers we on pipy to govern us by voluntarily reducing our consumption of gasoline to the lowest level forced upon us by geographical section of the D minion.

Citizens of countries where "ersatz Meat" is a familiar word rarely parleted accounts of our provincial differences, accounts that are magnified to the point of making some of us appear to be "oppressed minorities," when such stories are published. But the fact that such stories are published is the fault of the citizens who fail to give the lead to those they have set in authority

We cheerfully and voluntarily ration ourselves in the use of tea, coffee, and sugar. Why not ration ourselves in the use of gasoline? If we can drink our fewer cups of tea and suffer unsweetened why can't we walk a mile or two and save the gasoline we would have used for war uses?

Across this country from coast to coast business experts are devoting their talents to the working out of a system of price and supply control that will spare us the horrors of inflation and maintain stocks of essential war goods for our fighting forces. Some of these men are working without pay the others—away from their normal occupations—sacrifice the normal advancements and pecuniary gains they could expect if they stayed in their own jobs.

These men don't enjoy restricting and controlling their neighbors, it takes a Nazi mentality to enjoy that sort of thing—and they welcome action on the part of Canadians that makes their work easier.

Why can't we then, who are all out to win the war in the best way we can, make rationing and control unnecessary. Surely we can shut our ears ...or the consumer can.

The soldier who leaves a $150 a month job to volunteer to serve in uniform for (in the case of a single man) a little more than half of that amount has voluntarily rationed himself much more severely than we have been called upon

Butter, tea, coffee, gasoline and tires...as this is written, are the only rationed commodities. It's funny how some of them tie in with each other. The use of less sugar reduces the "spare time" some of us enjoy around. The use of less gasoline increases the life of "spare tires" we cannot replace

Have you joined the Reserve Army yet? Encouraging signs are visible in some parts of the country where this workable body was set up to give those ineligible for active service overseas a chance to train themselves for home defence but I have not heard any commanding officer say yet that he can't handle any more recruits

That's another branch of the Individual Citizen's Army!

There are no "national" holidays in the United States. Each state has jurisdiction over the holidays to be observed.

Conditions On Jap Ships

Living Quarters So Crowded Disease Is Prevalent Among Troops

The Communist newspaper New China Daily News published an article said to have been written by a Japanese prisoner of war declaring that "poor nutrition and sleeping quarters more than counter-balance the heavier guns and higher speed of Japanese warships."

"Most Japanese sailors are crowded on lower decks," the article said. "Japanese naval officers scoff at American and British warships as tourist boats, but the Japanese seamen have no love for their own slave runners.

"For example, more than 1,000 out of 1,500 members of the crew of the Japanese battleship Hyuga (completed in 1918) were housed on lower decks in bunks which take up even the passages. The sailors sleep in close quarters with each other. The foul air causes a number of diseases mostly pleurisy and weak eyes.

A number of collisions, groundings and explosions aboard Japanese warships (since the start of the war) are directly caused by the poor living conditions, the article stated. It cited explosions included a collision of the Hyuga and a submarine off Western Japan and an explosion aboard a cruiser of the Myoka class. The Japanese navy has a dread of air attacks, the article added, because most of the deck armor has been sacrificed for more guns and higher speed.

A. M. A. BRANCHES PLAN MOTOR TOURS

Under present conditions when the regulations curtail supply of fuel for motor cars and the stocks of available tires, motorists are bound to be thinking of shorter trips.

Undoubtedly many will plan to see more of Alberta this year, taking advantage of the opportunity to visit beauty spots in this province long planned but never undertaken owing to more distant attractions.

At branches of the Alberta Motor Association at Calgary, Edmonton and Lethbridge, travel bureaus and courteous officials offer a dependable and prompt service.

These staffs have been specially trained and have full information concerning the attractions at the holiday spots in Alberta. Complete sets of strip or sectional maps have been issued by the A.M.A. covering the highways of this province and these are available at all times for distribution.

Whether it is a long or short trip advantage should be taken of the travel bureau service provided at the A.M.A. branch.

These branches have handled thousands of new licenses for motorists and drivers and they are available to those who are making plans now for summer trips to any part of the country.

WARNING!

If it is not already on its way to Rationing Headquarters you should

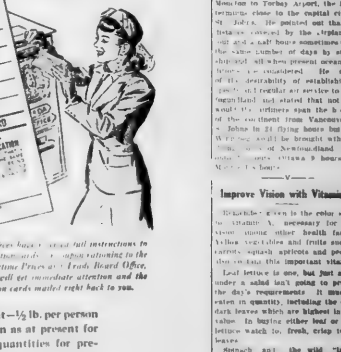
MAIL YOUR APPLICATION CARD FOR COUPON RATIONING AT ONCE!

After July 1st no one will be able to purchase sugar for regular domestic use without turning in a ration coupon.

Application cards for coupon rationing for sugar have now been mailed to every household in Canada. But, in an undertaking so vast, some homes may have been missed, or some cards may have gone astray. So, no matter where you live, whether it is in areas served by letter carrier or not, if your application card is not already on its way to Rationing Headquarters, you should wait no longer.

After filling in the card, according to the instructions on the pamphlet which was delivered with it, just drop the card in the nearest mail box or post office. It needs no forwarding address.

Just drop the card in the nearest mail box or post office. It needs no forwarding address.



IF YOU HAVE NOT RECEIVED AN APPLICATION CARD you should get one at the nearest Post Office at once.

(If Post Office hasn't received full instructions to rush applications for sugar rationing to the nearest Wartime Prices and Trade Board Office, where they will get immediate attention and the coupon ration cards mailed right back to you.

The ration cards being issued for use July 1st are for sugar only, and good for 16 weeks. At the end of that period a coupon ration book good for 6 months will be issued. Under the new system of coupon rationing, you are allowed the same amount of sugar as at present—½ lb. per person per week. The same provision as at present for additional quantities for preserving and jam and jelly making will be continued. Special voucher forms for this purpose are being supplied all retailers.

Improve Vision with Vitamin A

Scientific research in the color signal to vitamin A, necessary for good vision, and some other health factors. Yellow vegetables and fruits such as carrots, squash apricots and peaches also contain this important vitamin.

Leaf lettuce is one, but just a head under a salad isn't going to provide the day's requirements. It must be eaten in quantity, including the outer dark leaves which are highest in food value. In buying either leaf or head lettuce watch for fresh, crisp tender leaves.

Spinach and the wild "lamb's quarters" are early green vegetables. Cook for the shortest time necessary and with little water. That which clings to the leaves after washing is sufficient. Avoid using soda to retain color since it destroys vitamins A and C, advises Nutritious Services, Department of Pensions and National Health.

Onions add flavor to spring menus. Use the green tops finely chopped in salad.

From Conquered People

Nazis Confiscate Enough To More Than Finance War

The Nazis are wringing 4½ billion dollars annually, mostly in goods, from the conquered peoples of Europe, the Foreign Policy Association said.

During the last three years they have confiscated and looted enough material wealth to pay for several years of war preparation, said the association, a private research organ.

Ernest Hediger, staff member who prepared the report for the association, estimated that every 41 days Germany collects a sum equal to the total it was ordered to pay as reparation for the World War.

This system of plunder he said has brought the conquered countries of Europe to the "verge of famine".

The health of the European people is rapidly being impaired and the danger exists that without sufficient food, living in unheated houses in the bitter winter cold, most of occupied Europe's men, women and children may gradually drift into a state of physical weakness that will reduce them to subhuman standards," he continued.

Their speedy liberation from Nazi domination is therefore the first condition of their salvation and the survival of democracy in Europe

Military conquest, the survey said, has been accompanied not only by wholesale confiscation of everything of immediate use to the German war machine, but also by the application of an entirely new system of invisible and permanent looting. It added:

By imposing so-called occupation costs and exacting other financial tribute Germany has been able, while keeping the appearance of quality to oblige the vanquished nations to finance its purchases, thus succeeding to a very large extent in shifting the costs of its war on them.

More To Follow

People In Germany Know Britain Will Continue Bombing Raids

To the Germans in bombed Cologne and Essen, the most terrifying thought of all must be that Britain's air power is increasing so enormously. It is to the third year of the war that these devastating blows have been struck; the earlier raids, whose served their purpose at the time, are now serving a larger purpose in showing, by contrast, the tremendous increase in Britain's strength. That thought leaves no room for comfort or for hope; there is now only the grim knowledge that their enemies are gaining power as the war goes on, and that there can be no escape from the punishment that will come again and again. If Hitler promises vengeance they cannot help but remember that his past promises were followed by such awful consequences to themselves.

That the Nazis will try to wreak vengeance on British cities is to be expected and it is not to be assumed that the recent raids on Canterbury and other small towns are the most they will be able to do. It may safely be assumed, however, that with the Russian front to take care of, they will never be able to match the growing might of Britain and the United States in the west. For whatever they can do, the British people are prepared, and British defences are better able to deal with attacking planes than ever before. And whatever they do, nothing will shake the courage or confidence of the British people, courage and confidence that are founded on sure knowledge and not on vainglorious boastings.—Toronto Telegram.

Invested War Car

Young Boy Was Commended By Australian Army Minister

Twelve-year-old Jim Philippa, Adelaide, Australia, was too young to join the army. So he invested a new type motorbicycle and troop carrier that brought special commendation from F. M. Forde army minister

I wanted to show dad I was doing my bit to help Australia win the war, so I invented a vehicle to get men and munitions quickly to the front lines," he explained

Air Force Recruits Parade in Winnipeg

—R.C.A.F. Official Photograph.

Part of the largest group of Air Force recruits to leave Winnipeg under the War Emergency Training Programs at one time proceeded East recently. There were 100 men in the parade and it was stated that the class had the highest record achieved so far at the Henry Avenue Vocational School. Every member in the group graduated, the class averaging being 85.5 . . . The new recruits have been posted to No. 1 Manning Depot, Toronto, and were accompanied by Flying Officer M. Brock of No. 6 Recruiting Centre, R.C.A.F.

Turned The Tables

Merchant Ship Puts Submarine Out Of Action

A United States merchant ship rammed, shelled and probably sunk a submarine which had machine-gunned her as she was nearing a Cuban port, press dispatches from a Cuban coastal city said.

The submarine surfaced a few miles offshore, its men came up on deck and immediately began machine-gunning the United States ship.

Artillerymen aboard the American ship replied, with two of their shots striking the coming tower.

The captain then put his ship across the submarine and the suction of his manoeuvre was apparent when a depth bomb exploded up to the surface.

Reports from the coastal city said only one of the American crew was injured by the sub's machine-gun fire

A United States vice-consul and others in the vicinity raised a fund of $1,000 for the American crew.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON JUNE 28

ALCOHOL FACTS VERSUS DRINKING PROPAGANDA

Golden text: If sinners entice thee Consent thou not. Proverbs 1:10.

Lesson: Proverbs 20:1-17, 22-23; Isaiah 5:20-23; Hosea 4:11; Joel 3 7; Ephesians 5:18.

Devotional reading: Proverbs 3: 13-18.

Explanations and Comments

Drink Leads to Poverty. Proverbs 21:17. "See how intemperance profanes man's body-nature, opening the way for disease, rags, gutters, brutishness" (George Dana Boardman).

The Effect of Wine. Proverbs 23: 32. "The writer has been counseling everyone to keep away from temptation, not to look upon the wine when it is red, and now he explains that while it fascinates like a serpent, it is also as poisonous: as the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."

Alcohol Takes Away the Understanding. Hosea 4:11. Licentiousness and the drinking of wine and new wine deprive a man of his senses.

"Beer makes the man who drinks it stupid and heavy, and it destroys the power and harmony of mind, blunts the higher feelings and interests and causes the gradual giving up of aspirations and ideals" (A distinguished neurologist of Germany).

Divine Judgment. Joel 3:2, 3. The general theme of the prophet Joel is that divine judgment will overtake the wicked. A general judgment of all the nations is announced in the Valley of Jehoshaphat for their mistreatment of Israel, having scattered the people and seized their land. Moreover, they have even cast lots for the Israelites as slaves, bartering a child away for a harlot and a girl for wine. "The Valley of Jehoshaphat was an ideal valley in the neighborhood of Jerusalem, called Jehoshaphat from the meaning of the name 'Jehovah judges.' This prophecy probably occasioned the name (not lowed earlier than 300 A.D.) of the modern Valley of Jehoshaphat south of Jerusalem" (Dummelow).

Health League of Canada presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

TREATMENT OF SUNBURN

Sunburn is among the dangerous seasonal ailments according to industrial medicine authorities who state that during summer months it causes a greater loss of working time than any other ailment, Dr. Gordon Bates, General Director of the Health League of Canada warns. This year the urgency for wartime production in Canada's industries and farms, medical men suggest that people should be on guard against excessive exposure, especially on weekend outings and picnics.

For those who are only moderately sunburned, medical men suggest use of a tannic acid jelly preparation or application of tannic acid solution in packs to burned parts. This can be used liberally and is an inexpensive treatment. Ointments should be used while still fresh or prepared with distilled or sterile water.

Physicians warn against the use of grease, especially of badly burned cases, because in case of infection the doctor must first remove the grease, a process which may be painful to the patient.

Guard Food Supplies

Britain Has Method Of Treating Food Contaminated With Gas

If gas should be used against Britain, arrangements have been made to safeguard the nation's food supplies against contamination.

It has taken some years to perfect the countrywide service which today stands ready to salvage any foodstuffs which may be exposed to gas. Air Raid Precautions experts were experimenting on the salvage of gas-contaminated foods before war began and today, although no unit has had to go into action, the service stands at the alert, ready for emergency.

The backbone of the service is the growing chain of food "laundries" for cleansing the food, now built up throughout the country. The "laundries" are staffed by civil defence personnel, working in co-operation with the local authorities. It is estimated that these decontamination units could salvage for the use of the food treated.—Bulletin from Britain.

WOMEN'S TIMBER CORPS

Recruits from many parts of Britain are joining the Women's Timber Corps and training at Bury St. Edmunds, under direction of the Supply Ministry as part of the effort to increase timber production. The recruits belong to the Women's Land Army.

We had a grand rain last week it also brought the thought of several have reported frosted tender garden stuff. Things are not growing very well as warm weather is needed.

Has anyone seen the jack rabbits as thick as they are this year? You can look out almost any time and see three or four leaping along through the fields.

Our sick list has turned out to have the mumps. Where he got them is still a puzzle as there is not another case in the district. He had been here too long to have brought them from the city.

Car. Laurence Graham is now stationed in Southern Ontario and in a recent letter he appears to like that part of the east, and also likes his course of training. On a Saturday evening some of the western boys were seeing the sights of their new location when they met an aged man from Edmonton who very kindly drove them all over the city to see the interesting places.

Alec Smith is now home to enjoy two weeks holidays from his law duties and studies in Edmonton.

Crews of ratepayers and non-ratepayers of the Wildmere Telephone Mutual have been doing two days work on the line where it needed repairing the most.

Just not forget our B.W.H. club picnic to be held on July 1st half mile north of the school. All kinds of sports and races are to be held. Bring your supper and visit with your friends. Hot dogs will be sold at the booth as well.

We wish our sick friends a speedy recovery to health. Mr. George Wilson is now in the hospital, also Nolan Freeman of Triangle. Mr. Wilson is suffering from neuritis and Noam with a very sore eye.

Looks like we are going to have our road graded up this summer as we hear a grant has been allotted for the portion from the writer's north corner to the school, a distance of two miles. Mr. Winter was to have gone it last year. Mr. Lindy Paddon has the contract to cut the trees and brush on it and started on his job this week.

Summer following has been held as a bit with the wet weather and you can hear tractors running long hours. Hank wood and French weed are sure having their fling this year. It is appearing in fields that never showed any before and wet weather does not hasten its growth.

Eric Madill's children in Basswood have been sick with whooping cough for a week, they where babies are concerned is often more bad.

If it stays dry a number of the B.W.H. club ladies are intending going over to the Red Cross meeting at Tulland at the home of Mrs. Fard This meeting was postponed on account of rain two weeks ago.

Ray Osterberg has returned to his Air Force duties again at the east

WHO SAID THIS ?

Here is a quotation that has a familiar ring:

"The British nation can be counted upon to carry things on to victory and struggle in it to the utmost upon no part of her long and such a struggle may last, or however great the sacrifice that may be necessary, or whatever the means that have to be employed."

Who said this?

Was it Pitt, for example?

Or Winston Churchill?

No.

It was written by an Austrian, Adolf Hitler in a book called "Mein Kampf."

SCHOOL NEWS OF VERMILION BOYS

Sgt. A. L. Macumber writes an interesting letter to H. P. Long this week wherein he gives some news of Vermilion boys in the active services. Art himself is now an educational officer and is giving pre-initial training to pilots who need additional educational standing before commencing their air training. He has been transferred from Halifax and is now stationed in Quebec City. Before leaving Halifax he happened to meet Tommy Atkins on the street and they had a real nice surprise. Tommy had been on his way overseas but on arriving at Halifax had found instructions to the effect that he had been re-posted to Calgary. In Quebec Art had gone to a ball game between his own unit and another one near by and who should be playing for the other team but Pilot Officer Doug Brimacombe. Ken Creighton is an educational officer at Brandon and J. B. Topper occupies a like position at Toronto

FORMER VERMILION TEACHER LEAVES FOR AKLAVIK

VERMILION, June 22.—Miss Eden Corlette teacher in Vegreville public school for the past two years, will leave Edmonton by Tuesday's train for Waterways, on the first stage of a three-week journey to Aklavik. She has been engaged as a teacher at the Anglican residential school at that northern point. From Waterways she will go by boat.

During her stay in Vegreville Miss Corlette has taken a prominent part in musical circles and has been leader also of the Cub organization. She expects to be four years at Aklavik.

OVERSEAS PARCELS SHOULD BE VARIED

"Keep Them Small But Keep Them Coming" Soldiers Urge

Men and women in the Canadian forces overseas welcome parcels from home, but variety in their rations aren't adequate, but like other mail for their morale value.

Keep them small, but keep them coming—is the theme of many letters arriving from the United Kingdom.

What to send, Home-made sweets are fine, but don't have to take the necessary sugar from your ration. (Canadian troops overseas are allowed a sugar ration of 1 oz. a week). Hard cookies, short breads, biscuits and fruit breads and cakes are favorites.

If you make home-made candy, pour it directly into a cardboard or tin container lined with waxed paper. Don't cut it in pieces. It travels better whole.

Send notepaper, pencils, packs of cards (soft paste, razor blades, socks, shirts, underwear, handkerchiefs, toothpaste, chocolate bars, toffee, fudge, butterscotch and chewing gum. The last two items are not available Overseas.

Wrap foods carefully, in parcels overseas, time the box with waxed paper and put a thin cardboard between each layer. Place less perishable kinds at the bottom.

Use sturdy fabric-like coats and stout wrapping paper and tape or tie all parcels securely. Remember the 11 lb. maximum. A lot of toughness and variety can be packed into a 6 lb. parcel

To meet the growing shortage of labor additional controls have been established over movement and disposition of manpower. New order provides that no person may change his or her job (with a few exceptions) without permission of Selective Service Officer

WEDDING BELLS

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the United church Manse, Vegreville, on Monday, June 15th, when Miss Ruby Swanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Swanson, Vermilion, became the bride of Mr. R. B. "Stan" Robinson. The Rev. Dr. Armstrong officiated. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Archie Little.

Reception

A reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robinson was held at the bride's home on Thursday evening June 18, when 150 friends called to pay their respects to this popular Vermilion couple.

Presiding at the tea table was Mrs. James Swanson, sister-in-law of the bride, while Mrs. Vernon Sproule and Miss Lena Oldenberg assisted in serving.

Numerous beautiful and useful gifts were received, prominent among them being a gateleg table from the fire-fighters of which the groom was Chief and a silver tea service from the men of the town.

Very best wishes are extended to the newly married couple for a long and happily married life.

WEDDING BELLS

SCOTT—ATTFIELD

The marriage took place on Thursday June 18th at Macmillan of Mr. Castle Scott and Miss Ivy May Attfield, second daughter of Mr. James Attfield and the late Mrs. Attfield.

A reception was held at the home of the Bride following the wedding ceremony, at which was attended by many friends of the newly wedded couple.

OBITUARY

MISS MARY McINTYRE

On June 1st Miss Mary McIntyre passed away to be with her Lord after an illness of a few weeks.

Miss McIntyre was born in the year 1863. When a young girl her family came to Canada, settling at Cannington, Ontario. In 1906 the family moved west, making their home a few miles south of Kitscoty, Alberta. She is survived by eight sons, two sisters, Mrs. Agnes Mitchell of Wainwright and Miss Jessie McIntyre of Vermilion, also two nieces and two nephews of Kitscoty.

The funeral was held on June 3rd from the Alliance church, the Rev. Henry C. Miller returning to take the service. The thoughts he expressed centred about the love of God's Word, "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints". Psalm 116:15. In the midst of sorrow, the message was taken from Saint Mary's departure for her faith was in her Saviour Whose blood washes white as snow. Interment was made at Calvary, for those who put their trust in Him.

Interment was made in the family plot in the Lloydminster cemetery, Lloydminster, Saskatchewan.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. Mitchell and Miss McIntyre wish to thank their friends for the many kindnesses shown to their sister during her illness and for the beautiful floral expressions of their regards for the one who has gone before. They would also like to thank the members of the town council for their co-operation during their sister's illness.

Rental Ruling By Wartime Prices and Trade Board

Rental Ruling — Landlords are obliged to post the maximum rental in each accommodation rented according to the ruling of the Rental Administration of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. The ruling applies to every operator supplying lodging with or without meal service, to three or more persons other than the members of his own family, and to any landlord renting accommodation for one week or less.

Alterations or improvements of his premises do not warrant any landlord increasing the rent, without sanction under the Maximum Rental Regulations of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Landlords and tenants are both liable to penalties for infractions, if a higher rent is charged, and sued, than that prevailing during the basic period.

Copies of Regulations, as well as all necessary forms are obtainable at the office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Williamson Building, Edmonton.

Sunday ration has been cut in Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia from five to four gallons per household unit.

High School Graduates Honored At Banquet and Dance Friday

Parents Were Also Guests

The seventh annual banquet and dance of the Vermilion High school was held in the Elks hall on Friday, June 26th.

The grade XII graduating class and their parents were the guests of the grade XI class which under the capable direction of their room teacher, Mr. Gordon Hay, had arranged the program.

After justice had been done to the fine meal provided by the ladies of the Anglican church, George Kould, president of the Students' Union, proposed the toast to the King. Miss Catherine Forbes proposed a toast to the graduating class which was replied to by Teddy Reid. Miss Betty Kaiser then entertained with a fine piano selection. Mr. Bousard commented briefly on the school after which Don Davies gave a monologue in dialect which was much appreciated. Mayor Harrison advised the graduating class to keep their eyes on "them thar hills" in their efforts to achieve success. Rev. L. G. Stobbart spoke of the United church, dwelt on the mission that the student would have to fulfil in life. Miss Murray was then presented with wedding gifts from the students and staff. In a fitting reply she dwelt on the happy relations of the past year.

The dance which followed was made very picturesque by the ball decorations and by the beautiful gowns of the young ladies of the school. Festivities came to an end when a goodly part of the student body left for the station to wish Miss Murray and Mr. Chet Lambertsen, the groom-elect, au revoir.

Teachers for Summer School

Among the teachers of the district plan left for summer school this week were Miss Gertrude Gray, teacher at Island Hill, Miss Idell Mahaffey, of Turkey Hill; Miss Christie Gillies, of Polar Heights; Miss Janet Mair Leith, Lavoie; and Miss Lois Arthur,

Civilians are asked to note that the grounds of the Vermilion school of agriculture are now closed to visitors.

Islay Girl Commences Air Force Training in Toronto

Miss Margaret Winnifred Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Martin of Islay, has joined the women's division of the R.C.A.F. and will commence her training at No. 6 Manning depot in Toronto on July 7 as aircraftswoman under. She formerly worked as stenographer at T. Eaton's in Edmonton.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETINGS TO ADJOURN FOR SUMMER MONTHS

Large Attendance on Monday

The last meeting of the Board of Trade until July 20 was held on Monday at noon and was well attended, some 20 business men being present. The board will meet only once during the two holiday months, and that will be on Monday July 20th at 12.10 noon in the Elks hall.

Among the guests was Captain Anton of the Ordnance Corps, who was now supervising the work at the agricultural college, which building is being rapidly transformed into a W.A.A.F. school, and Dr. Cromar, who attended the first time and who succeeds Dr. Bradford.

There was only one resolution passed and that was to the effect that the Vermilion hospital board do all in its power to keep an adequate staff of nurses at the hospital. The danger of being inadequately staffed was brought up by Dr. Bradford who stated that there was a decided shortage of nurses in Canada and that the advantages offered in city hospitals where the wages were bigger and living accommodations better, were making it difficult to keep good nursing staffs in hospitals in smaller towns.

There was considerable discussion regarding tale master during which Mayor Harrison spoke for some and that the advisability of a nurses' home were mentioned as necessary in maintaining a satisfactory staff.

As stated before, the next meeting of the Board of Trade will be held on July 20 and the ladies of the town are held during July, and August, unless the executive calls a special meeting.

WEDDING OF WIDE INTEREST AT CALGARY

Wilson — Bauman

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Thursday, June 18th at the Crescent Heights United church manse in Calgary, when Thelma Vivian Bauman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bauman of Calgary, Alberta, was united in marriage to Maxwell Earl Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. McKinley Wilson of Dewberry, Alberta. The Rev. F. R. Marshall officiated.

The bride chose a rose-pink crepe frock with navy accessories. Her corsage was of cream roses and blue forget-me-nots. Her sister Dorissa was bridesmaid, wearing a dress of shaky rose crepe with navy accessories. Her corsage was of wine carnations.

Anos Wilson, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Bauman wore a navy crepe frock with navy accessories. Her corsage was white carnations.

Mrs. Wilson wore a rose pin-dot crepe gown with matching accessories and wore a corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's cousin, Mrs. Orval Fleming. The table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will make their home in Calgary.

July 1st promises to be perfect as far as the weather goes concerned. It was a real summers day and various sports profited accordingly. The ball game between the men of the town and where the men's softball team was used to eke out a prize, and where one or more "senior girls" teams was also competing.

SPECTACULAR ATTRACTIONS AT EDMONTON EXHIBITION

Spectacular grandstand attraction, a 4-wing circus and other all-star attractions, six days of horse racing with seven races each day, a master zone display by a squadron of the R.C.A.F. Two Completions and Two New Producers, Vermilion Oil Field

Another Well Spudded

Two new wells are now on production in the Vermilion field, two more have been completed and another spudded in, while a derrick is being erected on another location.

NEW PRODUCERS

The new producers are the Alberta Southern just placed on production by W. G. de Koch and the Meeker, No. 1. Both are located well in the proven area of the field. Production from these two wells exceeds 75 barrels per day.

TWO WELLS COMPLETED

The recent completions are the Vame No. 5 drilled by the S.W.S. on Sec. 20, now connected in, and the North West Imperial No. 1 which is testing an entirely new area 11 miles west of town. The cement was drilled out of this well the middle of the week and on Wednesday afternoon boiling operations were being carried on.

NEW PROJECTS

In the meantime W. G de Koch has spudded in on Sec. 25, while a new derrick has been erected on Sec. 8 for C. W. Withers with drilling operations to begin at an early date.

O'Sullivan Carving at 1000

The O'Sullivan well located just south of the Bowtell school is now rotating at 1500 feet and as this is a decided extension to the Vermilion field great interest is being observed in this new location

127 Cars of Fuel now Shipped

In spite of heavy rains 4 more tank cars of fuel oil were shipped from the consolidated refinery last week indicating the consistent productive character of the Vermilion oil field. To date 127 cars of fuel oil have been shipped to the Canadian National Railway.

AIR CONDITIONING FAN INSTALLED IN ELKS HALL

A 24-inch air conditioning fan has now been installed in the Elks hall giving a complete change of air every five minutes. This will provide a boon felt need in the hall as it will be cool in the hot and humid days of the latter part of July and August, and summer dances.

SCHOOL IS OUT

School is out and the long summer vacation for students started on Tuesday. Pass lists on the final six grades in the public school appear in this issue while the Standard understands that those for pupils and eight will not appear in print.

Teachers are already seeing to it many of them leaving before the Standard's inquiries reached their ears, so that their holidays are on the summer. So far as known at the present time only one of the public school staff will not be back in September. That one is Mr. J. Killen assistant principal of the public school who has been offered the principalship of a small town. Mr. Killen is not only a valuable asset to the school but to the town in which he resides. A skating, hockey, softball and tennis enthusiast and now a radio announcing and a member of the Vermilion Kinsmen Club he is a short star

District of Vermilion will be the scene of the annual Vermilion school, Miss Lucy M. Hilborn will be in charge and as she was married on July 1st Mr. Gordon Hay will mark "away" papers and probably enjoy a holiday after that work is completed. Mr. Harper has no definite plans.

Principal Joe J. Pust has appointed Miss Margaret Hughes teacher for Fifield this summer. Miss Sanger is looking for the post of teacher in Vermilion but as she was married on July 1st Mr. Gordon Hay will mark "away" papers and probably enjoy a holiday after that work is completed. Mr. Harper has no definite plans.

Giant Mushroom at A. Link Farm

Edmonton is boasting of a mushroom found there which measured 10 inches in diameter. This is a mildew compared to the one picked by A. Link on his farm north of Vermilion. Mr. Link's mushroom was 14 inches across the top and stood 7 inches high. On top of that it was perfectly round. It was a white button. It proved just as tasty as its smaller brethren.

Derwent Man Joins R.C.A.F.

Raymond Oliver Seltzen, well known grain buyer of Derwent, has joined the R.C.A.F. as an aero engine mechanic. He will commence his training on graduation from W.T.S. Raymond is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Seltzen who now live at Ardmore but formerly resided near Islay. He has a brother Norman in the R.C.A.F. now a pilot officer at Patricia Bay

Air Power For The Navy

THE GREAT IMPORTANCE of air strength in connection with naval fighting in modern warfare has been demonstrated many times during this second World War. The tragic events at Crete, and the later sinkings of the Repulse and the Prince of Wales, have demonstrated that the traditional manner of sea fighting is now not in itself enough, but that protection from the air has become essential. Thus the aircraft carrier has become an increasingly important part of any battle fleet. This is emphasized by the recent decision of the American government to build an additional 500,000 tons of aircraft carriers in place of five 60,000-ton super battleships which had been planned.

* * * *

Air Carriers Are Necessary

At the beginning of the war, England had six aircraft carriers and six more under authorization to be built. Since that time six have been launched, but four have been lost, so that at present the known number of aircraft carriers in the Royal Navy is eight. Three of those lost were sunk by submarine or gunfire attack. The Hermes, sunk by the Japanese in the Bay of Bengal, was the victim of air attack. No doubt more carriers are being constructed for the Royal Navy and in future naval battles they will play a decisive part As more details have been made known about the battle of the Coral Sea, and the Battle of Midway, it has appeared that the most important role in both battles was played by airplanes In both cases torpedo planes and dive bombers, based on carriers were able to carry out surprise raids on the Japanese, with great effectiveness. The battle of Midway, in the Mediterranean area and the waters adjacent to Europe, land based planes have played their part in the destruction of enemy ships.

* * * *

Must Revise Naval Tactics

However the range of land-based craft is limited, while carriers can accompany a fleet and assure the protection wherever it may be. The Japanese have for some time recognized the great importance of the aircraft carrier, and they are known to have built a large number of them before they entered the war. In operations so far it is believed that eight of their carriers have been sunk and two damaged, but it is thought that they may still have eight or ten in action The use of the aircraft carrier has thus meant the revision of established tactics of naval warfare. The first objective now in a naval engagement is to demolish the enemy's aircraft carriers, thus depriving them of air protection. To the fine traditions of the Royal Navy, there is now added many valiant deeds effected by these newest type of sea fighters and the gallant men who make up their crews.

Handled 83,000 Head Of Livestock In Prairie Land Year

Community pastures, established in Manitoba and Saskatchewan under the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act, handled approximately 35 000 head of livestock in 1941 and preparations are now being made to look after an even greater number this year if the need arises.

O Freer, Regina superintendent of the land utilization branch, P F R A has revealed that in the two provinces, there are at present annual local meetings being held, and that there are 64 community pastures in operation most of them in Saskatchewan.

These cover an area of 1,250,000 acres of sub-marginal lands which have been fenced, provided with adequate watering facilities and regrassed to the extent of 95,000 acres with crested wheat grass.

Grazing associations have been organized at all of them, and the early part of summer.

LIVELY LUNCHES

Here are some attractive suggestions about keeping Dad well nourished and pleasing his palate even though war work may force him to take his lunch on the job. He can't be a good war worker unless he's well fed, especially at lunch time, according to food experts. What follows has been endorsed by leading dietary experts, including Dr. E. W. McHenry, chairman of the Nutrition Division of the Health League of Canada.

Sandwiches:
Minced beef with salad dressing.
Peanut butter with lettuce and mayonnaise or jam.
Minced liver with salad dressing.
Salmon loaf with salad dressing.
Chopped egg with salad dressing.
Grated cheese with salad dressing.
Cabbage and carrot salad with salad dressing.
Grated cheese and peanut butter with salad dressing.
Mashed baked beans with catsup.
Cottage cheese with marmalade.
A fruit paste made from raisins or dates.

(Confidential P.S. Spread the fillings thick and don't hold back on the butter, and spread a little wheat germ on peanut butter sandwiches he won't notice it and it'll do him good Wheat germ has the "E" or "Zip" vitamin.)

Fruit—Oranges apples, prunes, dried apricots, or any fruit you have handy Put in lots of it.

Vegetables Raw carrots, crisp and clean, prevent night blindness Or celery if you can't sell him on carrots.

Milk At least a half pint in a handy container

A Brave Girl

Sang While Bombs Flew Were Working To Save Her From Death

Thirteen-year-old Pamela Bunn of Southampton, Eng., while a recent cruy out through the steel bar that pinned her in the wreckage of an air raid shelter. The shelter had collapsed under the force of a German bomb killing her mother and injuring five other relatives.

Here's how the brave little girl told her story:

"I was real scared, but the men digging us out told me to sing because then I wouldn't be afraid. So I started singing in the dark. 'White Cliffs of Dover' and then I didn't feel frightened. Then I sang 'The Band Played On' and I kept singing these songs for a long time."

Pamela has not been told that her mother was killed. Her father, James Bunn, and the other relatives were not seriously injured.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army.

By Alan Maxtone Irvin

"Pass, Grand Rounds, all's well." I suppose, along with "take training," that sonorous "O.K." from a sentry facing his lonely beat has gone into the discard now.

It seems a pity that some of the glamour can't be left whether it be in the Army, the Navy or the Air Force. Of course the latter, even if it is a hasty infant, is the baby of the uniformed services and has hardly had long enough to build any tradition except that of daring and bravery.

There is something about the maintenance of old forms and fine phrases In this day of streamlining and curt, business-like speech that reminds us that the glorious future of tomorrow will in its turn become a glorious past.

What put this into my head was the fact that I put in some time yesterday visiting grocery stores to find out how we soldiers of the individual Citizen's Army were behaving about the new rationing orders. It was something like visiting sanctries on their beats—but more in the nature of "visiting romadar" than "grand rounds."

The result of my tour shows that the Army is in very pretty good soldiers. It showed also that there are some "lead-swingers" amongst us. Do you remember "lead-swinging"? I discussed them in one of these columns back in the snow-shoveling days and came to the conclusion that they were a pretty low class of hounds who let other soldiers do their work for them.

That's the way to describe the "lead-swingers" who try to cheat the rest of us by having us queue up for them when it comes to rationing. Instead of feeling that they have "put one over on the Government" when they buy more than the allotted ration we should realize that what they are doing is vastly different. They are "putting one over on us!"

Rationing is in effect in Canada today, in fact, in other words, it is rationing in the democratic manner with each one of us on our honour to take only our proper share, limited by the regulations. The idea behind it is fair and equitable distribution of supplies regardless of rank or station.

Obviously then, the skunk who tries to get more than his fair share, is not only flouting the laws of the country, he is stealing from the rest of us.

To get back to "visiting rounds." Most grocers reported that there was very little, if any, evidence of increased buying of tea, coffee and sugar, following Donald Gordon's radio announcement of the rationing. What little there was, said some of them, seemed to be done by "women in cars" who were evidently ashamed enough of their activities to buy only a proper quantity at their own grocer's but not ashamed enough to go to a strange store to do so.

Isn't that a and commentary? The more so when you think that the sons and grandsons of many of these ladies are probably overseas in the armed forces.

"Keeping their training" was the headline over a recent cabled story from England. Well, I suppose the proper reference is "keeping fast, but I remember—and so do many of you—how much more "neat" you could put behind a bayonet lunge if you pretended that the stuffed dummy in front of you was "Kaiser Bill"!

Perhaps they won't be such more training in "hate" but you can't tell me that the brother of a Canadian soldier in Hong Kong doesn't go about making war in a calm and detached manner!

Anyway some of us are working up hates at home and that's a bad thing, we should save it for the army. The object of my particular hate is the pleasure driver—especially when, as is the case with far too many, he has the manners of a fiend.

In my little neck of the woods there is more Sunday driving than ever there was and I don't exaggerate when I say that more than half of the drivers are as arrogant as a young Nazi. They honic their horns for pedestrians to get out of their lordly way; they shirt as close to him as they dare if he doesn't get out of the way quickly enough and generally do everything in their stupid power to raise up a heartfelt cry for a prohibition of all pleasure driving.

And in Malaya, Java, the Philippines, Libya, Greece and France their brothers died because there was not enough gasoline.

"Hate training?" The soldier doesn't need it, but some civilians are acquiring it!

Output Of Mines

Labor Shortage Said To Be Sharing Down Industry

Acute shortage of manpower in mining camps is imperilling the output of vital raw materials of war This statement, made by important mining publications and confirmed by the mines branch of the mines and resources department, is regarded as latest critical turn of events on the home front.

Right now the output of copper in western Canada is falling off, owing to lack of manpower. The reduction in gold production, the magic vitality necessary for war, is having the output of base metals in Ontario and Quebec. Gold mines workers are transferring to nickel and other base metal mines. This, however, is regarded as only a temporary palliative.

The mine operators point out that they have been recruiting labor from the farms, but the freezing of agricultural labor, plus the exemption from military service, has pretty well shut off this source. On the other hand, there is a steady movement of labor from heavy industry into mining to lighter industry. This movement is not checked by any existing selective service regulations. Meantime, the drain on mining manpower for the army continues.

In addition to the present output of base metals, there is an urgent need to expand the mining industry by producing metals vitally required for war. One such is tungsten-carbide, it is urgently needed in the production of armor piercing shells and bullets and substantial quantities can be produced in Canada provided sufficient manpower is available to do the work.

Tribute To Britain

American Paper Declares That But For Britain The War Would Be Lost

But For Britain, that is either Hitlerism would be triumphant over the whole earth or, at best, we would be fighting it, unprepared, with no greater hope than to defend our own soil at the probable cost of complete exhaustion and bankruptcy

Let these who are inclined to belittle Britain's performance in this war remember that for more than a year she held the fort absolutely alone and that, in all, she provided us with more than two years of grace in which to get ready to fight.—Los Angeles Times

Alberta Forges Ahead

Claims To Be Greatest Mixed Farming Province In Canada

Alberta is producing more commercial bags today than Ontario, the Banner Province, ever produced even in its palmiest days.

In the first three months of this year Alberta had marketed and graded 183,041 commercial bags. In the same period last year, when Ontario was producing at its peak, there were sold in that province 180,100. Alberta is now running considerably ahead of Ontario, which fell in the first quarter this year to 170,413. In the first quarter last year Alberta marketed only 137,978. Alberta in a year has increased by 33 per cent., while Ontario has decreased just over five per cent.

We doubt if the people of Ontario would believe us if we told them we are now the greatest mixed farming province in Canada. — Lethbridge Herald.

Diamonds Made Up Toronto's Wedding Ring Given Many Caresses

The most valuable welcome sign ever made in Toronto—a $100,000 investment studded with 1,267 diamonds—was the city's show-piece during the Rotary International conventies which displayed in a downtown jewelry store window.

The diamonds ranged in value from $10 to $500 each. A high Rotary badge measuring less than one quarter inch across was the model for the diamond-studded Rotary wheel which was mounted on a leaf.

An Unlevelled Guest

Escaping From Truck Fig Broke Up Dramatic Afternoon Tea

A 600-pound pig broke up an afternoon tea at the Philadelphia estate of socially prominent Mrs. Thomas O. Ashton. It drove the guests to cover, scattered trays of sandwiches cakes and scones and finished its meal from a bed of petunias. Police, who captured it after a chase through Mrs. Ashton's gardens, said it had fallen from a passing truck en route to market.

INVENTS BOTTLE CAP

With a hairpin and a piece of rolled paper, Mrs. Martha Peabody Keith, a housewife at Brookline, Mass., has invented a bottle cap which manufacturers estimate will save 105,000 000 pounds of tin annually. The new cap, which screws to the glass by means of a threaded hairpin or small iron wire gives the same air-light protection that metal caps provide, according to experimenters.

Non-Essential Industry May Be Curtailed

Ottawa.—The government can be expected to embark without delay on a program of greater curtailment in non-essential production, a cabinet source intimated. "We have got to go after that side of the manpower problem much more vigorously than we have been doing," the minister said.

Three key ministers, it is noted here, have struck an almost identical note in recent parliamentary speeches, all pointing to immediate action to speed up the transition of civilian production to war production—since the experience of the last substantial source from which to draw manpower and materials if war production is to be increased to respond its present limits. Civilian production is also the main source from which the armed services can expect additional manpower. Curbing civilian industry is seen here as the logical result of the policies of mobilizing national resources outlined in the budget and discussed also in the conscription debate.

Hon. J. L. Ilsley, in the budget address, said "our economy is in the zone of full employment. It is still possible to expand the volume of war production and the armed services but only if we are prepared to make drastic and new changes in the tempo to urgent, what is more urgent and what we can do without . . . (later) restrictions on civilian industry to save materials and manpower will unavoidably multiply."

Hon. J. L. Ralston, in the conscription debate, "in trying to take human beings and put them where they will be most effective in carrying on the war, those are the things that we have to work at and work hard. You can't have to tighten our belts and do without some of the ordinary civilian commodities which we can do without."

Hon. C. D. Howe, in the conscription debate, "insofar as there remains industries engaged primarily in non-essential production, we shall have no hesitation in converting them, or in closing them down, and thereby making their employees available for war requirements."

Mr. Howe was the only minister who attempted to estimate the amount of civilian production that could be shut off. In calculating that 2,000,000 workers were engaged in civilian production, he estimated that 500,000 can be diverted to war work and the services. His speech provided only one specific example, the increase of 25,000 employees in wholesale and retail trade, where the saving there might be applied, though he mentioned generally other civilian trades and industries.

GUERILLA RAIDS

Russians Throw Dice For Privilege Of Attacking Nazis

London.—Leslie Kirch arrived back in London from Russia where he has been serving with a medical unit and told of farm folk throwing dice for the privilege of joining in guerilla raids on the Germans.

Armed with farm axes and clubs, the three winners crawled through German lines, killed six German sentries and returned with guns and ammunition strapped to their bodies with horse harness. Then they rejoined their companions, massed by the Japfleet on one side and by the combined Germa... and Italian communications, English and French fleets on the other.

But for Britain, that is either Hitlerism would be triumphant over the whole earth or, at best, we would be fighting it, unprepared, with no greater hope than to defend our own soil at the probable cost of complete exhaustion and bankruptcy

Let these who are inclined to belittle Britain's performance in this war remember that for more than a year she held the fort absolutely alone and that, in all, she provided us with more than two years of grace in which to get ready to fight.—Los Angeles Times

CANADIAN FIREMEN

Volunteers For Overseas Duty Arrive In Britain

Ottawa The first contingent of Canadian fire fighters who volunteered for overseas duty has landed safely in Britain, War Services Minister Thomson was informed in a cable from Herbert Morrison, British secretary of state The cable said:

"Please convey to the Canadian government our thanks and appreciation of this practicable gesture, which is a source of energy and strength to all ranks of the national fire service. Your firemen will now take their place along with your soldiers, sailors and airmen already here at the side of their British comrades."

WOMEN REPATRIATED

Canadian Women Interned In Germany Are Returning To Canada

Ottawa.—Names of 10 Canadian women returning to the Dominion from Germany under an international exchange agreement were announced by the external affairs department.

The women were aboard the steamship Drottingholm which sailed from Lisbon and is expected to arrive in New York this week.

Seven of the women were passengers on the Egyptian steamship Zamzam, sunk by a German raider in the South Atlantic April 17, 1941. They were interned in Germany but released in September last year and have been living in Berlin.

The other three Canadian women also were interned by German authorities but were released following representations from the Canadian government. One of the Zamzam passengers was Olga Gottermann, of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America, Minneapolis, Minn.; next of kin, Mrs. Elsie Gottormson, mother, Naicam, Sask.

Sacrifices Are Necessary For Winning War

The proposals in Canada's "Austerity" budget were received favorably by Canadian business leaders in general with the reaction that financial sacrifices are a prerequisite to winning the war.

The keynote was set by Premier John Hart of British Columbia who expressed "wholehearted" approval in these words:

"We must make an all-out effort to win this war. That effort requires financial sacrifice by everyone. Financial sacrifices, I am confident, will cheerfully be met by the Canadian people."

The wrecked glider, consequently destroyed the budget in the main from the standpoint that the war must be financed with all means at the country's disposal. Announcing his cabinet will meet to study the effect on provincial revenues and problems, Mr. Hepburn said, "I give wholehearted support to the budget, realizing we must raise money to prosecute the war."

Premier Aberhart of Alberta said the new budget proposals "will do more than anything else to make the people of this Dominion realize the critical emergency we are facing . . ." And added: "The budget should do more to bring home to the people the dire consequences of the present financial system."

Premier Thane Campbell of Prince Edward Island said he thought the budget would "be well received by the public."

From Principal F. Cyril James of McGill University, well-known as an economist, came the comment that the institution of enforced savings was "a particularly constructive step."

Dr. James, who also is chairman of the federal government's committee on post-war reconstruction, said:

"It has the advantage during the period of the war of reducing unduly consumer and corporate expenditures while it is to be expected that during the reconstruction period at the end of the war the return of these funds by the government will make the financial rehabilitation of business enterprises involved

"It will also provide increased spending power out of which consumer will be able to purchase the comforts and luxuries which they readily forego during the war."

WORK UNDER WAY

New Persian Gulf Port Will Speed Supplies To Russia

Basra, Iraq.—Construction of a new Persian Gulf port to speed supplies to Russia is being pushed by United States noncombatants on a scale that previously was nothing but sand and swamp

Hundreds of bombers, thousands of trucks and countless other material have passed through the Persian Gulf to Soviet armies by means of the elaborate organization built to insure their rapid transport.

Among rail projects under way is a link to connect Teheran, the Persian capital, with Tabriz in the north. This will complete an all-rail route from the gulf at Batum, the Caucasian oil centre, Tiflis and Moscow.

In an explanation of his action, Field said in Chicago: "Here is a case where one must consider whether a newspaper is valuable in wartime. If it is, then Ingersoll is very valuable, indeed, to "PM" because it is a specialized publication and 10,000 small-e jobs on its program

EQUAL PRIORITY

British And United States Troops To Share Supplies

WHEAT FOR GREECE

Monthly Shipments Of Canadian Wheat To Be Made

Ottawa.—Negotiations have been completed by which Canada gives the starving people of Greece 15,000 tons of wheat a month, approximately 500 000 bushels, it was announced here.

Some shipments of Canadian wheat already have reached Greece but the movement will proceed on a monthly basis from now on. The cargoes will be transported in Swedish ships under supervision of the Swedish Red Cross.

It is expected the Swedish ships will sail from a Canadian port direct to Greece, having obtained safe conduct through the British blockade and permission from the German and Italian governments for the voyages.

SAVED HUGE SUM

Bus On Travel To United States Has Financial Success

Ottawa —Canada's outlook for financing its war purchases in the United States is more cheerful for the present year than it was last year, Finance Minister Ilsley said in his budget speech in the House of Commons.

The situation, however, does not warrant relaxing restrictions on Canadian travel in the United States nor in the application of the war exchange conservation act, he said.

The Hyde Park agreement which facilitated United States purchases of war supplies in Canada was responsible for the improved outlook and for the fact that Canada had been able to meet its payments in United States dollars in the past year.

"By the collaboration of our good neighbor and ally we hope to be able to meet our exchange requirements which arise out of our need for war materials in the way most effective for a nation at war, namely by the provision of munitions of war for whichever of the United Nations and whichever of the world's battle fronts require them most urgently" said Mr Ilsley.

"It is a most desirable situation but let it not be misunderstood We are able to do this only as long as we continue to exercise care and prudence in our non-essential buying.

"The restrictions on pleasure travel now have been in force for nearly two years and it can be stated with assurance that these restrictions have saved us well over $100 000 000 United States dollars since they were imposed.

Submarine Base May Be Located On Brazil Coast

Rio De Janeiro.—A high source said that naval and aviation experts are investigating reports an Axis submarine base is located on the Brazilian state of Maranhao.

It was not been possible to determine immediately whether submarines are operating from the base, this source said, but various reports recently are declared to have indicated the possibility Axis vessels are hiding in the muddy waters of a river mouth along the swampy shoreline, and refueling there

The source indicated that area under investigation was an isolated delta of the Gurupy river which forms the boundary between the states of Maranhao and Para on the northern coast of Brazil He said naval and air forces are engaged in a minute search of the entire Gurupy delta region but the naval and air commands refuse to say whether a submarine base has been found.

The Gurupy delta would be roughly the centre for a triangle of air patrols southward toward Natal and eastward toward Dakar, cutting off the south Atlantic trade routes.

It was recalled that all Axis submarine attacks as well as British and American counter attacks and sinkings of enemy submarines have occurred in this region.

It was learned recently that there has been mysterious movements of unexplained and unidentified aircraft which were believed might be carrying fuel and food to a rendezvous with submarines along lonely inlets where trees hide the airplanes from observation.

Attacks upon shipping off the Brazilian coast have diminished since the Brazilian air force and navy began their material patrol policies attacked four submarines and defended each time, the last November 5 when a Brazilian patrol sighted them far in June but several attacks on shipping have been reported with at least one sinking.

See Danger Of Japanese Bases On Aleutians

Washington.—U.S. navy department's continued silence on Japanese seizure of Attu and Kiska islands in the outermost Aleutians is believed to cover preparations for a big sea and air battle there shortly. The navy is now fully aroused to the danger of Japanese submarine bases in the island chain, as well as the menace to American planes en route to Russia. Canadians will be taking an active part in that show

Since attacks here believe the Japanese will seize Kamchatka peninsula and strike at Siberia any moment. The Russians are inclined to think the Siberian drive while the results of the German fighting around Kharkov and at Sevastopol

According to the Russian information, Hitler ordered his generals to take Sevastopol, break through the Crimea, and eastern Ukraine and drive on the Caucasus oil fields before the end of June Romania's unexpected success at Tobruk is being used to prod on the other Nazi generals who are far behind the schedule.

The Russians regard this fighting as the most critical of the World War to date. They say it has caused enormous drains on the German motor and aviation gasoline reserves. Hitler has served notice to his leaders the United States dollars since they were imposed.

ESTEVAN POINT

Lighthouse Keeper Climbs To Top Of Tower To Extinguish Light

Victoria —The Victoria Colonist in a despatch from its west coast Vancouver Island correspondent, gave the first descriptive story of the shelling of the Estevan Point Dominion radio and telegraph station by enemy raider.

The newspaper's correspondent G. M Campbell of Port Alberni, B.C., stated that the quick action of Robert Mitchell Lally, lighthouse keeper, in climbing a 50-foot light tower to extinguish the powerful beacon while shells screamed around him, is credited with saving the remote little settlement from serious damage

In the despatch to the Colonist, Campbell reported that when the first shell exploded on shore near the foot of the lighthouse the residents of the little settlement thought that an engine at the station had exploded

As they rushed to the doors of their homes other shells exploded hort of their intended target and flashes could be seen at sea

The solid concrete Lighthouse building trembled from the first explosions and several windows were broken by the concussion.

Lally then realized that the light was providing a beacon for the attackers. He climbed the spiral staircase to the top of the tower while shells screamed past as the raiders elevated their range

Shells had begun to explode in the woods behind the station by the time the lighter-per was able to extinguish the light one of the most powerful on the B C coast

Two radio operators, Brian Harrison and Edward Redford and their wives were having tea when the shelling started One of the couples and their wives and children were preparing to retire for the night

All of the women and children, including Mrs Harrison and her seven-months-old infant, were rushed into the woods behind the station with out blankets and with only the clothes which they had on at the time of the attack

While the lighthouse keeper rushed to extinguish the light Redford and an assistant sent news of the attack by radio to military authorities

The women and children remained in the woods all night, returning at daybreak to the lighthouse and radio station, not knowing whether or not an enemy landing had been made.

TRANSFERRED TO EDMONTON

Miss Vera Sherback, for the past three and a half years a member of the local Telephone Exchange, has been transferred to Edmonton and leaves on Saturday of this week.

On Tuesday evening she was a very much surprised guest of honor at a tempestuous party held at the home of Mrs Sid Blaze assisted by Mrs. T. Dwyer Lois Rosebery and Cora Larsen. The number of friends gathered together here testimony to the real affection felt for Vera and the evening was spent in some very lively games and contests and ended with a presentation made in a novel and merry way by Cora Larson of a Chenille bouquet from all present as well as individual gifts. While all will miss Vera's smiling face very much everyone heartily wishes her every success ahead

GANTON-WATSON RED CROSS

A meeting of the Ganton Watson Red Cross Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. Wilson Ford of Tolland on June 24th after being postponed for two weeks on account of rain. There was a good attendance of members and it was a pleasure also to welcome some of the ladies from the B. W.R. club. A report of their activities by the secretary Mrs. Frank Gibson, was listened to with interest. Some work was brought in including an afghan knitted by the children of the Ganton school, but not much was given out this time. A profit of $11.19 was made at the winter resort on the Van Wagenin-en farm, a bazaar on the same night organized by Miss Green and the pupils of Woodvale school yielded $14.17. Mrs. Anderson and the pupils of Watson school raised $16 by sending around "Mystery Baskets" and $15.20 was donated by the Ganton Girls Activity club. Subscriptions received from members brought the total up to $66 and this amount has been paid in to the Vermilion branch. To all of these willing helpers we extend our glad thanks. Owing to wartime restrictions on ice cream and soft drinks it was decided not to hold a full scale picnic this year, but there will be an evening of sports and games at Ganton school on July 14th commencing about 8 p.m. Hot dogs will be on sale. This will be followed by a dance. Good music and open air platform for dancing. The auxiliary has also received from Mrs. McLeod, a former resident of Hindville, the gift of a tractor, to be sold for scrap and the proceeds added to the funds. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Watson of Hindville on July 22nd, when the members hope to get busy on another quilt. Anyone willing to help will be very welcome. Quilts are urgently needed at home and help us to help others less fortunate than ourselves.

The coal sheds at the power plant which have been an eyesore for many years have now been torn down. The material was purchased by E. E. Wright and taken away. It might now be possible to make the plant building a little more presentable and it is understood that the council already has such a project under consideration.

TOLLAND

A perfectly grand rain fell here last week and crops and gardens are looking lovely and green. The meteors has done a world of good.

Clifford Oldenburg has home on furlough and is looking well and happy. He has now left for eastern Canada. Eugene Lewis is now home from Camp Sorbie at Brandon, Man.

Clarence Lewis had the misfortune to have his fore finger crushed while driving his horse and the finger had to be amputated.

Two students, Sophie Haan and George Machell spent last week in Vermilion writing their high school departmental examinations.

A Red Cross meeting was held at Mrs. Wilson Ford's home on Wednesday. There was a very good attendance and an enjoyable afternoon was spent. A rain storm came up for the ladies to go home in.

The several schools horsebouts all enjoyed closing pienes and now the kiddies have begun their two month long summer holidays.

134,000 CAR DRIVERS ARE ISSUED LICENCES

Drop of 20,000 motor car drivers in this province, as compared with the total for the 1941-42 license year that ended March 31, last, is reported by officials of the provincial secretary's department.

Due to the large number of military enlistments, the number of drivers has decreased, it is believed. Last year, the total was 156,000, compared with 130,000 at June 16 of this year.

The license fee is $1, so there has been a corresponding decrease in the provincial revenue from this source.

Officials of the Alberta Motor Association also have been informed by the provincial secretary's department that the number of passenger automobiles taken out for the 1942-43 license year is approximately 87,000, compared with 98,000 in the previous year.

Restrictions on gasoline and tires have been major factors in reducing the number of cars in service, though it is possible that the holiday season will see a sudden gain in applications.

Also, many citizens of the province have decided in the interests of economy to curtail pleasure car operations or to restrict these to business requirements. License totals have suffered in consequence.

Meeting adjourned.

KENILWORTH RED CROSS BRANCH REVIEWS WORTHWHILE EFFORTS

Last week there was a plea for more Red Cross work to be done. It was suggested by our President that if we sent in a report of the work done by our little group that maybe other little groups of farm women would get together and go to work.

The Kenilworth Red Cross was organized just two years ago. There are only about ten active workers and some have eight miles to go to the meetings which are held at the various homes every two weeks. In the winter they divide into two groups owing to distance. They each give ten cents per meeting or more if they care to. To take a little more money when needed, social evenings of family games have been held in the school. All have donated pieces for quilts and a surprising amount of raw wool has been donated for filling. An excellent recipe for washing wool was tried and found very successful. A tablespoon of powdered glue to a gallon of water then two or three rinses.

The following work has been done: 14 baby gowns, 32 diapers, 21 pairs bloomers, 12 prs, pillow slips, 4 pillow slips, 3 towels, 2 hospital sheets 10 pr. socks, 12 boys' shirts, 5 women's nightgowns, 3 girls' sweaters, 13 girls' dresses, 9 suits pyjamas, 16 prs. mitts, 32 prs. gloves, 3 scarves.

The material for the above was obtained from the Red Cross.

The following was all donated: 56 quilts, 3 dresses, 2 baby boy suits, 3 pr. stockings, 2 outfits of navy shirts and knitted sweaters, 1 dress, 7 blankets, fifty-one dollars.

The blankets were woollen rags collected from members and sent away to be made into blankets.

It would be interesting to hear from other country communities who are doing their bit".

PROBABLE LUMBER SHORTAGE

Farmers Should Take Care of Granary Needs Now

The Western Retail Lumbermen's Association advises the Department of Agriculture that it is very difficult at the present time to secure lumber of any kind for domestic purposes, owing to the fact that war requirements and export demands exceed the available supply. Apparently this situation is not likely to improve. On the contrary, the shortage will probably become more acute as time goes on.

Under these circumstances farmers may experience difficulty before long in securing supplies of lumber for their ordinary requirements, particularly for purposes of grain storage in the fall. Unless the retail lumber dealers of the Province are able to secure supplies at an early date, it seems certain that they will not be in a position to service the agricultural demand for any great length of time. Farmers would, therefore, be well advised to anticipate their after harvest needs and obtain some lumber supplies while they may be still available.

CLAYMORE CLIPPINGS

Miss Doris Williams who has been living in Saskatoon is home for a few weeks.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. McLeod of Lavilla visited friends in the Claymore district last Tuesday.

Mrs. Hugh Sands spent last week end with friends over Kitscoty.

Mr. and Mrs. Williamson were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. V. Voss.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Chrysler are leaving on July 5th for Bruce, Alberta, where they will reside in future. Their neighbors and friends here greatly regret their leaving and wish them every success in their new home. Mr. and Mrs. Chrysler took a very active part in all social and church work of the district and our loss will be Bruce's gain.

The school picnic will be over and holidays will have commenced when this appears in print. The kiddies are all looking forward to their long holidays.

The Claymore elevators are now buying scrap iron at 7 per ton. All who have scrap metal are asked to bring it in. Weighing is done at the elevator. Sec V. Voss for payment

Mr. Norman Williams and son spent several days last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Williams. Norman came for them on Thursday and they returned by bus to their home in Saskatoon.

A meeting of the social club will be held at the home of Mrs. E. McMillan on Thursday July 2. The next meeting will be held on July 16 at the home of Mrs. H. Williamson.

MASSEY-HARRIS ON WAR FOOTING.

Plants Work at Capacity Producing Armaments and Farm Equipment

Remarkable evidence of the extent to which a large Canadian industry can swing into line and be an important factor in producing munitions for the war effort may be gathered from an illustrated booklet put out by Massey Harris Company, entitled "Implements and Munitions for Wartime Needs".

Shells of three different calibres, wings and spars for trainer planes, light and heavy bodies for transport vehicles, special mechanized equipment for various branches of the services, metal fittings for aircraft, tanks for tank treads, are some of the implements of war which the company is producing in quantity. To meet the needs of the fighting forces for more shells, more planes, and ten of thousands of shells come from three plants every week.

Application of the latest manufacturing methods has enabled Massey-Harris to produce quickly equipment for mechanized units. It makes bodies for motor vehicles in several classes, gun carriages, trailer units for special services, many of which have been in active service in the Libyan desert campaigns. One of the company's plants is now operating on a 24-hour schedule and is turning out two-and-a-half times as many wings per week as were called for in the original contract.

In the United States the Massey-Harris Company has been given what is reputed to be the largest contract yet awarded to a manufacturer in the state of Wisconsin — a contract to make tanks in large quantities for the U.S. Army.

While the production of armaments takes precedence, and rightly so, yet plentiful of the need for farm equipment to offset the shortage of labor, the importance of vital food production programs, the Massey-Harris Company has been making and is continuing to make tractors and implements needed as materials are made available for the purpose through the administration and control set up by the Government, which in the best interest of our maximum war effort, has deemed it necessary to curtail considerably the production of farm machinery.

The C.W.L. will hold their annual garden dinner on the Catholic church grounds on Sunday July 5th beginning at 12.30 noon. Admission 50c. 10-11x

The Week in Legislative Circles . . . In Edmonton

EDMONTON.—The pressure of war time conditions has not reduced the attractions of Alberta as a vacation land, and whatever the effect on natural travel this year, the province is still considered by many an ideal place for development of the industry. This week Ivan Dmitri, noted color photographer and artist, once more turned a camera party on a tour of the Jasper Park area. Most of the visitors came from the U.S. Middle West. With Mr. Dmitri and Norris Harkness, camera editor of the New York Sun. Both visitors said they hoped to photograph development of the North country at an early date.

Commenting on the new federal budget provisions, Premier Aberhart said Wednesday: "It has always been my contention that if the dominion government is able to issue bonds to meet the cost of the war, it is also able to issue bills for the same purpose. The bills have the advantage—they have no interest charges and no debt is created." He added that "The taxing situation as far as the national economy is concerned presents an anomaly. On the one hand the government has set a price ceiling on the cost of goods to the consumer; on the other, the huge increase in taxation will have a tendency to force an increase in prices. But there is nothing we can do about it under the present system of financing the country's needs. This budget does not do more to bring home to the people the dire consequences of the financial system."

o o o

Announcing incorporation of a number of new co-operatives in the province, F. J. Fitzgerald, acting supervisor for the trade and industry department, said growing interest is being shown in the investment supply type of co-operative association. At the end of May there were in the province 178 active co-ops, of which 60 were general stores, 25 farm supply, 26 live stock marketing, 15 live stock feeding, 15 dairy and poultry and 26 sundry associations.

Farm organizations of Alberta were all represented at a conference in Calgary during last week which met to discuss a tentative program presented to the Western Conference of governments and farmers in Saskatoon, June 22 and 23. Acting for the Alberta government were Hon. Lucien Maynard, Hon. Solon E. Low, and Hon. D. B. MacMillan.

ISLAND HILL

Those who attended the dance at the hall Friday had a very enjoyable time. The Victory orchestra dispensed the music and we must add no better dance music has been heard at the hall. Mrs. McCambridge served a dainty lunch. P. McCambridge looked after the admission fee. Date of next dance will be advertised in the Standard.

We are glad to learn that Mr. Gen. Richardson Sr. is progressing favorably after undergoing a major operation in the Vermilion hospital.

It is a fine idea and a great compliment to our fighting men to hold Army Week—But to pay a real and lasting compliment to our Canadian soldiers their pay should be raised to that of the American soldier. There is a popular song going around these days entitled "Johnnie Doughboy found a Rose in Ireland" and we think you find a rose you will also find a thorn. Don't let it be said that while the Doughboy finds a rose that the Canuck gets the thorn. Give the fighting lads of Canada the 50 bucks a month which his brother fighter south of the border gets, and we believe every man and woman in Canada will say they deserve it. What say you Reader?

Mrs. Mrs. Frank Brady and Mrs. Richardson were victors at the writer's home during the week.

The school is closed for the summer holidays. By the way, there will be free pictures shown at the school on Monday 6th at 8 p.m. Everybody welcome.

To be employed by the same farmer for eighteen years must be a record. This is the proud boast of Mr. and Mrs. Larson who are employed by Mr. Lord. This long service proves our two things—that the employer is a good one and Mr. and Mrs. Larson are good and faithful workers. Mrs. Larson said to the writer, "I read your column every week and I often wished I could have a talk with you." Also got her wish after many years and we hope she was not disappointed. We told Dan years ago that we would never look into a mirror again but we really wished we had a mirror to peep into while we had our interview with Mr. and Mrs. Larson. Why? Because Mrs. Larson's face beamed as through and through during our conversation and a glance in a mirror would tell us how we were getting through the ordeal. Mr. and Mrs Larson are a lovable and kindly pair and their splendid pleasing were a very pleasing yearly affair for many years but of late they have been dropped for no apparent reason. Those pieces were a source of enjoyment for the younger folks and for the older ones too, and the cost of carrying them on was very little. So we are afraid the departure of that master organizer, Dan, who now resides in Winnipeg, left a void that cannot be filled.

Old Monster Engine Ends in Scrap

Weighing 225 tons an old portable compound steam engine was recently towed from the bottom of Bareboom into the town at Parkes Australia's industrial capital. With its days of active service behind it, the engine will be scrapped. Built in 1872, it was originally used in the construction of the Great Western railway. Later it was used in the district. It is going to be converted into Hitler's front line by the second of scrap iron and this enormous engine will be given over to win this war.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Free French authorities said that 40,000 children died on the roads of France in June, 1940, in the exodus of refugees fleeing the Nazi terror.

The 10,500-ton freighter, John Steele, was launched at the terminal island yards of the California Shipbuilding Corporation just 52 days after the keel was laid.

The Buenos Aires newspaper "Critica" said that President Roberto Ortiz suffering from partial blindness and in retirement for almost a year, has decided to resign.

Herring are so plentiful in the Atlantic off the southern tip of Nova Scotia that fishermen have to throw them back. The markets have been glutted by the record run of fish.

J. A. Scott Watson, member of the British food mission in Washington, said in an interview at Winnipeg that Canada should feed Europe no longer buye for wheat in the post-war period.

A total of $16,500 has been contributed to the Red Cross by the Royal Canadian Air Force and Royal Air Force units in No. 4 training command embracing Alberta and Saskatchewan.

The BBC quoted Premier Ion Antonescu of Rumania as announcing that in the last year Rumanian casualties on the Russian front have totalled 157,000 killed wounded or missing.

Unhappy in German-occupied France, Angele Marie, a master cook arranged to be "taken prisoner" by the British commando raid at St Nazaire and works now as a kitchenmaid in a Mayfair restaurant.

Berlin Report About Nazi Tanks Just Hot Weather Story

The Berlin radio claim that the Nazi are using refrigerated tanks in the Libyan desert was labelled "a hot weather story" by British armored vehicle officers.

The same story circulated in Egypt last summer, they said, and recurs every time the temperature reaches 120 degrees Captured German tanks, the officers said, have fans but no refrigeration plants.

The answer thing to air conditioning in tanks is offered by United States models which have air-cooled engines.

Another story exploded by British officers was the one about Canadian training for desert warfare in hot-houses in Berlin with big fans throwing sand to produce desert conditions.

The Nazis get plenty of training in Germany, prisoners have reported, but not in hothouses.

Stamps For Free France

Latest In Series Now Issued For St. Pierre And Miquelon

A new postage stamp for St. Pierre and Miquelon showing a fishing boat and a sextant is the latest in the series issued for the Free French Colonies.

Only a few weeks after General de Gaulle's troops landed on the islands orders for the new issue were placed with London printers of stamps for Britain and her colonies. They had already printed the stamps for all the other Free French colonies and most of these are now in use.

Designed by Edmund Dulac, famous illustrator of French and English books, who was also responsible for Britain's Coronation stamp, there are 6 separate issues in 14 different colors for each denomination. All of them embody the traditional "R.F." and the Cross of Lorraine, emblem of Free France as well as the motto "France Libre", but there the similarity ends. British Industries Bulletin.

Homage Paid To The Memory Of Captain George Vancouver

In the midst of war, let us find time to pay homage to the memory of Captain George Vancouver, who came this way, the first Englishman, 150 years ago today, (June 13) discovering that body of water he named Howe's Inlet, and looking for the first time on the wooded slopes where, 94 years later, there was to be born (and almost lost, too, 94 years to the day, in fire and smoke) the city that would bear his name.

Captain Vancouver no doubt stood up the big trees with the eye of a man interested in ship timbers. It was a long time, however, before this particular spot of the British Empire began to play any sort of role as a centre of shipping construction. Were he to come again, the gallant captain might be surprised at the kind of ship he would find a-building here. —Vancouver Sun.

WHERE PRINCESSES PLAYED

The gardens in Hamiltonplace, London, where the Royal Princesses played when the King and Queen lived in Piccadilly, have for some time lost their air of quiet retreat—especially since the railings have gone—but now a number of hens are being kept there. Many Londoners go to watch them being fed, wondering who is lucky enough to get the eggs.

Alaska, famous as a gold producer, had its mining start when Russians exploited coal deposits on Cook inlet in 1854.

The earth has 57,510,000 square miles of land surface.

Other favorites are, in the following order: Ice cream, doughnuts, chocolate cake, cherry pie, coconut cake, mince pie, fruit cobbler, banana pudding and butterscotch pudding. Rice pudding comes last and pretty unenthusiastically at that. Without raisins and cream it's pretty flat.—Collier's.

The Russian Soldier

Pub. Country First According To Story By War Correspondent

If you're wondering what the Russian soldier is made of, listen to this:

The Soviet war correspondent, Ilya Ehrenbourg, reports that a Russian field battery on a hill before Sevastopol was trapped by waves of Nazi tanks.

The captain of the battery sent a radio message to the Russian artillery behind him. The message ran: "I request that you open fire on my battery." The Russian big guns fired. The German tanks were driven back.

The only survivors of the battery on the hill were six men.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JULY 5

GOD THE CREATOR

Golden text: In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. Genesis 1:1.

Lesson: Genesis 1, 2.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 33:1-9.

Explanations and Comments

God Created the Universe, Genesis 1:1. This first verse of the Bible chapter of Genesis is the summary, and the remainder of the chapter the detailed account, of creation. In the beginning, God: "I has the biggest organ tones of these personal words of the primeval world." From the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God. Ps. 90:2.

In the beginning God—not a group of gods as in ancient myths, and not chance—created the universe—the heavens and the earth.

Primeval Chaos, Genesis 1:2. And the earth was waste and void, "formless and waste," The Hebrew words are an alliterative description of a desert in which nothing can be distinguished or defined" (A. A. Driver). And darkness was upon the face of the deep. There is a sense of order; darkness is absence of light. "The deep" is not the sea, but the primeval mass of water thought to underlie the earth's formless earth.

Light Created and Separated from Darkness, Genesis 1:3-5. And God said, Let there be light; and there was light; and God divided the light from the darkness.

And God called the light Day, and the darkness he called Night. And the morning clearly is that what God enables man to do—for speech and language are the gift of God—by a well understood rule God is said to do for himself."

And there was evening and there was morning. Evening is doubtless mentioned before morning because the Jewish day began at sunset. One day, a "day" in Genesis has nothing to do with our period of 24 hours, nor with a period of countless years. "It is a beautiful device—this use of a week of days and nights—to show that creation was not instantaneous. The writer might have introduced any other time measurement. He might have employed years, or centuries, or cycles. But the most convenient, the simplest, scale was the week of seven days to help us to the thought of continuous creative energy" (John H. Vincent).

The Work of the Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth Days, Genesis 1:6-25. On the second day, the firmament was created and the chaotic waters were divided; on the third day, land and water were separated and vegetation was created; on the fourth day, the sun, moon and stars were created; on the fifth day, fishes and birds, mammals, cattle and creeping creatures. Geology teaches that the earth was slowly formed; biology speaks of the gradual development of species; Genesis omits the method of creation.

Health League of Canada presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

FOR HAPPY HOLIDAYS

Summer is generally looked upon as a restorative season—a time when we can laugh and play and generally relax in our glorious summer sunshine and so generally build up our resistance for the more demanding winter months.

Summer too though brings its health hazards which, whilst well known to all, are unfortunately neglected by thousands. Contaminated water and milk, unsafe food supplies, over familiarity with "old sol" or poison ivy, to say nothing of the possible tragedy of drowning, may mar the holiday you had planned to restore your health.

The Health League of Canada offers the following rules for safe and happy holidays:

1. Take sunbaths in easy doses.
2. Learn what poison ivy looks like and teach your children too—then avoid it.
3. Be sure your water-supply is pure.
4. Make certain the milk you buy is pasteurized—if not, pasteurize it yourself.
5. Don't take too much exercise at once.
6. Don't swim on a full stomach.
7. Learn how to paddle or row.
8. Learn how to do artificial respiration—you may save somebody's life.

Would Save Tea

Some People Contend Teaspoonful To Cup Is Not Necessary

T. R. Henry, in the Toronto Telegram says:

While all this talk of a "teaspoon a cup and one for the pot," with the one for the pot eliminated, has been floating around we discreetly held our peace.

That has been our creed until our own tea-maker said she only used a teaspoonful for several cups.

Now we have a supporter for her view.

"Tea Drinker" writes in to say that a teaspoon of tea to each cup makes a darn good shingle stain.

"I can make five or six good cups out of one spoonful," she writes.

We will have to refer this matter to somebody who got their "T" at Varsity.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Shadwell in the late afternoon lay in shadow cast by the magnificent old trees. The men standing about in groups talked and smoked and watched the house. In the lane stood Todd's coupe, Taylor's sedan and several other cars, some with the patrol emblem on the sides. A message had arrived that Knox and the reporters avidly hoped to talk with one of the three men in conference in the drawing room.

"We'll be asked to withdraw, to facilitate the payment of the ransom," ventured one of the State troopers. "Whoever did this job is slick enough to make certain that he won't get caught."

"Randolph won't find it easy to raise a fortune for his daughter's release. Those stolen gold bricks put a damper on that," suggested another.

"That won't make much difference. He can get any amount. He could even sell his interest in the Cricket Hill for enough to pay it."

"Have you ever seen the girl?" The younger man nodded. "Yes. I grew up in Tahlahneka. Tamar and I used to go to the same Sunday school. A beautiful girl, with enough vitality and charm to knock 'em cold. Every one of us more than 16 and under 60 were in love with her."

He lit another cigarette, stepping on the stub of the old and aging it off the drive with the toe of his polished boot. Somehow it seemed surreptitious to mar even the outdoors of Shadwell with a cigarette stub.

One of the men pointed suddenly across the terrace and over into the meadows on the east. "What in the world—"

A wagon followed by half a dozen Negro children and two or three men was going slowly over the old track leading to the stables.

"It's the mare that was killed. They are going to bury her in the plot they've used for their horses. Look see to the right, there's a tall shaft to Tahlahneka I. My father was in on the derby there years ago in succession and said that he was the greatest race horse I all times. Tamar's mare was a pretty little thing called Wisp. I understand that she broke her leg and had to be shot."

"Some connection between the mare and the abduction and the missing gold, if I know what I think I know!" The speaker had gone past the stables and turned out again into the lane.

The boys gathered around and across the lawns and [illegible] their way to the plot.

The arrival of the big front door slammed and Taylor came out hurriedly. He spoke briefly to the police in charge near the house and got into his car. One of the newspaper men edged toward the door.

In the drawing room Randolph and Knox Randolph were deep in thought. Ranney still had the message clutched in his hand. It was a telegram and had been sent an hour before from Atlanta.

Taylor had already investigated the source of the wire, but the operator had not noticed anything out of the ordinary about the message and had therefore not paid any particular attention to the way he had received it. He only knew that it had been called in from a downtown hotel. Police were already investigating the clues they might find there. So far they had only waited to hear more.

The message was brief. "Meet me alone Duck Point Junction for instructions and identification note therein. Tonight." It was addressed to Knox Randolph, Shadwell, Tahlahneka, and signed Louie.

Taylor had clerks going through files checking on the Louies in the records. They ranged through a large group of aliens with citizenship papers down to Americans with doubtful aliases, astonishingly many.

"I'll go, Mr. Randolph. I think that it would be better for me to go than for you to make the trip alone. I'm armed and meeting a desperate gangster."

"No, Ranny. I must follow the instructions out to the letter. I'll do nothing to cause them any reason for not returning Tamar safely."

Phoebe entered the room softly dropping another log fire on her log stone shoes. "De reporkshaw wants to know if dey kin see you?"

"No, Phoebe. Please tell them. We have nothing further to say at this time." As she left the room, Knox turned to Ranny with a hopeless gesture. "This uncertainty is terrible. I could get the ransome tonight, but instead I have to wait for instructions that may take days to carry out. We'll have to get the co-operation of the police on this. No one else must follow me tonight when I leave. But you must go along the highway after me, to make sure of that."

The evening's dread monotony was broken by Phoebe demanding them to come to the breakfast room and eat some supper. Ranny tried to choke the food down for Knox's sake. It was like sawdust to him. He wondered if Tamar were hungry or cold. He remembered well the green sweater and the corduroy slacks Phoebe had told him she wore away. Inside his coat pocket he carried the little gold ring that he had found where the plane had taken off that had taken her away.

After they had eaten, Dick Sheridan and his father came to see if there had been any further information or if there were anything that they could do.

"We're not had a chance to find out about Christopher Rande's whereabouts," Ranny said as they settled down in the drawing room once more.

Taylor said that he had flown east for a couple of days and was coming out to Pinecrest tonight. I think that there's absolutely no connection with his leaving and all of this."

Ranny dug his fist deep into his trouser pocket. "I wish that I didn't think so. But there must be somebody pretty brainy back of this. I honestly don't believe Mack Trego had anything to do with the kidnapping. He simply was bewildered about the airplane."

He acted as though the airplane might have been there waiting for the gold bricks to be flown to some safe cache. If that is so, what became of them? It seems to me that whoever took Tamar, decided that it might be more profitable than the gold."

Dick went back out to his car to bring in the evening papers. Almost the whole of the front page was covered with the story. It had the war news and the international stories crowded into inconspicuous places with small headlines. Ransome and Dick redd carefully part of it.

The fact that a message had been received was there, but no mention of the contents of it had been revealed. Everything seemed suspended waiting for the next movement which was unknown to both the police and the public.

At 9 o'clock several of the reporters left and the police asked Mr. Randolph his desires concerning the guarding the place. One man was left, and the others sent away. Ranny sat conveniently by the telephone most of the early part of the evening, but it was Sheridans left.

Traffic had slowed down considerably, and the night lay dark and silently about Shadwell. Finally Randolph went out to the garage and got out his car and Ranny waited until the little red light had disappeared down the highway before he followed in his coupe. The only thing he must do was to make certain that the police were not following Knox.

Ranny speeded up to keep the tail light of the other car within seeing distance. A while after he dropped back until he could find it only infrequently, as they turned corners and climbed hills.

At five until 11, Ranny drew his car off the highway, about a mile from the Duck Point Junction. He knew that he must not go any closer, or the negotiations might not be made. Knox would have had kept the police from interfering with this plan, by simply not telling them the destination of his journey.

Ranny watched the highway, but at this late hour nothing but trucks of produce were passing, excepting for an occasional car of tourists. It was a nice place for loitering, and he mentally decerted about this time at night.

Knox Randolph slowed down at the junction. He saw no waiting car, but did see the glint of a cigarette. He knew must be down in the shadows of the moss-covered trees by the creek.

He sat there impatiently for about 15 minutes. There was no sign of life by the car and the dim light. The moon was hidden tonight by clouds that passed fitfully across it. Randolph knew that he must struggle to restrain himself or he would throttle the man.

Suddenly a car started up down by the willows. He could see it coming toward his own. The driver flashed his lights fully into his eyes, blinding him with its glare. As it passed him, he felt the thud of something against the side of his car, and then that it was something explaining the note of instructions. The car swerved rapidly onto the highway and disappeared. Ranny tried concrete which was now visible in the moonlight showing through a hole in the floor.

Randolph opened his door and played a flashlight on the ground. It was a small box. Ranny tried to choke the food down for Knox's sake. It was like sawdust to him. He wondered if Tamar were hungry or cold. He remembered well the green sweater and the corduroy slacks Phoebe had told him she wore away. Inside his coat pocket he carried the little gold ring that he had found where the plane had taken off that had taken her away.

Britain Recognizes Importance Of Small Shopkeepers In Commerce

One of the unsung heroes of Great Britain's war effort is the little fellow with a shop who has tried to keep his business going. The call for fighting men and war workers has drained one-half of the pre-war personnel of 1,500,000 in non-food retail trades. Demand for raw materials has cut heavily into the volume of goods available for sale. The Liabilities Act of 1941 has helped ameliorate the lot of those caught in the jam. A report in Bulletins From Britain explains how it works.

A small shopkeeper faced with financial liabilities on account of the pressures of war can apply to the Liabilities Adjustment Officer in his district for "advice and assistance in enabling him to arrive at an equitable and reasonable scheme of arrangement with his creditors and, in particular, at such a scheme of arrangement as will enable him to preserve that business or to recover it when circumstances permit." Experts will enable him to postpone the payment of debts for such periods as they think fit and will exempt from seizure premises and other property that may be necessary to carry on the business. If a court decides to permit a debtor to remain in possession of leased premises it may reduce his rent to its "current letitable value." It can reduce the rate of interest on mortgage loans or postpone payment. The small shopkeeper has long been an important cog in the machinery of British commerce. —New York Sun.

New Supply Line

Beaverons Map Out Line From India To China

In the cover some of the most difficult terrain in the world, two groups of hard surveyors are mapping a new supply line from India to China which the Chinese hope may be in operation before the end of the year.

The new route planned to replace the Burma road closed by the Japs when will run from northeast India to Sikiang, about 300 miles southwest of Chungking. Chinese sources said the entire distance is 40 miles, but scores of miles will be added by the tortuous curves made necessary by lofty mountains.

It is believed the new supply line may be ready for service by Christmas, when a stream of bullock carts and pack ponies will resume the freight handling now by fast motor trucks on the Burma road.

Even If Canadians Cannot Have Canned Herring And Salmon Because Britain's food needs are so great Canada's housewives aren't going to get any canned salmon or canned herring from the Dominion's 1942 packs but there'll be other good Canadian canned fish for them for example, chicken haddie—and that gives added interest to the new method of processing Iceland pack" which has been receiving attention from some canners. Canned chicken haddie combines the good qualities of three fine sea fish, haddock, cod and hake, for it is defined under the pack" method of preparation are that it results in leavened flaking of the fish and that consequently the product is of especially attractive appearance and lends itself to an increased variety of uses. Consumers in the United Kingdom, by the way, are said to regard "Iceland pack" fish as particularly acceptable

On the other hand, however, "Iceland pack" production is somewhat more costly than chicken haddie by means of the ordinary method of putting up chicken haddie and that may mean a higher price for the consumer The greater cost in production is largely due to the fact that some 40% raw material is required to produce say 100 pounds of "Iceland pack" than would be needed to produce a hundred pounds of chicken haddie prepared in the usual way Brandon Sun.

Germ Warfare

Japs Said To Have Spread Bubonic Germs In China

Japan has waged "germ warfare" against China for the last six months, Robert Barnett, United China Relief representative said.

Barnett who has returned to New York from a flying trip to China, said he had in his files "documentary proof" given him by Chinese health authorities that bubonic germs had been spread by the Japanese "frequently in the last six months," particularly in Hunan and Chekiang provinces

Though some deaths resulted, Barnett said, there were no widespread epidemics.

MRS. GEO. W. WRIGHT BEREAVED BY DEATH OF FATHER AT COLINTON

The District of Athabasca lost its oldest and one of its most revered citizens in the passing from this life of Mr. Thomas Watson at the age of ninety-two years. Mr Watson had been a resident of the district since 1904 when he moved to Colinton four years in advance of the railway and he is also well known in the Edmonton and Vermilion districts.

Mr Watson was born in Scotland in 1850 and came to Canada with his parents at the age of three. While en route, the sailing ship they crossed the ocean on was caught in an ice and emerged ice bery which shifted its weight in the sea while the ship was passing over. For several hours the boat was held on a ledge just above water. Three sailors were lost in an attempt to shift the sails so that they might obtain sufficient force to pull the ship off the slippery berg. Mr. Watson could still remember distinct ly his father and brother making their his other brothers and sisters about them when the captain told them that all was lost; and the relief they felt when the vessel at last slipped off the iceberg into the water again.

The Watson family settled in Brockville at Whitby, Ontario, where Thomas grew up and later married Miss Catherine Russel of Ashton, Ontario. To their home at Lobtos, now a junction of Toronto, until their removal to the Athabasca district. Previous to this time Mr. Watson had made two trips west as far as Winnipeg. On the second trip he bought property which is now in the centre of the city of Winnipeg. The first trip was made before the railway had reached Winnipeg. On one occasion, a witnessed a war dance of sitting Bull's tribe, on the eve of the Riel-Rebellion. At this time the citizens of the small village were instructed by the police to keep inside the town limits after dusk, under the protection of the garrison, but people were not greatly alarmed, believe that war was imminent as they were in 1899.

At Colinton Thomas Watson and sons have built up an interesting industry in fruit trees, now numbering over two hundred, with a wide variety in the standard apples, crap apples, pears, plums, cherries and small fruits.

Mr. Watson is survived by his wife, Catherine Russell Watson, one daughter Mrs. George W. Wright (Cecelia Barbara) of Vermilion, two sons, Thomas and William both of Colinton, and seven grandchildren.

The eldest son, Russell, died in action at Cambrai in 1918. One daughter, Mrs. G. E. Ludlow (Helen) of Vancouver, died in 1927.

The funeral service was held in the United church at Colinton on Monday June 29th, transition was on June 28 1942.

OBITUARY

CECIL RODFORD SCOTT

The funeral of Cecil Rodford Scott, nine-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Scott of Greenlawn, was held in the Greenlawn hall on Thursday, June 18th. The Rev. Mr. Haythorne conducted the services and based his sermon on that of comfort to the bereaved parents for the loss of such a young life.

Mrs Maddox, Mr. Green and Mr. and Mrs. Rieger, accompanied by Mrs. Green at the organ, sang some very beautiful hymns during the service. The children of the Ellsworth school were given time off to order that they might pay their last respects to a fellow pupil and playmate. Four of Rody's young friends acted as pall-bearers, Edison Thompson, Willie Scott, Albert Matlock and Lyle Knowlehil. Interment took place in the Ivanberry cemetery.

It will be remembered that Rody was drowned in Blackbourne Lake, under unknown circumstances on May 30th. Some time later until the funeral the body lay in state at Warnke's Funeral Parlor in Vermilion, a sorrowful arrival of the father who is pursued in war work in the east. L. AC Arnold Scott of the R.C.A.F., who is also stationed at Vancouver Island, an older brother of the deceased, was also able to be home for the funeral. The family have the sincere sympathy father and mother, two brothers and five sisters, one of whom is married, Mrs. Day Ferguson.

Beautiful floral tributes were received from:

Mother and Dad; Sisters Anita and Lynne; Dad and Gigi; Barry and Arnold; Sisters Joan and Ruth; Aunt Olive, Uncle Freddy and June; Aunt Ruby, Uncle Ray and family; Aunt Beth, Uncle Cecile and Larry; Aunt Emily; Grandma, Grandpa, Uncle Bill, Aunt Bertha, Norma and Willie; A. H. Stone and family; Curtis family; Ryan family; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. McMullen; Joe and Tom and Mrs. Alex Sillaire; Mr. and Mrs. W. Jones; Jack and Dora; Emma Storn; Mr. and Mrs. Northey; Eugene Hamilton; Sylvia Ryan; Vernon.

WEDDING BELLS

Old Mother Nature surely observed the law in her last week. It was without doubt the best soaker this part has had in a long while. It was the kind of rain the farmers pray for when she said "Uh, Lord send us a rain, not the kind the preacher or the priest prays for, but a steady drenching, the dirty rassley sod soaking rain." We think that just explains our last weeks endeavor. You can verify from our things grown the these days.

A few of the ladies of the B.W.I. club in the persons of Mrs. Cantell, Mrs. G. Cameron, Mrs. Frank Gibson and Mrs. Burke are the hostesses. We must know the ladies handy and serving etc., all through the summer as there is an urgent appeal to do so from the Red Cross and other organizations. Mr. George Wilson and Naomi Freeman have both returned from the hospital. Both, we hope, are improving nicely.

We were very sorry indeed to see by the Turkey Hill news that Mrs Mintie and Mrs. Lamb were in the hospital, and we wish them a speedy recovery in health. We extend the same hearty wish to Mrs. C. C. Smith of town on her recent serious illness.

Mr. McGillivary is going to leave us and his cheery smile and genial way will be missed by us no matter where one met him you were sure of that friendly welcome. But we do wish him a very pleasant journey and good health, for many more years in his new home.

The writer's other brother, Pte. Sid Graham is now stationed at Aurora not a great distance from brother Lawrence. He reports strawberries and cherries very plentiful. We would stand a few out here what my folks' Pte. Graham's family are residing in Edmonton. Mrs. Graham's health is not generally improved yet from her attack of pneumonia early in May.

The Smith boys have been busy shearing sheep these past few days, Messrs. Macnab's and Kendall's.

On Sunday Alec Smith in company with his folks visited his sister Mrs. Chas. Morand of Tyjungle. Alec will have to return to work again the end of this week. His holiday soon gone by.

VERMILION AND HYNDMAN AIR CADETS LEAVE FOR CAMP

Will Spend Week at Battleford

Climaxing their period of training locally for the past 10 months, 21 Vermilion and 22 Myrnam and Derwent Cadets, under the command of Cadet P.O. Armishaw, Myrnam, left on the Sunday morning's train for camp at Battleford. For a period of one week there they will be given specialized training and be entertained as a reward for their faithful attendance as parades during the season. As stated before there is absolutely nothing in the Cadet oath to tie those boys down to compulsory service and they deserve all the more credit for the manner in which they have stayed with lectures when other boys were out playing ball and other activities.

The camp this season have constituted inets and splices, coached by Don Smith; signalling, instructor Mr. J. Eddington; Air Frames and air flight, instructor Mr. Foster Stone, who ordered his services as soon as he came to town; the manual training has been handled by Mr. Ken McDonald, assisted by Art Wiebe, Don Taylor and Max Ostrofsky, the latter two being Commandant and Adjutant respectively. Those men have given their time freely and carried on with the boys under some rather difficulty, mostly from lack of co-operation from some sources. They all deserve the utmost credit as the training in both the ground and air, beneficial to the boys in later life, and we have in the past ignored that very essential part of the working of a democracy, our Youth.

Those attending from here are D. Carvey B. Bobic, E. Beswick, E. Bennett, E. Cook, H. Harris, E. Brimacombe W. Simmonds, C. Davis, R. Reid, G. Hetherington, L. Williams, W. Chaisson, D. Harrington, D. Grieg, K. Mcdonald, G. Cameron, K. Donahue, R. Spencer C. Bohme and K. Dowdell.

The Cadets from Myrnam and Derwent arrived in Vermilion on Saturday evening and made their Headquarters at the Legion hall. Late that evening they were joined by the Vermilion Cadets and at 11.30 lunch was served to the boys by the W.A. to the Cadets' Legion

ROAD IMPROVEMENT STARTS NORTH OF TOWN

Contract Let By Vermilion Valley Municipal District

Contractor Theo. Keenan with a big outfit of two elevating graders, caterpillars etc., has been awarded the contract to regrade 2 miles of road north of town starting at the Vermilion River bridge and for the half mile leading west to the Edward road. Work has already started and an expenditure of some $5000 over the amount usually expended on road work is being made by the M.D. of Vermilion Valley.

The road will be graded up to government standard which calls for 26 feet wide with certain slope to the ditch. It must pass government inspection.

Announcement of this program will prove good news to the farmers as many of them have been complaining of the roughness and rocks in this particular thoroughfare.

It is hoped the program will also regrade the connecting link between the old highway and the new one at Borradaile necessitating some mile and a quarter of work. Oil interests and Vermilion Valley M.D. are already cooperating on gravelling roads leading to the conditional plant.

EAST ARCHERBURY DEGREE IN HEISKSBERG DISTRICT

A very sad accident happened on the farm of Mike Kawal of the Heiksberg district last Monday when Kawal's five-year-old son Eddie ran in front of a hay mower his father was driving. The boy suffered a deep cut above his left foot, an artery was apparently severed and it was found impossible to stop the profuse bleeding. He was rushed to the 52th Public hospital but the loss of blood has been too great and the little chap passed away on Friday morning. The funeral was held on Saturday

BLAY BOY INSTRUCTOR IN UNITED STATES

Malcolm Urquhart, Islay, Alberta graduate in honors economics from the University of Alberta, has become an instructor at the Cambridge (Mass) Institute of Technology. It was learned Saturday

A son of Mr. and Mrs. William Urquhart, he won the governor-general's gold medal in 1940. He left for the University of Chicago on a fellowship in October, 1941, and has recently been granted another fellowship.

He will instruct in statistics and economic theory at the institute.

VERMILION SCHOOL NOW C.W.A.C. CENTRE

35 Instructors Arrive With Like Number Expected Next Week; Welcomes Being Planned.

MAIN BODY TO ARRIVE IN AUGUST

With accommodation for training 500 women, a Canadian Women's Army Corps basic training centre for western Canada has now been opened in the school of agriculture buildings here. 35 members of the permanent instructors staff arrived this week with a like number expected by the 15th of July. The main body of troops will commence arriving in August. The C.W.A.C. is now conducting a recruiting drive across Canada and the Vermilion training centre is the only one in western Canada.

To see activity of the "School Hill" these days is most pleasing to the people of Vermilion. Silent halls and empty classrooms for nearly two years were getting on their nerves especially during the winter months when they were so accustomed to boys and girls going back and forth and joining in with the usual activities in the town "below". Animation is however, the order of the day and military and setting up there of a series of steel double bunk beds. The heat ing system has also been checked over and repaired.

Trainees will be recruited from the military districts of Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Victoria, the centre in Edmonton is full strength. It may be mentioned that one of the closest companions for the girls will be a well known health resort on the coast range of the Canadian Rockies. This is the second school opened in all of Canada, the other being in the East

Already uniforms of the Corps are appearing on our streets, smart and trim in their khaki, making a good favorable impression. No doubt the people of Vermilion will take these girls to their hearts already, Mayor Morrison has called a meeting of representatives of different church, social, sports and patriotic organizations to meet this week and discuss the matter of providing means of recreation for the "time off" of the girls.

—!—!—!—

Rock Mead explored a very badly smashed hand on Monday when he accidentally placed that member on the pole of a mower. He was being driven down with a load from a back thought it operator on the pole and had been blindfolded. He was brought in to the hospital where the injured hand is now being treated.

Legion Hears Report On Dominion Convention

Members Also Bid Mr. and Mrs. K. E. Rowe Adieu

A very enjoyable and instructive evening was held at the Legion Club rooms on Monday evening July 2nd when some 50 members of the Vermilion Legion Auxiliary gathered together to hear a report from the Provincial President of the Legion W. S. C. Heckbert, on the proceedings at the annual Convention held in Winnipeg the latter part of May. This was listened to with interest by all, present as Comrade Heckbert gave a summary of the conventions and the hundreds of resolutions dealt with. These were pleas for better conditions among ex-service men, mostly they dealt with injustices in the present war and the betterment conditions for the boys who are serving in the active forces. Mr. Heckbert expressed the appreciation of the organization to the government for the sympathetic hearing that has been accorded at all times and the results obtained have been evidence enough of the fairness of the Legion's presentations. He particularly mentioned one case where a local man had been drowned while on duty in Canada and his widow immediately cut off from any pay and allowances. This matter after being pressed for about a year by the Legion has finally culminated in that widow and her family receiving a reasonable pension, so that she can now raise her family in comfort and not have to rely on charity. He stated that the membership of the two organizations now totals over 287,000, and this was made up of small branches with the latter city branches thrown in the pool

Resolutions were also passed at the meeting urging the government to provide a bonus for the boys who are serving in the active forces, and also that the government should provide a bonus for the boys who are serving in the active forces, and also that the government should provide a bonus for the boys who are serving in the active forces.

Before he said that if you want to find the true spirit of the Legion you have to look to the rural areas, and this applied to all similar groups the small communities making up the strength of the Dominion. The address was well received and a very warm evening was evidence of the interest of all present and the idea of bringing the two organizations together for a meeting of this kind gave the ladies a chance to really hear first hand what a great army is at work and action is being carried on.

On the conclusion of Mr Heckbert's address a question period was held when he answered a number of inquiries on various matters, after which Comrade Wolf moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Heckbert for his fine meeting. Comrade Johnson seconded and it was carried with a rousing cheer.

The President Comrade Taylor took the opportunity, on behalf of himself and Mrs. Rowe, to express appreciation of the many kindnesses shown to them by the members of the Legion and Auxiliary during the time they have been residents of Vermilion. He said that it would be hard to fill Herb Comrade Heckbert and our beloved Padre Verb deacon Lawrence, particularly in their sterling qualities and in the time they have been residents of Vermilion they have won the confidence and esteem of all with whom they have come in contact. He said that Mr. and Mrs. Rowe left and that we hoped the time would come after the war was over when we should have them with us again.

A dainty lunch was served in the form of sandwiches and coffee and for a half hour was enjoyed after which the meeting closed with Auld Lang Syne and God Save the King.

RECORD OUTPUT VERMILION REFINERY FOR JUNE

Dr. Hume Visits the Field

Vermilion's importance as an oil producing centre in gaining national recognition and this area is making a distinctive contribution to the war effort. Tons of freight is being transported across Canada today by means of power generated by Vermilion oil

June registered a new record in the field output when the Vermilion Refinery Company Ltd. recorded an all time high of 214,364 gallons of processed oil shipped from Borradaile

The Refinery Company has under consideration additional raw oil storage "sump" of over 6000 barrels. The Company also has plans for additional capacity for processing purposes

The step-up in production has now reached a point of dependable performance and wells are showing no signs getting an air school

The well in the vicinity of the J.J. Hill residence was discussed and it was decided to have it cleaned out.

It was decided to advertise some slack coal at the power plant for use of hog feeders for sale in ton lots.

The general assessment of this year was discussed but no appointment was made so far.

The following motions carried:

Stewart — Bushell: That application of J. E. Bundell for steam beat be accepted

Scott — Porter: That S.W.S. Dept Ry. Ltd. be granted permission to cross street in front of their Lot No. 15 Blk 1, Plan 6647R, it being a condition that the company be responsible for upkeep of said crossing and to have proper culvert placed.

Porter — Scott: That clothes as requested by Salvation Army for Anzac Cragsford be purchased.

Porter — Scott: That Lot No 22 Blk. 28 Plan 6978 be sold to Betty Caldwell for $125.00.

Stewart — Kaiser: That a gratuity of $5 per month be paid to H. P. Long for six months ending December 31st, 1942.

Meeting adjourned.

Subject to confirmation of Council.

Importance Of The Farm

AS WE LOOK FORWARD to another harvest season, when the crops from Canada's farms and gardens are ready to be gathered, we may feel that here is an assurance of plenty of many vital food stuffs for ourselves and others of the United Nations Canada's contributions from her dairies, farms and orchards are playing a great part in keeping the people of England supplied with food, and grain and other food products are being sent elsewhere to our Allies as they are needed and as there are facilities for transporting them. Our soldiers, sailors and airmen are known to us by their uniforms, and their deeds of gallantry are recorded in the press. This is as it should be, but perhaps too few people give due recognition to the farmer, who also plays an important role in the conflict. For the men in the services, the workers on the home front, and the civilian population, the supply of food is essential, both her and in Britain.

Shortage Of Farm Labor

Young men from Canadian farms have gone in large numbers to the armed services, and to munition factories, with a resulting shortage of farm labor, which leaves many farmers to carry on, attempting to keep up production with real difficulty. Recent figures have shown that the average age of the Canadian farmer is past middle life, yet he is now often doing the work unduly long hours, and to do the work ordinarily done by several men, due to the shortage of help. In some cases this has led to a farmer feeling forced to curtail production, and disposal of livestock. When and where the harvest season, this condition may be acute in some parts of the country, but it is to be hoped that sufficient labor will be made available and that in no parts of the country will there be a reduction in the production of vital food stuffs, because of lack of workers.

* * * * *

Depending On Canada

In some sections school boys and men from nearby towns have been offered to assist with the harvest, and recent government regulations have been aimed at restricting the movement of farm workers to other industries Canada is one of the few countries left where extensive production of food is possible, and nothing should be allowed to slow down this part of our war effort. In his recent budget speech Finance Minister Ilsley said: "Excluding wheat which has been in surplus supply since the beginning of the war and has required special assistance, the prices of farm products on the average are now about two per cent. above the level of 1926 and prices of animal products are relatively still higher. Farmers are assured of these prices on a wide range of their products by the government action, higher prices, than these now ruling for wheat, flax, soy beans, sugar beets and apples." The problems of the farmer today, as always, are many and all possible support should be given him to keep his production at a high level in these critical times.

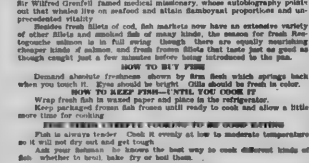
NONE FOR PETS

Pets, whether kittens or horses, cannot have sugar ration cards, wartime prices and trade board officials said. These officials told pet owners if they wanted to continue feeding their animals sugar it must come from their own allowance.

TAKING PRECAUTIONS

Just in case London should suffer heavy bombings again, many churches in the city have removed their treasures to places of safekeeping in the country, including pulpits, screens, fonts altar tables and even organs.

ANOTHER FISH YOAN HEALTH BOOK



"We fish don't swim in the ocean only to be eaten on Friday and what with submarine warfare it is increasingly difficult to stay out of trouble all week." So chairman of a coddish colony said in an underwater interview last week, explaining that numbers of his colleagues were not only willing but eager to win dietary recognition on another day besides Friday

Tuesday, for instance." the elderly doyen of the codfish colony said . . . Comparing the value of fish with other foods, the chairman quoted the late Sir Wilfred Grenfell famed medical missionary, whose autobiography points out that whales live on seafood and attain Samboyant proportions and unprecedented vitality

Besides fresh fillets of cod, fish markets now have an extensive variety of other fillets and smoked fish of many kinds, the season for fresh Restigouche salmon is in full swing though there are equally nourishing cheaper kinds of salmon, and fresh frozen fillets that taste just as good as though caught just a few minutes before being introduced to the pan.

HOW TO BUY FISH

Demand absolute freshness as shown by firm flesh which springs back when you touch it. Eyes should be bright Gills should be fresh in color.

HOW TO KEEP FISH—UNTIL YOU COOK IT

Wrap fresh fish in waxed paper and place in the refrigerator.

Keep packaged frozen fish frozen until ready to cook and allow a little more time for cooking

FINE FISH LIBELLE COOKING TO BE GOOD EATING

Fish is always tender. Cook it evenly at low to moderate temperature so it will not dry out and get tough

Ask your fishman to know the best way to cook different kinds of fish whether to broil bake fry or boil them.

DID YOU EVER TRY?

Flaking the left over fish to mix with mashed potato for fish cakes next day?

Cream sauce to serve on toast?

Making a salmon loaf from canned pink salmon which is inexpensive?

Dressing up the fish by pouring over it a little melted butter flavored with lemon or Worcestershire sauce.

WHAT DO YOU SERVE WITH FISH?

For the main phase—Fish, mashed potato and another cooked vegetable. For a crisp bit to the supper—Cole slaw; a green salad, raw carrot sticks.

To fill the gaps Bread and butter.

To end with that satisfied feeling:—Something light and sweet, or cheese and crackers.

Have you received your referential vitamin chart? Write for it to Dept. W.N.U., Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto. Ask also for a fish recipe booklet giving 100 recipes for fish cookery.

Frequently Die Natural

These Often Taking Stupendous Risks And Living Tremendously

Generals are customarily reputed to die in bed but that has been less true in this war than in any other for a long time, says the St. Thomas Times-Journal. Nevertheless, it is true that most men who live adventurous lives, who habitually manage ingedangerously, do not die while carrying out some risky adventure. Billy Bishop, who died at Niagara Falls recently, died from natural cause, yet he had carried out exploits in the Niagara River as the Niagara Rapids, which made his name known far and wide. By the law of averages he ought to have lost his life by drowning long ago. In addition to that he went through the First World War and was wounded at Vimy Ridge

Bobby Leach, the first man to go over the Falls in a barrel, was killed as the result of slipping on a banana skin on the sidewalk. Bendo, the tight-rope walker, crossed the Falls from shore to shore several times, performing stunt on the swaying rope and died in bed forty years later. We believe, too, that there is an Ontario man still alive who performed the same trick—he was the late Sir Adam Wilson, who died at Niagara Falls recently, died from natural cause, yet he had carried out exploits in the Niagara River as the Niagara Rapids, which made his name known far and wide. By the law of averages he ought to have lost his life by drowning long ago. In addition to that he went through the First World War and was wounded at Vimy Ridge

Considering the number of wild animal acts, very few "lion tamers" are killed by their charges. Almost all are scratched or mauled from time to time. This is the more remarkable because they perform through their performances at least twice a day, sometimes oftener, for about a week. Another of the late Clyde Beatty, who misses forty lions and tigers together, says the secret of his immunity is that although he thinks it is possible he may be killed one day, he never enters the cage without saying to himself: "It's not going to be today."

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

An ingenious reporter made a tour of gasoline stations a few weeks ago and demonstrated how to buy gasoline without using up coupons.

He wrote an article that was featured heavily in his paper and a number of readers spoke of it as a fine public service.

To the Enforcement Counsel of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board the article looked a little different.

They said: "It would have been a fine public service if the bright young man had brought the information to us so we could act on it instead of letting 200,000 readers how to do it!"

A narrow view? I don't think so. It wasn't that the lawyer feared a prosecution would result from the law. But he did know from sad experience that a percentage would.

It's something like these "Crime Does Not Pay" movies. You show potential gangsters and racketeers how to do something they hadn't thought of and then point a moral.

Nine times out of ten the person at whom the moral is pointed pays no heed to it. And those who do heed it don't need it!

A somewhat similar situation arose a few months ago when a new racket was uncovered in one Canadian city. This one was operated by a man who took fraudulent chances on the call which he administered to young men who did not want to serve in the army.

Reporters who got hold of the story, admirably, from a newspaperman's point of view, wanted to get their teeth into the story and uncover all the details.

When, however, it was explained to them that publication of these details not only might encourage other malefactors to start similar rackets but might also result in deaths from internal injury with dangerous cases the whole story dropped from sight.

This parallel between what we civilians and the Canadian Army gets every strong at times, doesn't it?

Yes, I mean just that. The dealer in gasoline who aids a motorist to evade the gasoline regulations is guilty of treason. So are those who by their actions or lack of action make it more difficult for the army to do its job.

A few days ago I travelled for sometime on the same train as Major-General the Honorable Norman Rogers, Director-General of the Reserve Army, and that was one of the questions we discussed.

A big monster Reserve Army is no far below strength in the centres in which units are established that the first job to be done is its recruitment up to strength and the training of men who are handy to the Armouries. Except in towns where there are Armouries it is hard to find suitable headquarters. Eventually, however, plans will be established to make reserve training available to as many who are not eligible for active service as possible.

Major-General Rogers was on his way to Montreal to address a meeting of the Recruiting Committee that has set itself the task of raising 10,000 men for the Reserve Army in that city.

He said that similar campaigns in Toronto and the West had been very successful and that they had reached their quotas in a very short time.

A funny thing got into the papers a few days ago. It was a story from Ottawa saying that the Army would follow the lead of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board by prohibiting uniform trousers with cuffs and pleats.

What's funny about that? Just this, that it has been in force from the beginning for a long time that officers' slacks must not have cuffs. They never have had pleats.

So, as a matter of fact, the Individual Citizen's Army, in doing without cuffs and pleats on its trousers is following the Army's lead, not the other way round.

Here's a piece of Citizen's Army slang for a change. This is to be found on invitations. It is, "R.Y.O.T." or "R.Y.O.C." or "R.Y.O.R." The meaning? Simply "Bring your own use, or Bring your own coffee, or Bring your own sugar."

And why not? There's a war on! Most of all would it "Come on your own feet," there's plenty of use for gasoline in the Tank Corps.

The explosive pressure in a modern rifle is more than 19 tons per square inch.

Times Are Changing

Hotel In Boston Gets Permit To Erect Blocking Post

Boston granted his first hitching post permit in its 300-year history and simultaneously plans were made for horse troughs at centrally located gasoline stations.

The hitching post—no permit was required in the old days—went to Hotel Lenox. After once refusing the hotel, the board of street commissioners commented:

"Changing times, changing conditions and the revival of hacks and carriages on Boston streets have now made the hotel's proposal feasible and acceptable."

Nearby three and one-half centuries elapsed after the invention of gunpowder before sporting firearms came into general use.

Allied Seapower Fight To Smash Sub Offensive

Washington.—The United Nations high command has thrown the full force of available allied seapower into the fight to smash Hitler's U-boat offensive, the navy department disclosed with an announcement that Canadian and British warships are cruising side by side with United States vessels in the battle of the Atlantic.

Allied corvettes, destroyers and other "anti-submarine vessels" are at work from the Arctic to Dakar seas and in the campaign against submarines operating along the United States eastern seaboard, the statement revealed.

This means that hundreds of battle-toughened veterans of the first half years of U-boat warfare off Britain's shores now are helping the United States Naval raiders on this side of the Atlantic.

This and the presumably large number of additional vessels which by now have been thrown into the anti-submarine campaign raised hopes of experts here that a material lessening in U-boat depredations off the North American coast would be achieved this summer.

Recent important developments in this campaign would seem to strengthen this attitude of cautious optimism, though there are no figures on the profit side of allied operations.

These developments include:

1. The United States navy's announcement of June 22 that a convoy system had been instituted along the Atlantic seaboard from Maine to Florida. Previously, single sailings were heavily protected by small warships offer the best possible protection to shipping.

2. The disclosure shortly thereafter that enemy subs are planting mines along the eastern U.S. coastal coast and that a few sinkings from these mines had already occurred.

3. Announcement by the United States navy of merchant ships sinkings at a rate of two to four a day during the period in which the convoys have been operating. Most of these losses have occurred, however, in the Caribbean or other southern waters where convoys are not yet known to be in operation.

4. Evidence of the increasing speed of American production of special anti-submarine boats and the use by the navy of small, private craft for both a limited anti-sub patrol and also to release large coast guard vessels now tied up on routine harbor protection duties

EARNED AWARD

Saskatchewan Born Air Pilot Recommended By King George

Edmonton.—Captain Donald M. McVicar, of Edmonton, pilot with the Royal Air Force ferry command has received civil commendations from His Majesty the King for his part in a "hazardous survey of a certain route."

Former navigation pilot with Canadian Airways Training, Ltd., at No. 2 observer school, Capt. McVicar is the son of J. G. McVicar of Edmonton.

There was no explanation of the award in a news story released from Montreal over the weekend and the "certain route" was not otherwise identified.

The Edmonton pilot has been with the ferry command for the past six months, "wheeling" bombers across the Atlantic for use by the R.C.A.F. and R.A.F. in smashing raids on enemy objectives.

Born in Oxbow, Sask., he came to Edmonton at an early age, receiving his early training here. He was also educated at St John's college, Winnipeg, and the University of Alberta.

AID FROM VICHY

Claim That Support Was Given To Rommel In Egypt

Moscow Tass, Soviet news agency said that the Vichy government had played and is playing an important part in supplying war materials and transporting troops via French Tunisia for Nazi Marshal Erwin Rommel in Egypt

The Tass account, dated Geneva, Switzerland, said in part:

"French sea routes were used for secret concentration of German forces in North Africa which preceded Rommel's offensive."

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL

London.—Bomb damage to St. Paul's cathedral amounting to £150,000 ($650,000) was disclosed by Archdeacon E. N. Sharpe.

MAXIMUM PRICES

Order Issued Governing Number Of Items Sold By Canners

Ottawa.—Maximum prices at which canners may sell a number of items of their 1942 pack are set in an order issued by the wartime prices and trade board.

Affected are canned tomatoes and tomato juice, peas, corn, green and wax beans, peaches, pears, plums and apricots. Object of the order is to allow canners to sell those products at a price which will permit wholesalers and retailers to keep under their price ceiling and thus prevent any rise in prices to the consumer.

In explaining the order, the board said retail prices for canned fruits and vegetables of the 1941 pack were based largely on cost of the 1940 pack. Wholesalers and retailers constructed to buy the 1941 goods before they were packed. Canners found that their costs had gone up in 1941 before the ceiling was put into effect and as a result had to increase their prices in order to maintain just before the basic period. Wholesalers and retailers, however, sold canned goods during the basic period at prices reflecting the lower costs they obtained as a result of buying early in the season.

To enable wholesalers and retailers to continue selling canned goods at their ceiling prices, said the board, canners, wholesalers and retailers must absorb part of these increased costs. The board has decided to pay the canner a subsidy to take care of the balance of these increases. Thus the consumer will still be able to buy the basic items of canned fruits and vegetables at the same prices he paid during the basic period of Sept. 15-Oct. 11, 1941

Tribunal To Deal With Farm Debt Problem

Saskatoon. Creation of a tribunal or tribunals by "appropriate legislative authority" to deal with the farm debt problems of Western Canada will be sought by " governments of the prairie provinces and agrarian organizations.

Decision to ask federal authority for the "necessary machinery" to make such a plan possible was taken at the Prairie Farm Debts conference here.

Representatives of the governments of Manitoba Saskatchewan and Alberta will meet in Regina July 10-11 to prepare a submission of the proposal for Ottawa. Following the Regina meeting a delegation from the prairies will go to Ottawa

A resolution, moved by Robert Gardiner, president of the United Farmers of Alberta, declared the tribunal plan received the unanimous support of the conference

The ruling calls for granting the tribunal or tribunals power to write down the principal of farm debts, to reduce interest rates and to stay proceedings arising on debts or securities after an adjudication has been made

At the close of the two-day conference Premier William Aberhart of Alberta said in an interview

"I am confident the government at Ottawa will recognize the sincere desire of the West to clear away the barriers that have prevented the three prairie provinces from giving the very best in service to the nation."

He praised the co-operation shown by delegates at the conference, and said "I am convinced that the problem in connection with farm debt has received a consideration and examination never before given."

The following are the basic principles of the tribunal plan under which a debt adjustment organization would be empowered to function

1. To write down the principal of farm debts, secured and unsecured.

2. To reduce the interest rate on farm debts, secured and unsecured

3. To alter the terms of payment of farm debts, secured and unsecured

4 To review and revise its own decisions in the light of events subsequent to the making of the decisions

5. To extend to individuals in any particular year of circumstances the protection of any of the provisions of legislation available to any debtor, whose affairs are being administered

Under the plan debt adjustment would be made available to any farm debt regardless of the time at which it was incurred.

The conference which was under the chairmanship of Premier John Bracken of Manitoba, adjourned to be convened by the provincial authorities after the return of the delegation from Ottawa.

OF LITTLE BENEFIT

Adding Thousands To Income Would Not Greatly Benefit Taxpayer

Ottawa.—Finance Minister Ilsley's budget of last week will have the effect of placing a ceiling on incomes almost as effective as the ceiling on prices, officials said after a review of the taxation proposals.

Although the minister said he had studied and rejected the suggestion that a maximum level should be placed on the net income for any person, his proposed taxation will ride the rich with a tight rein

In the higher income brackets the addition of some hundreds of thousands of dollars to annual income will benefit the taxpayer very little.

Officials cited the case of the single man with an income of $50,000 annually. Under the proposed taxation he will have $14,297 left after he pays the Dominion levy. If he boosts his income to $100 000 annually he will have for himself only $18 462 after he has paid his taxes. This means that while he has increased his income $50,000, his net benefit in spending money will be $4,166

If he reaches into the realms of high finance and runs his income up to $500 000 a year, the income tax collector will march away with a bulging pockets and leave him with only $26,886

To all intents and purposes this $26 896 represents the ceiling on the single Canadian's income as those with incomes of more than $500 000 are about as rare as the dodo bird

Article Selling For Not More Than Fifty Cents Not Subject To Luxury Tax

Ottawa Jewelry selling at retail for not more than 50 cents is not subject to the new 25 per cent luxury tax imposed on jewelry under Finance Minister Ilsley's 1942-43 budget

An official summary of tax changes on budget night said that the tax was not applicable to jewelry items selling for less than 50 cents" whereas it would have read items selling for 50 cents or less"

The tax applies to "articles, commonly or commercially known as jewelry, whether real or imitation, including diamonds and other precious and semi-precious stones for personal use or for adornment of the person, goldsmiths and silversmiths' products including gold, silver, chromium or other plated war and pewter ware"

GREENLAWN OLD TIMERS
PICNIC A GREAT SUCCESS

Perfect Weather Brings Out A Large Crowd

The weatherman supplied an ideal last day for the Greenlawn Old Timers picnic on Wednesday, July 1, especially commendable when it was remembered that for the month previous rain had fallen every Wednesday. A bigger crowd than ever before was in attendance at the annual get-together which goes to show the increasing popularity of the event held on the grounds where people from Vermilion, Islay, Kitscoty and St. Paul as well as from the more immediate neighborhood.

A variety of amusement was on the program including races for boys and girls, ball and also for the men and women. Then there were horse races, ball games, and added attractions were a children's hobby horse and pie race.

In the ball tournaments Dewberry ladies won first in their class, Dewberry men won the softball and the Primula team captured the softball for men. The men's softball provided keen competition as there were seven teams entered.

The day was wound up by a Pie Social in the hall at night. The Helmberg orchestra supplied the music.

The committee in charge of the picnic decided to call a special meeting of the Old Time association to convene the disposition of monies. The Greenlawn Old Timers Ball held on the night previous gave $160 from the door receipts to the Queen's Canadian Fund for air raid victims. As a pie social and dance held early this year the association raised $25 for the Red Cross.

ISLAY

Well the First of July and the usual picnics are over once more — and what a visiting time we had at first class! Everybody there, and there were the usual ball games, races and jumps also Lloyd Brown managing the coconut shie, only it was stuffed dolls instead of coconuts.

The usual "Chest Clinic" for Islay will be at the hospital July 30th.

It is with a big smile we see Arnold Portets these days, for he is the father of a fine baby girl born in the Islay hospital Tuesday. Congratulations Mr. and Mrs. Portein (nee Gladys Young).

Violet Beck of the R. C. A. F. Women's Division, is home for two weeks before going to Newfoundland.

And yet Harry Young is adding to his store. Walk in some day soon and see the new addition. He still lacks another room, as there isn't room now for that easy chair where the philosopher may sit and expound. Hope you make room for it, Harry.

Miss Eleanor Goodwin spent a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Bothwell before leaving for Lloyd minster.

The Wheat Pool meet in the hall was very well attended Tuesday night. The races, ponnies and fillies in the extra garden are very nice right now.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Redgrad on the birth of a daughter in Vermilion hospital.

Mrs. Geo. Capstoe and children spent last week at the Bowers'.

Miss Eleanor Goodwin got a surprise before leaving Islay. A crowd of the Islay ladies visited her one evening at the Bothwell's, presented her with a purse of money. The wedding was spent in old time games. Also the school pupils gave her a surprise on the last day of school when they presented her with a leather bound bridge set. Miss Goodwin spent eight years in Islay.

Mrs. Brad Gunn of Paradise Valley is spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bowser.

Terry Walker of Lloydminster is holidaying at the Bothwell's.

Mrs. Robert Martin has returned after spending some time with a daughter at Mossbank. Margaret is home for a few days before going into the R.C.A.F., Women's Division

Donations to Red Cross

Following is a list of donations to the Red Cross drive recently carried on in the Vermilion district in common with the rest of the Dominion. Under the ruling 15% only of all monies collected under the Red Cross goes to the local Branch and 75% to the head office. A cheque for $5653.51 is now in the hands of the local Red Cross secretary and a cheque for $1658.71 has been mailed to the head office. A few donations have been received since the division was made.

CAMPAIGN DIRECTOR
W. P. PIKIE THANKED

The Vermilion Branch of the Red Cross wishes to acknowledge with deep appreciation the keen interest and the great amount of work done by Mr. W. P. Pilkie who directed the campaign for the Red Cross this early summer. Under his direction the drive was brought to a very successful conclusion going over the top with a total of $2212.95.

Mr. Pilkie obtained the hearty co-operation and enthusiasm of a fine corps of collectors. The Branch wishes to thank them all for their great realizing that without them the drive could not have been so happily prosecuted.

If any name has been mis-spelled or any donation incorrectly recorded you will appreciate that it is accidental as in such a large undertaking errors sometimes are difficult to detect. Mr. Pilkie will gladly make any necessary corrections if you inform him.

Lawrence G. Hooton,
Secretary Vermilion Br.

— o o o —

We wish to pay a special tribute to the generous and fine help of the Junior Red Cross groups in the schools of the district and the teachers. If you look over the publication you will see how great is their help. In this work Miss M. Numerow, Convenor of Junior Red Cross, has been heavily interested and has proved to with enthusiasm. The Red Cross Executive accept the thanks and appreciation of the Vermilion Branch and the director of the Campaign.

W. P. Pikie, Director
L. G. Hooton, Secretary.

A Coming Shortage of Coal

On all sides we hear there may be a serious shortage of coal this winter. Coal miners, however, are available NOW to get coal and freight cars are available NOW to transport the coal. They will probably NOT be available later on. Farmers and merchants who wish to be assured of coal to heat their homes and businesses this coming Winter will be wise, therefore, if they order coal now, and take delivery of it as quickly as possible.

Fall and Winter. Coal will be scarce

YOUR SCRAP METAL URGENTLY NEEDED!

This New Method makes Scrap Metal Collection easy for you.

More scrap steel and iron is urgently needed for more ships, tanks, planes, guns and munitions. You are asked to do your part by turning in every available ounce of scrap metal from your farm.

In order to institute the systematic collection of scrap iron and steel in the three Prairie Provinces, the Wartime Salvage Limited, a Government Company, has completed arrangements with the following Western Canadian Elevators for collection and purchase of scrap iron and steel:

Alberta Wheat Pool.
Manitoba Pool Elevators Ltd.
United Grain Growers Limited.
North-West Line Elevator Association.

These Companies handle and purchase this material on behalf of the Government without cost to the Government, and without profit to themselves. Any monies received over and above the actual cost of handling will be donated to War Charities.

An Agent at one of the above named Elevator Companies has been appointed in your district as an official buyer on behalf of the Wartime Salvage Limited. This guide is to help you to know

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Compan-free, blue battle-dress will be the new uniform of Britain's farm women.

The British Parliament voted about $60,000 to continue restoring the stonework of Big Ben tower, damaged by bombs last year.

Large numbers of the Australian Women's Army Service will be used in anti-aircraft units to relieve men for that work.

Several seed producing companies in Toronto have begun active support of a campaign for sending Canadian vegetable seeds to revitalize the scorched earth of Soviet Russia.

The Duke of Windsor joined fire fighters in combatting a $1,000,000 blaze which destroyed nearly a block of the Nassau business section. Fourteen buildings were razed.

The British section of the World Jewish Congress estimated that more than 1,000,000 Jews have been killed or have died as the result of ill treatment in countries dominated by Germany.

About $4,000,000 worth of bricks and metal was salvaged from bombed British houses last year. The bricks are now being used to build airport foundations and runways for the R.A.F.

Visible supplies of Canadian wheat have dropped nearly 100,000,000 bushels below the high point of the present crop year, the Dominion bureau of Statistics said in a review of the wheat situation

Queen Wilhelmina Was Customer Of Druggist At Lee, Mass.

Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands walked into Frank Pease drug store to make a few purchases at Lee, Mass.

Some persons might have been in a quandary wondering whether to address her as Your Excellency, or "Your Highness", or whether to remain silent until spoken to.

But Pease acted politely.

"Good morning Queen."

"Good morning," she replied "Isn't it a lovely morning?"

The Queen is visiting her daughter, Princess Juliana and the latter's two little girls at Juliana's summer home.

Pease said he inquired for the health of the children. The Queen replied that they were fine, and on learning the druggist also had children told him.

"Then I must bring the little girls some candy."

"I'll give them each an ice cream cone," said Pease.

"They'll love that," the Queen said

Khaki Woollens

Special Process in Bottles For Making Cotton Fur Substitute

Five bright hued wools are now blended together to produce the earthy color of khaki, first widely used in South Africa for the uniforms of the British Army.

In peace time the process was a secret belonging to the West Riding of Yorkshire where the heavy woollen industry first discovered how to blend wools of six colors into khaki thread. But today the West Riding shares its secrets with all other wool spinning areas in the United Kingdom so that the whole industry can go ahead with the colossal job of putting the troops in uniform.

The blending is now standardized and the number of colors reduced by one. The exact proportions of blue, yellow, brown, red and mauve wools are torn up by huge combs which separate, mix and blend them. Gradually each color begins to lose its identity, just as the colors on a spinning top will merge into a misty grey. At first the mass of clawed wool is patchy—bluish here, yellowish there—and then, as the machines complete the job, the colors become so well blended that khaki finally emerges from the rainbow.

This blending process gives an evener and more lasting result than dyeing the cloth in the piece as was done in the early days. In the war of 1914-18 the difficulties of replacing dyes formerly imported from Germany produced colors which varied in different parts of the country from almost grass green to dark brown. Today charts and specifications result in every mill weaving exactly the same shade and each piece of khaki cloth is carefully inspected before being passed out. British Industries Bulletin.

American Red Cross Sends Supplies For Civilian Population Of Invasion

The American Red Cross has dotted the Iceland Red Cross map with pins and equipment valued at $45,000 for the care and relief of the civilian population in case of air raids or other emergency.

The city now is supplied with a number of hospital beds believed "more than adequate" for any emergency. Large stores of medical supplies and clothing have been donated by the American relief agency.

A number of first aid stations have been equipped in the capital and American supplies are being distributed to other Red Cross chapters in Iceland. Arrangements have been made to staff the stations with doctors nurses. Boy and Girl Scouts and other volunteers if an emergency arises.

Extermination Policy

Nazis Have Massacred A Million Jews in Europe

The Germans have massacred at least 1,000,000 Jews in Europe since the war began a spokesman for the World Jewish Congress said in London.

The persecution has been particularly severe in the conquered countries of Nazi Europe, the spokesmen added Poland, Latvia Lithuania and Rumania have suffered greatly.

They said that probably 700,000 Jews had been killed in Lithuania, and Poland. 125,000 in Rumania 200,000 in Russia and 100,000 in the rest of Europe. These victims were selected from Europe's pre-war Jewish population of 6,000,000 to 7,000,000.

The slaughter is part of the Nazis' proclaimed policy that "physical extermination of the Jews must from now on be the aim of Germany and her allies." the spokesmen said.

Poison Gas From 'Planes

Mussolini Was The First To Use This Method

Mussolini was the first to use gas from airplanes in war.

With perforated air-borne cans full of liquid mustard gas, against the half-naked inhabitants of Abyssinia under what would probably be described in the trade as "favorable conditions," he sprayed the stuff from the air in a circle round little Ethiopean villages and then bombed them.

As the warriors and their women and children rushed out to seek shelter in woods, they found there waiting for them—the deadliest stench that ever came out of a tast tube—a rot which they could neither understand nor smell.

If ever gas is used in this war against ourselves or our Allies, we have the means to give it back from the air quicker than you'd ever believe and in greater volume and intensity than the enemy would ever like to believe—and without ever having to send out for rebile.—Capt. SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

ADAM AND EVE: TEMPTATION AND SIN

Golden text: The soul that sinneth, it shall die. Ezekiel 18 4.

Lesson: Genesis 3.

Devotional reading. 1 John 1:15-2:2.

Explanations and Comments

The Garden of Eden, Genesis 2:8-15. Jehovah God planted a garden eastward in Eden, we read. For Eden the Septuagint Version has the word "Paradeisos, whence comes our word "Paradise." There were trees in the garden which provided food and among them were two mysterious trees, one of which here I think had the power to give the eater knowledge of good and evil, and the fruit of the other gave immortal life. "The magical property of these trees shows plainly enough that the story belongs to the realm of primitive religious fancy, but this must not blind us to the profound and powerful teaching of which it is the vehicle' (J. E. McFadyen). Into this garden Adam and Eve were placed to care for it. Of the fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil they were forbidden to eat; if they disobeyed, they would surely die.

Temptation, Genesis 3:1-8. Now the serpent was more subtle than any beast of the field which Jehovah God had made, we read. The serpent here is the power of evil personified. It is Milton, not Genesis, that terms the serpent Satan.

The serpent shows his subtlety in his first remark to the woman: "Yea (indeed), hath God said, Ye shall not eat of any tree in the garden?" "Nay, and so God has said, etc!" is one translation. The interrogative sentence is startling enough in itself, but to arouse the woman's distrust of God.

Eve's answer shows that she resents the serpent's subtle meaning; they could eat even the fruit of any tree in the garden save of that which is in the midst, that tree of the very edge of good and evil. That tree they should neither eat nor touch, lest they die. That this was an error and in an idea said to have come from the Serpent.

Disobedience, Genesis 3:6, 7. Eve looked longingly at the forbidden fruit, dallied with the temptation. "To parley with temptation is to play with fire" (Bunyan). She saw that it was good for food, a delight to the eyes, and had the power to make one wise; there was an appeal to the appetite, to the sense of beauty, and to the intellect. The desire to become like God overcame the fear of his like God overcame the fear of his displeasure and perhaps of death, and gave the fruit to Adam and he ate

PROPER FOOD AND HEALTH

If everyone would pay attention to his diet—and that means good, solid food and not pills—it would lead to a healthy nation. And the health of the nation may be the deciding factor in the war, so Dr. F. F. Tisdale of the Hospital for Sick Children, told the Board of Trade Club of Toronto recently.

"Canadians with the richest of food supplies do not eat the right foods and the result is that about one-third of the population is under-nourished," he declared. A Toronto survey among families in the $1,500 - $2,400-a-year class showed marked deficiency of vitamins B1 and C in the average diet.

"There are 24 food substances needed for a good diet." Dr. Tisdall declared. "If any of those are lacking, resistance to disease is not what it should be."

Here's a normal diet that contains nearly all you'll want. A pint of milk, an egg or two, meat, vegetables, raw fruits and whole grain cereals. In the winter concentrated vitamin D should be added. "Lots of food can go down the kitchen sink," Dr. Tisdall observed. He said spinach water contains the greatest amount of the valuable elements of spinach. Potatoes should be cooked longer than 14 minutes. The deadline for cauliflower is 12 minutes. Cooked long the vegetables lose their vegetables lose most of their value.

"We must think of vitamins in terms of food, not in terms of drugstores," he asserted.

Shortage Of Ships

Reason Some Foodstuffs And Gasoline Are Rationed In Canada

Only a few years ago Brazil had such a great surplus of coffee that it dumped tons of it into the sea. Today coffee is being rationed in Canada and other countries. It is not because the supply of coffee has run out; it is due to the difficulty to ship coffee to the places where it is wanted. It's the war that's to blame. Submarine destroy ships and consequently foodstuffs. If moved at all, are moved at great risk. Since early in the year over two hundred ships engaged in traffic along the eastern coasts of the Americas have been torpedoed. There the explanation why gasoline rationing, coffee rationing, tea rationing, sugar rationing. There is an abundance of these commodities in the lands where they are produced but there are few ships to move them. Brandon Sun

CHAPTER XXIX.

Tamar was allowed to go outside the cabin for a brief taste of fresh air. She caught a glimpse of the plane sheltered by an over-hanging copse of woods low on the slope of the first foothill. They were in a valley, and she knew that Louie must be an expert pilot to have landed so easily. It took precision to drop down in a place like this. The broad strip of withered grass she knew was used for a runway.

Here they were in another world What more perfect place for a hideout than this?

Louie led her in a chair and said, "Therese will get hers long before noon. She'll take care of you until I get back."

He placed her near the radio and turned it in and said: "Too bad that you can't change your station till Therese gets here. I'm a cigarette smoking -smart girl like you might try to burn the binding from your hands If you get hungry, just ring the bell," he grinned maliciously.

Tamar heard the plane start and take off and settled down to a morning of monology, which even fear and dread could not dispel The radio helped a little, yet the programs seemed usually dull, excepting for the recorded musical numbers.

The room grew cool finally after the logs burned low and there was no way for her to replenish it. Once she thought that something might happen to Louie and she not be found for days occurred to her, and she thought that even those experience with Louie was better than being left here to starve slowly.

Shadwell, her father Ranney and the Cricket Hill seemed far away. What we do about herself to remember Christopher. That hurt too much

Out of the distance came the soft purring of a motorcar. She could see the long low coupe as it swung around the corner of the cabin window. A feminine figure sat at the wheel

A minute later the cabin door opened and in came Louie's Therese. Tamar stared at her

"Lo Smiling" Louie told me all about you. I don't think he did you justice though " A gamin smile lit her features and Tamar almost smiled back

Therese was small and well rounded and of course, a blonde. Her curls were glossy and well brushed, following the line of her small head. Her nose was imperitinately turned up and her brown eyes wide spaced and clear Her didn't look like any conception of a gangster's moll.

"I've read all about you," Therse went on

Tamar studied her. The green suede set-in belt of the coat hugged her small waist and looped rakishly at the Therese untied it and slipped her hat off in the same motion. She stood in a green jersey dress, good lines cleverly cut.

Tamar said: "How do you do, Therese. I'm Tamar Randolph, and I'll appreciate your hospitality. So far I've not really suffered, but I'm beginning to get a little cold."

Therese laid a small gun conspicuously in sight, and said: "We'll take care of that problem right away. Now if you'll promise me that you'll be sweet and give me no trouble, I'll play ball with you."

Strange how those clear, steady eyes could narrow. The girls stared at each other, measuringly. "Promise?" Therese asked softly. "If you do, then I'll let your hands go, but if you don't I'll have to keep em tied.

"I promise. There's no way of getting out of here, and I don't know a thing about gun," Tamar smiled wanly.

"I do. I've killed one man, and although it hurt my conscience a bit at first, not any more. He was trying to do in Louie," she excused the crime with a shoulded shrug, "I don't know what that big boney got that keeps me that way. But I do love the egg like nobody's business, and I'll look after him."

Therese untied Tamar's hands, but did not touch the cord around her feet. "Louie and I were married three years ago. He's gone a lot, and I don't appreciate his doing this job. But we'll get by—— We always have."

She built another fire and set about getting lunch ready. This meal consisted of sandwiches and hot coffee and fruit. Afterward the girls sat and smoked. Tamar was amazed at Therese's philosophy. Where in the world had she soaked all of it up, she wondered.

"Tell me about Shadwell. I loved every word that I read about it. I've always wanted to see some place like that. Must be something like the plantations in "Gone With the Wind." There was a book. Rhett Butler. I call Louie that once in a while. And as long as he hasn't read it, I can get by. Do all Southern girls have big blue eyes and coal-black hair?"

"Why, no! Of course not! My best friend is as blond as you."

Therese's voice had the same quickness and accent of the Easterners she had known and Tamar wished that she might ask her some thing about herself.

After lunch Therese did a thorough job of going over the cabin. She brought in clean linens from the trunk of her car, and swept and dusted with vigor. The house fairly shone from her efforts. After she was through, she settled down with some handiwork and tossed conversational snibles to Tamar. In the late afternoon she replenished the basket of wood from the pile near the

"It's getting lots colder. I hope that we don't have bad weather right now. We can usually count on several nice weeks here in this little valley."

Therese made no preparations for a man's meal, and Tamar surmised that she was not expecting Louie back tonight. Once she even went so far as to try to divine out some scheme of getting home from the bonds about her feet and trying to escape during the time when Therese might sleep. But she knew that it was hopeless. Her hands would be bound again.

Tamar realized that her note would be used by Louie to identify her to her father so he could collect the ransom. As her thoughts raced there to Shadwell once more, she remembered unwillingly how she had longed and yesterday for Christopher Bonde. What would he be doing? Was there any effort that he could make in trying to find her?

Ransome Todd was impulsive and hard-hitting. He would perhaps have by this time confronted Major Thorne with the accusation of her kidnapping, when he had not had anything to do with it.

How much of the affair did Christopher Bonde know previously.

Hot tears started to her eyes, and she made a determined effort to not let Therese know that she wanted to cry. What good would it do? Instead she answered Therese's questions agreeably and at length.

At dusk Therese put away her handwork, drew the blinds and lit the lamps. The long room became hvable and cozy again.

"I'll get a bite to eat. You ought to have some vegetables." She went into the kitchen and looked through the shelves. She waited as she ate and Tamar realized that the part she was taking in this crime had very little weight upon her conscience.

While they were eating Tamar had a wild desire to laugh. This simply wasn't according to Hoyle. It was perfectly weird, and no one would believe her. Bobby Sheridan's eyes would grow big and Jack would smile his slow and sly. "Here they are, weren't drowning? Why were we so undependable. You didn't see any Indians, did you?" and Ranney would frown and white shirtwaists?"

Ranny would seek out this cabin in the valley and annihilate it—but he wouldn't believe that this sort of thing could take place. It might be an afternoon tea. And Therese was almost as personable as some of the girls in Tamar's bridge club, and twice as pretty as most of them.

Once the radio made a reference to Tamar's kidnapping and Therese edged closer. Static broke into the announcer's words and they could hear only a confused mumbling. Tamar noticed the clock on the mantel, but it must have been only a news 'cast, she decided. She thought that Therese seemed nervous after that broadcast, and tried to get other news broadcasts.

Therese bound her hands after she was in bed. Tamar tried to go to sleep but loosed and turned her head she could with her hands bound. She realized that it was very late when she did go to sleep and knew nothing more until the sun flooded the room.

Therese did not look as though she had slept well, and there was a pile of cigarette stubs in the large tray on the smoker. This morning she was more nervous than last night and did not make much effort to talk. Her lips had lost their pleasant curve and were pressed into a bit. Tamar was frightened. When Louie returned, her bravado would come back, but now she was only a woman with something to worry about.

The morning was unbearably long. Several times Tamar knew that Therese was bored to distraction and thought that her head was lifted toward the sky. Evidently she was expecting Louie to come back in the plane.

About noon Therese heated the soup in the can and made sandwiches and prepared to brown a cooked ham. She worked at it expertly, peeling off the outer coating, rubbing it with brown sugar and spices and pouring pineapple juice about it. She washed potatoes and put them in the oven to bake. Tamar asked her once more if would like some help, but Therese merely shook her head.

Tamar watched her and made the last of the dinner preparations. She smoked incessantly, and kept going to the window and looking out. After 1 o'clock they heard the motor of the plane. The vee ran out of the door, and Tamar could see Louie waving her arm. She trembled. What would Louie do next? Would he be ready to release her to Shadwell?

Wooden Ships

Points Out The Necessity Going To Scarcity Of Steel

R. W. Mayhew, parliamentary representative of Victoria in Parliament, and a able industrialist, says the need for merchant shipping will be "more than ever" after the present war.

"Wooden ships on this coast There is, he says not enough steel to build all the ships needed and the can be quickly constructed.

For months Mr Meyhew has urged this policy upon Mr Howe but it has been opposed by those who say that a steel ship is far better than a wooden ship

"That is doubt, is true. Wooden ships are slow in convoys They sometimes leak and spill cargo. Under the circumstances, however, all that they require so much steel for steam engines that they are uneconomical. Set against each other theoretical objections are two great facts—the Germans are sinking more steel ships than the Allies can build and the building of steel ships is limited by the output of steel which is not increasing. EXCITING CARD FORTUNES KEEP YOUR FRIENDS AGOG

Thrills in the Surprise Cards!

What's going to happen? Is love, money a thrill one of the surprises right around the corner? Read the cards and see!

By telling card fortunes you have grand fun and all you need to impress friends is some card meanings and a mysterious look in your eye.

Try the "Birthday Fortune" method. Is your fortune-seeker born on August 18? First she shuffles the deck, cuts it and removes her name card, a red Queen if she's blue-eyed. Then you lay aside the 8th card for the 8th month and, after she shuffles again, the 18th card.

The fateful surprise cards are next, the top three after another shuffle. The Five of Diamonds means big news, the Two of Hearts a proposal, the Four of Diamonds a raise.

Or in other cards is the "Birthday Fortune" you may find an Ace of Hearts, a new friend or a Nine of Clubs a pleasure trip But may there be none of such and fellows as the Two of Clubs, a disappointment.

How to tell a complete "Birthday Fortune" is explained in her 32-page booklet. Gives meaning of every card in the deck; also has a horoscope for each month and shows how to read sterling fortunes with tea-leaves, dominoes dice, the "crystal."

WEDDING BELLS

HYTEN—FORBES

The marriage of Marjorie Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Forbes of Vermilion, to Mr Donald Robert Hyten, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hyten of Minburn, was solemnized at 3 o'clock on Tuesday June 30th. The ceremony took place on the lawn at the home of the bride's parents, under an arch of lilacs and wild roses, with baskets of iris and peonies set at the base. The Rev. Dr. M.S. Rowe of Camrose officiated, assisted by Major K. C. McLeod of Manawille, and the Rev. L. G. Huber of Vermilion.

Wearing a graceful gown of white sheer, the bride was given away by her father. Her gown featured a high neckline, long bishop sleeves, and a ruched girdle of the same material. Her only jewelry consisted of a pearl brooch of her mother's and a lucky gold watch, a gift of the groom. Her veil was caught with a halo of white roses and orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of pink and white roses and sweet peas.

Miss Grace Forbes, sister of the bride, was bride-maid. Her frock of Queen's blue taffeta was made with a fitted waist, full bodice, and tiny jacket with short sleeves. She wore roses in her hair and carried pink carnations.

Little Margaret Myers, niece of the groom, was flower girl. Her dress was rose organdie, with full skirt edged with lace. She also wore pearl beads in her hair and carried a basket of sweet peas.

Mr. Harry Simonson, of Kinuso, was best man. Miss Catherine Forbes, a sister of the bride, played the wedding music. Miss Irene Beals, Don Accott, and Jessie Beckman, during the signing of the register.

Following the ceremony a reception at which fifty guests were present, was held on the lawn. The guests were received by the mothers of the bride and groom. The tea table was centred by a three-tier wedding cake, pink and white streamers, and red rose buds were the color scheme completed here; decorations.

After the reception the happy young couple left for Edmonton and after a short honeymoon will make their home at Minburn.

For going away the bride chose a gold dress with gold and black accessories.

On Sunday Mrs. John Wilson had the pleasure of a visit of her sister and brother from and her brother John who is home on furlough from the Air Force, along with his wife and children. It has been nearly a year since she has seen John so a pleasant afternoon was greatly enjoyed by the united ones. John is stationed at Saskatoon Sask.

Another family united last week for a few hours were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Frissell, Bert Frissell and family, and Mr. and Mrs. L. Fadden and family. All went to Wainwright to see Pvt. Frissell who is with the Armed Forces, and was passing through that town on his last week. They all gathered in Bert Frissell's home together before he left for the East again.

Citizens Plan Entertainment For Members of C.W.A.C.

Special Committee Appointed for Suggestion and Co-ordination

The meeting called for last Thursday evening by Mayor Morrison to discuss the matter of providing means of recreation and entertainment for the girls training here in the C.W.A. corps at the school of agriculture, was attended by a goodly gathering representing social, sports and patriotic organizations.

The Mayor explained the purpose of the meeting which has already been outlined in this paper. Captain Mollicet and Sgt. Major Perkins of the C.W.A.C. expressed the desirability of the citizens providing outlets for recreation for the girls during their time off. The officers explained that the girls came from good homes, are bright and intelligent and want to be treated and received in the same light that you would expect your own daughters to be treated away from home. The Corps has a wonderful reputation and they want to maintain that reputation.

On the meeting being thrown open various suggestions as to what could or might be done were proffered. There was no lack of ideas and the consensus of opinion was that the people would be behind any effort projected to make the life of these girls happy and contented during their stay in town.

The meeting decided that a central committee be formed as representing all the various organizations much along the Red Cross set up. The following were elected to comprise this committee: Archdeacon Leversedge, Major Morrison, Mrs. Harry Scott, Mrs. Culford and Mrs. Norton. The committee after the meeting met and selected Archdeacon Leversedge as chairman and appointed A.E. Kaiser as secretary. Mrs. Norton is vice-chairman.

The central committee appointed interprets its functions to be mainly that of suggestion and co-ordination. It hopes, through its contact with the various organizations already existing in Vermilion, to enlist and to direct a sustained and balanced effort to achieve and maintain cordial and mutually helpful contacts between the citizens of Vermilion and the staff and personnel of the C.W.A.C. Training unnse.

By arranging with the approval of the Commandant, a series of programs of a cultural and social character, where citizens and staff and trainees may meet in mutual self respect.

By arranging opportunities for staff and trainees to participate in the various recreational activities of the town and district.

To act as the clearing house between the organizations and the staff of the C.W.A.C.

Citizens of Vermilion willing to offer hospitality to members of the C.W.A.C. should notify either the Secretary, A.E. Kaiser, or any member of the Committee, the Ven. W. Leversedge, Mrs. Culford, Mrs. Harry Scott or Mr. J.W.G. Morrison, stating the number of girls and the date and time. Such information will be forwarded to the Commandant, who will make the necessary arrangements.

AIR CADETS RETURN FROM R. A. F. CAMP

Much Praise for North Battleford School

After spending a week at the R.A.F. camp at North Battleford, the Vermilion flight of Air cadets arrived home last Saturday morning, all loud in their praises of the time they had enjoyed and the very fine treatment received at the hands of the R.A.F. personnel there. This praise was borne out in a personal interview with the cadet officer in charge, Mr. P. Armshaw, who has done such magnificent work with the Mirnam flight. He said that nothing could have been done to make their stay any more pleasant, all of the cadets being well received and well taken care of. Some disappointment has been expressed that they did not have an opportunity to go up in some of the airplanes, but due to bad weather and regulations this was denied them. Nearly all of the boys had the experience of trying a flight in the Link trainer, which is a ground model which gives all the thrills of handling a plane but does not leave Mother Earth, and this, as is easy to understand, was classified as tops by the boys.

Their time was well apportioned and there was very little of it left for their own. The training periods comprised athletics, drill, lectures, and inspection of the actual equipment necessary to run an up-to-date air field.

All the boys report a wonderful week well spent and also say that they wouldn't have missed it for anything. Considerable interest should result with a large increase in membership for the coming season.

Important Information For Farmers Who Drive Trucks

May Take Neighbors to Market

Truck drivers must be sure to have permits to carry passengers, or their trips, obtained from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. J. Gordon Wilson, Services Representative Truck Control of the Board, has given a memorandum to Supt. R.J. Bird of the R.C.M.P., detailing the cases in which truck drivers are required to secure permits to carry passengers, in an increased effort to curtail unnecessary travel, and conserve equipment.

Any employer requiring the use of a truck to carry employees where no other means of transportation is available, such as to logging or construction camps, must apply to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board William son Building, Edmonton for a permit.

Plumbers, painters, others employed in similar occupations must also obtain permits from the Board.

In districts where there is no other means of transportation such as bus, train, or boat, a truck driver may obtain a permit to carry passengers to their final destination or the passenger should apply for a permit.

A farmer driving a truck on one days, or on any other business than that of the farm, must have a permit to transport passengers. On the other hand, a farmer does not require a permit to carry any members of his family, employees, or neighbors in his truck, when on business in connection with farm work or on necessary shopping trips to the nearest town or week days.

Livestock owners and truck helpers may ride in the cab or truck when hired for freighting livestock and a permit but livestock or [illegible] not use their trucks to [illegible] of their families even when [illegible] is in use for freight without a permit from the Board.

TRAGEDY AGAIN STRIKES GREENLAWN FAMILY

Second Son of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Scott Drowned

Already struck for a second time with a month at the Greenlawn family of Mr. and Mrs. Orval S. Scott when word was received of the drowning on Sunday evening July 5th of their son Lac Arnold Scott, aged 20 years.

The drowning took place at Pibilsville, on the west coast of Vancouver Island while he and a companion were bathing. Arnold had joined the R.C.A.F. last fall. He was truly a sterling lad, being born and raised in the district and receiving his high school training there. He was musically inclined and was very generous in helping with entertainments and dances.

Only on June 5th little nine-year-old Rudy Scott was drowned in Blackhorse Lake not far from the home in the Greenlawn district. He was buried on Thursday June 18th and brother Arnold received special leave from his R.C.A.F. station to come here to attend his young brother's funeral. Fair Attractions Making A Big Hit In Manitoba

In Vermilion July 30, 31, and August 1

Word received by S. C. Heckbert, Vermilion Fair manager, from those connected with fairs in Manitoba indicate that the George Hamilton grandstand attractions are making a big hit with the prairie audiences. Christys' Horses are said to be almost human in their presentation and the lover of good horses will find much to interest them in the acts provided.

While elephants are rather unsteady in appearance they are quick to learn and it is said that their performance, as given to Fair patrons on the eastern end of the circuit, has drawn applause and acclaim seldom witnessed in Canada, coming to the Western Canada Fairs direct from a two month showing in Los Angeles the animals have had two weeks rest and are in the pink of condition.

The Royal Doberman Pinchers, a team of fire-eclaimed dogs are bringing audiences to their feet and it has been heard on many occasions that the famous Duncan Collies which were at Vermilion a few years ago, and which were thought to be unbeatable, cannot hold a candle to these Dobermans.

Lowe, Hice and Stanley, the lamb sensation of a decade, are presiding ommonly, the like of which is seen nowhere else in Canada but on the Western Circuit of Fairs, the largest oramized string of fairs in the world. Hite is 7 feet 9 inches in height, Tommy Lowe is 6 feet 8 inches and Little Stanley is but 5 feet 4 inches this three man team is grand for the kiddies and for the grown ups as well.

Music is provided by the Four Accordion Maids and the Tuppy Quartette, successors to the loved Varsity Eight who won fame at Vermilion a

Lack Of Courtesy

People Make Excuses By Blaming It On The War

A lot of people have lapsed into much of lack of courtesy and blaming it all on the war, says Adelaide Kerr, writing on Common Courtesy Too busy, with war work and problems, they say, to get this or that done.

German Brutality

Shocking Situation Comes Out Of Norway And Poland

From two authoritative quarters came in one mail terrible stories of German brutality in the occupied countries of Europe.

The information office in Canada of the Royal Norwegian Government sends details of torture and mistreatment by the Germans in Norwegian prisons. This information, it is stated, comes "from persons who have been either eye-witnesses to the German misdeeds or have been in direct contact with those subjected to the cruelties and maltreatment." They were recently outside Norway under the direction of a fully qualified judge, and the report was prepared officially for the Government of Norway in London. Case after case is recorded of Norwegian patriots beaten and pounded in prisons and concentration camps, of bones deliberately broken by Gestapo agents, of medical cruelties almost beyond belief if we did not know how completely all this fits into the picture of German conduct towards victims of their lust for conquest.

Even more shocking is the story of the concentration camp at Oswiecim, in Poland, told by a reputable informant who was in Poland last winter, and printed in the periodical Poland Fights, of New York. This torture camp for a time was commanded by the fighter Max Schmeling. The Gestapo guards are brutal and savage; prisoners whose only offence is their love of Poland are beaten to death, men are forced to bathe for long periods in the icy river in mid-winter, are denied medical attention when they are ill, are lodged miserably in unheated barracks and must work 12 hours a day. Such stories could be repeated interminably—and worse. With a degree of inhumanity matched only by the Japanese, German "culture" is spread in the occupied countries by the hangman, the firing squad, by paid torturers and brutalized guards. The biggest streak of savagery in the German character was as marked in the Great War as in this one, is not something that came with Nazism —Ottawa Journal.

Gertie The Goose

Canadian Corvette Has A Mascot Which Swings Axe

"Goose, ahoy!" they shouted in the Canadian corvette Hepatica, as Gertrude bobbed towards the warship. Her spiritual acknowledged the greetings by coming aboard and allowing herself to be lifted aboard.

"For a time she enjoyed the fuss those Canadian sailors made of her. But, like all visitors to warships, she soon founded a tour of inspection.

So away she waddled, leaving the sailors to decide what should be done with her.

"Roast goose is very tasty," suggested one.

"Oh, no, let's keep her as a mascot," chorused others.

The vote favored the mascot idea.

They called her 'Donald' at first. But the egg she laid in the nest she built under the forward gun platform led to 'Gertrude' being hastily submitted.

Now as Gertrud- the Goose that brought the Hepatica nothing but luck, she shared the watches on the bridge, has a one-storey flat built of packing cases, and boasts her own duck water tank.

In port she has the freedom of the harbor—but she does not go far from the ship.—Vancouver Sun.

Take a man whose earning career has 25 years to go That makes 13,140,500 minutes. (Figure it out, if you will. We did, allowing for six long years). We dash across the street against a light. If we win, we'll save a minute. If we lose, we double up to 15 million minutes to death

Famous Girl Reporter Pays A Visit To Canada

A girl reporter back from a bicycle vacation in Canada heard concern expressed in British Columbia about California's morals. The Canadians shrugged at their own air raid perils, but were disturbed lest we crack under the strain of the blackouts and the hysteria they evidently expect here if the blow fails. And she encountered a misapprehension of American war effort and production surprising in the light of her own information.

From this it seems evident that our neighbors to the north need some information about us and our frame of mind, as we some time ago urged we should have more official news about Canada's tremendous war effort and courageous spirit.

A difficulty is that the typical is not "news." We report highway casualties, not how many good homes safely. In the United States and Canada are fine, decent men in public life, and cheap skate, peanut politicians, headline grabbers, renegades. Our neighbors hear us scolding Congress for the members that disagree it and forget as we often seem to do, that if there were not sincere patriotic, hard-working men on the job, the rascals would have had us on the rocks long ago.

The "news" that we exchange is extraordinary. The average fact is that is what we judge each other by. We must find a way to let our Canadian Allies know that in California as in British Columbia, we are not hankering for an air raid, but if it comes we can take it.—San Francisco Chronicle.

CAIN AND ABEL: A CONTRAST

Golden text: By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, through which he had witness borne to him that he was righteous. Hebrews 11:4.

Lesson: Genesis 4.

Devotional reading: Psa! - ..1:10-17.

Explanations and Comments

The Two Sacrificial Offerings. Genesis 4:1-5. To Adam and Eve two sons were born, Cain and Abel. The Hebrew word for "I have gotten," verse 1, is "Kaneh" whence our word "Cain." Cain became a tiller of the ground, a farmer, and Abel a keeper of sheep, a shepherd.

After a time both brothers brought the fruit of their labor as offerings to Jehovah. Cain's offering was the fruit of the ground: Abel's, the firstborn of his flock, the specially-prized fat pieces of which were offered in sacrifice. Compare Lev. 1:9; 3:3. "The origin of sacrifice is not explained, nor is an altar mentioned. Man is assumed to be by nature endowed with religious instincts and capable of holding communion with God. Worship was man's mode of approach to the Deity, and sacrifice was its outward expression" (Herbert E. Ryle).

Jehovah approved Abel's offering, but not Cain's. Why this was so, and how approval was given, the story does not say, but Cain's anger (verse 5) and his look and demeanor (verse 9) show that there was trouble in Cain himself. The value of the offering depended upon the offerer. Read Luke 21:1-4. Such a man as Cain proved himself to be could not be pleasing to Jehovah.

The warning to Cain, verses 5; 6, 7. Cain could not endure to have his brother preferred before him. He became angry and sullen. With "his countenance fallen" he brooded in chapfallen.'

Cain was questioned by Jehovah as to the cause of his anger and sullenness. The questions were designed to teach Cain that in the way in which things right was not to be jealous of Abel but to make sure that he himself was right toward God; they should have led to such moral self-examination as would have arrested his evil thoughts early, and prevented commission of his crime. "If thou doest well, shalt not thy countenance be lifted up, bright and open, not sullen? "If thou doest not well, sin croucheth at the door." Sin is here pictured as a wild beast lying at the door of a room, ready to spring upon the one who gives it entrance. "Unto thee shall be its desire," sin is eager to make the spring; "do thou rule over it," do thou conquer the temptation in sin. The psychological truth that there is great danger in harboring resentment in the heart is finely pictured here.

Health League Points Topics Of Vital Interest

LOSS OF TIME THROUGH ILLNESS

Sickness is the arch-saboteur of wartime production, causing in the United States alone annual loss of working time sufficient to build two heavy cruisers or 648 bombers or 3,300 light tanks. According to a comparative Canadian report, soon to be made public by the Industrial Division of the Health League of Canada, absence of a national public health program is causing an annual loss of fifty million dollars to wage earners. In terms of production, this loss amounts to one-and-a-half times the war loss figure or, seventy-five million dollars. A recent Calihp poll showed that in a single month time stolen by illness among Canadian wage earners could have built 377 cruiser tanks or 370 medium bombers. In the present crisis, Canada may, continuance of such time-productionlosses is suicidal.

Dr. Ernest Cunningham, Director of the Industrial Hygiene Division of the Ontario Department of Health, states that illness is the main cause of lost time from work, ten times as great as losses caused by industrial accidents. Hon. Ian MacKenzie, Minister of Pensions and National Health declares that fifty Canadian workers are absent every day.

At least 50% of this costly loss can be prevented by adequate sickness prevention programs in industry. Sickness absenteeism where such programs have halved the average of nine and half days per year per worker. With a national health program giving homes as well as factories adequate protective measures, he loss could be further reduced. In addition to the net saving in time, protecting the lives of workers distinctly improves labour relations. General improvement in the workers' health makes him a marked speed up in production besides effecting substantial reductions in accidents and occupational disease. Absenteeism (dahned as absence from work because of sickness or minor illness accentuated by fatigue and malnutrition—a factor which for a time seriously impeded production in Britain was the principal labour turnover. and insurance costs.

ANNE TEDLOCK BROOKS

CHAPTER XXX.

From her chair in the cabin, Tamar could see the greeting between Therese and Louie. The big man got out of the cockpit of the plane, dressed in aviator's uniform. Therese threw herself into his arms and kissed him passionately. Tamar's first impression was that most of her thoughts kept returning to him.

"Oh, my darlin'," crooned Therese's voice suddenly. "You're tormenting yourself with those cards. Get to bed with you!"

Tonight Tamar slept with her hands free, but the furniture was changed about in the main room so that that night, Louie could still take no chances about her escaping.

Tonight Tamar did not sleep at all. She was afraid that some time during the negotiations of exchanging her for the ransom that Nancy or her father or some of the State police would try to capture the abductor. And she knew that Louie had no qualms about using the gun he kept in his pocket.

The sun was slow about rising, but finally appeared over the hills and sent a warm glow down, melting the frost of the light snow. Louie prepared to take off in the plane about [illegible]

As he went out of the door he looked back briefly and said grimly: "If your father has played square with me, all's well. But by heaven! if he hasn't you'll never see him again."

Therese came back after the plane had taxied down the makeshift runway and taken off into the wind. "We'll get going pretty soon now."

Therese dressed in a warm woolen slack suit and gave one to Tamar, curt. "Here, this will be better for you. Wish you could keep it as a memento of our visit. Red, size 14. Just right, and very becoming to your coloring." She rummaged in another closet in a corner of the main room and pulled out a short fur jacket. "This will help until we get out of the hills."

Just before they left the cabin, Therese blindfolded Tamar. Much as she hated to submit to it, Tamar knew that not only her own safety lay in carrying out their plans, but perhaps the lives of some one back home depended upon it.

The leather of the car seat was cold and Tamar shivered. She had not even seen the road upon which Therese had entered the valley and realized that it must be a winding one and that its entrance was concealed by the cabin.

[illegible] Therese turned to Tamar and said: "Now [illegible] some rough and tumble roads. Therese must be an expert driver. She could feel the sun against her face through the glass in the window. Therese drove silently.

Tamar could not tell anything about the directions. Once they seemed to be going East, but afterwards they turned and curved in so many different ways that she had no idea where they were heading. They did not stop for perhaps an hour, and Tamar could tell that much of the time on the straight road that they were driving at least 70.

The car slowed and Therese leaned over and said: "I'm taking off your blindfold while I get gas. But don't you try anything, or it will be just too bad."

Tamar said: "I won't try anything. My life isn't so important but I don't want anything to happen to any one at home."

"That's smart. Because I'm to wire Louie how you behaved."

At a little inn a half hour later, the blindfold was removed once more and Therese waited while an attendant brought her a tiny envelope. It contained something more than the yellow telegram. Therese read it quickly and wrote a wire to be sent. "The address is on it," she said.

Tamar could see the licenses of passing cars indicated that they must be in Canada now. Just where she could not tell. The signs said Toll Bridge Due. She printed the appearance of the place on her mind. But, of course, she realized that a telegram could be sent there without being extraordinary.

They were off again. Therese saying: "I'll give you instructions, and, believe me, you'd better follow them to the letter."

There was a new note in her voice once more. It was a mixture of bravado and although it seemed pierced with nervous tension Tamar guarded her own emotions and attended to her private feuds. It is said that next to Hess Rommel is Hitler's favorite.—Toronto Star.

Youngest Nazi Marshal

Rommel Has Been Favorite Of Hitler For Many Years

At 50, Rommel is the youngest marshal in the German army. He is a rarity in the German officer class, for he has no "von" prefix to his name; he does not come from the Prussian military class and does not follow its code of behavior, such as it is. Rommel is frankly a Hitler "yes-man." The son of a Bavarian workman, he had joined the Hitler faction in 1923 and took a leading part in the numerous street brawls and gang warfare by which the Nazis were able to intimidate the German populace and batter their way to power. In those early days Rommel achieved a notable record for maiming, murdering and pushing people around. His thugs were particularly successful in terrorizing the town of Coburg, and for this he earned Hitler's special gratitude, for it is this raid which Hitler in "Mein Kampf" credited with bringing about a turning point in his career. When Hitler came to power, Rommel became leader of the S.S. black guard, Hitler's own private army which guarded his person and attended to his private feuds. It is said that next to Hess Rommel is Hitler's favorite.—Toronto Star.

Home Canning

Full Information Can Be Obtained From Government Bulletin

Successful home canning depends on destroying all bacteria, yeasts, and moulds, and sealing the product in air tight containers, so that no contamination can take place to cause spoilage. At the same time the natural colour and flavour should be preserved. Now this can be done by obtained in the revised household bulletin, No. 8, "Canning Fruits and Vegetables."

Full information is given on checking equipment, washing and sterilization of jars, testing for rings and lids, preparation of product, grading or sorting product, washing and peeling, blanching where required, preparation of syrup, packing jars, processing or sterilizing, sealing, cooling, and storing. Included with a time table for cooking and canning the various fruits, and a time table for vegetables. Special recipes are also given for tomato juice and tomato soup. The bulletin may be obtained free by writing the Publicity and Extension Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa

SELECTED RECIPES

A change in bread does magic tricks with meals. Especially if bread is homemade, butter alone is almost enough filling Here is a recipe for an unusual tea bread made with corn flakes. Spread with cream cheese, it makes a supper, supper sandwich.

Corn Flake Tea Bread

2 cups corn flakes
½ cake compressed yeast
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1½ tablespoons melted shortening
2½ cups (about) flour

Roll corn flakes into very fine crumbs. Crumble yeast into a bowl. Scald milk and cool to lukewarm temperature; add to yeast, stirring until yeast is dissolved. Add sugar, salt, shortening and half the flour; beat until smooth. Combine corn flake crumbs with remaining flour and add to dough mixing well. Turn onto floured board and knead until smooth. Place dough in greased bowl, brush with melted fat. Cover and let rise again until double in bulk. Punch down, ground and shape into loaf Place in greased loaf pan and brush with melted fat. Cover and let rise again until double in bulk. Bake in moderately hot oven (425 degrees F.) 15 minutes, reduce heat to 375 degrees F. and bake about 45 minutes longer.

Yield: One loaf (4½ x 8-inch pan).

Peanut Butter Squares

½ cup butter or margarine
½ pound marshmallows (about 24½ dozen)
¼ cup peanut butter
1 package oven-popped rice cereal (5½ ounces)

Cook butter and marshmallows in double boiler. Add peanut butter, beat thoroughly to blend. Put oven-popped rice cereal in large buttered bowl and pour on marshmallow mixture, stirring briskly. Press into shallow buttered pans Cut into squares when cool.

Yield: 32 squares (two 8 x 8-inch pans).

Therese walked to the gate. As she passed through, she saw a tall figure, that even through the dark glasses she knew must be Nancy.

His Only Yardstick

Hitler Evidently Measures Other Peoples' Intelligence By His Own

Hitler calls the Germans the master race, and yet, says The Argonaut, it is pointed out that he has never spoken one word of praise for a great German writer, or a great German philosopher, or a great German scientist or a great German educator, or a great German critic, or a great German theologian. We have no doubt that Hitler thinks that when he dies, all wisdom and knowledge will die with him. But it would not be surprising if he had come to regard himself as an earthly immortal.

SMART COSTUME JEWELRY YOU CAN MAKE YOURSELF

Clip From Pearl Buttons

Amazing what smart costume jewelry you can make yourself! This lovely string of Pearl clip costs little, is easily put together—and how smart it looks on party dresses and day clothes, too.

You need only an ordinary brass hinge, annealed wire and 13 pearl buttons—6 of them about ¾ inch in diameter and 7 of a larger size.

First double a 14-inch length of wire, slip a small button down to the fold, and twist wires 3 times. Now add to each wire a small button, loop the wire back through each eyelet and twist the cluster of 3 by twisting the wires 3 times.

In much the same way you add the other 2 small buttons, then the 7 large ones.

To fasten the pearls to the hinge, insert wires through holes. twist tightly at the back.

Other jewelry you make as easily by stringing using things on your pantry shelf. From macaroni—a sea shell necklace; from chick peas—a "gold" bracelet.

Complete directions for the and name of simply pieces of costume jewelry are given in, our 32-page booklet, "How to make bracelets, beads, necklaces, boutonnieres from inexpensive materials for all kinds of costumes

BIRDS AND CATS

The following article on Birds and Cats was published in the Edmonton Journal by the Edmonton Horticultural Society. It is equally applicable to Vermilion and district:

"For the past few weeks we have been stressing the importance of birds to agriculture and have quoted figures on quantities of insects consumed by them. The figures were so large that some of our readers questioned their accuracy. We have checked them with the original figures in the official reports and find that they were printed correctly.

Following these articles, we have had several inquiries for directions on how to get the birds to make their homes here. We take opportunity to direct these inquiries to the public library, where they will find a number of books on the subject.

We have had several reports from people telling us that cats have been cleaning up all the young birds in the neighborhood. This is a condition that we regret but are unable to prevent. We are in hopes that some day it will be generally recognized that the cat is not of nearly as much value as most people would like us to believe, but a decided nuisance.

Cats are naturally hunters and kill for, and no matter how they are brought up they do not change their ways, but will hunt and kill birds. When people tell us their cats are well fed and will not go out hunting birds, they are either fooling themselves or trying to fool us. Cats do not have both birds and cats living in the same place without great risk to the birds."

In the Roll Call For Vouchers

Institutions, restaurants and industries must register at the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, in order to obtain sugar by use of vouchers, in registering they are required to state the source of their supply of sugar, and are then enabled to buy sugar by voucher from the seller required with the board.

Operators of boarding houses may secure purchase sugar by voucher, or present the ration books of each member for whom they are providing, when they buy their sugar.

TOLLAND

Clarence Lyons suffered a serious and painful accident last week, when his left hand was caught in a feed mill. He was rounding up the work horses on horseback when one of the horses kicked at him striking his knee, the blow breaking his knee cap.

A farewell party was held in the Triangle school for Pte. Pete Ruzi who was home on a few days leave with his parents.

It is interesting to learn that Pte Art Lyons visited with Mrs. Bob Beckett at Chilliwack, B.C., as he is stationed near there. In the early days Mrs. Beckett lived in the Tolland district.

Miss Lena Oldenburg is spending the vacation with her parents.

Hughie and Verna Potter both suffered minor injuries in a car accident on the new highway a week ago. Repairing cuts and bruises. Verna was in the hospital for a few days while Hugh was able to return home after having his wounds attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Oldenburg attended the Calgary Stampede last week

Miss Marion McQuid is attending summer school in Edmonton.

Fred Webber was home the week end after his school closed. He returned to Calgary and joined the R C A F and is now stationed in Tor onto.

Miss Mable Spencer left for Edmonton on Wednesday in answer to her call for the women's division of the R.C.A.F.

Mrs. J Davidson has gone to Medicine Hat where she will visit her husband for a few days

R. Allison has gone to Saskatoon to join the armed forces. He was accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Allison.

Salvation Army Home Service Funds Needed This Fall

Local Drives Now Being Planned

Adjutant Wm. M. Gibson of the Salvation Army, Public Relations Department, was a visitor in town recently making preliminary plans for a drive for funds needed for home service work. The campaign will be held from Sept. 21 to Oct. 7 and in Vermilion will be conducted by local public spirited citizens.

The Red Shield report has the following item on the fall drives for funds:

"Because the Canadian Government has ruled that there can be no united campaign by the National War Services organizations this year, and, further, seeing the government has decided to finance from the Federal Treasury only the wartime work of these organizations, the Salvation Army will find it necessary to appeal to the public for funds next fall in order to carry on its regular Home Service program," Commissioner Ben Jamin Orames announced in Toronto recently.

"This simply means we practically revert to the policy and practice which existed prior to 1941, when at the request of the Government, the Salvation Army joined with the other War Services organizations in the united campaign in raising both War and Home Service requirements, which was held in March, 1941," the Commissioner explained.

"In these critical times the Salvation Army will continue to fit in and co-operate with the Dominion authorities to the fullest possible extent; hence, in accordance with the Government's ruling, we cannot raise the funds by a national campaign as we had done up to 1941. Instead we intend to conduct local appeals each fall in all those communities in Canada where our work has been carried on for many years, and hope that our kind friends and supporters will give the same assistance and co-operation that they have in the past. We know they are all just as anxious to see our work continue as we are," the Commissioner concluded.

Little Dickie Panter, 20 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Panter, is in hospital suffering from bad burning in his right hand. Dickie was kicked by a horse last Tuesday. He was unable to stick his hand into the stove and it is thought that the brunt of the kick struck the stick, which cut his hand reliably. The little fellow is getting quite sick. Ire was taken to the hospital on Wednesday night. July 1st. Mrs. Panter is staying in the hospital with him.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Thompson and family were visitors to Auburndale at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Harrison on Sunday June 27th

Mrs. Dunlap is visiting her sister, Mrs. McKee, this week.

Mrs. Mathews is planning to attend the boys' camp which is being held at Laurier Lake from July 12th to 19th, under the supervision of Mr Lemke)

A weiner party was held at Thatcher school on Wednesday afternoon when about 40 folks (children and parents) gathered to celebrate the school closing and to bid goodbye to Miss Mathews. The younger folks played softball after which the weiners were roasted over an outdoor camp fire. Coffee was served, also milk for the kiddies. Following the "eats", Mr. H. J. Davies, presented Miss Mathews with a gift of silk stockings with good wishes from the district. Miss Methven replied in thanking the gathering for the gift saying that she had enjoyed being here. A present was also to have been presented to Miss Telford from the school children but Mac was not at the party, hence hers was to be mailed to her this week as she is now living in the Hinsdville district. Following the presentation to Miss Methven songs were sung around the fire and about midnight the gathering broke up

ALBERTA WESTERN LUMBER Co.

The Week in Legislative Circles . . . In Edmonton

EDMONTON.—Establishment of tribunals with legislative authority to deal with western farm debts is a step in the right direction, according to Premier Aberhart, and he believed decision of delegates to the Saskatoon Farm Conference to press for such bodies is sound. "The problem in connection with farm debt has received a considered and examination never before given," he said. "I am confident that the government at Ottawa will recognize the slavery desire of the West to clear away the barriers that have prevented the three prairie provinces from giving the best service to the nation."

oo oo oo

Alberta government delegates to the farm conference included Mr. Aberhart, Hon. Lucien Maynard, Hon. D. B. MacMillan and Hon. Solon E. Low. At the Regina meeting called for July 10 and 11 Mr. Maynard and Mr Low will be delegates. This meeting is called for the purpose of preparing a submission for presentation to Ottawa. The resolution proposing the tribunal was moved at Saskatoon by Robert Gardiner, veteran U. F. A. leader. It was adopted unanimously by the Conference.

oo oo oo

Latest move in the Alberta debt situation was made by the Columbian National Life Insurance Co., a U. S. concern, which filed statement of claim against the province. The company does not operate here, but possesses certain Alberta bonds. It is sought to obtain accrued interest on these bonds.

Among Alberta industries showing steady increase in production during the first four months of this year are coal mining, which improved 20% with production valued at 67,831,761, petroleum, which rose 32% to a value of $5,385,580, cattle exports, which rose 61% to a value of $2,562,219, sheep and lamb exports, up 93% to a value of $461,174, and cheese production, which rose 164% to a value of $2,58,817. Packing plant production was valued at $21,355,631, a gain of 70%.

oo oo oo

During the first three months of 1942, live stock marketings showed encouraging gains. Cattle numbered 70,148 head valued at $2,-553,190, an increase of 81%, calves numbered 16,880 worth $364,406, an increase of 44%, and hogs numbered 586,353 worth $12,912,200, an increase of 90%. Sheep and lambs numbered 73,213, were valued at $693,811, a gain of 29%. Gains were also recorded in fluid milk, cheese, concentrated milk, 57%, clay products, 4%, lime, 90%, and butter, 8%.

oo oo oo

During the January 1-April 30 period increased business was also shown in bank clearings, 24%, retail trade, 16% construction contracts, 13% bank clearings, 20% customs receipts, 9% unemployment relief decline 71%, with 1,146 relief cases.

CLAYSMORE CLIPPINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Westie Harrison of Hendly, B.C., are visiting the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. C. Harrison and expect to spend ten days or two weeks here. This is the first time Wes has been home since going to B.C. in 1937. No doubt he will note many changes in the past five years.

Mrs. Wm. Kerr from Vancouver, B.C. is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. J. Livingstone, south of Claysmore

Mr. Antrum from near Red Deer has taken charge of the Pool elevator at Claysmore.

Vernon Wilbo who has been stationed with the R.C.A.F. at McLeod, Alberta, is spending a few days leave at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cairns and son John of Edmonton spent last week visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Steed. Master John remained and will spend the summer here with his grandparents.

H. Khabatnik has gone to the coast where he plan on visiting friends and relatives. They spent time in the Okanagan Valley for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Bunz entertained a few friends at their home on Thursday evening. The time passed very quickly visiting and the hostess served a dainty lunch at 11 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Shand spent last week end in Edmonton visiting their daughter Margaret.

Mrs. V. Voss and daughter Beverly are spending a few weeks visiting friends and relatives near their old home at Marsden, Sask.

Sincere congratulations for a long and happily married life are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Ken Kennedy (nee Winnie Willes) who were married in August last year.

Another member of Moulder is in the air force. Mr. J. Van Nest for a few days.

The C. Harrison family held a reunion on Sunday July 12 when all sons and one daughter were together for the first time since 1937. Need less to say a very enjoyable time was spent by this well known Claysmore family.

WOODVALE

Y. Turner met with a painful accident when his right arm was dislocated at the shoulder. The same thing happened to him several years ago and the arm had troubled him ever since but never so severe as this time. He had to be taken to the hospital to get it put in place. This will mean a six week to three month period of practical inactivity for his arm, a pretty hard proposition now there is already too much work and not enough help for the farm.

Laurence Lingrel who works at Rankine got notice of his call for military service. We hear that Harvey Rankin's postponement is over by the last of July and he has not applied for another, so he might be called now again. Joe Thompson Jr. is working on Vancouver Island at present. Fo several more and more boys are leaving. Her over the girls returned en masse from their various schools. Ruth Rank's from Vermilion, Verna Potter and Lily Van Wageningen from Kitscoty Therese Goutier from Vegreville Roger de Breville is taking Evelyn for a two weeks visit to Edmonton.

By the way, Roger found a stone weighing 20-10 pounds in his pasture this week. It is quite round in the shape of the fish is clearly outlined and fi several places the scales are sticking out. How long ago and where did that little fish live before a glacier brought stone and fish here? Or did it swim around in this district when this part was an inland sea or bi lake, before it became so hilly? Mu sel shells are often found thirty or forty feet deep when digging a well.

The school children were invited to the school picnic at Watson school but it happened that no cars were available and the few who own bikes and a horse were not enough to make a respectable gang. Too bad as the milk, 57%, clay products, 4%, lime, 90%, and butter, 8%.

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

By W. L. Gurney
Director, Research Department
Searle Grain Co., Ltd

The Week of the 60th Growers
The members of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association have just concluded at Olds, Alberta, their annual meeting.

For 38 years the professional seed growers of Canada have been gathering once or more of the provinces, to discuss how best they could improve the quality and increase the quantity of true-to-variety seeds of cereals, forage crops, field root and garden vegetable crops. All on that the commercial crops produced by the farmers of Canada will be of higher quality, and will give a higher yield per acre.

The high quality seeds made available to farmers by these members of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association are the carefully multiplied progeny of some handfuls of most promising newly-bred and selected foundation stocks placed to their hands by the scientific plant breeders of the Dominion Experimental Farms, of the Rust Research Laboratory and of our own Universities.

The high reputation enjoyed on the markets of the world by our Canadian wheat and other crops traces back directly to the quality, purity, variety and careful work which amounts to a high degree of craftsmanship—done by the members of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association.

Our Canadian seed growers, therefore, implement their conscientious scientific agriculturists, certainly deserve well of this country.

Processing factors have tended to decrease supply or increase demand. A fair amount of Canadian wheat is going to Greece each month to relieve the food crisis conditions there. Stocks of wheat and corn supplies are below normal owing to dry weather last season—leaving conditions in Argentina are unfavorable owing to dryness.

Following factors have tended to increase supply or decrease demand: World stocks of wheat (ex. Russia) on Aug. 1st will likely be the highest on record and mostly in the Allied countries—freezing conditions are established over Western Canada and the northern States of the U.S.—Wheat crop prospects in India have improved recently owing to more favorable weather.

WILDMERE WINKS

Best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Ken Kennedy on a long happily married life. It took Ken quite a while to make the venture but he finally found the right one.

Rain—rain—did you ever see the like of it. The way it came down in one shower this week end when it was properly measured are but there was a good eight inches fell, and five of that on Saturday alone. Streams ran out of banks and in the spring most have raised our lake a good foot and a half. Sloughs are full and running over in some places. Lots of moisture to how to finish the growing crops if the sun does not come out too hot to evaporate it. Not nearly so much fell towards town as did here. Even Jimmie got stuck in his own yard with the truck.

The B.W.D. club held its meeting on Thursday at Basswood school and a fair crowd crowd gathered there before the heavy shower of rain that came that afternoon. Some of those living close thought they would wait until the rain was over and when it set over it was too late to go. It was not known exactly how much was cleared at the picnic as some refund was coming for Mrs. Kaiser but a tidy sum was realized to carry on our good work for the soldiers and needy ones. Mrs. Frank Gibson gave a very interesting account of the Red Cross meeting that our members were invited to in Tolland a short time ago. Some things she liked better at their meeting there, one was the limiting of cake and sugar. From now on the hostess supplies the sandwiches and drink each member takes a box of cookies. The next meeting is a joint one as we are inviting Tolland Red Cross members to be with us. It will be held at the home of Mrs. Gaylord Gibson's in Basswood on June 5th. A good bit of work was turned in but not so much on hand to be given out. We forgot to say that Mrs. Gibson and Mrs. Burke served a very enjoyable lunch which was greatly enjoyed that wet afternoon.

Albert Howard was home over the week end to visit his parents Mr. and Mrs. Harry Howard. Roy Hibbon was over and visited Albert while he was home. Albert is still stationed in Edmonton and feels my he looks pretty snappy in his uniform of blue.

The Alberta Wheat Pool is holding a free picture show and talk in one school on Wednesday July 22 at 8.30 so keep that date in mind and come and see it.

In a recent letter from George Love of the air force in Edmonton he wishes to thank every one who donated towards his pen and pencil set. He says it's very useful when one has scores of notes to copy down at the school where he is. George is not a Wildmere boy but he has always donated towards any sport or benefits in our district so we thought he was entitled to a set like our other lads.

We noticed Mr. L. L. Kehoe's sale of cows on the same day as Turkey Hill sports, which is not very good as either one would be happy both have lots of success.

In handing out our congrats we forgot to extend them to a former school teacher of our district who was married last Wednesday, July 8, Mr. and Mrs. Teasdale (nee Easley Rankin) who will reside in Paradise Valley.

Wallington's were Sunday evening visitors at the Soufferi home as were Mr. and Mrs. J. Wilson.

Co-Operation For Victory

EDITOR OF THE PAST — Time years have taught an unforgettable lesson in the value of collective security. Familiar to us all, is the tragic story of the fall, one by one, of the small nations of the Old World. It is now clear that the story might have been different had they foreseen their danger and presented a united front before the onslaught of the common enemy. It is gratifying to see that those nations still free of the Axis yoke have learned the lesson and that they are working closely together in the prosecution of the war. Canada is co-operating fully with the other United Nations. Between the United States and Canada there has grown up a degree of co-operation in production and defense which sets a fine example in the breaking down of barriers between friendly nations in those critical times.

* * * *

Joint War Production

Through the Joint War Production Committee, Canada and the United States have co-ordinated their productive capacity in order to bring their maximum output of war materials to the peak as soon as possible. How full their co-operation in these matters is, is illustrated by the fact that all priority orders issued in the United States, apply automatically in Canada and thus the war industries of both countries share equally in this important factor of production. The Joint Production Board, recently set up by Britain and the United States, was formed on the pattern of the agreement which exists between Canada and the United States.

* * * *

Resources Of Two Nations

Edward A Locke, assistant to Donald Nelson, chairman of the American War Production Board, visited Canada recently and he gave some interesting facts concerning the joint effort being made in his country and Canada. Of our co-ordinated war effort, he said: "Our two countries have given a striking example of the way in which the resources of two great nations can be tied together to provide the strength of a united effort. It was a natural development, threat ned by a common danger, we united in a common action to meet it. Out of our experience has come a new plan of collaboration into which all free nations can fit." Not only in production but in defense, have the two nations joined and our coast lines and shipping are being guarded by a joint plan of protection. It is clear that if peace is to be maintained in the years following the war, it will be through a plan based on the principal of collective security. Many barriers which have existed between nations will have to be removed—and the example set by the people on this continent may help to make the pattern for that new world order

Anonymous Heroes

Two Soldiers Deprived Medals Of Valuable Supplies At Tobruk

British airmen and navy men who escaped from Tobruk aboard the South African minesweeper Parktown have anonymous heroes who deprived the Germans of valuable supplies by blowing up the docks and the bakeries.

From far out in Tobruk Harbor, they saw the pair standing on the docks ready to set off charges of ammunitions and oil. Together, they pushed down plungers setting off five tons of explosives under the wharves.

"There was a blinding flash, the loudest roar I ever heard, and everything around the harbor went up in bits, including the two boys," one man said.

He added that the concussion reached the ship and must have leveled what was left of the town

Higher Milk Production

Will Depend Mainly On Good Hay Crop This Year

To get the five per cent increase in milk production which Canada needs this year, an extra good crop of hay will be needed. A rule of thumb by which to gauge how much should be on hand is: 2½ tons of legume hay for each cow in the herd next winter; 1½ tons of mixed hay; ¾ ton for each heifer 6-12 months old, and ¼ ton for each calf under six months.

Another Problem

Bed Wheat Happens Then

Wartime shortage of steel has partly solved the peacetime puzzle of what happens to old razor blades. The answer—at the moment—is simple. They become "new" blades. Firms are buying thousands, at 25 to 50 cents a pound, from hotels and railways. They are reconditioned and resold. But there's another problem now. What happens to the twice-used blades?

If medical men, probably sperchpyal, tells about a group of loafers in the Far East whose shiftlessness was such that they didn't even trouble to wash their rice. Across the way a group of highly refined women lived in daily disapproval of the unpleasant habits of the neighbors who weren't fussy about their food. Those women ate nothing but the most highly polished rice. Unhappily, all the women came down with beri-beri while the loafers grew healthy and fatter. This led an inquiring scientist to the discovery that essential vitamins are carried in the rather shells of grains and cereals.

To the western world the problem has been somewhat the same. Nowadays people who wish to be healthy in the face of rising prices and higher taxes, are returning to simpler foods whose vitamin potencies have not been destroyed by commercial refinement. Because of impending shortages in other foods, Hon J G Gardiner, food administrator under the War Time Prices and Trade Board, has urged Canadians to eat tasse bread if we have to do so we should make sure it is bread rich in vitamins Such is real whole wheat bread

Adult daily requirement of Thiamin or vitamin B1 is placed at at least 500 international units Canadian use of real whole wheat bread helps secure this essential, as it is the richest bread source of B1 A single slice of it yields 90 international units while a slice of refined white bread yields only one sixth the vitamin potency- 5 international units Other varieties of bread, shown in a comparative table calculated by Dr. E. W. McHenry, chairman of the nutrition division of the Health League, show vitamin content in order of importance

Nutritional Units of Thiamin (B1) in breads
	1 slice	1½ lb. loaf	1 lb. loaf
Refined White	5	120	180
Canada Approved White	15	225-360	240
Canada Approved Brown	15	375	250
High Vitamin Yeast (White)	30	470-570	320
Ordinary Brown Bread	15-20	450-600	300
Whole Wheat Bread	90	720	480

With reference to other elements in the Vitamin B complex, the Mitchell's remind varies with the amount of milk in the loaf.

With reference to nicotinic acid, there is more in whole wheat bread than in any enriched bread.

Mellorey Memorandum concerning different types of bread with special reference to Thiamin content:—

Other sources of essential vitamins are charted on a nutrocultal vitamin chart, suitable for framing, which may be had free on postal card request to Western Division Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Rd., Toronto, Ontario.

Disease Carriers

The Only Good Fly Is Most Certainly A Dead Fly

This has been said, at times, of other pests but never with more truth. Flies are the scavengers of the world. Right now, on many war fronts, as carriers of disease and death, they constitute a major problem facing the military medical authorities.

And here, on the home front, notwithstanding the warnings of health experts, medical men and scientists, there will again be too little attention paid to the problem of guarding against the fly menace.

Do you realize that every manure pile, every exposed garbage tin, every refuse heap on which flies setight to browse around, is a potential source of fatal contamination? Do you know that the bacteria on one small fly's body may number 5,000,000, that flies are, possibly, the most prolific breeders in the insect kingdom. that their favorite habitat is the place where most filth abounds and that, if the opportunity comes their way, they will carry disease-breeding germs into home and store and deposit them on food, drink and human beings" Infantile paralyses, diarrhoea, typhoid are a few of the menaces that may come in the wake of open and uncovered windows or doors.

One way to eliminate the fly menace and a safe, sure, clean way is to insect What a Fly Finds here and there in convenient places. They'll kill all the flies and, incidentally, they're most efficacious rat killers, too. So, don't only protect your home by trying to keep them out. Attack deadly sure by deciding to wipe them out!

Nice "ing About Democracy Is Willingness To Correct Errors

One thing about democracy is characteristic is that if it does make a political mistake concerning you, personally, it may be corrected. It isn't generally known perhaps but about 500 of the enemy aliens Britain sent to Canada for internment have been returned to England as free men. The original evidence against them, on review, failed to carry weight. Considering all the trouble involved in getting at the facts and then transporting the group across the Atlantic (where ship tonnage is at a premium), this procedure is unquestionably beyond any Nazi's ability to comprehend. The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

When I came home from the last war I heard a lot of grousing about some fellows who had spent the war years working in munitions plants. It wasn't the soldiers who complained—they simply said: "Lucky stiff, that's what I would have done if I had had any sense"—it was the older civilians. They seemed to feel that it was wrong for some people to have earned "high wages" while others did the fighting.

Just who should fight and who should stay home is a hard problem —and one that is really solved only by those who volunteer.

No columnist is in a position to make a forthright statement on the subject because he cannot know all the circumstances that lead to an individual's decision. Neither, I suspect, can anyone else be arbitrary on the subject.

But we can all wonder.

And that is the first thing that makes us wonder. A few days ago Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator in the United States, said to an audience at a meeting of the American Medical Association that the United States needed 8,000 doctors every month for the Army and Navy.

He said: "There is no apparent lack of interest on the part of your profession to volunteer because of reluctance to give up private income for army pay."

That was a strong statement, but McNutt is not noted for withholding his punches.

We civilians don't need doctors as badly as will the soldiers when the big battles get under way. For a tummy-ache or a broken arm can wait a few minutes or hours if the civilian doctors have to spread their talents over a wider area. But the action soldier can't wait. If there should not be enough doctors in the front line of action, thousands may be badly wounded men because too many stayed home to look after us it would be a tragedy.

Perhaps we ask too much of our medical men. We take it for granted that they will come at a moment's hour of the day or night we call; we take it equally for granted that they will come when we have a record of paying our bills or not; and we also take it for granted that they will give quite a bit of their time to free clinics.

The Army needs doctors. So does the Air Force. This year quite a number of young men finished training and new shingles will be cropping up all over the Dominion. Let's hope that a good percentage of these shingles will take the form of pips on the shoulders or rings around the cuffs—I'd like to think of a Canadian public man making a speech like that of Paul McNutt.

It all gives one very furiously to think.

What are we doing to help along the successful prosecution of the war? Are we feeling that because there is nothing spectacular we can do that the little things are not worth while? We do, sometimes, and it's too bad.

That old saying, "Many a mickle make a muckle," was never more true than when applied to the work of the individual citizen in a war.

Take this business of voluntary rationing. Many of us feel that most people say, "We only drank two cups of tea before it was rationed. Even if we cut down to only one hour small shipping space will that save?" It will save very little—But, multiply that one cup by 12,000,000 and see what the saving is then!

Let's work it out. The saving of one cup of tea by every Canadian, taking 200 cups as equalling one pound, means a saving of 23½ tons of tea every day. A ton of tea approximately 100 cubic feet of cargo space—so our one cup of tea saves 2,350 cubic feet.

What can a dirvedore do with 2,350 cubic feet?

Well, roughly speaking, that is a pile eight feet high, 20 feet wide and 15 feet long. It would accommodate two Valentine tanks or goodness knows how many cases of rifles or Bren guns. The stevedore could load about 20 one ton aerial bombs in the same space or eight Universal Carriers.

One cup of tea a day. Multiply it by 365 days! Not bad? No, it's not but it's only a fraction of the cargo space that can be saved if all of us cut our tea consumption in half!

Of course it isn't spectacular, this voluntary contribution that works no hardship on us, but it is another way in which the Individual Citizen's Army can make it possible for our sons and brothers and sweethearts and husbands to do the spectacular war work because we are willing to stand behind them even in the little things

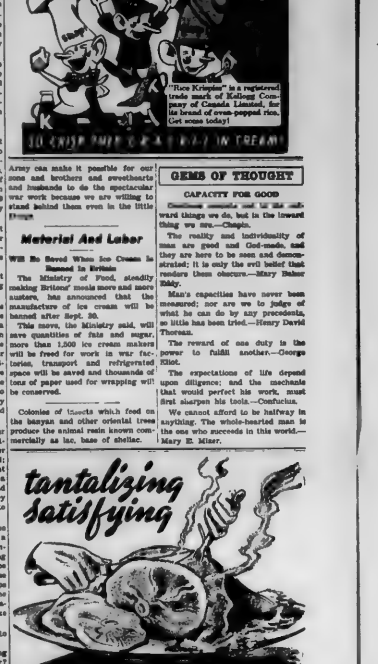
Will Be Saved When Ice Cream Is Banned In Britain

The Ministry of Food, steadily making Britons' meals more and more austere, has announced that the manufacture of ice cream will be banned after Sept. 30.

This move, the Ministry said, will save quantities of milk and sugar, more than 1,500 ice cream makers will be freed for work in war factories, transport and refrigerated space will be saved and thousands of tons of paper used for wrapping will be conserved.

Colonies of insects which feed on the banyan and other oriental trees produce the animal resin known commercially as lac, base of shellac.



GEMS OF THOUGHT

CAPACITY FOR GOOD

[illegible] and [illegible] the small-ward things we do, but in the inward thing we sow.—Chaplin

The reality and individuality of man are good and God-made, and they are here to be seen and demonstrated; it is only the evil belief that renders them obscure.—Mary Baker Eddy

Man's capacities have never been measured; nor are we to judge of what he can do by any precedents, so little has been tried.—Henry David Thoreau.

The reward of one duty is the power to fulfill another.—George Eliot.

The expectations of life depend upon diligence; and the mechanic that would perfect his work, must first sharpen his tools.—Confucius.

We cannot afford to be halfway in anything. The whole-hearted man is the one who succeeds in this world.—Mary E. Miser.

Must Continue To Manufacture Low Price Lines

Ottawa. — Continued manufacture of low-price lines of staple goods is compulsory under an order effective July 13, announced by the wartime prices and trade board.

The announcement said there was a danger that living costs might be affected by the disappearance of low-price lines of staple goods, even though there was no violation of the price ceiling.

The same policy is applied to sellers, other than manufacturers, and they are required to regulate their purchases so as to continue selling consumer goods in the same price range as during the corresponding seasons last year.

To meet this condition the board has adopted a policy that manufacturers of consumer goods must continue to produce and sell products of the same or substantially similar kind and quality, and in the same or approximately the same price ranges as those produced and sold in the corresponding period of 1941.

There is an objection to this: increasing the proportion of goods in the higher price range but any reduction in volume of goods in the lower price range is prohibited only if due to unavoidable circumstances, such as inability to obtain materials or a government order restricting production.

Evasion of the price ceiling by marketing new or inferior merchandise or changing trade descriptions is prohibited. For products substantially different in kind or quality from lines already on the market a maximum price or formula must be established by an administrator for the board before the goods are sold.

This price will be appropriate in relation to the price and relative value of comparable goods, the board's announcement said. The fact that one article cost more to produce than another will not alone justify a higher price.

In general the establishment of new lines is considered justifiable only if in the public interest. This might result from the necessity of using substitute materials, application of simplification and standardization methods or adoption of more efficient production methods which increase the value of the article or reduce its cost.

Where any new or modified product is substituted for or sold in place of any other product the manufacturer is to indicate this to all his customers, giving trade discounts for both the product displaced and the modified one.

This action, the statement said, implements the board's determination that there should be in general no further increase by manufacturers or importers in the price of finished consumer goods, as distinct from materials or semi-finished goods intended for further manufacture.

Actual cost increases must be met by absorption of the "squeeze" somewhere along the line from the manufacturer or importer to the retailer, unless the goods are eligible for subsidy.

Sending Clippings To Men Overseas Would Save Shipping Space

Ottawa. Post office officials said a general campaign is being planned to encourage Canadians to send newspaper clippings rather than complete newspapers overseas.

The plan already been presented to newspaper associations and is being sponsored by the Canadian Postmasters' Association.

"In most cases clippings are quite sufficient to give the news and would overcome the terrific waste in shipping space which there is at present with thousands of papers being sent overseas," a departmental spokesman said.

DEFENCE WEAPON

Britain Now Using Wire-Trailing Rockets Against Aerial Raiders

London. — Wire-trailing rockets have been disclosed officially as one of Britain's newest weapons of defence against aerial raiders.

The weapon, which has been in use to protect merchant ships for more than a year, was described as an apparatus which shoots a projectile that opens into a parachute from which long wires dangle.

The rockets, fired up as planes swoop to attack, often force them to veer off course or risk engagement in the wires.

RECRUITING FIGURES

Percentages Are Given For The Provinces

Ottawa.—Military District No. 2 (Toronto) has provided more than 19 per cent. of the enlistments for active service in the Canadian army, it was reported in a reply tabled in the House of Commons for E. H. Cormas (Lib., Wentworth).

Percentages of other districts are: No. 4 (Montreal) 12; No. 3 (Kingston, Ont.) 10; No. 11 (Victoria) 8; No. 10 (Winnipeg) 8; No. 13 (Calgary) 8; No. 6 (Halifax) 8; No. 1 (London, Ont.) 7; No. 12 (Regina) 7; No. 7 (Saint John, N.B.) 5; and No. 5 (Quebec) 4.

THE CROW'S NEST

Men At Naval Barracks In Halifax Publish Bright Newspaper

Halifax.—A bright new monthly newspaper, published by and for naval ratings in Halifax, is off the press and being distributed to navy divisions across the country.

Its eight pages crammed with news and information of interest to the boys in blue, brightly illustrated with pictures and cartoons, the nautically-named publication, "The Crow's Nest" is put out by the men of H.M.C.S. Cornwallis, one of the naval barracks at Halifax.

BAN STATISTICS

Publication Of External Trade Bulletins Will Not Be Permitted

Ottawa.—Mr. Mackaut on external trade statistics considered to be of possible value to the enemy has been put into effect at the request of the directorate of censorship headed by Col. C. M. Biggar, the Dominion bureau of statistics said.

No longer to be issued are the "following monthly bulletins: Summary of Canada's external trade, Canadian exports by commodities; Canadian imports by commodities; Canadian exports to principal countries and Canadian imports from principal countries.

Spokesmen for the bureau said that in eliminating them Canada is following the lead of the United Kingdom and United States.

REDRAFT OF BILL

More Fines Made To Settle Men On Land After War

Ottawa.—Hon. Cyrus Macmillan, chairman of the special House of Commons committee on land settlement, tabled in the house the fourth report of the committee, along with a redraft of bill 65, the measure providing for settlement on the land after the war of an estimated 25,000 ex-servicemen.

The fourth report added four recommendations to the bill. It asked the government to consider:

1. The feasibility of adopting a system in which the annual payments made by the settler would be adjusted in accordance with the relation of the prices of commodities he has to sell with those he has to buy.

2. A scheme whereby settlers under the act would be given first option on the purchase of tractors, trucks and other military equipment suitable for farm use when these are being disposed after the war.

3. Provision that at a later date the act will be amended to provide for persons who have had service in ships and who are not in receipt of a disability pension.

4. The advisability of placing administration of the act under a new department which would deal exclusively with all matters pertaining to ex-servicemen and ex-service women.

Many Changes In Air Schools In West Areas

Ottawa. — Royal Canadian Air Force headquarters [illegible] on behalf of Air Minister Power that substantial changes now have been completed for changes in the capacity and location of many schools operating under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

At Regina the R.P.T.S. will be closed down and the A.O.S. at the Regina will be moved to Pearce, Alta.

At Prince Albert, Sask., the A.O.S. lapses but the E.F.T.S. will be largely expanded "to take advantage of the [illegible]-ld and other facilities particularly adaptable to elementary training," and virtually all the staff of the A.O.S. will be absorbed by the E.F.T.S.

At Portage la Prairie, Man., the E.F.T.S. now operating the E.F.T.S. will assume management of an enlarged R.A.F. E.F.T.S. at Assiniboia, Sask., to allow for expansion of the A.O.S. at Portage la Prairie.

At Chatham, N.B., the airdrome is required for other purposes so the A.O.S. now located there will move to a new site at Davidson, Sask., the E.F.T.S. will be dropped and the civilian operating company will assume management of an enlarged R.A.F. E.F.T.S. at Neepawa, Man.

The announcement quoted Maj. Power as saying the changes are being made to implement agreements reached at the recent air training conference here to increase the flow of air observers and air navigators, and he added

"These changes (in schools, together with expansion of existing schools on their present sites, are expected to provide adequately and economically for the revised plans made at the air training conference."

This is the list of other changes, some of which have been made public:

At Malton, Ont., airport expansion of the air observer school will necessitate transfer to the new elementary flying training school and other operating company of the latter school will assume management of the Royal Air Force E.F.T.S at De Winton, Alta.

At Edmonton the air observer school expands and the E.F.T.S operating company assumes management of E.F.T.S. at Bowden, Alta which also will be enlarged

At Pearce the existing R.A.F E.F.T.S. will be disbanded, "experience having shown that air conditions at Pearce are more suitable for the operation of heavy type aircraft than elementary trainers."

At London, Ont., the A.O.S. will be greatly increased in capacity and the E.F.T.S. there lapses;

At Winnipeg, the A.O.S. will be greatly expanded;

At Quebec the E.F.T.S. lapses to provide adequate airdrome and barracks space for an enlarged A.O.S.

At Moncton, N.B., the Air Navigation School becomes the Central Navigation School, greatly expanded to train navigators as well as to continue production of navigation specialist officers;

At Hamilton, to provide for expansion of the R.A.F. A.N.S., the R.C.A.F. E.F.T.S. will be moved to a new site at Pondrion, Que.

TAKES OVER COMMAND

Prime Minister Churchill revealed in Commons that Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck, [illegible] has taken over the Middle East, had relieved Lieut.-Gen. Neil M. Ritchie of the 8th Army command and himself assumed the job of stopping the German drive through Egypt.

REPLACING SUGAR

Fruit Expressed That Honey Supplies Will Soon Be Exhausted

Edmonton.—Fear that honey will disappear from the shelves of the retail stores unless the wartime prices board takes steps to regulate prices paid by industries "now using honey in place of the sugar they are forbidden to use" has been expressed by H. W. Love, Edmonton honey processor and distributor, in a letter to J. G. Taggart, food administration coordinator with the board.

HELPFUL IN RAID

London.—A group of boys in the air training corps — now 200 000 strong had a hand in the 1,000-plane raid on Cologne. They were camping at an airfield and helped the ground staff load explosives and incendiaries into the bombers.

HEAVY PUNISHMENT

Alexandria, Egypt.— The first whippings for profiteering have occurred when 13 convicted profiteers were given 30 lashes and three months imprisonment.

DETAILS SECRET

Britain Not Giving Out News About New Secret Weapon

London.—A last-minute censorship was imposed on the disclosure of a spectacular development in Britain's anti-aircraft defence after the London Daily Mail had protested against the revelation.

This was not the new wire-trailing rocket used to fight enemy planes, which was officially announced earlier.

Details of the new secret weapon, the result of five years of experimentation had been released when the censorship was imposed with the explanation that "new instructions have been issued."

A front-page criticism by the Daily Mail against exposing the weapon presumably influenced the decision.

The new device it was said, has already been used successfully against enemy raids.

GOOD SEAMANSHIP

Won Distinguished Service Cross For Canadian [illegible]

London.—Acting Lt.-Cmdr. W. E. S. Briggs, R.C.N.R., whose destroyer ship resulted in saving the torpedoed tanker Turbret, received the Distinguished Service Cross from the King at a recent investiture at Buckingham Palace, it was announced.

He was the award while in command of H.M.C.S. Orillia last winter, when the Canadian corvette helped the disabled tanker into a British port, saving a $1,000,000 cargo of oil.

AIRPLANE SPRUCE

New Company Is Going To Develop And Increase Production

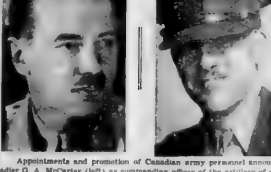
Ottawa.—Acres Timber Products, Ltd., a new crown company with head office in Vancouver, was incorporated under the act to develop and increase production of airplane spruce for Canada and Britain, it was announced by Munitions Minister Howe.

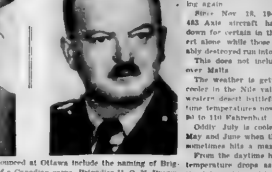
"The company will control conversion of airplane spruce from logs into lumber for a greater number of grades and specifications suitable for the vital airplane requirements," Mr. Howe's statement said.

Churchill Watches U.S. Paratroops

During a recent secret inspection visit to Fort Jackson, South Carolina, Prime Minister Churchill had a grandstand seat at a huge demonstration of U.S. paratroops in action. As he watched the troops dropping from the skies Mr Churchill equipped with a [illegible]-field radio, issued the orders to the troops, and when planes were flying overhead held a two-way conversation with pilots

Canadian Brigadiers Named To New Posts





Appointments and promotion of Canadian army personnel announced at Ottawa include the naming of Brigadier C. A. McCarter (left) as commanding officer of the artillery of a Canadian corps, Brigadier H. O. N. Brownfield, M.C. (centre) to the staff of Gen. McNaughton as senior artillery officer for the army, and the appointment of Brigadier M. H. S. Penhale(right) as brigadier, general staff, at headquarters of the Canadian army overseas. Lt.-Col. C. Vokes, 38, of the Royal Canadian Engineers, is appointed to command an infantry brigade with the rank of brigadier Lieut-Col H J B Keating formerly embarkation commandant for eastern ports, has been appointed director of supply and transport with the rank of colonel He will be assigned to the quartermaster-general's branch at national defence headquarters and replaces Col Harry O Lawson, 56 who retires on pension.

Would Process Our Coal Output After The War

Ottawa.—Dr. R. C. Wallace, principal of Queen's University, forecast before the House of Commons committee on reconstruction and reestablishment that after the war Canada's coal output will be processed in much greater degree to provide for easier transportation, instead of selling up heavy industries near coal sources.

Cooking and briquetting were processes which would be developed in post-war years, except in the case of Vancouver Island coal, he said. He said it was contemplated the Vancouver Island coal would be used for an iron and smelting industry at the coast.

"Heavy industries will grow on the coast as we develop the coal resources there," he said

On the prairies, coal and water power, developed together, would provide for greater electrification of [illegible]

Hydro-electric power would be another important factor in Canada's post-war economy. Development had been rapid in recent years and there was now 9,000 000 horsepower available, about one-third of this was being used entirely in war industry.

"That means that there will be a great deal of excess power following the war. The use of this power in industry will be a great problem. There will be a large amount of cheap power for which we must find productive industrial use."

Dr Wallace, chairman of the committee on conservation, said the development of natural resources set up under the interdepartmental advisory committee on post-war reconstruction, said he would like to see some of this power diverted to electrification of the life of the farm and home.

"And," he added "I would like to see a decentralization of industry into the rural districts "This is another post-war problem."

"The country and the government itself might make possible the bringing of electricity to rural districts," said Dr Wallace. "Such a move would assist the stabilization of postwar economic life."

In answer to a question regarding the development of an iron industry on the British Columbia coast as a post-war project, Dr Wallace said that Tyzado island was the centre which had been considered, since iron and limestone were nearby.

The plant would produce 75,000 tons a year and the ore could be smelted at Comox, rather than at Vancouver where it would cause greater centralization of population.

Allied Forces In Egypt Are Much Stronger

Cairo —The Allied air forces—British, Australian, South African and American—are in a stronger position now than when the present campaign began six weeks ago, the R A F disclosed

In the 42 days, it was announced, 134 Axis planes were shot down—in air combat for certain, more than 100 more were destroyed on the ground and 50 by anti-aircraft defences The number of planes that is probably shot down run into the hundreds more

During the same period 110 Allied pilots were listed as missing figures corresponding only roughly to plane losses because many planes shot down have been repaired and are flying again

Since Nov 18, 1941, more than 485 Axis aircraft have been shot down for certain in the western desert alone while those listed as probably destroyed run into the thousands.

This does not include Axis losses over Malta.

The weather is getting seasonally cooler in the Nile valley and on the western desert battlefront, with daytime temperatures now ranging from 90 to 110 Fahrenheit

Oddly July is cooler usually than May and June when the temperature sometimes hits a maximum of 130.

From the daytime high of 110, the temperature drops as low as 70 in the July nights and it is chilly in the desert dawn

Personal comfort depends largely on the wind which usually blows for 50 straight days at a time, blowing unceasing and extremely irritating dust clouds across the wastes of the [illegible]

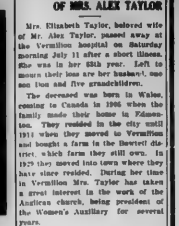
NEW ALLIANCE PASTOR



Rev. David Anderson

The Rev. David T. Anderson of Winnipeg, Man., has recently been appointed as pastor of the Christian and Missionary Alliance church, succeeding Rev. Henry Miller, now under appointment as a foreign missionary to Ecuador. Formerly of Winnipeg, Mr. Anderson has resided in the United States for the past five years, having at that time he attended the Bible Bible Institute, St. Paul Minnesota, and Bethel College and Theological Seminary, and for the past three years served as student and resident pastor of the First Baptist church, Wisconsin.

After taking several Sundays in June, Mr. Anderson was called to the pulpit of Beulah Tabernacle, Edmonton for the first two Sundays of July, but now returns to the Vermilion field. Church services are now being held in the new Alliance church on the former orange hall. A warm welcome is extended to all

TEASDALE—RANKIN

The marriage of Eunie Corinne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Rankin, of Lloydminster, to Mr. Joseph Henry Teasdale son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Teasdale of Paradise Valley, took place at 4.30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents under an arch of pink roses and ferns. The Rev. A. Walker of Lloydminster officiated.

Wearing a floor length dress of pink sheer the bride was given away by her father. Her gown had a low V-neckline, long bishop sleeves and a quilted girdle. She wore a pendant, a gift from the groom. Her pink tulle was three-quarter length and was fastened into her hair with a wreath of pink roses. She carried a bouquet of white roses and orange blossoms.

Mrs. Donald Myers of Minburn was matron of honor. Her frock of blue taffeta was fashioned with fitted waist, full bodice, and tiny jacket with puff sleeves. She wore yellow snapdragons in her hair and carried yellow snapdragons and iris.

Mr Harvey Rankin was best man. The groom's sister, Mrs. W. Sanders played the wedding marches and his brother in law Mr Sid Stoddard from Trail, B.C., sang "The Parting." Mr.

Following the ceremony, at which fifty guests were present, a reception was held in the home. Mrs. Rankin was charming in a light blue and white afternoon sheer dress and corsage of blue violets. Mrs Teasdale wore a dress with black skirt and contrasting waist of figured black and bright blue. Her corsage was carnations.

After the reception the young couple left for a short honeymoon in Edmonton, following which they will make their home near Paradise Valley.

DEATH AND FUNERAL OF MRS. ALEX TAYLOR

Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, beloved wife of Mr. Alex Taylor, passed away at the Vermilion hospital on Saturday morning July 11 after a short illness. She was in her 65th year. Left to mourn their loss are her husband, one son and five grandchildren.

The deceased was born in Wales, coming to Canada in 1906 when the family made their home in Vermilion. They resided in the city until 1911 when they moved to Vermilion and bought a farm in the Sweetdale district, which farm they still own. In 1929 they moved into town where they have since resided. During her time in Vermilion Mrs. Taylor has taken a great interest in the work of the Anglican church, being president of the Women's Auxiliary for several years.

She was also very active in Lodge circles and had been a Rebekah for thirty-three years, joining Maple Leaf lodge No. 2 in Edmonton in 1909. She transferred in 1911 and became a charter member of Jewel Rebekah No. 25 where she held office. In 1915 after coming to Vermilion she transferred her membership to Vermilion Britannia Rebekah where she has since filled all the offices. She was also D.D.P. of District No. 4 several times during the twenty-five years and she filled each office with untiring zeal. The first three years she drove eight miles with a horse and buggy twice a month, to attend lodge. Her home was always open to the lodge and its visiting members. In the opinion of her sisters, Mrs. Taylor was all that Rebekah Oddfellowship stands for in the truest sense of the word so the fatherless Lodge Baby;

"If we but live as she lived we will leave behind a name, honored and beloved by all the good we have made to accomplish a history more precious in the sight of Him above than that of Wisdom, Warrior, or Sage."

The funeral was held at St. Saviours Anglican church on Monday afternoon at two o'clock and was conducted by the Rev. Canon Lawrence-Taylor, a beautiful ceremonial of the Rebekah Lodge was in charge of the Noble Grand, Mrs. Grace Adam, and Mrs. Martin, V.G., Mrs. M. Keys, Chaplain Honorary pall-bearers were Charter members Mrs. A. Cameron, Miss C. Witherbe of Britannia Lodge, and Mrs. C. Nairn and Mrs. L. Bath of Fern Lodge, Minburn, assisted by Past Noble members of Vermilion and Minburn. Mrs. M. Hill rendered the solo at the graveside.

Interment took place in the Vermilion cemetery.

Beautiful floral tributes were received from:

Vermilion Fair Sets Pace for the West

Vermilion Fair opens with a bang on Thursday, July 30th, and runs for three full days with complete attractions programs each afternoon and evening, six fine performances, brought to Vermilion for your entertainment.

The Fair Directors have not set the pace for Western Canada by donating 25% of all net proceeds to the Red Cross; last year the Board made a fine donation to the Queen's Canadian fund for air raid victims.

The merchants of Vermilion, recognizing the significance of the 27th annual exhibition, have kindly agreed to close their places of business on Thursday afternoon in order that all employed in stores and offices may have an opportunity of seeing the complete grandstand performances which will be staged at three o'clock and 7.30 on the first day of the exhibition; the grandstand attractions have been agreed to present the entire show on the first afternoon and evening, and the fowrie wheels, merry-go-round and the other rides and shows will be in full swing by noon on Thursday.

The Vermilion Chamber of Commerce now established in their new western headquarters at the former W. B. A. premises, will attend the Thursday evening performance, when the attractions personnel will excel themselves in their presentation of the finest shows ever to play in Western Canada.

Horse racing enthusiasts should purchase their advance tickets and have them ready for the gate when a lengthy list of entries has already been promised and the fast Vermilion track was never in better shape than it is at the present time. Horses from Saskatchewan, Monitor, Craigmyle, Strathcona, Camrose, Chauvin, Provost, Medicine Hat, Oyen, Calgary, Edmonton, St. Paul, Wainwright and many other places are expected to pitch their speed against all comers and if rumor is borne out by fact the once famous Vermilion track is about to come back into its own.

Prizes at the Vermilion Fair are advertised to attend on the first day, Thursday. If they wish to secure

Farmers' Wives to Sign Sugar Vouchers for Harvest Crews

For the farmer's wife who is wondering how to supply sugar for threshing crews, and other harvest help, or harvesters come in her home, it is arranged that she may purchase the needed supply by voucher. The voucher may be signed by someone authorized by her, will go to her regular retail store and sign a purchase voucher provided she has the sugar. On the vouchers will be marked "harvest workers" or "threshing crew", the number of men at her farm, and the length of time they will be there. The retailer will follow the usual procedure of accepting the voucher, and supplying the sugar she is entitled to, on the ration basis.

ELEVATORS WILL NOW BUY SCRAP METAL

$7.00 per Ton Paid—Rush in Old Tractors and Waste Material

NORMAN GREIG PAYMASTER

At more than a thousand Prairie points the grain elevators have become receiving depots for scrap iron and steel. Now that the campaign is nearly concluded, the several companies operating grain elevators in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta are now purchasing scrap metal on behalf of Wartime Salvage, Limited, a government owned company, at all elevators at which they are receiving and operating. An agent or one of the companies has been appointed to act as a government buying agent at each of these points. On behalf of Wartime Salvage, Limited, this agent will purchase scrap metal from voluntary salvage committees, at a flat rate of $7 per ton.

There are large quantities of scrap iron lying around the farms of Western Canada, and it is hoped to take in all the elevators no less than 100,000 tons within the next six months.

While the metal may be taken to any of the 5,.4) elevators and weighed the actual payment is received from Norman Greig, at the U.G.G. elevator.

When bringing in that scrap metal, don't forget those old tires, bunches of rags, rubber shoes etc. and save them at the Salvage depot in the C.N.R. freight sheds.

All kinds of metal is needed except car bodies and fenders, on this point No metal less than ¼ of an inch thick is of any use.

Get that metal in before harvest starts— the need is vital to keep Canada's war machine humming and tanks, ships steel, etc. plants

VERMILION TO CRASH MOVIES

Extensive Shots Taken Here On Sunday

Vermilion and district crashed into the movies on Sunday when numerous shots were taken which will be incorporated in a news reel of Canada at War, showing Alberta's efforts along that line. The pictures included some in the oil field where quite a large contingent was taken over on an oil field in the making next at the C.W.A.C. training camp.

The news men represented several different film companies and were accompanied on their trip by the Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works and were joined here by several local men. The pictures will be on the screen in theatres within six weeks.

SIXTY-ACRE FIELD OF FLAX 38 INCHES HIGH

On Farm of Barney Klashunsky

A fine sample of flax pulled from a 60-acre field on the farm of Barney Klashinsky, eight and a half miles north-west of Vermilion may be seen at the Standard office. It measures thirty inches in height which is comparable with the whole stand of the sixty acre field and the crop is so thick that one cannot walk through it — the yield promises to be a heavy one.

Mr. Klashinsky, who is one of the representative farmers of the district operating on an extensive scale says that there should not be anything to prevent this crop going 20 bushels to the acre with the conditions of the present favorable conditions. He has never seen a field of flax to equal it and the editor believes that you'll have to travel some to see a finer sight than this stand presents.

CANADIAN WOMEN'S ARMY CORPS AT VERMILION FAIR

Free Admission at Gate for Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen

The Directors of Vermilion Fair have extended an invitation to the members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps to attend Vermilion Fair and all soldiers, sailors and airmen in the district to be their guests for the three days of the 27th annual exhibition, July 29th, 31st and Aug. 1st with no charge being made at the gates; members of the armed forces on leave will please accept this invitation as applying to them personally.

Owing to lack of sufficient grandstand accommodation the invitation cannot be extended to include the guests but especially low prices are available through the purchase of advance tickets.

The directors are pleased to announce that arrangements have been completed to welcome the members of the Women's Army Corps at a command presentation of the splendid grandstand attraction on Thursday evening, July 30th at 7.30 p.m.

Master of Ceremonies, "Speed" Bradley of Los Angeles has promised that the first day attractions will include every act on the bill. Thursday has been set aside as Children's Day and Citizens' Day and every effort will be made to make the first day the best day—be on hand to welcome the guests of Vermilion, the members of the C.W.A.C. whose presence is a matter of unusual attraction in the busy town of Vermilion.

INTERESTING FILM "KNOW ALBERTA" SHOWN SUNDAY

Large Crowd Attends at Columbia —Proceeds for Red Cross

Three officials of the Edmonton branch of the Alberta Motor Association, presented the A. M. A. film, "Know Alberta", at the Columbia theatre at Vermilion, Sunday night, with the proceeds going to the Vermilion branch of the Red Cross.

Charles H. Girard, K.C., Mr. Heath, and George Parkhouse, made the trip to Vermilion where they were guests of William Pilkie, proprietor of the Columbia theatre and chairman of the 1942 Red Cross campaign in the Vermilion district.

George Parkhouse is acting secretary of the Edmonton branch of the A.A. and Grant and Blythe are district managers. The film was produced by the A.M.A. in 1941.

The film proved an extremely entertaining one as many of the spots could be recognized by those in the audience who had holidayed in the various places and travelled along the blue ribbon trail.

Scenes were shown along the Edmonton Vermilion Lloydminster high way and the Sunday when pictures were taken at the V.S.A. grounds and buildings, now being utilized by the C.W.A.C. training camp; the Vermilion oil field showing the pools or oil while a general view was taken of the new bridge spanning the river on the new highway coming in from the east.

There was no cost in connection with the show as Manager Pilkie donated the theatre and there was no charge made by the A.M.A. for their time or films, consequently the local Red Cross benefits by the entire proceeds of the nitty gritty show which amounted to $33.11.

ARMY GIRLS GIVEN KEYS TO VERMILION

Welcomed at Official Functions, in Churches, Homes and by Sports Clubs

One hundred and thirty girls of the Canadian Women's Army Corps were given an official and very hearty welcome to Vermilion at a dramatic reception held in the spacious Elks hall on Friday evening. During the course of the reception, which was sponsored by the Elks and the Canadian Legion Post 11, greetings were conveyed by R. C. Hebbert for those civic institutions, and for the town of Vermilion by Mayor Morrison who virtually handed the girls the keys to the town. Speaking for the C.W.A.C., the Commandant, Lieut. R. M. Hawels dwelt on the kindness and hospitality of the people of Vermilion since the arrival of the members of the C.W.A.C. in town and also thanked them for the fine time being enjoyed by the party that evening. Following the Commandant's remarks a short and varied program was presented in which members of the training center did a major part of the entertaining. Entertainment among the guests at the reception were Lieut. R. M. Hawels of Vancouver, Commandant of the Training Centre and Assistant Commandant Lieut. J. E. Walker, a Victoria lady, Capt. T. L. Mollitt, Lieut T. W. Dexter and Sgt. Major F. Purves of M. D. No 13.

The majority of the girls present at the Vermilion Training Centre established at the V.S.A. grounds "The Barracks", have arrived during the past two weeks. Many of them have been in the service for some time and are the potential officers, instructors and staff for the new recruits at the C.W.A.C. who will arrive in the number of about 600 at the end of the month. Those here now are for the most part taking refresher courses in

SEARCH PARTY FINDS BOY MISSING TEN DAYS

Missing ten days in the wooded country south-west of Heinsburg, 15 year old Victor Kosak was found alive late Sunday, emaciated and with his feet and knees blistered but in otherwise fair condition, good enough to be told his mother that he kept alive by eating mushrooms and berries. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Kosak.

The boy was taken to the Elk Point hospital where Dr. F. J. Miller said there is every chance the child would recover from the ordeal.

Victor was found sitting on the steps of an abandoned shack, 12 miles from Lake Gartmer and twelve miles from his home. The discovery was made by Mike Holowaychuk Jr. a member of a 200-man search party which had arranged for a last big search on Sunday. Twice before this shack had been visited during the search but the boy had apparently awakened to it after these examinations.

Red Cross Marvellous Organization Says Soldier In England

The following is an excerpt from a letter just received by Mrs. Donald Wemer from her brother Jack Daily somewhere in England

"Just landed me a while ago I'll be off to Africa or anything for over here as if they keep in contact with us. All I can say is that it's a marvelous organization and most welcome to receive parcels of clothing. Especially those pyjamas and dressing gowns, mine through their generosity were at the hospital was received almost three times a week by a Red Cross visitor and are asked (by that I mean each and every one is asked) if there is anything they are in need of and there is anything the can get for them. Each Monday we get parcels and letters and sometimes personals some nearly six. You definitely they are of great value and I can certainly say as do they are concerned the ski to the limit

PENNY WATCHERS NEEDED —

The first reaction of some Canadian citizens to Mr. Ilsley's drastic new budget was to reach a hasty conclusion that after paying increased income taxes and compulsory savings, they would have no more money left to buy War Savings Certificates and Victory Loan Bonds.

No one will accuse the Minister of Finance for having failed to place Canada's current war problem honestly before the people of Canada. He reported that we would have to collect about four billion dollars to carry on during the fiscal year. He said that even with the increased taxes, the anticipated only about two billion dollars revenue from taxes, and that the other half of the year's war bill would have to come from voluntary purchases of certificates and bonds.

Mr. Ilsley was resolute and unafraid in his ground when he laid his new plan before the House of Commons. He knew that the total of the two billion dollars to be raised through the sale of Canadian securities will be available. And he also recognized that that money will be available only if each individual does his share in cutting down his private spending to the bare minimum.

In days of easy money, and we have had these kind of days during the past three or four years, people have become accustomed to thinking in terms of dollars rather than in pennies and dimes. Under the first impact of a budget such as we have just seen, there is a common tendency for men and women to keep on thinking in terms of dollars. We have to learn to view the large items of our personal budget, such as rent, food and cloth ing, and reduce to one hundredth the time considerably. Of course, the man would be using an alias though, and throw them off the track.

The reservation had been made for a Mrs. Arthur James. Nothing unusual about the name. And until who will budget every cent of their income during the next year, and who will pinch each penny, nickel dime and quarter before spending it—spending small change only after weighing the value to be received against the value of that change to our country at war—will always have money left over for War Savings Stamps, War Savings Certificates and Victory Loan bonds.

Price Scale on Dairy Products and Meat Is Set

Providing an incentive for winter production the wholesale price of butter outside has been set at 32½ cents until October 31, the Wartime Prices & Trade Board announces. Prints and rolls and unsalted creamery butter will be one cent higher, that is 34½ cents, wholesale.

For beef, a sliding scale on best grade carcasses wholesale has been fixed from 14½ cents on June 27, to 16 cents on Nov. 30. A sliding scale has also been fixed for the price of the 28 cuts of beef, wholesale, leading down from the present time until November. The retail prices will vary according to demands for certain cuts, but the retailer is only permitted to make the same percentage on his cuts as he did during the basic period, Sept 15-Oct. 11, 1941.

Pork is also sold at basic period prices. Frozen lamb is now at the peak, 2½ cents over the basic period for 1942 fresh lamb is exempt until Aug. 16, when prices will come under the ceiling.

MANY MATTERS AT SPECIAL MEETING OF TOWN COUNCIL

Charles Beecroft Gets First Vacation in Twenty-nine Years

A special meeting of the town council was held on July 20th with Mayor Morrison and Councillors Kaiser, Scott, Spencer, Porter and Bushell present.

Correspondence: Bureau of Public Welfare re McDowell; Bureau of Public Welfare re Wark; C. Beecroft re holidays; Old Age Pension Dept. re Oakley.

The two letters from the Bureau of Public Welfare were handed to Cr. Scott, Chairman of the Health and Relief committee for attention.

The application of Mr. C. Beecroft for two weeks holidays, his first in 29 years of service to the town, was unanimously granted.

The following motions were passed: Porter—Kaiser: Resolved that two extra police be engaged by the Chief Constable for the three days of the Fair.

Spencer—Porter: That the sidewalk recently laid on 1st Street North be approved.

Bushell—Spencer: That building permits of Geo. Grasby $150 and W.H. Barnes $1,000 be approved.

Kaiser—Scott: That the application of Henry C. Oakley for Old Age Pension be approved.

Kaiser—Scott: That the motion authorizing $25 expenses W.H. Graham to Municipal convention be rescinded and that on account of having to leave a day earlier to interview the Minister in Edmonton at additional cost, that he be granted the sum of $40 instead.

Kaiser—Scott: That By-law No. 645 having been read three times be now signed by the Mayor and the secretary and engrossed by the latter.

This By-law alters the hours of the beauty parlors from 9 o'clock closing to 8 p.m. for the convenience of the members of the Women's Army Training centre only. Local ladies must still patronize the beauty parlors according to the old hour

Subject to confirmation of council.

ANNE TEDLOCK BROOKS

CHAPTER XXXI

Ransome Todd's heart gave a great leap and continued beating lightly as he watched the slender girl mount the steps to enter the subway. He'd have known Tamar if she were wearing a mask instead of those dark glasses, he thought happily.

He stole a quick glance about the group assembled at the gate. No one accompanied Tamar to the entrance. There was a quick racing of the motor, the engine roared and the great silver ship was off down the runway. He caught a glimpse of a white face pressed against a window and the lift of a slender white hand. She had seen him then.

Rainy moved out of the diminishing throng and went into the terminal building. He had come to check with the man in the control tower the number of transient ships, hoping to find some clue for the plane that had carried Tamar away. There had been a call from Taylor today, telling of a reservation that had been made and the ticket sent out by a private pilot to an inn.

The FBI man had been checking with the airfields on transient and reservations. He had played a hunch that the kidnapper was using his plane to make his contact with Knox Randolph for the ransom, and so all lifeliness would see that Tamar returned by plane.

The record in the police files showed only three Louies of all those investigated who had private flying licenses. That narrowed the number considerably. Of course, the man would be using an alias though, and throw them off the track.

The reservation had been made for a Mrs. Arthur James. Nothing unusual about the name. And until who will budget every cent of their income during the next year, and who will pinch each penny, nickel dime and quarter before spending it—spending small change only after weighing the value to be received against the value of that change to our country at war—will always have money left over for War Savings Stamps, War Savings Certificates and Victory Loan bonds.

Rainy long-distance operator said the line was busy and he had to wait for a moment. He saw a girl in the next booth talking earnestly into the telephone. He decided that she was sending a wire as he watched her read from a paper. She was small and pretty with blonde curls framing her oval face.

Rainy thought the glass he could see that she wore was heavy. She burned out of the door and across the lobby. Rainy's call was put through and he had Knox Randolph on the wire. That just as Tamar entered an airliner for Atlanta — and on a stopover.

Two hours later the airliner with Tamar on board was set down on the ribbon of concrete at the Atlanta field. The gates were thronged with reporters and bystanders who gave a wild cheer as Tamar appeared in the doorway of the plane.

Police stood by, hands on holsters.

Tamar was so weak with sheer nervous exhaustion that her feet crumpled and refused to move as she took the first step.

Strong arms gathered her up.

"Tamar!" A vise-like grip pulled her to a rough tweed-clad chest, and giant strides carried her past the curious.

Tamar laughed to keep from crying. It was heavenly to be with Dad and Rainy. And good Dick Sheridan in the front seat with the driver.

"Where are we going?" she managed presently.

"I'm taking you to a hotel. You're going to get about 12 hours sleep before you go back home."

"Oh, but, Dad, please don't. I want to get back to Shadwell. I've never wanted to see home as much in all my life as I have the last two days. Let's go home, Dad."

"Are you flying back with me, Rainy?" Dick asked, turning in the seat. "It's not far to Talahaneka by plane."

Rainy looked at Tamar. He had, told her briefly ... arms, and in that short moment knew that he would never be happy if he could not always have her.

News travels fast! Rainy thought as they pulled up before a small restaurant. He had decided that he had more work to do before he could go back to Talahaneka. For one thing, he must go and telephone the office of the state police. Recall will cost $700. Bl. Decollet Gate, on the west side of the city, and an old posting house were swept away by a direct hit.

A well-travelled motor road climbs up the wall of a 200-foot canyon in the Canadian Rockies? In a series of hairpin turns, the famous Horseback of Yoho National Park reaches a greater height for its length than any other road in the Dominion. An Associated Screen "Did You Know That" movie short pictures the road.
